RICHARD T. ARCHER, a prosperous farmer of Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, is a native of Noble County, Ohio, and was born in 1857. He is a son of James and Janette (Smith) Archer.

James Archer was born in Noble County, in 1835; he died in June, 1897, and was buried at Rainbow. He enlisted during the Civil War, in Company I, 170th Ohio Vol. Inf., and served from 1864 until the close of the war. He was a farmer by occupation, and a man who was highly esteemed in the community. He married Janette Smith, who was born in Noble County, Ohio, and is a daughter of James H. and Ellen (Enoch) Smith. She died in 1890, aged seventy years, leaving five children, namely: Richard T., the subject of this sketch; Harvey, who went to Alaska seven years ago; Jackson, who was killed on the railroad between Beverly and Marietta, in 1893; Mary, who married Enmett Wooden, and is living in Washington County; and Ida, who lives at Parkersburg, West Virginia.

The subject of this sketch was united in marriage in 1885, to Ida Wolford, who was born in Washington County, Ohio, in 1866, and is a daughter of Alfred and Eliza (Waller) Wolford. They have three children, namely: Frank, who was born April 9, 1887; Nellie, who was born March 11, 1892; and Ada, who was born February 4, 1896.

Richard T. Archer lives one mile and a half north of Beverly, and there carries on general farming. He is a man of thrift and energy, and is ranked among the leading farmers of Washington County. He is a member of the Wesleyan Methodist Church. Politically, he is a Democrat, and a member of the township school board.

WILLIAM SMITH, a native of Yorkshire, England, was born in March, 1841, and is now a farmer, of Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio. His father was also named William Smith, and was born in Yorkshire, in 1801; his death occurred in 1872. He was employed as a steward for noblemen in England. His wife, whose name was Elizabeth, was born in Yorkshire, England, in 1801, and died in 1851. They had three children, namely: John, deceased; Elizabeth, who lives in England; and William.

The subject of this sketch, was married in 1867, and his wife died ten years later. She left two children,—Cohen, an engineer on the Ohio River; and Margaret E., who married Harmon Matthews, a stationary engineer in Duquesne, Pennsylvania. Mr. Smith was again married, in 1884, to Mrs. Vesta Foster, widow of Lemuel Foster. She was born in Adams township, Washington County, Ohio, in 1844 and is a daughter of Adelpa and Patience Mason. By her first marriage she had one child,—Ishmael,—who was born in Adams township, in May, 1870, and died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Smith have one child—Letitia—who was born in 1884, on the Dana farm in Waterford township, and is now living in Allegheny City, Pennsylvania.

I. O. ALCORN.

Mr. Smith came from England to the United States in 1870, and located on the Shaw farm, in Waterford township, where he remained two years. He then managed the Dana farm for twenty-one years, or until 1894. At present he is living two miles southeast of Beverly, where he owns a farm of 40 acres, which he successfully operates. He is very well informed on agricultural matters, and has had a long experience in farming. He is a member of the Episcopal Church, and his wife attends the Christian Church. Mr. Smith is a member of the Beverly lodge of Odd Fellows. Politically, he is a Republican. Both he and his wife stand very high in the community, where they have many friends.

O. ALCORN, president of the Ohio Valley Wagon Company, is one of the leading business men of Marietta. The plant of which he is the head is located at Norwood, and is prominently known throughout this, and adjoining States.

The Ohio Valley Wagon Company was chartered April 7, 1890, the original officers being William Reader, president; J. A. McCormick, vice-president; and William M. Stilwell, secretary and treasurer. These gentlemen, with John Kaiser and Philip Trapp, constituted the directorate of the company. Its present officers are I. O. Alcorn, president; J. A. McCormick, vice-president; and William M. Stilwell, secretary and treasurer. In addition to those above named, John Kaiser and W. H. H. Jett are directors. This company is the outgrowth of the firm of Trapp & Stilwell, which manufactured wagons at the corner of Fourth and Church streets. The company purchased three acres of land in Norwood, and in the summer of 1900, erected a large plant, the dimensions of which are 150 by 50 feet. They also have a boiler room and dry kiln together, measuring 32 by 100 feet; and a blacksmith shop and shipping store room, each 32 by 150 feet in dimensions. The engine room is 32 by 34 feet in size, and the motive power is furnished by a 216-horse power "Buckeye" engine. The main building is of three stories, built of brick, and is one of the best equipped in the country for the uses to which it is devoted. The machinery was mainly manufactured by the Defiance Machine Company. The business is under William M. Stilwell as general manager, and about 50 men are employed. Two traveling salesmen cover Southern Ohio, Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and parts of Kentucky and Indiana, in addition to which the company has a large trade by mail order. The "Marietta" wagon is the leader and they manufacture numerous styles of farm and spring wagons, oil-country buckwagons, especially adapted to the country, as well as wagons for carrying torpedoes. The company still owns the property at Fourth and Church streets, where their agents, Trapp & Shilling, carry a complete line of wagons for sale.

I. O. Alcorn was born at Titusville, Pennsylvania, and was there reared and schooled. He left there for the oil fields in 1889, having nothing but energy and good health for capital. He located first at Macksburg, Washington County, Ohio, working as a laborer, tool dresser and driller. He went through the McDonald excitement in Pennsylvania, and also that in the West Virginia and Lima fields. He was engaged as contractor until the fall of 1896, when he moved to Marietta and became identified with the Marietta Electric Company, the business of which company he still actively manages. It was under his direction that the model plants of the company were built, and thoroughly equipped. Since 1896 his business has been mainly that of an engineer and electrician, and he has met with unqualified success.

Mr. Alcorn married Flora A. Wyland, of Allegheny City, Pennsylvania, and they reside at No. 527 Third street. Two children were born to them, J. W. and F. M. Fraternaly, he is a Mason, belonging to American Union Lodge, No. 1, F. & A. M.; Cumberland Chapter, No. 318, of Caldwell, Ohio; Marietta Council, No. 78, R. & S. M.; and Marietta Commandery, No. 50, K. T. He is a member of the N. A. S. E. He is also a director of the Leader Publishing Company.

J. W. Scott, the efficient bookkeeper of the Ohio Valley Wagon Company, was born in Washington County, and is a son of D. W. Scott, a salesman for the company. He has three sisters—Kate D.; Mary L. and Clara A. He is a Democrat in politics. He is very prominent fraternaly, belonging to Harmar Lodge, No. 390, F. & A. M.; American Union Chapter, No. 1, R. A. M.; Marietta Council, No. 78, R. & S. M.; and Commandery No. 50, K. T.

ILLIAM B. SHAW, who resides upon his large and well-cultivated farm, located four miles northeast of Beverly, Ohio, was born here in 1832. He belongs to an old and honorable family, which through many generations, has taken an active part in the development of the country and the spread of education. In the case of this family, like many others of early New England, the conditions of living caused the loss of many records which would be highly valued by their descendants.

In Salem, Massachusetts, may be found a record of the marriage of Peter Shaw and Bethia Lovett, dated October 14, 1705. They had two children, Peter (2), who was born March 6, 1708, and was baptized March 21, 1708; and Bethia, who was born July 1, 1709, and was baptized after her father's death, on August 28, 1709. Peter Shaw's will was probated at Salem, on February 7, 1710. The maternal grandfather, John Lovett, remembered these two children by name, in his will.

On March 19, 1730, Peter Shaw (2), married Jemima Woodbury, of Ipswich, third parish, Massachusetts, and their children were as follows: Peter, who was born December 29, 1731, and christened January 2, 1732; Benjamin, born May 2, 1734, and christened May 5, 1734; and Bethia, born August 29, 1739, and christened September 2, 1739. Jemima Woodbury was the ninth child of Capt. Isaac Woodbury, who married Elizabeth Herrick and lived in Salem, Massachusetts.

In 1752, Peter Shaw (3), married Elizabeth Meacham, and their children were as follows: Benjamin, born October 19, 1753, and christened in the 2nd church in Beverly, Massachusetts, June 27, 1756; Sarah, born December 11, 1756, and christened December 12, 1756; and Elizabeth, born December 1, 1759, and christened December 2, 1759. In this Peter Shaw's will dated May 30, 1800, mention is made of a daughter, Elizabeth Wyatt, a granddaughter, Sally Dana, and grandsons, Peter, Cushing, Benjamin and Boylston Shaw.

Benjamin Shaw married Elizabeth Cushing in 1777, and their children were as follows: Sarah; Cushing, Benjamin; Peter; Boylston and Betsy. Sarah was born June 20, 1779, and died August 22, 1844; Cushing was born August 30, 1781, married Mary Parker and lived in Meigs County, Ohio, where he was county clerk and judge of the Probate court following also the occupation of a farmer; Benjamin was born September 1, 1784; Peter was born March 20, 1788, and married Clarissa Parker. By trade, he was a tinner. His later years were passed in poor health, he lived with his son Warner, and died September 15, 1825, at the age of 37 years. Boylston was born October 16, 1795, and died December 1, 1876; Betsy was born August 19, 1798, married Randolph Fearing, and died January 26, 1817.

Benjamin Shaw, the grandfather of William B. Shaw, served in Danner's company of minute men under Capt. Israel Hutchinson, at the battle of Lexington, and afterwards, as a regular soldier in the Revolutionary army. He came from Hampton, New Hampshire, and at a later date, when the Northwest Territory was thrown open for settlement, removed his family to the West. They were at Fort Fry during the war, and afterwards settled in the rich bottom land. Their farm subsequently came into the possession of Boylston Shaw, and is now owned by his son, William B. Boylston Shaw was united in marriage, November 18, 1819, to Eliza Hamlin, a native of New York. To them were born four children, namely: Charlotte; Sarah; Harriett and William B.

Great-grandfather Peter Shaw was also a soldier in the Revolutionary War, serving under Capt. John Woodbury and Col. Henry Hench, and was 1st lieutenant of the 4th Company, 8th Reg., on April 2, 1776. The loyal spirit of these valiant ancestors was displayed by the lamented Gen. B. D. Fearing, of the Union army, during the Civil War. Another notable and distinguished descendant was the Hon. James W. Dawes, later governor of Nebraska.

The location of the Shaw family in Ohio, doubtless dates from April 7, 1788, and it is reasonable to infer that Benjamin Shaw was a member of the Ohio Company which was composed of Massachusetts men, and who founded the city of Marietta. In 1789, he settled at Waterford, Elizabeth Cushing, his wife, being a daughter of Bera Cushing, of Weymouth, the fifth in his family line from the original founder, Matthew Cushing. She lived in the family of Manasseh Cutler, at Hamilton or Ipswich, in 1771, having formerly made her home with her cousin, Mary Sumner Balch, of Dedham. When the last named married Mr. Cutler, she accompanied them to their home and remained there until her own marriage. Her father, Bera Cushing, appears on the roll of a military company of Hingham men, commanded by Capt. Edward Ward, in 1758. Bera Cushing married Hannah Boylston.

On September 14, 1857, William B. Shaw, son of Boylston and Eliza Shaw, the former of whom died December 1, 1876, aged 81 years, and the latter of whom died March 15, 1872, aged 71 years, was married to Louise P. Devol, daughter of Stephen and Silence (Hatch) Devol, born in Waterford, Washington County, Ohio, December 29, 1836. Her father was born in Rhode Island and died January 21, 1875, in his 90th year. He came to Washington County in its early days and located in Waterford township. He was an extensive farmer, and a member of the Masonic fraternity. Religiously, he was a Methodist, and politically, he belonged to the Republican party. The mother of Mrs. Shaw was born in Connecticut, and was a daughter of Nathan Hatch, who was lost at sea when she was a child. Two children were born to William B. Shaw and his wife, namely: Caro, born September 26, 1858, on the Dana farm, in Waterford township, who married Edmund R. Taylor and lives in Plainfield, New Jersey; and Hiram D., who married Catherine Rathbone. One daughter, Caro Louise, was born to Hiram D. Shaw and his wife; and she resides with her mother in Marietta, where the father died. The subject of this sketch is a Republican in political identity. The family is connected with the Presbyterian Church.

JOHN KAISER, one of the prominent and successful business men of Marietta, Ohio, is local manager of the National Supply Company, an extensive concern with stores in every oil field in the United States.

The National Supply Company, with headquarters at Toledo, Ohio, and Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, is a consolidation of the old National Supply Co., the Buckeye Supply Co., the Union Supply Co., Shaw, Kendall & Co., and many smaller concerns. It was incorporated in 1893, and the present capital stock and surplus is $2,000,000. It has branch stores in every oil region in the United States, aggregating fifty or more. The officers are as follows: Henry M. Wilson, of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, president; William Hardee, of Toledo, Ohio, 1st vice-president; W. C. Hillman, of Toledo, Ohio, 2nd vice-president; and J. H. Barr, secretary; and E. B. King, of Toledo, Ohio, assistant treasurer. The Marietta store was opened in July, 1895, under the management of John Kaiser, who for six years previous to that time, had been with the Oil Well Supply Company, and is one of the most active developers of Marietta enterprises. George B. Eyssen is the efficient and active field man of the vicinity. The general warehouse, owned by Gracey, Kaiser & Moore, is located at No. 134 Second street, along the Pennsylvania Railroad track. The cordage and engine warehouses, and the pipe yards, covering several acres, lie along the same tracks, between Sixth and Seventh streets. The principal factories of the company are located at Toledo, Pittsburg and Buffalo. The Marietta house furnishes every article required by oil men, also gas, water and steam fixtures, and assists in making this an important center for oil operations.

John Kaiser was born in Allegheny, Pennsylvania, in 1866, and is a son of Gustav and Catherine (Miller) Kaiser, and a grandson of Wilhelm and Louise Kaiser. Wilhelm Kaiser now resides in Germany, at the age of eighty-seven years, but his wife died about 1872. They had the following children: Gustav; Louise (Roon), who died in New York State, in 1892; Sophia; Frederick, who resides in Lawrence County, Ohio; and Henry.

Gustav Kaiser was born in Westphalia, Germany, March 11, 1840, and in 1865, came to Pittsburg and Allegheny, Pennsylvania, and conducted a store in the latter city, for a period of three years. In 1868, he moved to a farm in old Union township, Washington County, Ohio, where he followed farming, and at the same time was engaged in coopering for a number of years. He moved to Marietta in 1876, locating at his present place of residence, No. 722 Seventh street. He married Catherine Miller, a daughter of John and Catherine Miller. She was born in Prussia, January 4, 1839, and first came to America in 1853. She spent 1854 and 1855 in Cuba, and then returned to New York City. She next went back to Germany where she remained until 1859. Upon her return to this country, she located in St. Louis, Missouri, later in Iowa, and still later in Allegheny, Pennsylvania, where she married Gustav Kaiser. Five children were born to them namely: John; Kate, born at Allegheny, in 1868, who married Harry Schlicher, and resides in Fairview Heights; William, born in Washington County, Ohio, in 1870, who is manager of the Oil Well Supply Co., and is located at Salem, West Virginia; and Elizabeth and Karl, twins, born in Washington County, Ohio, April 2, 1877.

John Kaiser married Flora Seyler, a daughter of Jacob Seyler, and they have one son, Harold. His family belongs to the German Methodist Church. The subject of this sketch and his family are members of the Congregational Church. They reside at No. 606 Second street.

His is the only institution of the kind in the city.

J. M. Willis lived in Noble County, Ohio, until 1868, when he moved to Washington County. He became a Methodist minister in 1873, and preached in various circuits of the county until 1882, when he moved to Lincoln, Nebraska, where he remained some years. He is now located at Burr Oak, Kansas. He married a daughter of Lemuel Grimes, who first located in Washington County, Ohio, in 1850. She was born in Sharon, Noble County, Ohio, and died in 1896, having given birth to six children, four of whom are living, as follows: O. M., the subject of this biography; Arthur C., a farmer of Pottawatomie County, Kansas; Lemuel C., an expert machinist, of Kansas, who has charge of contract work in connection with pumping stations and water works; and Rev. Fred N., who is secretary of the Kansas M. E. conference.

JAMES A. REPERT.

Dr. O. M. Willis completed his academic course at Marietta, and took a medical course at Columbus, where he was graduated in 1882. He has also done considerable post-graduate work at the New York Polyclinic. He has a thorough knowledge of the intricacies of his profession, and has made a specialty of surgery and the diseases of women. He built Grace Hospital, which is a private institution, located at Nos. 822-824 Third street, in 1898. It has accommodations for about fifteen patients and is modernly equipped throughout. It has received a liberal patronage from the citizens of Marietta and its vicinity, and satisfies a long-felt need, other prominent physicians often making use of the institution. Associated with Dr. Willis, is Dr. A. Howard Smith, an able physician.

Dr. O. M. Willis married Harriet E. Stowe, a daughter of S. S. Stowe, of Lowell, Ohio, and they have two children,—Earl Hamilton and Florence. Fraternally, the subject is a Mason, belonging to American Union Lodge, No. 1; and belongs to Marietta Commandery, Chapter No. 1; and the Elks. He attends the Unitarian Church. The family home is on the Muskingum road.

ALTER B. HARTNELL, who is engaged in the practice of dentistry in Beverly, Washington County, Ohio, was born June 13, 1872, in Gallipolis, Ohio. His parents are Joseph and Mary J. (Hunt) Hartnell.

Joseph Hartnell was born in England, came to the United States in 1872, and located in Gallipolis, Ohio, where he was engaged in flour milling. He is now living at Coolville, Ohio, aged fifty-two years. His wife, Mary H. (Hunt) Hartnell, was born in England, also, and is now fifty-five years old. They have three children, namely: Walter B., the subject of this sketch; Ida J.; and Minnie B.

Walter B. Hartnell was reared in Coolville, Ohio, and attended the University of Indiana, an institution in Indianapolis, graduating from the dental department, April 7, 1897. He located in Beverly, where he has been actively engaged ever since. He spent two years in practice in Coolville. His patrons are many, and he is highly commended for his good workmanship. Possessed of considerable mechanical ingenuity, he has found no difficulty in mastering his profession, and has met with much success in his short career.

Dr. Hartnell was married August 23, 1900, to Adda L. Lansley, of Beverly, a daughter of Cyrus and Louise Lansley. He is a member of Buell Lodge No. 35, K. of P. Politically, he is a Republican.

AMES A. REPPERT, deceased, for many years a prominent resident of Warren township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in 1811, in Greensboro, Greene County, Pennsylvania, and is a son of George Reppert. His father, who was one of the pioneer window-glass manufacturers west of the Alleghenies, came to this country from Alsace-Lorraine, then French territory, and was identified with Albert Gallatin in the manufacture of glass at New Geneva, Pennsylvania.

James A. Reppert was united in marriage with Frances Petite Hays, who was born near Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, in 1817, and is a daughter of Jacob Hays. She is descended from William Hays, of Scotland, who left that country during the religious persecution and settled in County Tyrone, Ireland. He was at the siege of Derry and suffered with the rest of the besieged until relief came, having been absent from his family for twenty-two months. The first of the family that settled in America was Abram Hays, who married a lady of French birth, Frances Petite. They located in Maryland, and thence moved to the vicinity of Homestead, Pennsylvania, in 1776. Here Mr. Reppert took up land which is still in the possession of his descendants. He and his wife died on this farm, having reared nine children. Of these children, the fourth was Jacob Hays, the father of Mrs. Reppert. He was born in 1778, and in 1799 married Jane Harden, by whom he had the following children: James H.; Thomas; Emily J.; Frances P.; Nancy; Mary; Abram; John K.; Sarah; Alexander; Ivy; and Caroline.

Mr. and Mrs. Reppert became the parents of six children, namely: Rush, who died in infancy; Byron, who married Katrina Gerrish, of Chillicothe, Ohio; Christianna Margaretta, who lives on the homestead farm; Jacob, who resides in California; and George and James, deceased. James A. Reppert died October 4, 1889, after an honorable and well-spent life. Mrs. Reppert lives with her daughter, Christianna Margaretta Reppert, on the old family homestead, located four miles below Marietta. She is a lady of many estimable traits of character, and is loved and respected by all who know her.

MICHAEL C. DEARTH, a prosperous farmer residing two miles north of Beverly in Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Monroe County, Ohio, 1852 and is a son of John and Rosanna (Wise) Dearth.

John Dearth was born in Pennsylvania in 1808 and died in 1884. He moved to Monroe County at an early day, was married there, and came to Washington County in 1858, locating in Aurelius township. He moved to Morgan County in 1865, where he died. He was a farmer by occupation. He was a member of the M. E. Church, of which he was a steward many years, and the door of his home was ever open to the minister who made the circuit. Politically, he was a Democrat in early life, but in later years, was a Republican. He married Rosanna Wise, who was born in Monroe County, Ohio, in 1810, and died in 1885. She was also a member of the M. E. Church. This union was blessed with ten children, as follows: Jacob, a farmer of Morgan County; Hamilton, a retired farmer of Hutchinson, Kansas; William, a capitalist of Hutchinson, Kansas; Lucy, deceased, who was the wife of Samuel Rock; James, who lives on the old homestead, in Morgan County; Nehemiah, who at the outbreak of the Civil War, enlisted in the 77th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., served four years, re-enlisted in the same regiment, came home on a furlough, and died at the end of the war, of camp diarrhea at Clarksville, Texas, where he was buried; Nancy, who has been an invalid for many years; John, who died when a boy; Mary, who married Charles Barkhurst, and died in Oregon; and Michael C.

Michael C. Dearth has always followed farming, except a few years spent in merchandizing, and at present owns a fine farm of seventy acres, two miles north of Beverly. He is a man of modern ideas and great energy, and has met with unqualified success in the prosecution of his work.

January 6, 1876, Mr. Dearth was united in marriage with Frances Dye, who was born in Marietta in 1852, and was a daughter of Uriah and Jane Dye. She died in 1889, leaving one child, Robin R., who was born in Waterford township, in November, 1876, and is a merchant of McPherson, Kansas. Mr. Dearth was married in 1891 to Flora M. Calder, who was born in Briggs, Ohio, in 1858, and is the daughter of David and Mary Calder. They have a son, Oliver Kenneth, who was born March 14, 1896. Mr. Dearth is a member of the M. E. Church, of which he has been steward, trustee and recording steward, many years. In politics, he is a strong and unswerving Republican.

CHARLES GRASS, a member of the firm of Stanley & Grass, dealers in furniture in Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, is one of the most prominent business men of that city. He was born in Marietta in August, 1854, and is a son of William and Elizabeth (Brinkweddie) Grass.

William Grass died over forty years ago, and his wife died in 1872. They reared three sons, and one daughter (Mary), who lives at the old home on Washington street in Marietta. Henry is engaged in the cigar and stogie business at Wheeling; Charles is the subject of this biography; and William died in Marietta, aged 54 years.

Charles Grass has spent his entire life in Marietta, and since 1870 has been identified with his present business, in which he is now a partner. He is a man of scrupulously correct business principles, a good manager, and is possessed of unusually keen judgment and foresight. He stands high among the leading business men of the city, who respect him for his open methods of doing business, and for his loyalty to any worthy cause or enterprise which is undertaken for the city's good.

Mr. Grass married Auxcey Gorrall, a native of Yankeesburg, Washington County, Ohio, in September, 1881. They have two daughters and two sons, namely: Florence; Mabel; Charles Henry; and Lawrence.

Mr. Grass is a Democrat, in national politics. He is a member of the Methodist Church.

F W. HUTCHINSON, the proprietor of Hutchinson's Bargain Store at Nos. 169-171 Front street, Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, established his present business in 1889, and has continued to add one line of goods after another, until he now has a full department store. The dry goods department covers dry goods of all descriptions, notions, ladies' and children's wraps and ready-made wear, hosiery, underwear, and gents' furnishings. He also carries a full line of clocks and jewelry, groceries and confections, queensware, glassware, hardware, tinware, carpets, portieres, curtains, wallpaper, shades, medicines, oilcloths, sewing machines, books, stationery, musical instruments, picture frames, baskets, Japanese ware, and also many other things which are sold at retail and wholesale. The store gives employment to over thirty people, and transacts an annual business of about $100,000.

Mr. Hutchinson is to be complimented upon the extraordinary success of his business undertakings, a fact which has been due entirely to his own energetic efforts and faithfulness to duty. He is an excellent manager, and is proprietor of one of the largest stores of the kind in this section of the country. His goods are of the best quality, and are displayed tastefully throughout the entire store. His patrons receive the best of attention, and are, one and all, treated with courtesy and promptness.

The subject of this sketch was born in Greene County, Ohio, and has lived in Washington County nearly all his life. He lived and was in business in East Liverpool, Ohio, 11 years, and returned to this county 14 years ago. His early life was spent in his father's store at New Matamoras, Ohio. At one time he was a partner in the firm of S. Hutchinson & Sons. He was married 26 years ago, to Rachel A. Wells, of Wells Bottom, West Virginia, and has three children,—Jennie D.; Samuel; and Wells.

In politics, Mr. Hutchinson is a Republican. Religiously, the family are members of the First Presbyterian Church, of Marietta, Ohio. Socially, Mr. Hutchinson is a Knights Templar.

MILES HUMISTON, who lives on his farm half a mile south of Beverly, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Adams township, November 28, 1840. He is a son of Lyndes and Betsy (Starland) Humiston.

Lyndes Humiston was born in Little Muskingum, Washington County, Ohio, in 1797, and died in 1881, in his 84th year. He was a farmer, and, politically, an old-time Whig, although in later days he voted the Republican ticket. He married Betsy Starland, who was born in Waterford township, and died in January, 1879, at the age of 80 years. They had seven children, namely: Hiram, of Adams township; Lyman; Eliza, who married Abner Devol; Charles, deceased; Sally, who married David P. Slater, and lives in Indiana; Jason, deceased; and Miles, the subject of this sketch.

Miles Humiston was married September 24, 1866, to Emeline Beebe, who was born in Waterford township, Washington County, in 1847, and is a daughter of George W. and Sarah J. (Webster) Beebe. They have two children namely: David, an engineer living in Beverly, who married Maggie Kile, a daughter of Clark and Ann Kile; and Dora, who married Carlos Smith, a merchant, of Waterford.

Mr. Humiston enlisted in 1864, at Waterford, in the 148th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., although he first enlisted in the National Guard. He went out as a one-hundred-day man, but did not get back home until after the time limit of service. He owns a farm of 121 acres of land in Waterford township, just a half mile south of Beverly. In the cultivation of this he takes great pride, and he is considered one of the best farmers in that part of Washington County. He is prosperous, having met with considerable success, and is a kind and helpful neighbor, esteemed by all for his upright principles and good character.

In politics, Mr. Humiston is a Republican. He is a member of Mount Moriah Lodge, No. 37, A. F. & A. M., of Beverly. His wife is a member of the Methodist Church.

RS. CATHERINE PARR FRANKS, the widow of Owen Franks, formerly a prominent business man of Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Grandview, this county, November 3, 1814, and is a daughter of Nathan and Mary (Daugherty) Parr.

Nathan Parr was a native of Maryland, and his ancestors were partial owners of what is now known as the city of Wheeling. The three Parr brothers who came to this country, were natives of England. Nathan Parr married Mary Daugherty, and they removed to Washington County, where Nathan put up the first "hewed" log house built in Grandview township. He cleared two hundred acres of land, and had the first tree cut down in the "Long Reach," some five miles below Matamoras. Nathan Parr and his wife had the following children, namely: Stephen; Samuel, the grandfather of Dr. J. D. Parr, of Marietta; Benjamin; Isaac; Jesse; Hamilton; Vachel; Nelson; Rebecca; W. H. Harrison; Catherine, the subject of this sketch; and James H. Samuel Parr married Grace Holden and reared several children, among whom was Nathan Parr, the father of Dr. J. D. Parr, of Marietta.

Catherine Parr Franks, the subject of this biography, was married in 1833, in Grandview township, to Owen Franks. Owen Franks was born in 1806 in the Shenandoah Valley, and was a son of Henry and Margaret (Van Buskirk) Franks, who removed from Virginia to Washington County, Ohio, and located in Grandview township. After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Owen Franks farmed for several years, after which Mr. Franks was engaged in trading along the Ohio River, and down the Mississippi to New Orleans. He removed to Marietta, in 1846, where he engaged in the foundry business, erecting what is now the Leidecker Tool Works building, on Second street. He followed that business, practically until the time of his death, which occurred in 1880. He was one of the most influential citizens of Marietta, and was a man of excellent character.

Mrs. Catherine Franks is the mother of ten children, (four of whom are now living), as follows: Maria Louise, the wife of H. J. Brinker, of New Orleans, Louisiana; William Hayden and Rebecca, who died in infancy; Mary Catherine (Nye), and Lavinia, deceased; Lafayette, a railroad man in California; Rose T. (Vickers), of Arkansas; Laura W. (Wheeler), who died in Georgia; Charles Owen, who died in the City of Mexico; and Lucy W. (Stowe), who lives with her mother, at the old home, No. 524 Second street. This home, which is large and imposing, is located on an elevation, and at once commands the attention of passersby. It is of colonial archi-ecture, and has been the family home for fifty years.

Mrs. Franks is possessed of a sweet and charitable nature, and is highly esteemed in the community for her many womanly traits of character.

MOSES B. JOHNSTON, a prominent citizen of Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Brownsville, Licking County, Ohio, July 1, 1837, and is a son of Josiah and Mary (Warbritton) Johnston.

Josiah Johnston was born in Coshocton county, Ohio, in 1809, and for a period of fifty years was engaged in teaching school. Later in life, however, he conducted a general store at Coal Run. He died in 1890 and was buried at Zanesville, Ohio. He was a member of the Methodist Protestant Church. Fraternally, he was a Mason, and in politics, a Republican. He married Mary Warbritton, who was born near Metz, then in France, in 1811, and died in 1873. She came to the United States with her parents when twelve years of age, and lived on Wheeling Creek, near the city of Wheeling. Her father was John Warbritton. This union resulted in the birth of eight children, as follows: Elea; Joseph; Sarah; Moses B.; Josiah; Mary; Caroline and Robert. Elea is the widow of Robert Fulton, who was a marble cutter by trade; Joseph is deceased; Josiah closed his school at the firing on Fort Sumter and enlisted in the regular army, before the call for volunteers by President Lincoln. He was a member of the 18th Reg. U. S. Inf., and was killed at the Battle of Stone River when but eighteen years of age. Mary married David Foerster; Caroline married J. M. Moore, a traveling salesman, of Zanesville, Ohio; and Robert is a caterer, and resides at Columbus, Ohio.

Moses B. Johnston enlisted at Athens, Ohio, September 12, 1862, in Company I, 7th Reg. Ohio Vol. Cav., under Col. Israel Garrard. He was in the siege at Knoxville, and in Gen. Carters' second raid through Tennessee. He sustained a gunshot wound in the left wrist, at Winchester, Kentucky, while acting as first duty sergeant, and was mustered out as an subaltern of that rank. He was discharged on account of physical disability, on surgeon's order, June 20, 1865, at Covington, Kentucky. He draws a pension of $24 per month.

On March 24, 1858, Mr. Johnston was united in marriage with Miss N. J. Jarvis, who was born in West Wheeling, Ohio, in 1839, and is a daughter of Peter and Margaret Jarvis. They had one child, Mary M., who was born March 4, 1860, and died March 24, 1860. Fraternally, the subject of this sketch is a member of Beverly Lodge, No. 84, I. O. O. F.; Mount Moriah Lodge, No. 37, A. F. & A. M.; and Dick Cheatham Post, No. 317, G. A. R. He is a Republican, in politics, and held the postmastership in Beverly under the Harrison administration. He served as penitentiary guard of the annex, at Columbus, from 1898 to 1900. He is one of the progressive men of Waterford township, and enjoys a wide acquaintance in Washington County.

DR. CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS JARRETT GUTHRIE, deceased, one of Washington County's most prominent physicians for many years, was a resident of Belpre. He was born in that part of Virginia which is now the State of West Virginia, March 10, 1828. He was a son of Rev. Francis and Elizabeth (Hughes) Guthrie, and a grandson of Dr. Nathan and Mabelle (Patterson) Guthrie.

Rev. Francis Guthrie was born in Sherburne, Chenango County, New York, June 4, 1801, and was first prepared for the medical profession. He afterward pursued the study of theology and became a noted divine of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He died in Gallipolis, Ohio, July 7, 1881. He married Elizabeth Hughes, a native of Kanawha County, West Virginia, October 27, 1821, and they came the parents of 13 children, and lived to see their descendants increased to 54 grandchildren and 28 great-grandchildren. Mrs. Guthrie was a woman of exceptional ability, and an earnest Christian; she died in Cheshire, Ohio.

In the "Life of Sir William Wallace," appears the following relative to the Guthrie family: "The name of Guthrie is an ancient and honorable one, the name of a family of great antiquity in Scotland like the most ancient is of local origin, being assumed by the chief when such designations were adopted from his lands in Forfarshire. In the year 1299, after the great Sir William Wallace had resigned his guardianship of Scotland and retired to France, the Northern Lords of that Kingdom sent Squire Guthrie to desire his return that he might assist in opposing the English. Guthrie embarked at Aberbrothock, landed at Sluis, from whence they conveyed Wallace and his retinue back to Montrose."

Crawford, in his "Lives of the Officers of State," says: "The Guthries held the Barony of Guthrie by charter from King David the II, but they were men of rank and property long before the reign of James II. There are five crests of the Guthrie family, four Scotch and one English. Guthrie Castle is still entire and stands at the foot of Guthrie Hill, Forfarshire, Scotland. The massive tower is 60 feet high, and the walls 10 feet thick. The date was 1468 when James III gave license to David Guthrie to fortify a tower with an iron zett. James Guthrie, a minister at Stirling, was beheaded June 1, 1661, because of his writings in Edinburgh. On account of the religious persecutions under which the family suffered, James, John and Robert Guthrie decided to leave Edinburgh and seek security in the United States, settling first in Boston. Chloroform was the discovery of a member of this family, Dr. Samuel Guthrie, of Sacket Harbor, New York, in 1831. About the same time it was discovered by Soubeivan, in France, and Liebig, in Germany. There being three claimants for the honor, a committee was appointed to consider the subject, and after thorough investigation, they concluded that Dr. Samuel Guthrie was justly entitled to the honor of first discovering chloroform, and that the publication of his discovery antedates that of either Liebig or Soubeivan."

Dr. C. C. J. Guthrie, the subject of this biography, was graduated from Ann Arbor (Michigan) Medical College, and subsequently took a post graduate course in the Ohio Medical College, of Cincinnati. He made seven different visits to Europe, and pursued the study of his profession in London, Paris and Vienna. He first engaged in practice in Clarks-ville, Arkansas, where he was married. In 1865, he removed to Belpre, Ohio, where he established an extensive practice, his patients coming from all parts of the Union, Canada and the islands of the Pacific. He was one of the most distinguished men who ever graced the medical profession in Washington County. He was a man of commanding presence, benevolent and kind, and had the confidence and esteem of his patients and of all who knew him. He was a thorough student, fond of good literature, and a fine historian. Dr. Guthrie died at his home in Belpre, April 28, 1893.

October 11, 1854, Doctor Guthrie married Mary Frances Collier, who was born near Nashville, Davidson County, Tennessee, August 24, 1836. She was a daughter of Willis and Mary (Morgan) Collier, who were converts to the Cumberland Presbyterian faith through the teachings of Eli Guthrie, one of the founders of that church. Her parents moved to Arkansas, and settled on a plantation near Clarksville. This union resulted in the following children: Anna, wife of Philip Cole; David P., who was born August 18, 1857; George Wesley, who was born November 14, 1860, and died March 2, 1884; and Francis Willis, who was born September 4, 1863, and died January 8, 1875.

Anna Guthrie was born July 23, 1855, and was united in marriage with Philip Cole, February 28, 1883. He is a son of William P. and Louisa (Shields) Cole, and was born June 17, 1852. His father was a farmer and followed that occupation throughout life. Philip Cole is a traveling man. He is a member of the Knights of Pythias and the Odd Fellows. In politics he is a Democrat. Mr. and Mrs. Cole have one child, Pauline C., who was born November 9, 1885. The widow of Dr. Guthrie is spending her declining years at her home in Belpre, surrounded by members of her family and many old friends. Religiously the family is identified with the Congregational Church.

ANDREW J. BACON, an extensive farmer, of Waterford township, Washington County, is a native of that township, and was born February 2, 1846. He is a son of Martin and Mary M. (Hurlbert) Bacon, and grandson of John Bacon.

John Bacon was born in Sheffield, England, and came to the United States, where he followed the trade of a cutler, in New York City. He removed to Washington County, Ohio, in 1798, and thereafter followed farming until his death. Martin Bacon was born on Wolf Creek, Waterford township, January 25, 1803, and died in 1885. He was a cooper by trade, and also followed farming the greater portion of his life. He was a Democrat, in politics, and held numerous township offices. He married Mary M. Hurlbert, who was born in Palmer township, Washington County, Ohio, February 19, 1809, and died September 19, 1866. She was a daughter of John and Betsy (Mellor) Hurlbert, her father being a native of Vermont, and her mother of Liverpool, England. He died in 1855, and she survived him until 1875.

Andrew J. Bacon is one of eight children, namely: Rachel J., born June 15, 1831, who died January 31, 1887, and was the wife of Miles Lawrence; Mary E., born November 30, 1832, who was first married to James Oliver, and afterward to John Hill, and is now a widow, living in Waterford; Sarah, born October 4, 1834, who married Daniel Boland; Betsy, born November 17, 1836, widow of Isaac Baldwin who died March 31, 1902; Emily, born May 10, 1839, who is deceased; Miranda, who was born September 19, 1841, and died at the age of twenty-one years; Andrew J.; and John E., born March 30, 1851, who is also deceased.

Andrew J. Bacon received his intellectual training in the public schools of his native county, after which he took up the occupation of a farmer. He has always been engaged in this work in Washington County, and owns a valuable tract of 260 acres of land, located about five miles west of Beverly. He is a man of the strictest integrity, with a high sense of honor and stands high in the esteem of all who know him.

March 18, 1877, Mr. Bacon married Georgia R. Townsend, who was born in Waterford township, September 21, 1851, and is a daughter of George and Mary E. (Devol) Townsend. Her father was born in New York February 22, 1815, and died August 29, 1886. Her mother was born in Waterford township, March 25, 1829. The subject of this sketch and his wife had one child,—George D., who was born July 25, 1880, and died January 17, 1881. Mrs. Bacon is a member of the M. E. Church. Mr. Bacon is a strong supporter of the Democratic party, and takes a deep interest in its success.

HENRY LESLIE SKIPTON, a tiller of the soil in Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, is a man of prominence in his community. He is a son of Lindley Skipton, also of Waterford township, whose biography appears elsewhere in this volume.

The subject of this sketch was born May 10, 1860, in Waterford township, and has followed the occupation of a farmer for many years, keeping himself fully posted on all the various improvements that are made, and cultivating his 130 acres of ground with wisdom and forethought. He raises stock quite extensively, especially sheep, and has always enjoyed most remarkable good fortune.

On September 28, 1881, Mr. Skipton was united in marriage with Adda Legel, a native of Watertown township, Washington County, where her birth occurred in 1862. She was a daughter of Argales and Hannah (Palmer) Legel, the former a native of Palmer township, a farmer by vocation, and an energetic worker in the Republican party's interest, who departed this life at the early age of 36 years. Mrs. Palmer, the mother of Mr. Skipton's wife, was a daughter of Isaac and Persus (Tilton) Palmer. Isaac Palmer was of English ancestry; he was born in the State of Connecticut, and settled in Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, during the early days of its development.

Mr. and Mrs. Skipton have one child, Mabel Fern, who was born May 20, 1888, in Waterford township. The family attend the Presbyterian Church, and Mr. Skipton is now serving as elder in the church and as a teacher in the Sunday school. In politics, he is a Republican, and has served his community as president of the school board, with satisfaction to all.

Socially, the subject of this sketch, is a member of Mount Moriah Lodge, No. 37, F. & A. M.; the I. O. O. F., and the Court of Honor, all of Beverly. His farm is located about one and a half miles southeast of Beverly.

WILLIAM A. FAUBLE, an extensive farmer of Grand View township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in New Matamoras, February 22, 1868, and is a son of Andrew and Elizabeth (Bendle) Fauble.

Andrew Fauble was born in Germany, in 1829, and died in 1891. He came to the United States when twenty years of age, and located in New Matamoras, where he engaged in the meat business and carried on farming. He married Elizabeth Bendle, who was born in Monroe County, Ohio, in 1837, and is now living in New Matamoras. They reared three children, namely: Lucy, who married Mr. G. J. of New Matamoras; William; and Mary. Andrew Fauble was a Democrat, in politics.

William A. Fauble received his mental training in the public schools of New Matamoras, and there also learned the butcher's trade. He has been a farmer most of his life, and is one of the most successful in his township. His farm, which consists of 244 acres of finely improved land, was purchased by him in 1901.

On October 13, 1901, Mr. Fauble married Althea Williamson, a daughter of H. A. Williamson, who was born in Grand View township, Washington County, November 13, 1813. Mr. Williamson married, January 14, 1841, Temperance Hubbard, who was born May 16, 1824. Of eleven children born to them three are now living, namely: Narcissa; Mary E.; and Althea. H. A. Williamson was treasurer and trustee of his county for eleven years, and at the time of his death had a farm of 900 acres. His father, William Williamson, the grandfather of Mr. Fauble's wife, was born in 1790, and died in Texas, about 1855. He was married, in 1809, to Sarah McMahan, who was born in 1778, and died in 1838. They had three children,—Narcissa, Hannah and Hannibal A.

William A. Fauble was a member of the council while a resident of New Matamoras. He is an ardent Democrat, and is much interested in that party's success. He is very well known in agricultural circles in Washington County, and is held in high esteem for his many good qualities of mind and heart.

H. CUNNINGHAM, a prominent undertaker of New Matamoras. Washington County, Ohio, is the proprietor of one of the largest and best establishments of its kind in that section of the state of Ohio. He is an expert embalmer and opened his present business in 1882. His fine business block, which also includes his residence, is 60 by 120 feet, in dimensions, and is considered one of the most valuable pieces of real estate in the town. His undertaking rooms are 50 by 24 feet in dimensions, and are up-to-date in every respect.

Mr. Cunningham was born in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, October 8, 1844, and is a son of Mathew and Eliza (Girt) Cunningham. The elder Cunningham was a native of Ireland, and his wife was born in the "Keystone" State. Matthew Cunningham came to the United States when but thirteen years old. He located in Pennsylvania, where he learned the carpenter's trade, which was his principal vocation through life. He went to New Matamoras in 1846. In politics, he was a lifelong Whig.

Mr. Cunningham was the second son in a family of four. The others are,—James; Mary, wife of G. Springer; and Sarah J., now Mrs. Gilliland. On November 13, 1872, the subject of this sketch was joined in matrimony with Allie A. Ballentine, who was born in Little Washington, Pennsylvania, in 1852. Their union resulted in four children, namely: Anna B.; Olive V., wife of A. F. Humphrey; Robert M.; and Della.

Mr. Cunningham spent his early manhood as a carpenter. On February 14, 1865, he enlisted in Company G, 187th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., and served until the close of the war. He is an influential member of the Baptist Church. In politics, he is a decided Republican, and has served two terms as town clerk. Fraternally, he is a member of New Matamoras Lodge No. 374, F. & A. M.

PRICE MOODY, M. D., one of the successful physicians of Washington County, Ohio, who has taken a leading position in the profession for a number of years, has been located at Bartlett since 1898, where he has become very favorably known.

The birth of Dr. Moody occurred on February 6, 1858, in Mountville, Morgan County, Ohio, and he is a son of David and Nancy More (Price) Moody. David Moody was born in 1812, in Pennsylvania. He was a farmer of substance and prominence, served his township as trustee, and was a leading member of the Presbyterian Church in Mountville, where he died in 1880. His widow survived until 1896; she was also a member of the Presbyterian Church, and a most estimable Christian woman. Their nine children were as follows: John, who is a blacksmith, and resides at Gloucester, Ohio; Mary, who married John Stevenson, and resides in Morgan County; Rebecca, who married John Dougherty, and lives near Mountville; Susanna, who married Aaron Wells, and resides at Gloucester, Ohio; Price, who is the subject of this record; Zach, who is a farmer at Mountville; Emma, who is deceased; Nancy Bell, who married Nathaniel Hart, and resides at Elliott's Cross Roads, Ohio; and Loretta, who married James Cain, at Mountville.

Dr. Moody was reared in Mountville and where he received his preparatory schooling, and subsequently attended the Ohio University at Athens. As it was his intention from youth to enter the medical profession, he began his studies as early as 1876. Dr. Moody in the meantime very efficiently pursued other avocations. For some time he was interested in mine engineering, and his ability was such in this line that in March, 1878, he was appointed topographical engineer for the military district of Montana under Gen. Nelson A. Miles, in 1878, and retained this office until May, 1882. In 1884 he was elected surveyor of Morgan County, and resigned in the following year, in order to accept a position as county surveyor of Meade County, Kansas. After his return to Ohio, he served as deputy surveyor of Athens County. This, however, was not Dr. Moody's chosen life work. His early preparation for college under Dr. R. N. Norris, of Mountville, resulted in his entering Starling Medical College, at Columbus, Ohio, in 1892, and his graduation from that institution in 1895, although for four years previously he had practiced at Utley, in Athens County. In 1898, after two years as prosecutor at Starling Medical College, he located at Bartlett, Ohio, and since that time has enjoyed a large practice, in which he has been unusually successful.

In 1884 Dr. Moody was married to Maria C. Ivers, a daughter of Barney and Clarissa Ivers, who was born near Bishopville, Morgan County, Ohio, and four children have been born to their union, namely: Vittoria; Beatrice, deceased; Fannie and Marie. The subject of this sketch is well known in the profession throughout the State. He belongs to the Morgan County Medical Society, as well as the Ohio State Medical Society, and the American Medical Association, and takes a leading part in their discussions and investigations.

B. GIFFEN, manager of the Marietta Bone and Phosphate Company, which is located at Mile Run, in Marietta township, Harmar district, is one of the leading men of that locality. He was born in Wheeling, West Virginia, July 12, 1876, and is a son of R. K. and Emma J. Giffen.

Mr. Giffen received his mental training at Washington, Pennsylvania, and after completing a course in engineering, entered his present business in 1899. In this he has met with considerable success, and, being a man young in years, is able to look forward to a most prosperous and useful future.

SCHRAMM BROTHERS. These gentlemen, John J. and Edward Schramm, are extensive florists, gardeners and produce merchants, of Washington County, Ohio. Their parents, John and Margaret (Heil) Schramm, were natives of Washington County, Ohio, and Germany, respectively. John Schramm was reared in Washington County, and was a farmer and merchant by occupation. His wife came to this country with her parents, who settled in Washington county.

John J. and Edward Schramm purchased the tract of three acres of land on which they now live, in 1896, and there they raise general produce and flowers. The produce business they carry on in Marietta, at No. 266 Front street, and in this they are highly successful. Both gentlemen are well known in farming and business circles in Washington County, and they are ranked among the leading and influential citizens of that county. In politics, they are Republicans, and in religious belief, are German Lutherans.

MRS. ANNA M. COLE, a well known resident of Marietta township, Washington County, Ohio, is a daughter of Francis Gaylord Guitteau. Her father was a farmer, of Fearing township, Washington County, Ohio, where he was born and reared. He married Sarah Fulton, who was one of the first school teachers of Marietta. He died in 1890, at the age of eighty years, and his wife died in 1885, at the age of seventy-four years.

Anna M. Guitteau was united in marriage with William Henry Cole, who was born in Marietta in 1835, and was a son of Sampson Cole. Sampson Cole owned what was called the Fay Farm, located where Norwood now is, and this farm he traded for the Cole farm, one mile east of Marietta, where Mrs. Cole now lives. William Henry Cole attended the public schools of Marietta, after which he was engaged as clerk on a steamboat for about three years. He was afterward connected with the lumber business in Salem township, Washington County, and also with the oil business, to some extent. Mr. Cole died at his home, August 20, 1899.

Mr. and Mrs. Cole became the parents of the following children: Alice, who graduated as trained nurse, from the Memorial Hospital for Women and Children, at Brooklyn, New York, May 20, 1901, and is now located in Marietta, Ohio; Charles Francis, proprietor of the Huntington Plumbing Company, of Huntington, West Virginia; Arthur Fulton, a graduate of Marietta College in 1890, and a civil engineer, of Marietta, who was first sergeant in the first engineering corps that went to Cuba in 1898, and was afterward promoted to the signal corps of the 2nd Reg. of Ill. Vol. Inf.; John Plumer, who was graduated from Marietta College in 1894, and is studying medicine in Baltimore, Maryland; Walter Putnam, who is conducting a livery stable in Marietta; Edwin, who is at home with his mother; and Clara Jeanette, wife of Donald Carl Snodgrass, who is in the clothing business in Marietta. Mrs. Cole is a woman of many admirable traits of character, and has many friends. She is a Presbyterian in religious belief.

CHARLES P. DYAR, one of the most successful farmers of Muskingum township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Wheeling, West Virginia, in 1857, and is a son of Augustine and Elizabeth (Pollard) Dyar, and grandson of Joseph B. Dyar, who was a native of Nova Scotia.

Augustine Dyar returned to Muskingum township, Washington County, in 1859, and purchased the farm now owned by Charles P. Dyar. There he resided until his death, on January 3, 1883. He married Elizabeth Pollard, a daughter of William Pollard, who was a contractor and builder, of Philadelphia. This union resulted in the following offspring: Charles P.; Bessie A., who married Lewis Blickensderfer, and now lives in Omaha; William Wade, who married Fanny Shumard, of Cincinnati, and is now engaged in the practice of law in Boston, Massachusetts; Fred E., who lives at home; Anna Bell, an infant who died June 2, 1866; Richard Augustine, deceased; and Lotta B., who married A. D. Thorniley, of Marietta township, by whom she has a son, Richard Dyar Thorniley, aged ten years.

Charles P. Dyar was but two years of age when his parents removed to Muskingum township, Washington County, and here he was reared. He has since resided in this township, and upon the death of his father, came into possession of the old home farm, which he successfully conducts. He is a man of good business ability and strong personality, and has many friends throughout the county.

Charles P. Dyar was united in marriage with Mabelle Devol, a daughter of W. D. Devol, of Muskingum township.

THOMAS CISLER, a prominent business man and brick manufacturer, of Marietta township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Baltimore, Maryland, October 14, 1836, and is a son of Henry and Anna (Bernhart) Cisler.

Henry Cisler and his wife were natives of Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, and came to America in 1836, settling in Marietta in 1838, where they lived the remainder of their lives.

Thomas Cisler was reared in Marietta, and received a public school education. In 1856, the present business was established by him, which has always thrived, and has grown into an extensive plant. He is now assisted in the undertaking by his son, Thomas H. Cisler, a very capable business man.

Thomas Cisler was married, April 8, 1860, to Caroline Schneider, a daughter of Theobald and Caroline (Garber) Schneider, and they have three children: Eleda S., who is living at home; Thomas H., who married Lillie Weiss, of Marietta; and Caroline A., who is living with her parents. Mr. Cisler possesses many excellent traits of character, and enjoys the esteem and friendship of his fellow citizens.

THEODORE G. W. KRAFT, a prosperous farmer, of Marietta township, Washington County, Ohio, has a beautiful home overlooking the Ohio River. He was born at Bremen, Germany, in 1829, and is a son of John, and grandson of George Dedrick Kraft.

George Dedrick Kraft came to America in 1832, and settled in Wheeling, West Virginia, where he remained but one year. He then started west for the point known now as Kenton, Ohio; he cut brush and wended his way through the unbroken forest, and upon arriving at his destination built a hut of bark, which served as a home until a more substantial house was built. The Indians were thick in that section, and did not begin to move West until seven years later. George D. Kratz died in 1854.

John Kraft, father of Theodore, was born in Hanover, Germany, in 1808, and came to this country with his father. He did not go west with his father, but remained in Wheeling until 1864. He married Caroline Klieves, a native of Bremen, Germany, and they reared a family of nine children, namely: Theodore G. W.; William, who operates a machine shop at Parkersburg, West Virginia; Albert, deceased, who served in the hospital corps of the United States Army during the Civil War; Emma, who died in infancy; Gertrude, who died young; Lewis, deputy sheriff of Wood County, West Virginia, residing at Parkersburg; Lovenia, wife of W. B. Odbert, a jeweler, of Wheeling, West Virginia; and Mary E. and Amelia, deceased.

Christopher C. Kraft, a brother of John Kraft, was born in 1826, and now resides in Wheeling, West Virginia, where he is treasurer of the Klieves-Kraft Company, which operates a large planing mill. He is also interested in the German Bank of Wheeling, and the Dollar Savings Bank, and is one of the substantial men of that city. He married Caroline Smith, a native of Saxony, Germany, and they have a family of five children, namely: S. H.; Gertrude; Ellen; Julia; and May. The family resides on the island, where Mr. Kraft has been for the past twenty-three years.

Theodore G. W. Kraft received his mental training in the private schools of Wheeling, and there learned the trade of a carpenter and builder. He continued to reside in Wheeling until 1852, engaged in mercantile pursuits a portion of the time, and then went to Grafton, West Virginia, where he built the first hotel in that city. In 1853, he began building stations for the Northwestern Railroad Company, now the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, and continued at this for one year. From 1855 to 1857, he served as conductor on the Baltimore & Ohio road, and during 1861 and 1862, was deputy United States Marshal for the First District of West Virginia, under Major Darrah. Since his marriage, he has spent most of his time in farming, although for a few years, he was on the road as an oil salesman in the interest of his brothers. He has been very successful in a business way, and is one of the influential men of Marietta township. In 1876, he built his present handsome residence, which is located on the banks of the Ohio River, and commands a fine view of that picturesque stream.

In 1866, Mr. Kraft was married to Katherine A. Harness, a daughter of Granville and Jane Harness, who located in Marietta township, Washington County, about 1830.

CHARLES ABBOTT, who was born in Prussia, January 12, 1839, is a son of William and Mary (Dunsing) Abbott, who came to Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, in 1842, and soon afterward settled on a farm in Fearing township. His mother was born in Germany, and came to this country with her husband and children.

Charles Abbott located on his present farm in Marietta township, in 1895, and there he carries on general farming and stock raising, in which he is highly successful. He is well known as a man of upright principles, of thrift and ability, and is looked upon as worthy of the highest esteem and confidence.

He married Martha Wehrs, a daughter of Henry and Catherine Wehrs. Henry Wehrs died in Marietta, in 1891, at the advanced age of ninety years. The subject of this sketch and his wife have reared eight children, as follows: William, who married Mary Oliver, a daughter of Henry Oliver, of Pleasant Hill, Lawrence township, and has one child, Lulu; Mary, the wife of George Block, of Marietta, who has two daughters,—Hattie and Martha;

Henry, who married Phoebe Mootz, of Huntington, West Virginia, and has three children,—Jacob, William, and Grace; John, who is married to Retta Roberson, and has two children,—Raymond and Earl; Katie, who is living at home with her parents; and Chris, Martha, and Fannie, all at home.

Mr. Abbott is a Republican, in politics. He is a member of the Methodist Church.

JAMES McCLELLAN WHARTON, who for many years has been a successful contractor for drilling oil and gas wells, is a well-known citizen of Macksburg, Ohio. He was born in Jackson township, Noble County, Ohio, May 24, 1861. He is a son of John and Sarah (James) Wharton, a grandson of Jacob and Katherine (Shannon) Wharton, and a great-grandson of Robert Wharton.

Robert Wharton was a native of England, who came to the United States, and settled in Greene County, Pennsylvania, where he spent the remainder of his life. He ranked high among the sturdy pioneer farmers of that county. His marriage with a Miss Farley resulted in several children, one of whom was Jacob, the paternal grandfather of the subject of this sketch. Jacob Wharton was a native of Greene County, Pennsylvania, where he spent his boyhood. In 1851, he went west, to Noble County, Ohio, and lived in Jackson township, for a brief period. The following year, he removed to a permanent home in Washington county, Ohio, and spent the balance of his life as a farmer in Aurelius township. He died there in 1866. He was joined in marriage with Katherine Shannon, a native of Ireland, and a daughter of John Shannon, also a pioneer of Greene County, Pennsylvania, where the greater part of his life was spent. His death, however, occurred in Muskingum County, Ohio. Six children were born to Jacob Wharton and his estimable wife, as follows: John, the father of James McClellan; Nancy, who married John Shaffer; Margaret, who married William Wells; Maria; James; and Catherine, who married William S. Smith.

On the maternal side, the subject of this sketch is a grandson of John D. and Rebecca (Johnson) James, and great-grandson of Evans and Susannah (Whittaker) James. John D. James, the grandfather, was of both Welsh and English descent. He was born in Jefferson County, Ohio, August 7, 1810, and was reared and schooled in his native county. After attaining his majority, he was engaged in agricultural pursuits in various parts of Guernsey, Morgan, Noble and Washington counties, and also followed carpenter work during the winter months. About 1862, he settled in Aurelius township, Washington County. He was a man of prominence in his locality, and for thirty-one successive years, served as justice of the peace in Noble and Washington counties. September 30, 1830, he married Rebecca Johnson, a daughter of Samuel and Sarah (Carr) Johnson, of Guernsey County, Ohio. Nine children were born to them, viz: Sarah E., the mother of the subject hereof; Susannah, who married James Dearth; Eliza J., who married Oscar Matthews; Rebecca H.; Rachel, who married Frank Tavenor; John W.; Emily; Samuel; and William E. John D. James, the father of these children was of Quaker stock, and an advocate of the Quaker doctrine. In politics, he was a staunch Republican, and socially, a thirty-second degree Mason. He died in 1874.

John Wharton, the father of James McClellan Wharton, is a native of Greene County, Pennsylvania. He accompanied his parents to Ohio some time prior to 1840. In 1851, he settled in Jackson township, Noble County, where he followed farming for many years. He is now a highly respected resident of Ava, Ohio. He and his wife had a family consisting of seven children. Five are still living, namely: Sophronia, wife of Layman Dutton; William A.; James M., the subject of these lines; John; and Annie, wife of Kore Queen.

James McClellan Wharton was reared in Washington County and attended the public schools. He began his life as a farmer, and followed that vocation in Aurelius township for several years. In 1882, he did his initial work in the oil fields, being engaged as a tool dresser at Macksburg for two years. He then began drilling, which he followed until 1894, and since then has been contracting for drilling both oil and gas wells, in which he has met with unqualified success. July 4, 1885, he was joined in matrimony with Christina Smith, a daughter of James W. and Melissa (Ludwig) Smith, respected residents of Aurelius township. Mr. and Mrs. Wharton have two daughters—Flossie M. and V. Ruth. The family unite in worshiping at the M. E. Church. Fraternally, the subject of this sketch is a member of Macksburg Lodge, No. 366, Knights of Pythias. In politics, he is an ardent Republican. He has the respect of the entire community and his reputation as a contractor is above reproach.

FRANK A. THORNILEY, who is a prosperous farmer of Marietta township, Washington County, Ohio, is living on the old Thorniley homestead, which is located six miles from Marietta City. He was born on that farm, in 1866, and is a son of William E. Thorniley.

Mr. Thorniley's paternal great-grandfather, William Thorniley, came from England. His son, Caleb, was the grandfather of Frank A., and his son, William Thorniley, was the father of Frank A. William was born September 1, 1824, and was a prosperous farmer, of Marietta township. He married Eliza J. Smith, a daughter of Samuel H. Smith, who came from Connecticut, and located in Marietta township. They had four children, all of whom are deceased except Frank A. Mrs. William Thorniley died April 14, 1866. Mr. Thorniley was married again, in May, 1867, being united with Mrs. Mary J. Corp, who lives with the subject of this sketch. William Thorniley died July 24, 1895.

Frank A. Thorniley received his mental training in Marietta township, where he has lived all of his life. His farm contains 52 acres of well-improved land, and is considered one of the best farms in the county. He has a thorough knowledge of agricultural matters, and is conversant with all modern improvements in the way of farming implements.

Mr. Thorniley was united in marriage with Ida M. Hudkins, a daughter of Eli and Mary Hudkins. Eli Hudkins is living a retired life in Marietta. He came from West Virginia, and has reared eight children, namely: William, who married Hattie Cisler; Ida M.; Carrie, who married Robert Wellspring; Laura, who married Charles Hall, and has one child,—Grace; Addie, who married Lawrence Thorniley, and has one child,—Edith; Hettie, who is living with her parents, in Marietta; Estella, who married William Patton; and Ethel, who married Louis Fosse.

Mr. Thorniley is a Republican, in politics. Religiously, he is an attendant of the Methodist Church. Mrs. Thorniley belongs to the Baptist Church. The subject of this sketch is well known in the community as an upright and honorable citizen, and is held in the highest esteem by all who come in contact with him.

DA. DYE, a prominent oil producer of Newport, Ohio, has followed that line of business since 1862. He opened up the Archer's Fork oil field, where he still owns three tracts of land, two of forty acres each, and one of sixty-two acres. He also has five good, producing wells in Lawrence and Independence townships, and four in Elk Run.

Mr. Dye was born December 28, 1840, and is a son of John H. and Eliza (O'Brien) Dye, grandson of Samuel Dye, who was born in 1775, and great-grandson of John Dye, who purchased 1,800 acres of land, or what is known as the Cow Run oil field. He subsequently gave each of his sons a farm from this tract. John H. Dye, the father, was born December 27, 1800, at Bull Run, Virginia. He accompanied his parents to Marietta, Ohio, in 1806, and was reared and schooled in Washington County.

Six children were born to John H. Dye and his wife, as follows: Rev. H. B. Dye; Rev. L. B. Dye; Rachael; D. A., the subject of this biography; Elizabeth; and Miles, now deceased. Rachael married Isaac Dilly and resides in Cairo, West Virginia. Elizabeth married Capt. W. A. Snodgrass, who is deceased. John H. Dye followed farming as an occupation, and was an active member of the Congregational Church. In politics he was an ardent Republican, and never failed to use his influence for the good of that party. His widow survived him until May 3, 1902, when she, too, passed away at the extreme age of ninety-nine years.

D. A. Dye was united in matrimony with Mary E. Clogston, a daughter of Thomas Clogston. They reared six children, namely: Charles L., who married Mona Goddard, and resides in Newport, Ohio; Edward, who married Anna White, and lives in Lawrence township; James, who married Luella Rogers, and is also a resident of Newport; Elida, wife of G. L. Myer, of Marietta, Ohio; Fannie, wife of Edward A. Myer, also of Marietta; and John H., who is a physician, of Louisville, Kentucky. He married Maud Manuel.

Like his father, Mr. Dye is a Republican, in politics, and a Congregationalist, in his religious belief. He is a man who is well known all over the county, and is recognized as one of the most successful oil producers in that section.

 S. BLISS, a member of the firm of Bliss & Deucher, merchants of Deucher, Ohio, also owns large farming interests in Washington County.

He was born in Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, October 28, 1836, and is a son of Thomas and Mary A. (Sloan) Bliss.

Thomas Bliss was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, June 1, 1810, and at an early age learned the shoemaking trade, which he followed throughout life. He came to Ohio in 1861 and settled in Monroe County. In 1869 he came to Washington County, where he worked at his trade. He died in 1896, after a very successful life. He was a Democrat in politics and a Quaker in religious belief. Mr. Bliss was united in marriage with Mary A. Sloan, who was born in October, 1814, and they had eleven children, as follows: T. S.; John, who married Ada Louderback, and lives in Little Hocking, Ohio; Samuel, who married Maria Hill, and lives in the same town; Elizabeth, wife of John Beaver, of Independence township; Belle, wife of Joseph Riggs, of Little Hocking, Ohio; Jane, who died at the age of two years; James, who died when seven years of age; Thomas E., who died at the age of twenty-one years; Sarah Ann, who married Joseph Yester; Eliza, wife of Daniel Deucher, of Independence township; and Maggie, who married George Hendricks.

T. S. Bliss served in the Union army during the Civil War, from 1861 to 1864, as a member of the 1st Reg., Ohio Light Artillery. Among the engagements in which he participated were the battles of Winchester, Stone River; and Port Republic. He was wounded at Chancellorsville, and was a patient in the Judicial Hospital in Washington, D. C. He was later taken to New York City, where he was kept for about three months and then to Alexandria, Virginia, where he served as hospital ward master. Mr. Bliss now owns the home farm, consisting of forty acres, and besides is part owner of 142 acres, and the owner of 50 acres more. The firm of Bliss & Brothers was established in 1869, and conducted a general merchandizing business at Wade, Ohio, until 1873, in which year the concern was moved to Deucher, and Mr. Deucher was taken into partnership. They are wide-awake and energetic men, and deserving of the success with which they are meeting.

Mr. Bliss was first married to Belle Deucher, by whom he had one child, Belle, who married Edward Dye. Mrs. Bliss died in 1882. Mr. Bliss formed a second union, with Ida Riley, in 1885, and they have three children, namely: Herman, Hazel and Homer. Mr. Bliss is a Prohibitionist in politics, and in religious views a Lutheran. Fraternally he is a member of Augusta Council No. 304, J. O. U. A. M., at Wade, Ohio.

JAMES A. BEVAN, senior member of the firm of Bevan Brothers, who conduct a large general merchandise store at Bevan, a suburb of the town of Newport, Ohio, also owns valuable real estate in that place, and ranks among the most progressive citizens.

Mr. Bevan was born January 8, 1858, in Monroe County, Ohio. His father, John M. Bevan, was born December 10, 1830, and died in the hospital at Cleveland, Tennessee, in 1865, having served as a soldier in the Civil War, from January, 1865, to the time of his demise, a few months later. He was a member of the 186th Reg. Ohio Vol. Infantry. His marriage with Sarah A. Hineman, a daughter of John Hineman, of Monroe County, Ohio, resulted in the birth of seven children as follows: William H., who married Esther Duval, and lives in West Virginia; Martha J., wife of Joseph McFadden, of Newport township; Charles H., who married Emma Sheets, and lives in Galia County, Ohio; James A.; Caroline, wife of E. W. Kesselring, of West Virginia; Melvina, wife of J. R. Greene, of Newport township; and Herman E., who married Jennie Kraft, and is the junior member of the firm of Bevan Brothers.

John M. Bevan was a carpenter by trade, and followed that occupation prior to his enlistment in the army. He was a believer in the Methodist Episcopal faith. In his political opinions, he was a close adherent of the Republican party.

James A. Bevan grew to manhood in his native place, and was the recipient of a common-school education. About five years ago he embarked in the general merchandise business at his present location at Bevan, and carries a complete and well assorted stock. In 1889 he was united in matrimony with Martha W. Green, a daughter of Charles H. Green; she was born May 2, 1859. In his political belief, Mr. Bevan, like his father, is an ardent Republican. He served as postmaster of Bevan for a term of four years. Both he and his wife are members of the M. E. Church.

CHARLES E. GARD, a civil engineer by profession, has been identified with railroad work for the greater portion of his life, and was officially connected with the Marietta Mineral Railroad from its inception until the fall of 1900. He was born in Washington County, Ohio, in 1832, and is a son of Hiram and Ataline Gage (Dunsmoor) Gard. His ancestry, which appears more completely in the sketch of Henry C. Vincent, dates back to an early date in this country. Mr. Gard now has in his possession a beautiful old clock, which was manufactured for his grandfather at Charlestown, New Hampshire, about 1798, and was brought to Washington County, Ohio, in 1822. It is not only an interesting family heirloom, but is a perfect time piece.

Charles E. Gard attended the public schools, and for two years was a student at Western Liberal Institute. During the next year he pursued an engineering course in Ohio University at Athens, having previously studied for that profession at his home. Upon leaving school he spent some time with the engineering corps on the old Marietta & Cincinnati Railroad, and then engaged in farming and mercantile pursuits in Barlow township. He served a term as surveyor of the county, in a most acceptable manner. Later, he removed to Athens County, Ohio, and for a period of five or six years was engaged in mercantile pursuits at Mineral City. Returning to Big Run, Athens County, he continued to sell goods from 1878 to 1885, when he disposed of his interests there to engage with the Toledo & Ohio Central Extension Railroad Company. He was also one of the directors of the old Marietta Mineral Railroad, and continued with that company until it was purchased and became the M. C. & C. Railroad; he acted as chief engineer, arranging the right of way, and had entire charge of the engineering work. The road was begun in 1883 and completed in 1885, cars then being run to Big Run. Mr. Gard continued with that company until November, 1900, and under the organization known as the Toledo & Ohio Central Extension Railroad Company, a line was surveyed to Sharpsburg Junction from Palos, Ohio. Mr. Gard also surveyed several projected lines in different portions of the state, under the direction of T. D. Dale, the general manager.

Mr. Gard was united in marriage with Rachel Broadwell, who was reared in Cincinnati, Ohio, until she was eleven years of age, and then accompanied her parents to Athens County. Three children were born to them, as follows: Orlo L.; Grace, who was born in Athens County, Ohio, and is the wife of W. S. Plumer, of Marietta; and O. Brent.

Orlo L. Gard was born at Vincent, Barlow township, in 1862. He has been identified with different commercial enterprises, and has been in the employ of various railroad companies. He served as agent for the Toledo & Ohio Central Extension Railroad Company, and was line bill clerk, for four years, with the "Big Four" Railroad Company. He is at the present time superintendent of the Fairfax Company, manufacturing Monarch Foundry facing, the office of the company being in Marietta, and the plant at Broadwell, Athens County. He married a daughter of George Dye, of Marietta, and resides in this city with his wife, and two children,—Edgar E., who was born January 15, 1894; and Royal L., born June 24, 1901. A daughter, Gladys Lucile, born October 16, 1899, died January 4, 1902.

O. Brent Gard was born at Vincent, Washington County, in 1876, and now owns and operates a large coal mine at Broadwell, Athens County. He completed an academic course of study at Marietta, and entered the coal business in 1897. The average number of his employes is about fifty, and the output of the mine approximates 200 tons per day. The mine is modern in all its appointments, and was equipped by Mr. Gard with electric machinery. Sales are effected through brokers at Toledo and Detroit, thus supplying the northern market. Mr. Gard resides at No. 513 Tupper street, with his parents. Religiously, he is a member of the Congregational Church.

ILLIAM F. ROBERTSON, who resides at No. 411 Franklin street, Marietta, retired from active participation in business, was for many years prominently identified with various leading enterprises in Marietta and Washington County.

Mr. Robertson was born February 26, 1823, at Steubenville, Ohio, and is a son of Andrew and Mary J. (Finley) Robertson, both of whom were natives of Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania. William was 11 years of age when the family moved to Washington County, Pennsylvania, and there he learned the tanning business. He worked for two years in a tannery at Claysville, and for three years in the same line in Washington, Pennsylvania. In 1850 he took charge of a tannery at Woodsfield, Monroe County, Ohio, and successfully operated it for four years, at the end of which period he moved to Beverly, Ohio, and there conducted a tannery for two years. Mr. Robertson then purchased a half interest in a foundry, in partnership with James Patterson, and the business was carried on under the firm style of Patterson & Robertson for four years. Mr. Robertson then retired from the firm, became interested in coal mining, and with partners operated two mines for several years. In 1864 he became a member of a company which operated a foundry at Beverly. This company, in 1869, built a new plant at that place, and prosperously continued in business until 1884, under the firm name of W. F. Robertson & Company. In 1881 Mr. Robertson moved the machinery and plant department to Marietta, in company with two of his partners in the business at Beverly. They purchased the Marietta Lock Works, and carried on business on that property. Mr. Robertson retained his interest in the furnace business at Beverly. Fire devastated the Beverly plant in 1884, and in 1891 Mr. Robertson disposed of his interest.

In 1848 Mr. Robertson married Rebecca Henderson, daughter of Joseph and Mary (Buchanan) Henderson, of Claysville, Pennsylvania. Three children were born to their union, namely: Mary J. and George B., both deceased; and Emma, who married Charles R. Buchanan, of Marietta. The second marriage of Mr. Robertson was to Matilda Frances Glass, of Beverly. The present attractive family residence was built by Mr. Robertson. In politics Mr. Robertson is a Democrat. In religious belief he is a Presbyterian. For a considerable period, he has been one of the trustees of the Washington County Children's Home, and has held other responsible positions. During a long, active and useful life, Mr. Robertson has commanded the respect of his fellow citizens, and in the sunset of life, he is surrounded by many attached friends.

GEORGE E. LEHMER, one of Washington County's substantial citizens, is known as an extensive operator of oil wells in Lawrence township, but makes his residence in Marietta.

Mr. Lehmer is a son of George Lehmer, and is a Pennsylvanian by birth. His father conducted a foundry in Rochester, Pennsylvania, and there the son thoroughly learned the stove-plate molder's trade, which he made his occupation, subsequently, for four years. From 1858 until 1861 he was employed in a commission house in Cincinnati, Ohio, but when the South seceded from the Union and war broke out, he returned to Rochester, and immediately enlisted in the service of his country. In May, 1861, he became a member of the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps under Col. J. S. McCalmont. He enlisted as 2nd sergeant, was promoted to be 2nd lieutenant in 1862, and became 1st lieutenant of Company F, 10th Reg., Pa. Vol. Reserve Corps, in May, 1863. For three years he saw service under the "Maltese Badge" of the 5th Army Corps, was under General Warner at Antietam, and participated in the battles of Dranesville, Mechanicsville, Gaines Mill, White Oak Swamp, Malvern Hill, Grovetown, Second Bull Run, South Mountain, Fredericksburg, Gettysburg, Bristow Station, and Mine Run. He was in the battles of the Wilderness twenty-five days, at Spottsylvania, North Anna River, Tolopotomoy and Bethesda Church. While valiantly fighting at Fredericksburg, December 13, 1863, he was wounded in the right knee, and to this day it troubles him more or less. In June, 1864, he was mustered out of service at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

While at home on a furlough, in 1864, Mr. Lehmer was united in marriage, at Cincinnati, Ohio, with Anna E. Stickel, a daughter of S. B. Stickel, who was born and reared in Cincinnati. Mrs. Lehmer is also a native of Cincinnati, and she and her husband have one son, William H., born in June, 1865. He attended school in Marietta, and later, finished at the academy, and took a position in the employ of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railroad Company at McCarthy Junction, where he was agent until 1901. He married Emma Faires, of Marietta, and they have two children, Mary Elizabeth and Kent D. The family now reside at Byesville, Ohio, where the father is prosperously engaged in the hardware business.

Mr. Lehmer has a brother, James D. Lehmer, who owns 500 acres of land in Lawrence township, at the Cow Run field, and as the latter has business of importance in Cincinnati, the subject of this sketch takes care of his interests in the oil business, as well as his own. Until 1897 he resided in Lawrence township, but at that time he built his beautiful new residence at No. 503½ Washington street, in Marietta, and has since lived there. He gives all his attention to the oil business, and by careful and shrewd investments is always sure to reap handsome profits.

In social circles Mr. Lehmer affiliates with the G. A. R., being a member of Buell Post, No. 178. In politics he is a Republican, and is active in his partisanship. Since June 7, 1868, he has been a resident of Washington County, and the people of his community respect and trust him.

HENRY C. VINCENT, for many years a prominent railroad official of Marietta, is now proprietor of a drug store at the corner of Third and Marion streets. He was born in Washington County, Ohio, and is a son of Henry Earl and Rhoda E. (Clark) Vincent, and grandson of William Vincent.

Vincent, Ohio, which is located in the township of Barlow, Washington County, Ohio, derived its name from Henry E. Vincent, who at that time owned the land where the village of Vincent is now situated. He donated a parcel of land for railroad purposes, the railroad company being the first to give the place its name. Afterward the government adopted the name for its postoffice.

William Vincent came to Marietta from Rhode Island in 1800. He married a Miss Earl and among their children was Henry Earl, who was born in Barlow township, Washington County, Ohio, in 1802. The latter married Rhoda E. Clark, who was born at Belpre, Ohio, in 1806, and was a daughter of Elihu Clark, who came from New Jersey in 1798. The subject of this sketch has a brother, O. B. Vincent, who is freight agent for the M. C. & C. R. R. One sister resides in Michigan and one in Vincent, Ohio, and a cousin, J. C. Vincent, lives at Vincent.

Henry C. Vincent began his railroad career on the old Marietta & Cincinnati Railroad, now the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, in 1857, as telegraph operator at Vincent Station, and has been railroad agent most of the time since. During a part of the Civil War he served as telegraph operator for General Thomas, in Tennessee and Kentucky. He served as operator and agent until 1884, and from that time until the fall of 1900, with the exception of a short period spent in Athens County, engaged in the coal business, was with the M. C. & C. Railroad, which was then known as the Marietta Mineral Railroad, in the capacity of general freight and passenger agent. W. P. Cutler was president and T. D. Dale, vice-president, treasurer and general manager. From 1891 to 1894 Mr. Vincent was secretary and manager of the Athens Coal and Coke Company, now known as the Luhrig Coal Company, and during that time J. V. Parker acted as general freight and passenger agent of the road. In the fall of 1894, Mr. Vincent resumed his duties of that office, and continued thus until November, 1900, when the road passed into the hands of the present owners.

January 20, 1864, Henry C. Vincent married Helen Josephine Gard, who was born August 22, 1839, a daughter of Hiram and Ataline Gage (Dunsmoor) Gard. The Gard family is an old and prominent one of Washington County. Cornelius Gard, grandfather of Hiram, was born near Morristown, New Jersey, October 13, 1749, and was of English descent. He was married near Pughtown, Frederick County, Virginia, October 1, 1774, to Mary Hancher, who was born June 22, 1757, her parents being from Wales. Cornelius Gard came to Ohio in 1802, and followed shoemaking in Washington County. He died in Palmer township, Washington County, November 2, 1841, his wife having died August 6, 1840. They left two sons—Timothy, born February 21, 1780; and David, born April 18, 1782. David Gard, father of Hiram, was born in Hampshire County, Virginia. March 25, 1802, he married Mary Hiett, of that place, and in 1803, moved to White Oak settlement, in what is now Palmer township, Washington County, Ohio. David died February 16, 1859, and his wife on May 15, 1861. They had the following children: Hiram; James, born January 2, 1828; Maria; Rowena; Sophia and Jane. Hiram Gard was born in Palmer township, May 11, 1804. He moved to Vincent in 1854, and resided there for many years. He dealt in stock during his early life, and while a resident of Vincent, graded one and a half miles of the old Marietta and Cincinnati Railroad. At the age of nineteen years he was elected captain in the militia, and, later, lieutenant-colonel. He once received a tie vote for the nomination as representative for Washington county. He married Ataline Gage Dunsmoor, a daughter of Phineas Dunsmoor.

The Dunsmoor family was established in this country in 1719, settling in Londonderry, New Hampshire. They were descended from Lord John Dinsmore, of Achumore, Scotland, who possessed large land interests in the North of Ireland, Londonderry County, for which Londonderry, New Hampshire, is named. From Lord Dinsmore are all the Densmores, Dunsmoors and Dinsmores of this country descended. Phineas Dunsmoor, father of Mrs. Gard, was born in Townsend, Massachusetts, December 29, 1771. On April 10, 1798, he married Polly Gage, who was born in Pelham, New Hampshire, July 16, 1782, and was a daughter of Abner Gage. Her father was in the Revolutionary War, and at the Battle of Bunker Hill, had a portion of his foot shot off by a cannon ball. Phineas Dunsmoor owned a large tract of land at Charlestown, New Hampshire, where he resided with his family until Ataline was ten years of age. He then sold the farm and purchased a hotel and farm adjoining at Goshen, Sullivan County, New Hampshire, where he resided five years. He then sold out and purchased of J. Buck, a farm of 905 acres, situated in the Ohio Company's purchase in Wesley township, Washington County, Ohio. They arrived at their new home July 25, 1822. He died May 6, 1823, and his wife on March 20, 1857. They had seven children, as follows: Horace; Abner G.; Mary K.; Hiel; Lucius P.; Ataline G.; and Daniel N. They were all born at Charlestown, New Hampshire, but the last named, who was born in Goshen.

Henry C. Vincent and his wife have one son, Fred W., who was born in 1866. The latter is now engaged in the general merchandise business in a fine large building at the corner of Third and Marion streets, his store adjoining that of his father. Both families reside above the stores, and have comfortable homes. Fred W. Vincent married a daughter of Professor R. J. Smith, deceased, of Beverly, and they have a daughter, Helen A. In politics Mr. Vincent is a Republican. He and his wife are members of the Congregational Church. He is also a member of the Order of Odd Fellows.

F. FINCH, general freight and passenger agent for the M. C. & C. Railroad Company since November 20, 1901, understands the duties of his position thoroughly, and is admirably adapted to the place.

Mr. Finch is a native of Fleming, Ohio, where he attended school and afterward learned telegraphy, which he has put to good use in the business he now pursues. He has served in various capacities and places since the beginning of his railroad career, having previously acted as shipping clerk for the McKinney Coal & Coke Company, whose headquarters were at Zanesville, Ohio, and having been an agent and operator at different points. In 1892 he took a position as agent at Lathrop, and remained there until 1895, when he was called to Marietta, and employed in the auditing department. He also served as paymaster until November 20, 1901, when he was appointed to his present lucrative position as general freight and passenger agent.

The M. C. & C. Railroad has a mileage of fifty-four miles, and the company employs about two hundred people. Its present officers are: H. H. Isham, of New York City, president; H. A. Clare, of New York City, vice-president and general manager; J. C. Riddle, of Marietta, general superintendent; F. L. Alexander, of Marietta, auditor and secretary; E. E. Finch, general freight and passenger agent; M. T. Seymour, train dispatcher; J. E. Irvine, master-mechanic; and C. R. Huffman, road-master. The road is largely patronized and has many conveniences and comforts.

of Tunnel, Ohio, and the marriage ceremony was performed at Marietta, Ohio, where they now reside at No. 403 Second street. In religious belief they are members of the Presbyterian church. Mr. Finch is deservedly popular among his many friends and acquaintances, and treats all with unflinching courtesy.

LUDWELL PETTY DYE, a farmer and oil operator, of Marietta township, was born in Lawrence township, Washington County, Ohio, in October, 1842, and is a son of A. J. and Maria (Petty) Dye. Maria (Petty) Dye was a daughter of Presley and Margaret (Jennings) Petty, natives of Ohio, who had 14 children.

Presley Dye was a farmer, living in Newport township, and he and his wife spent their lives there.

John Dye, grandfather of Ludwell P., was an early settler in Washington County, Ohio, having come from near Fairfax Court House, Virginia. He died when his son, A. J. Dye, was six years of age.

Ludwell P. Dye was reared in Washington County, and in November, 1863, enlisted in the 92d Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., 3rd Division, 1st Brigade, 14th Army Corps. In the Atlanta campaign he participated in all the engagements, marching to the sea with Sherman's Army, and acquitting himself with honor. He was at the grand review at Washington. He was mustered out at Louisville in 1865, his regiment being disbanded at Columbus, Ohio. He then went to his father's home and for nine and a half years worked in the oil business, having an interest in a number of wells. He purchased his present farm in Marietta township in March, 1875, and on this farm, has ten producing oil wells. It is a valuable piece of property, and is located but four miles from Marietta. Mr. Dye is a progressive man and is deeply interested in the welfare of his township, county and State.

Mr. Dye was married to Leah V. Snider, a daughter of Jacob and Catherine Snider, her father being a farmer, of Harrison county, Ohio. Both he and his wife are deceased; they left six children, namely: John, who died in the army; Mary, who married Albert Moore, a carpenter, of Harrison County; Leah V.; Mattie, who married John Striker, a farmer, of Harrison County, Ohio; Sarah Jane, who died aged eight years; Jacob, a farmer, of Harrison county; and Fanny, who died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Dye became parents of five children, as follows: Rosella; Selinda; Beatrice Blanche and Ora Virginia. Rosella is teaching school in Marietta; one, unnamed, died in infancy; Selinda is the wife of George Wallace Robinson, a farmer, of Marietta township, by whom she has three children,—Helen M.; Wilbur A., and Blanche, aged, respectively, nine, seven and five years. Beatrice Blanche married Norval J. Stewart, and lives at Zanesville, Ohio. Ora Virginia died in infancy. Mr. Dye is a Republican in politics, whilst in religious attachment he is a Methodist.

REASON D. CAROTHERS, a substantial, retired farmer of Washington County, Ohio, and one of the pioneer settlers in the vicinity of Cutler, has spent a long life in this locality, and has devoted much effort to the agricultural development of Fairfield township. The birth of Mr. Carothers took place December 2, 1818, in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, and he is a son of Andrew and Jane (Fitzsimmons) Carothers, both of whom were natives of Eastern Pennsylvania, and were of Scotch-Irish ancestry.

Andrew Carothers and his wife moved in 1832 to Crawford County, Ohio, where they lived until within a few years of their death, when they moved to Morrow County, where the father died at the age of 86 years, and the mother at the age of 90 years. The members of their family who reached maturity were as follows: William; Reason D.; Jonathan; Dr. James H., of California; Dr. John, who died in California; Mrs. Jane Morrison, a widow, who resides in Tuscarawas County, Ohio; and Samuel, who is deceased.

On September 15, 1846, Reason D. Carothers was married to Elizabeth B. Dawson, who was born May 2, 1825, in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, and is a daughter of Benjamin and Sarah (Bain) Dawson. She was the fourth, in order of birth, of the family born to her parents, the others being as follows: Catherine, Mary, Benoni and Margaret, all deceased; Rebecca, a resident of Brooklyn, New York; and William F., a resident of East Liverpool, Ohio. In 1854, Mr. Carothers and his family settled in Washington County, Ohio, on their present farm, which was then located near the few straggling houses which represented the village of Cutler. Mr. Carothers has lived to see a busy, thriving town grow up under his eyes, and he has done his part in encouraging worthy enterprises which have benefited the place. His farm comprises 113 acres, and the adjoining farm of 113 acres is owned by his son, Andrew L. Both are under the efficient management of the latter, the combined properties being operated in general farming and successful stockraising. The subject of this sketch was engaged in railroad contracting and constructed a portion of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railroad, known at that time as the Springfield & Illinois Southeastern. He was superintendent of the line from Springfield to Shawneetown, Illinois. He was also superintendent of the division from Tamaroa to Chester, on the Mississippi. He was, previous to this, a millwright by trade.

The subject of this sketch and his wife had nine children, of whom the survivors are numbered among the most respected residents of their several localities. The eldest, Benoni H. Carothers, was born June 12, 1847, in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, and now resides at Chillicothe, Ohio, where he has charge of the water tanks and pumps of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railroad; he married Marcella Staley, of Chester, Illinois, and they have one daughter, Nellie. Phebe Jane Carothers was born in Columbiana County, Ohio, September 24, 1849, and died, unmarried, in 1871. Andrew Lamar Carothers was born in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, May 18, 1852. He spent four years, from February, 1877, to 1880, in Topeka, Kansas, and in Jefferson and Pottawatomie counties in the same State, and then returned to Ohio, where he has been engaged in the management of his own and his father's property ever since. He married Euphemia Barnes, who was born in Washington County, Ohio, and is a daughter of Henry S. Barnes, an early resident of the county. The three children of Andrew Lamar Carothers and his wife are,—Henry R., born June 6, 1889; Sella Louise, born March 3, 1891; and Eliza Jane, born April 20, 1894. William H. Carothers, who was born November 2, 1854, is a physician located at Boston, Massachusetts. He married Helen Norris, a daughter of George Norris, and their only child is Elizabeth Alvira. Dr. Carothers is a regular practitioner, was educated at Cincinnati, and completed his medical course at Philadelphia. James A. Carothers, who was born November 11, 1857, resides in Wayne County, Illinois, and is engaged in farming. He married Rachel Morris, of Washington County, and their six children were,—Dora C.; Morris D.; Earl T., deceased; George N.; Helen H.; and Reason J. His first wife died in April, 1897. He later married Early Purcell, of Wayne County, and they have one son, Daniel L. Daniel L. Carothers, who was born August 22, 1860, resides in Chicago, and is superintendent of the Chicago Division of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. He married Carrie Leland, a native of the State of Maine, and they had one child, Leland D., deceased. John B. Carothers, who was born February 26, 1863, is married, and resides in Cincinnati, where he is an engineer of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. Sarah Louise Theresa Carothers who was born April 9, 1865, married Thomas T. Dunbar, of Fairfield township. The youngest of this family is Myrtie Elvira Carothers, who was born December 1, 1867, and resides at home.

In early life, our subject firmly supported the Whig party, but since the advent of the Republican party has been identified with that organization.

His Masonic connection was with Bartlett Lodge, while his son Andrew L., belongs to Cutler Lodge, No. 784, I. O. O. F. The religious connection of the family has long been with the Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church, which is located on the farm. Mr. Carothers enjoys the respect of the whole community, and his venerable figure is welcomed wherever he goes. His long life bridges a wonderful part of the world's history, in which he has always taken an intelligent interest.

PETER KUNZ, JR., who conducts a general dry goods store in Marietta, Ohio, was born in Washington County, Ohio, near Marietta, in 1853, and is a son of Peter Kunz.

Peter Kunz, Sr., was born in Bavaria, Germany, in 1821, and came to America about 1842, where he engaged in farming and shoemaking. In 1858 he removed to Marietta, where he opened a general store on Greene street. This store was burned out in May, 1859. Purchasing a stock, he continued in business on Front street and in 1861, bought a lot at the corner of Front street and Foundry Alley, on which he built a storeroom and dwelling, and carried on business at this place until his retirement, in 1885. His death occurred in October, 1897. He married Mary Elizabeth Zumbro, who was born in Bavaria, Germany, and is a daughter of Franz Zumbro, who came to this country and settled at Cedar Narrows Bridge, in Washington County. Peter Kunz and his wife reared the following children, namely: Frank, who was his father's partner from 1880 until 1885, and is now in business at Columbus, Ohio; Caroline (Wetz), of Zanesville, Ohio; Charlotte (Schafer), whose husband is a harness dealer, of Marietta; Mary, deceased; Margaret (Scipel), deceased; Kate J. (Stephenson), of Marietta; Annie, the wife of Clinton E. Pape, who is proprietor of the Marietta Distillery Company.

Peter Kunz, Jr., the subject of this sketch, received his mental training at J. D. Phillips' grammar school, and Theodore Scott's private school. He clerked for his father until he was twenty-seven years old. In 1881 he opened a general store, and four years later assumed control of his father's store. His stock is fresh and up to date, and occupies two floors, the building being 130 feet deep. Mr. Kunz inherits his father's superior business qualities, and is one of the leading merchants of the city, as well as an active worker in all movements undertaken for the welfare and advancement of the people.

Mr. Kunz married Ella L. Biszantz, a daughter of Charles F. and Philipena Biszantz, and they have three children, namely: Charles Frederick; Blanche Florence; and Laura Fedora.

Politically, Mr. Kunz is Republican. He attends the Congregational Church.

DR. A. H. SWINBURNE, of Marietta, Ohio, is recognized as a most successful specialist in stomach ailments and abdominal diseases, and has built up a practice in this locality that is second to none. His reputation extends not only throughout the Ohio and Muskingum valleys but to every part of the country, and the patients now under his advice and treatment, come from every state, from Maine to the Golden Gate, while he has correspondence with hundreds of others.

Dr. Swinburne is a native of Delaware County, Iowa, where he was born November 6, 1866. Until he attained the age of fifteen years, he attended the High School of Delhi, Iowa, his studies there being supplemented by a course at the Upper Iowa University, at Fayette. After this, he taught school for three years previous to taking up medicine as a study. To fit himself to be a physician, he entered the medical department of the state university at Iowa City, and received the degree of M. D., in 1891. He chose for his first field of practice, Earlville, Iowa, and remained there for some time. Before he left Iowa, to come to Marietta, he went to Chicago, taking two special courses in preparation for his specialties, which are diseases of the stomach and abdomen. Since August, 1900, he has been a resident of Marietta, Ohio, with his office in the St. Clair Building, and his residence, on Fifth street. His success has been pronounced and rapid, and his skill is widely recognized.

Dr. Swinburne is married and lives in a comfortable residence with his wife and two children, Algernon C. and R. Dewey. He is a member and supporter of the Congregational church of the city, of which he is a faithful attendant. In fraternal circles he affiliates with the I. O. O. F. organization. He is a member of the State Medical Society, of Iowa. He is a self-made man, and his reputation has been fairly won by the successful treatment of numerous and difficult cases.

REV. SAMUEL FREDERICK MUELLER, pastor of St. Paul's German Evangelical Church at Marietta, Ohio, was born at Saline, Michigan, in 1876, and is a son of Rev. F. Mueller, who is now pastor of St. Mark's German Church at 35th street and Union avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Rev. F. Mueller was born in Wurtemberg, near Stuttgart, Germany, and came to this country in 1874. He received his education at Basel, Switzerland, and after coming to the United States held the pastorate of churches in Michigan, Ohio, and Illinois. He was married in America to Miss Raible, and to them have been seven children, namely: Samuel Frederick; Rudolph; Dorothea; Sophia; Amelia; Gertrude; and Edward.

Rev. Samuel F. Mueller was but a small boy when his parents removed to a suburb of Chicago. He graduated from the St. Louis Theological Seminary in 1898, taking a post-graduate course at the McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago. He remained in that city for one year, and May 28, 1899, accepted the pastorate of his present church, St. Paul's German Evangelical, in Marietta. This church has 200 enrolled members and much good is done by these active workers. Rev. Mr. Mueller is a fluent speaker, a man of much influence in the community, and is held in high esteem by all.

JACOB H. DYE, a prominent citizen of Marietta, Ohio, is now serving his twenty-fifth year in the capacity of city marshal, and his twenty-sixth year as constable of Marietta township. He was born in that city March 14, 1850, and is a son of Jonathan T. and Catherine (Weekley) Dye, and grandson of Samuel Dye, who came to Washington County from Pennsylvania, and served as justice of the peace of Lawrence township for many years.

Jonathan T. Dye was born in Lawrence township, Washington County, Ohio, and as a young man came to Marietta, where he learned the trade of a tanner with Mr. McFarland on Second street. He was a veterinary surgeon, with office on Sixth and Warren streets, and also built and owned a number of houses in that part of the city. He was engaged in gardening for many years. He and his wife reared the following children: Elijah, who served in Company A, 39th Reg., O. Vol. Inf., and died as a result of wounds received during the war; William P., who was killed at the massacre of Custer and his army by the Indians; Charles G., who was deputy sheriff of Washington County, under Sheriff D. B. Torpy, and died of typhoid fever, while in office; Jacob H.; Abbie, wife of William Coen, of Athens County; Elizabeth (Haskell), of Boston, Massachusetts; Mrs. E. P. Davis, of Salt Lake City, Utah; Mrs. F. H. Martin, of Pennsborough, West Virginia, who died in 1896; and Mrs. Ansel Jones, who died at Marietta.

HON. THOMAS WATSON MOORE.

Jacob H. Dye was reared at Marietta and first learned the trade of a carpenter, serving time with Philip Walters. He shortly afterward went to the Volcano Oil region in Wood County, West Virginia, where he was engaged in the oil business for ten years. He returned to Marietta and has occupied his present position as marshal of Marietta City 24 years, and as constable of Marietta township continuously since 1876. He has efficiently discharged the duties of his office, and has the unbounded confidence and esteem of his fellow citizens.

Mr. Dye was united in marriage with Caroline Leonhardt, who was born in 1854, at Wheeling, West Virginia, and was a mere child when brought to Marietta by her family. To this union were born the following children: Walter E., who is in business at Marietta; John W., foreman for the Marietta Fuel and Gas Co.; Charles G., a jeweler, of Boston, Massachusetts; Benjamin G., a contractor in oil-well drilling in the fields of West Virginia; Howard W., aged fourteen years, who is at school; Marietta, wife of C. C. Collins, who is superintendent of the Bell Telephone Company at Marietta; and Virginia, wife of Frederick Strecker, the liveryman. Mr. Dye entered the army in the fall of 1864, when but little more than fourteen years old, and served five months in Company A, 48th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., under Colonel Moore. He belongs to Buell Post, G. A. R., the Order of Odd Fellows; Knights of Pythias; and Knights of the Maccabees. Religiously, he was confirmed in the Lutheran Church, but now attends the Methodist Episcopal Church.

seph and Rebecca (Watson) Moore, his father being a well known farmer of that county.

At the age of 17 years, Thomas W. Moore left farm life for the city, and he served an apprenticeship as an engine forger, with the firm of J. B. Warden & Company, engine builders. After an apprenticeship of four years he continued with the firm two years as journeyman, at the end of which time he was engaged as engineer on the steamer "Northern Light," then plying between St. Louis and New Orleans. One year later, he was engaged as engineer on the passenger steamer "Pennsylvania," plying between Pittsburg and Cincinnati. In this position he remained about one year, and then determined to abandon river work. Having laid by about $1,200, by the strictest frugality and economy, he came to Warren township, Washington County, and invested the entire amount in a farm near what is now known as Tunnel Station, on the "Old Line" Railroad. In April, 1850, he came with his two children to his new purchase, and during the four years following was engaged in farming and stock dealing. In 1854, when the Marietta & Cincinnati Railroad was in the course of construction, he removed to a farm along the line, at what is known as Tunnel Station. Here he opened a store with a general line of merchandise, and at the same time did railroad contracting. He continued thus until 1858, and in the meantime held a number of local offices. He served as justice of the peace for seven years in succession. In 1858 he took a contract for the construction of a tunnel near White Sulphur Springs, Virginia, on what is now the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway. The war broke out before the completion of this work, and as Mr. Moore was a strong Union sympathizer it was unsafe for him to remain in that section. He disposed of his interest in the contract, and returned home. It was about this time that the Marietta & Cincinnati Railroad Company completed plans for building a tunnel through the hill before mentioned, and this contract was let to Hon. William P. Cutler and Mr. Moore. In July, 1861, the prosecution of this work ceased because of lack of funds on the part of the railroad company. Mr.

HON. THOMAS WATSON MOORE, who resides at his beautiful home at Moore's Junction in Marietta township, Washington County, Ohio, is a prominent business man, who has for many years been engaged in railroad contracting. He was born in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, March 22, 1825, and is a son of Jo-

Moore at once raised a company of 100 volunteers and offered their service to the government. They were accepted and the company, of which Mr. Moore was made captain, became a part of the 36th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf. He remained at the head of his company until the next February, when the Marietta & Cincinnati Railroad Company, having secured the requisite funds, demanded that he fulfill his part of the contract. This resulted in his resignation from the army. He returned home and completed the work in 1863. Shortly afterward, he purchased his beautiful home on the bank of the Ohio River, about three-miles distant from Marietta, and has since resided there. The farm includes 600 acres of both high and bottom land, and is kept up by a number of tenants who live upon it. In the spring of 1864, he raised a company of the National Guard in Warren township, and held himself and company in readiness to enter the service whenever a call should be made. During the same spring he took a contract to build a portion of the Baltimore Short Line Railroad, and had just entered upon this work when his military company was ordered into active service. This company, with a number of others, rendezvoused at Marietta, May 2, 1864, and he was at once elected colonel of the regiment. The regiment was ordered to Harper's Ferry, thence to Point of Rocks, via Washington City, and from there to Bermuda Hundred, where it performed garrison service until mustered out. Colonel Moore was made commander of the fort, and to this important duty was afterward added that of assistant inspector general. Upon returning home from the war, he resumed his work on the Baltimore Short Line, which was completed in 1865. He then went to Missouri and bought a farm of 1,000 acres within sight of Sedalia, in which city he assisted in organizing the First National Bank. He was engaged extensively in the stock business until 1868, and then went to Saginaw, Michigan, where he carried on the lumber business for two years. He then returned to his home in Washington County, Ohio. He has had a remarkably successful career in various lines of business, and is respected as one of the foremost citizens of his township and county.

Thomas W. Moore was married at an early age, to Margaret McClelland, of Pittsburg, who died in 1850, leaving two children, Mary and Margaret. The former lived to reach the age of three years and the latter that of six years. In April, 1853, Mr. Moore formed a second matrimonial alliance, wedding Mary Green, a daughter of Caleb Green, of Washington County, and they became the parents of three children, as follows: Julia Fremont, Rowena Green and Flora Rebecca. Julia Fremont was born in August, 1856, and is the wife of F. M. Reed, who is in business with Colonel Moore; they have one child, Gertie May. Rowena Green was born in November, 1858; and Flora Rebecca was born in March, 1864.

JASPER E. AHLBORN, a member of the law firm of O'Neil & Ahlborn, is one of the prominent attorneys of Marietta, Ohio. He was born on February 15, 1865, in Lawrence township, Washington County, Ohio, and is a son of John H. Ahlborn.

John H. Ahlborn was born near Gottingen, Germany, and came to this country about 1845, locating in Pittsburg. A few years later he moved, with his family, to Monroe County, Ohio, and one year afterward to Washington County, where he lived in Marietta for a time. He then bought a farm in Lawrence township, on which he carried on general farming and stock raising until his death. He was married, in Germany, to Catherine Meiers, who is living with her son, Jasper E. Their children were as follows: L. C., who is a physician, of Waverly, West Virginia; Mary, who is at home; John; William, deceased; Henry, deceased; and Jasper E.

Jasper E. Ahlborn was primarily educated in Lawrence township, after which he attended Marietta Academy and Marietta College, for two years. He read law one year with Henry Kraft, who is now deceased, and then entered the National Normal University at Lebanon, Ohio, and completed the law course there in 1893. He was admitted to the bar in June, 1893, and has since practiced in Marietta. A partnership now exists between him and Charles T. O'Neil, which was formed in November, 1896. Mr. Ahlborn was elected justice of the peace in April, 1899, and re-elected in the spring of 1902. He is one of the leading members of the bar in Washington County, and is possessed of unusual ability as a lawyer.

Socially, the subject of this sketch is a member of I. O. O. F. Lodge, No. 115, secretary of Harmar Lodge, and belongs to the Encampment. He is also a member of Tribe No. 39, I. O. R. M., and the M. W. A. Religiously he is an attendant at the Congregational Church.

DR. J. L. MASON, one of Marietta's most successful practicing physicians, is also proprietor of a pharmacy on Tiber Way, Marietta. He was born at Stafford, Monroe County, Ohio, in 1857, and is a son of Dr. G. W. Mason. The latter was for many years a prominent physician of Monroe county, but is now living in retirement. He became the father of five sons, as follows: J. L., the subject of this sketch; G. M., a physician of Salem, Washington County, Ohio; Walter, who lives at the old home in Monroe county; W. P., ex-city engineer of Marietta, who is now successfully following his profession in Springfield, Ohio; and Frank, who is connected with a manufacturing concern in Zanesville, Ohio.

Dr. J. L. Mason attended Dennison University during 1877-1878, and then took up the practice of medicine, in connection with his father. He continued thus until 1883, and then attended the Ohio Medical College at Cincinnati, from which he graduated in 1884. He resumed his former practice at his old home and continued there for some years. He next moved to Marietta, opening an office on Front street, and also spent one year in West Marietta. He built up a large and lucrative practice, and in addition thereto conducts a drug-store, which he established on Tiber Way, in October, 1900.

Dr. Mason was united in marriage with Miss Hattie Okey of Monroe County, and they have three children,—George, Catherine and Clesson. Fraternally, Dr. Mason is a member of the order of Odd Fellows, and the Modern Woodmen of America. He is a member of the city and county medical societies, and has held various offices in those organizations. In religious attachment he is a member of the Christian Church. The family residence is at No. 936 Third street.

BE. GUYTON, a prominent and successful attorney-at-law, of Marietta, Ohio, with office in the Mills Building, was born in Washington County, Ohio, in November, 1861, and is a son of J. L. Guyton, and grandson of Abram Guyton.

Abram Guyton was born in Maryland, March 8, 1785, and followed the trade of a millwright, together with farming. He married Margaret Walraven of Delaware, a daughter of William Walraven. J. L. Guyton was born in Harrison County, Ohio, in 1828, and early in life moved to Washington County, Ohio. He married Myrtella Van Winkle Johnson, who was born and reared in Marietta township, and is a daughter of Edward and Maria (Van Winkle) Johnson, both natives of New York. To this union were born three children, but one of whom, B. E., grew to maturity.

B. E. Guyton was reared in Marietta and received his mental training in the public schools and Marietta Academy. He learned the trade of a stationary engineer, which he followed in Marietta and elsewhere for a period of seven years. He took up the study of law, and was admitted to the bar in February, 1886. A few days later he engaged in practice and has since continued with uninterrupted success. He served eight years as United States Commissioner, and twelve years as justice of the peace, and has always taken an active part in political affairs as a member of the Republican party. He has a high reputation as a speaker, and has been active in campaign work, although he has never sought political preferment.

In 1888, Mr. Guyton was married to Mary Salisbury, by whom he had two children, Myrtella Celeste, who died in March, 1896; and Mary Margaret. Religiously the family are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Fraternally, Mr. Guyton is a member of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, and is "Guide" of Marietta Lodge, No. 68.

DR. L. E. WARREN, a physician and surgeon, of Marietta, Ohio, was born in Noble County, Ohio, and is a son of Elbridge Warren, a grandson of William Warren, and great-grandson of John Warren. The last-named was a Revolutionary soldier, and was with Washington and his army at Valley Forge. He was a cousin of Gen. Joseph Warren, who was killed in the Battle of Bunker Hill.

William Warren came from Boston to Morgantown about the year 1800 by ox-team and then built a boat and came down the river to Washington County, Ohio. He entered land here and built the first house in the locality of the county infirmary. About the year 1817, he moved to Noble County, Ohio, where he took up a large tract of land, built a cabin, and spent years in clearing the land. He was a cooper by trade. He married a Miss Livermore, of Boston, Massachusetts, and of eighteen children born to them, Elbridge Warren, father of L. E., was the youngest.

Elbridge Warren and his wife were born in Noble County, Ohio. The former died in 1896, and his widow resides in Newport township, Washington county. They had four children, namely: L. E.; Dudley, who is engaged in farming, and the stock business; Mrs. Abbie Haminger, a widow, of Newport township; and Emma, wife of Thomas Snyder, residing in Newport township.

L. E. Warren was seven years of age when his parents moved from Noble County to Washington County, Ohio, and here he attended school until he entered Columbus Medical College. He graduated from that institution with the class of 1878, after which he engaged in practice at Reno for a period of ten years. He then came to Marietta, where he has since practiced with unvarying success.

In 1866, Dr. Warren married Mary Whiston, of Yankeeburg, Washington County, Ohio who died leaving four children, namely: William, who is a physician of Newport; Jesse, a farmer, of Sand Hill; Oella, wife of Bart Thorniley, a druggist of Randolph County, West Virginia; and Curtis, a physician, of Round Bottom, Ohio. The subject of this sketch formed a second union, with Mary Dearth. Dr. Warren is a member of the state, county and city medical societies.

JACOB BOHL, M. D., one of the most prominent physicians and surgeons of Marietta, Ohio, with office and residence at No. 212 Maple street, was born at Watertown, Washington County, Ohio, in 1854. He is a son of John Bohl, M. D., and Elizabeth (Weihl) Bohl. Dr. John Bohl is a practicing physician of Watertown, which has always been his home. The mother died in November, 1898.

Dr. Jacob Bohl was reared and primarily educated at Watertown, and in 1884, entered upon the study of medicine. He attended Miami Medical College until his graduation, in 1887, after which he was engaged in practice in Watertown for a period of four years. He removed to Marietta in 1892, and soon established a remunerative practice. In 1896 he took a post-graduate medical course in New York City, and then resumed his practice in Marietta. In 1899 Dr. Bohl went to Germany and completed a post-graduate course in the medical department of the University of

JOHN A. GAGE.

Berlin. His skill as a practitioner is recognized, and the best people of the community are included among his patients. He is a member of the city, county, state and national medical associations.

Dr. Bohl was joined in matrimony with Mary Louise Strecker, of Marietta, and they have one daughter, Corinne. Religiously, he is a member of Harmar Congregational Church.

DR. F. G. MITCHELL, who is engaged in general practice with his father, Dr. William Mitchell, is one of the leading physicians and surgeons of Marietta, Ohio, and was born at Scott Town, Washington County, Ohio, May 26, 1877, a son of Dr. William Mitchell.

The maternal grandmother of Dr. F. G. Mitchell, who lives at Newport, Ohio, is eighty-nine years old. His grandmother Mitchell is living in New Matamoras. Dr. William Mitchell, was born in Washington County, Ohio, in 1854, and is a son of William Mitchell, who was born at New Matamoras, and followed the tannery business. Dr. William Mitchell was reared at New Matamoras, and as a boy worked at the tannery business and boarded at the St. Cloud Hotel. He studied medicine, first with Dr. McIlhane, and later attended the Eclectic Medical Institute at Cincinnati, Ohio, for one year. He practiced awhile in Monroe County, and then returned to college, from which he was graduated in the spring of 1882. He practiced in Scott Town, Masterton and Hills, and located permanently at Marietta, in 1892. Dr. Mitchell married Belle Moore, a daughter of S. J. Moore. She was born at Newport, Ohio, and died in 1890. The subject of this sketch, is the eldest of four children, the others being,—Fred, who was born in Scott Town, in October, 1878, and is now attending a medical college in Chicago; Forrest M., who was born in 1880, and is attending Bennett Medical College, in Chicago; and Harry, who was born in 1884, and is studying at Marietta Academy. Dr. William Mitchell was married, secondly, in 1893, to Mary A. Miller, who was born and reared in Marietta, and they have one child,—Robert T.,—aged seven years.

Dr. F. G. Mitchell, whose name opens these lines, was primarily educated at Sand Hill High School, after which he took a course at the Eclectic Medical College, in Cincinnati, from which he was graduated in 1899. He at once took up the practice of his profession at Marietta, being associated with his father, at No. 128 Front street. They are general practitioners and surgeons, and have a large and lucrative practice. Dr. Mitchell and his father both stand high in their profession and are known as two of the leading physicians of Washington County. They are public-spirited, progressive and influential men.

The subject of this sketch was united in marriage with Ida Fitch, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and they have one son,—Lloyd William,—who was born August, 1901. They live in Norwood. Dr. Mitchell and his father are members of the Ohio State Eclectic Association, and the National Eclectic Association. Dr. William Mitchell has served for over twenty years as physician of the Washington County Infirmary. He was superintendent of the Presbyterian Sunday school, and also trustee of that church, during his residence at Hills.

JOHAN A. GAGE, ex-County Commissioner, and one of the large land-owners of Washington County, Ohio, was born in Fairfield township, in 1845, and is one of the nine children of Joseph H. and Mary A. (Cook) Gage. His father located in township 7, range 11, in Fairfield township, as early as 1835, settling upon the farm now owned by Myron W. Gage, a brother of John A.

John A. Gage attended the public and select schools of the vicinity, and was reared in his native township. He also attended school at Lebanon, Ohio, for a time, and at the age of 21 years entered the field of business. His entire career has been one of continued success. He located on the farm where he now lives, and added to it constantly until he now owns 470 acres in Fairfield township, and 170 acres in Palmer township, all of which he actively manages. He is one of the most progressive and enterprising business men of the community, and stands high in the esteem of every one with whom he is acquainted. He is a Democrat, in politics, and has served as township trustee, clerk, etc. He was elected County Commissioner in 1890, to succeed Thomas Fleming, and was in turn succeeded by Mr. Randolph, of Bartlett. Mr. Gage is a member of the Universalist Church, of Layman, Ohio.

JOHN McDONALD, a successful farmer of Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in that township in 1827, and is a son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Featherstone) McDonald.

Thomas McDonald was born in Union County, Pennsylvania, April 28, 1778, and died in 1865. He came to Washington County at an early day, and followed the trade of a miller. He operated the Dodge Mills, about a mile above Wolf Creek, for at least twenty-five years. Religiously, he was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was originally a Whig, and afterward a Republican, in politics. He married Elizabeth Featherstone, who was born August 18, 1784, in Pennsylvania, and died in 1843. She was also a Methodist, her father, who came from England being a minister of that church. Eight children blessed this union, namely: Maria; William; Mahala; Lindsey; James; Eliza; Nancy; and John. All are now dead but John.

John McDonald was a miller for many years, operating both mills at Beverly, one at East Liverpool, and others. During the past twenty-one years he has been engaged in farming, and is now located four and a half miles west of Beverly, where he owns 47½ acres of land. During the Civil War he enlisted at Beverly, August 6, 1862, in the 92nd Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., and was mustered out at Lookout Mountain in May, 1865. He served in the Army of the Cumberland, under Rosecrans, and among other engagements participated in the battles of Chickamauga and Missionary Ridge, and in the last battle before Nashville. He received a bullet wound in his leg at Missionary Ridge, and was obliged to remain in the hospital for several months. He was mustered out with the rank of first sergeant.

In 1851, Mr. McDonald was united in marriage with Mary E. Bowman, who was born in Germany, and was one year old when she came to America with her mother, Annie Bowman. Seven children were born to them, namely: Frances; Asa H.; Ebenezer; Mary E.; Frederick L.; Charles; and Ida, deceased. Religiously, they are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The subject of this sketch is a member of the Dick Cheatham Post, Grand Army of the Republic, and in politics, supports the Republican party.

RUSSELL A. HUMISTON, a prominent agriculturist, of Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Adams township, Washington County, in 1850, and is a son of Hiram and Margaret (Null) Humiston.

Lynds Humiston, grandfather of Russell A., was born in Washington County, in 1798, a year after his father, Jason Humiston, with his brother-in-law, Ferrian Waterman, had come to the county in ox carts from Wallingford, Connecticut. Hiram Humiston, father of Russell A., was born in Watertown township, Washington County, in 1820, and now resides on the farm in Adams township on which his son, Russell A., was born. He married Margaret Null, who was born in 1826, near Harmar, in Marietta township, and died in 1885. She was a daughter of Squire and Annie (Parker) Null. They had eight children as follows: Amanda; Russell A.; Minerva, deceased; Lucy; Henry W.; Betsy Ann, deceased; Edna B.; and Charles E.

Russell A. Humiston obtained a common school education, after which he was engaged in teaching, for seventeen terms. He then worked at carpentering for several years, and for the past twenty years, has followed agricultural pursuits. At the present time he owns a tract of seventy-five acres, situated southeast of Beverly. On this property he has erected a handsome home in which he and his family reside. He has served as township assessor, and in 1900, was land appraiser.

In 1878, Mr. Humiston was joined in matrimony with Eva Devol, who was born in Adams township in 1860, and is a daughter of William A. and Catherine (Angle) Devol. They have five children, as follows: May, who was born in 1880; Harry D., born in 1884; Delbert A., born December 9, 1886; Muriel W., whose birth occurred in 1889; and Gladys, born in 1895. Fraternally the subject of this sketch is a member of Mount Moriah Lodge, No. 37, A. F. & A. M., at Beverly. He is a Republican in politics.

AUGUSTUS W. REMLEY, a well-to-do agriculturist, residing in Watertown, Watertown township, is owner of a farm of eighty acres, and is also an active man in township and county affairs. He is a son of John E. and Dorothea (Meiers) Remley, both natives of Wurtemberg, Germany, of whom the former was born October 26, 1805, and the latter, in 1809.

John E. Remley and his wife lived in their native country until June 5, 1853, and then came to the United States and located in Watertown, which at that time was in Union township. Mr. Remley followed the vocation of a stonemason, and was also a farmer, and when he arrived in Ohio, he worked on the buildings of the Marietta & Cincinnati Railroad, and assisted in the construction of the tunnel at Tunnel Station. At this time he also owned a farm, which he had purchased shortly after coming to Watertown township, and which he cultivated with good judgment, and with profit. While living in the old country, he served eight years in the German army. He was a Democrat, in politics, ever zealous in serving his party.

Dorothea Meiers became the beloved wife of John E. Remley, and they had four children, namely: John L., who enlisted, at Marietta, Ohio, in Company L, 1st Reg., Ohio Vol. Cav., under Captain J. T. Patton, in the fall of 1861, and died of measles in 1863, at West Point, Kentucky; Charles, living in Watertown township; Carrie, now the wife of Christian P. Strauss, who is a resident of Muskingum township; and Augustus W. Mr. and Mrs. Remley were devout members of the German Lutheran Church. Mrs. Remley departed this life in 1857, and her husband survived until October 13, 1883.

Augustus W. Remley was born in Klingenberg, Wurtemberg, Germany, January 28, 1850, and has followed the fortunes of an agriculturist for many years. His farm consists of eighty acres of land, and is well cultivated and managed. Before engaging in farm work, Mr. Remley followed railroading for seven years. He first had charge of the timber work, and later served as conductor on the Marietta, Pittsburg & Cleveland Railroad. Afterward, he had charge of the timber work for a lock and dam constructed by the government, on the Illinois River. Mr. Remley was united in marriage with Barbara Wagner, May 2, 1878. She is a daughter of Adam and Mary Wagner, a native of Watertown township, and was born August 9, 1854. Her parents came to the United States from Baden, Germany, about 1847, and immediately went to Muskingum township, Washington County, Ohio, where they made their home. Mr. and Mrs. Remley have had three children, namely: Alfred, born May 12, 1879, in Watertown; Howard, who was born in February, 1884, and departed this life October 16, 1885; and Agnes, now at home, whose birth took place September 2, 1885. The family are members of the German Lutheran Church.

Mr. Remley is a Democrat, of decided type, and has always taken an active part in public affairs. He is now serving his third year as township trustee. Fraternally, he affiliates with the Watertown Lodge, I. O. O. F. Mr. Remley enjoys the good will and esteem of the people in his township, and has occupied many positions of trust.

AMON D. FORD, a gentleman profitably engaged in mercantile pursuits in Watertown, Watertown township, Washington County, Ohio, is a hustler in business, and needs small introduction to the people of his vicinity. He is a son of Jude and Sarah Ann (Woodford) Ford, and a grandson of Amon Ford, who was a native of Vermont.

Jude Ford lived in Watertown, Watertown township, from his birth in 1842 until about 1882. He was very actively engaged as a tanner, for some ten years, in his native city. In 1882 he traveled west to Kansas, and there remained until his death took place, in 1884, about eighteen months afterward.

Jude Ford chose for his wife, Sarah Ann Woodford, a daughter of William G. and Sophia Woodford. She was also a native of Watertown, and her death occurred just four days after that of her beloved husband, in 1884. They had two children,—Jennie, the wife of John Schweikert, residing in Fleming, Warren township, Washington County; and Amon D., the subject of this sketch. Both husband and wife were active members of the Universalist Church, and Mr. Ford was for a number of years superintendent of the Watertown Sunday school. In political affairs, he was a member of the Democratic party.

Like his father, the subject of this sketch is also a native of Watertown, where his birth took place in 1866. His scholastic training was obtained in the village schools, and at the close of his school days he traveled on the road, as a musician, until 1897. Mr. Ford then returned to Watertown and there purchased of J. T. Dunbar his present place of business. He is attentive to the wants of his customers, and never fails in his efforts to please them. His stock is one of the best, and there is plenty of it. He is recognized by all as a first-class business man, and is reaping the profits of a splendid trade.

Mr. Ford was united in marriage with Ida J. Hartnell, February 26, 1897. She was a daughter of Joseph and Mary Hartnell, and was born in Charleston, West Virginia, July 12, 1875. They have one little daughter, Mary Louise, who was born July 24, 1899.

The family attend the Episcopal church, of which Mrs. Ford is an active member. Mr. Ford is a Democrat, in politics; for some time he rendered efficient service as treasurer of his township. Socially, he affiliates with the local lodge of the I. O. O. F.

WILLIAM BRECKENRIDGE, a well-known citizen and prosperous farmer of Watertown township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in that township, in 1835, and is a son of Edward and Jane (Fleming) Breckenridge.

Edward Breckenridge was born in Argyle-shire, Scotland, June 25, 1803, and came to the United States in 1830, locating in Watertown township, where he followed farming until his death, January 20, 1892. He and his wife were members of the Presbyterian Church. In politics, he was a Whig, until the organization of the Republican party, when he joined its ranks. He married Jane Fleming, who was born in Argyleshire, Scotland, April 23, 1806, and was a daughter of John and Jane Fleming. She died December 16, 1865. To this union were born nine children, as follows: Andrew, who is living in Watertown township; John, deceased; William; Edward, of Watertown township, who married Nancy Greenlees, and had three children,—Jane and Annie, deceased; and Mary; James F., who enlisted from Watertown township in the 148th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., and died in the military hospital at Baltimore, Maryland, in 1864; Agnes, who lives on the old homestead; Jane C., who also lives on the old home farm; Mary, wife of David E. Mercer, of Watertown township; and Elizabeth, deceased.

William Breckenridge attended the common schools of his native county, and during his younger days was engaged in teaching school. He then took up the occupation of farming, which he has since followed most successfully. He lives in Watertown township, one mile west of the village, where he owns a valuable farm of 105 acres. In 1864, he enlisted at Marietta, in the 148th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., and was mustered out of service in the fall of the same year.

In April, 1866, Mr. Breckenridge was joined in marriage with Ermina L. Deming, who was born in Watertown township, in 1840, and is a daughter of Daniel and Lois (Curtis) Deming. Her grandfather, Colonel Simeon Deming, with the Wolcotts and others, came to Ohio from Sandisfield, Massachusetts, in 1796, locating in Watertown township. During the winter, smallpox broke out, and the Deming cabin was made a pesthouse, members of the family and their neighbors having contracted the disease. The Demings and Wolcotts formed what was known as the Sandisfield settlement. Daniel Deming was born in Watertown township, November 4, 1809. He married Lois Curtis, who was born in Meredith, New York, in 1813, and died November 14, 1887. She was a daughter of Bildad Curtis and Thankful (Orcutt) Curtis. Six children blessed this union, namely: Maria L., who was born in 1835, and is living in Watertown township; Henry Martin, who was born in 1836, and lives in Larkin, Kansas; Ermina L., wife of Mr. Breckenridge; Vesta Curtis, born in 1844, who married Captain George Turner, and lives at Effingham, Kansas; Sophronia O., born in 1847, who lives in Watertown; and Sarah O., born in 1850, who is the widow of George E. Henry.

Mr. Breckenridge and his wife are parents of three children,—Daniel, Lois and William Kemper. Daniel Deming, born in 1869, lives in Watertown. He married Ethel Gould, a daughter of Rev. C. C. and Lydia Gould, at Athens, in 1890, and they have a daughter, Lois, born June 1, 1901. James E., born in 1872, died April 1, 1901. William Kemper, born August 18, 1874, is in the second year of the course of veterinary surgery at Ohio University. Religiously, the family are Presbyterians. In politics, the subject of this sketch is a Republican.

HARLES S. LAFLIN, who is prosperously engaged in the milling business at Watertown, Watertown township, Washington County, Ohio, has been thus occupied since 1892. He is a son of Harley and Anna (Shields) Laflin, and his birth occurred in 1839, in Barlow township, Washington County.

Harley Laflin was a man of influence and note in the public affairs of his township and county. He was born in 1807, was a native of Watertown township, and followed the vocation of a farmer all of his life. He chose for his life companion, Anna Shields, who was born in West Virginia in 1809, and they had three children, as follows: Diantha C., widow of John A. Seeley, living in Watertown; Mary A., who was united in marriage with James T. Morrison, of Athens County; and Charles S.

Harley Laflin was a Jeffersonian Democrat, and served as justice of the peace of his township for many years. In 1854, he served as a member of the Ohio State senate. His death took place in 1892, and five days later, his widow also died.

In 1868, Charles S. Laflin was united in marriage with Caroline M. Cooksey, a daughter of Levi and Martha (Wood) Cooksey. She was a native of Morgan County, and was born in 1844. This union resulted in three children, namely: Charles E., a native of Barlow township, born in 1871; James T. M., whose birth took place in Barlow township, in 1874, and who is now a resident of Chicago, Illinois; and Lizzie A., who was born in 1877, and died in 1896.

Mr. Laflin followed the life of a farmer until he attained the age of forty years, and then turned his attention to mercantile pursuits, in Watertown, for the following ten years. In 1892 he purchased the Wolf Creek Mills at Watertown, and has been in the same business up to the present time. During the late Civil War he served in a company of militia, which was ordered to stop the ravages of the famous Morgan raiders.

Mr. Laflin is a Democrat, of firm opinions, and has done much that is of benefit to this township and county.

J. BARRY, largely identified with the oil business, and also connected with the Marietta Torpedo Company, of Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, has led a busy life in many cities, and has been a resident of Washington County, only since 1896.

Mr. Barry was born at Randolph, Orange County, Vermont, in 1853, and has made himself what he is by his own industry, thrift, and persistent efforts. He started for the oil fields in Pennsylvania, intending to learn the business, and in 1872, went to Triumph Hill, near Tidioute, and there engaged first as a pumper. Afterward he made contracts for drilling, and finally became a producer in the Bradford fields. At Bradford, he also became interested in the torpedo business in 1879, and continued there for the following six years, when he moved west, to Washington and was engaged in the raising of stock for twelve years. He then returned and settled at Macksburg, Washington County, in 1896, being interested in the torpedo business. Later, he removed to Marietta, and in July, 1900, was admitted to a partnership in the Marietta Torpedo Company to which he still devotes his attention.

Mr. Barry was united in marriage, in Pennsylvania, with Minna Singleton, and they now have two children,—Frank, aged fourteen years; and Neva, aged twelve years. The family reside in a beautiful home at No. 732 Third street.

In fraternal circles, the subject of this sketch is a member of the B. P. O. E., and also affiliates with the A. O. U. W., of the State of Washington. He carries a policy in one of the old line companies,—the New York Mutual.

HELEM DEVOL, an oil driller of note and prominence in the town of Belpre, Washington County, Ohio, makes his home in Rockland, Washington County. He is a native of Devol Dam, of the same county, where he was born November 2, 1853, and is a son of Helem Devol and a grandson of Wing Devol, a Frenchman by birth, who came to the United States at a very early period in its history. During the youthful days of his life, he was a sea captain, and when he came to America he abandoned that occupation and settling in Ohio, devoted his time to tilling the soil and becoming a first-class citizen. During the War of 1812, he served bravely as a soldier, and returned at its close to his farm on the Muskingum River, at Devol's Dam, which place was named for him. He was married and had a family of six children, all of whom are now deceased.

Helem Devol, Sr., was born at Devol's Dan, Washington County, and devoted the early part of his life to boating on the Ohio River. He ran produce boats to New Orleans and other cities, and twice had occasion to walk the whole distance from New Orleans to his home. He finally accumulated enough of this world's goods to purchase a small farm, which he operated with ease until his demise.

Helem Devol, the father, was united in marriage with Betsey Lewis, a native of Rhode Island, and they were parents of ten children, as follows: Edward; Clarissa; Maria; Fax; Harris; Betsy; Emeline; Helem; and Fanny. The family were liberal in their religious views, and attended various churches.

The subject of this history, Helem Devol, Jr., attended the best schools of Washington County, and began his first work on a farm. For some time he had no other occupation, but at length he embarked in the oil business as a driller, and since then has found employment in the principal oil fields in the country, in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Ohio. He has met everywhere with the best success, and is considered an expert in his line of work.

Helem Devol has been twice married. His first union was contracted with Esther Harsha, a native of Washington County, by whom he had six children, namely: Charley; Clara; Harry; Bessie; George; and Dale. Some time after his first wife's death, he was united in marriage with Emma Keener, of West Virginia, and they had one child, Albert. Before her marriage, Mrs. Devol was engaged in teaching school, and was considered an able instructor.

In political opinions, the subject of this sketch is a Democrat, and is prominent and influential in his party. Fairminded, upright as a citizen, and wellposted in all matters, Mr. Devol stands high in the regard of his fellow citizens.

PETER McLAREN, a pioneer marble dealer, a successful oil producer and a well-known business man of Marietta, Ohio, was born June 3, 1831, in Edinburgh, Scotland, within a stone's throw of Holy Rood Abbey, and is a son of John and Margaret (Bell) McLaren. His father was a carriage maker by trade, and died in Edinburgh in 1850. His mother died in 1854.

After his mother's death, Peter McLaren took passage on a new steamer, the Clyde, leaving Glasgow, May 20, 1854, and arriving at New York about a month later. The summer he spent at Albany and Troy, New York, and Slatington, Pennsylvania. He spent the major portion of the winter in Cincinnati, Ohio. He had learned the trade of marble cutting in Scotland, having served an apprenticeship of six years and two months. In March, 1855, he passed Marietta by boat on his way to Washington. Owing to low water he was unable, for a time, to go farther than Wheeling. There he was recommended by a marble-cutter, of Wheeling, to Messrs. Wheeler and Gardner, members of a marble firm of Marietta, and he came to this city. He entered the employ of that firm and soon acquired an interest in it, the firm name being Hollister, McLaren & Co., from 1856 to 1860, after which time Mr. McLaren conducted the business alone, until 1870. Since 1870, he has been engaged in real estate and building, and also in conducting the marble works, some times alone and part of the time with a partner. He has been very successful and sold monuments throughout Washington County and adjoining counties. He built and also conducted the marble works, being at times alone and at times having a partner. At present his attention is mainly given to looking after his real estate interests. He owns several valuable properties in the city, prominent among them the Leader store building, in the third story of which is a fine hall 36 by 70 feet, in dimensions, which is used by the order of Odd Fellows. Mr. McLaren helped to "kick" down one of the first oil wells in the Macksburg field, and although it proved to be of little value, he was more successful in later ventures. He has handled a large number of leases, and is also interested as a producer. He now has an interest in the oldest producer in Cow Run, the "Schoolhouse," which is still productive. He was also employed about three years by the Standard Oil company, having charge of three refineries.

In 1867, Mr. McLaren was united in marriage with Maria T. Hadley, who was born in Marietta, in 1847, and is a daughter of William and Catherine (Turnbull) Hadley, who came from the Cheviot Hills section of Scotland, near Melrose Abbey, their nearest town being Kelso. Mr. Hadley had been a shepherd in Scotland, and, some years after arriving Marietta, bought from Col. John Mills, a farm two miles from town. His son, George, now lives on them farm, of which he is the owner. The subject of this sketch and his wife have five children, as follows: Flora, who most admirably filled the office of field secretary of the Sunday School Association of Washington County, for three years; William L., who married Daisy Lancaster, and is a member of the marble firm of McLaren & Wommer, whose fine establishment is located on Butler, near Front street; Ida, who is residing at home; James, who is taking a course of instruction in electrical engineering at the Ohio State University; and Blanche, who is preparing herself as an osteopathic physician in the American School of Osteopathy at Kirksville, Missouri. Mr. McLaren's comfortable residence at No. 504 Second street has been his home since January 29, 1889. He bought the property of Prof. Mills shortly after the destruction of his home on Green street by fire.

J. FULLER. The gentleman whose name heads this sketch is a funeral director in Marietta, Washington County, Ohio. He was born in that city in 1861, and is a son of Samuel A. and Eliza Z. (Judd) Fuller, and can trace his lineage back to the days of the landing of the Pilgrims from the Mayflower. His ancestors subsequently removed to New York and located at Whitehall.

Samuel A. Fuller was a native of Washington County, Ohio, where his birth took place in 1821, on the old "Bishop" farm. His father, John Fuller, settled in Washington County during the early part of the nineteenth century. He married and had several children the last of whom passed away in 1902.

Samuel A. Fuller was a cabinet-maker by trade, and divided his attention between this and undertaking. Prior to the establishment of the chair factory at Marietta, he made furniture quite extensively. Then, too, he and his brother, Aaron Fuller, were partners in the undertaking business. This partnership lasted until the latter accepted the position of foreman in the chair factory. Some years later he removed from the city and is now deceased. Samuel A. Fuller was united in marriage with a daughter of Chauncey T. Judd, a gentleman who served efficiently as postmaster at Harniar, Washington County, for many years, and died in January, 1863, or 1864. To this union were born four children as follows: Albert a resident of Portsmouth, Ohio, where he and his brother Andrew J., are partners in the furniture and undertaking business; O. J.; and Clara S., now residing with Andrew J., her twin brother.

The subject of this sketch attended school at Marietta, and at the age of sixteen years, started to work in the chair factory, where he continued for the following six years, and meantime devoted all spare time to learning the wood-turner's trade. He chose for his wife, Nellie H. Sayre.

Since 1884, Mr. Fuller has been sole proprietor of the undertaking and embalming business established by his father in 1840. Although the patronage of his father was by no means small, Mr. Fuller has nevertheless increased his trade, and to him belongs the credit of bringing the business to its present high standard in Marietta. His place of business is at Nos. 142 and 144 Front street, and consists of a well-furnished office, large and commodious show-rooms, well stocked with a most complete line of funeral supplies, and a dormitory. He is said to have the most complete line of equipments in the state. Three funeral cars, one white, one black, and one for country use, are owned by Mr. Fuller, and he also operates the only ambulance wagon in the city, taking special care of bodies intended for consignment to foreign points. The residence and office of Mr. Fuller are adjoining, and calls are thereby answered easily, both day and night. Being a graduate of Clarke & Sullivan's Oriental School of Embalming, Mr. Fuller is fully acquainted with every detail of this branch of the work, and is an expert embalmer. For his straightforwardness and integrity, as well as for the attention and care he gives to all his duties, he is widely known throughout the surrounding country, and has a steadily increasing business. He is a valued member of the Undertakers' Association of Ohio.

LYMAN WINDSOR PHILLIPS, a Civil War veteran and retired brick maker, has been a lifelong resident of Marietta. Having now nearly reached the far milestone of three score and 10 years, he is living quietly at his pleasant home at the corner of Eighth and Warren streets.

Mr. Phillips was born in Marietta, August 2, 1833, and is a son of a carpenter and millwright of that place. His father, C. A. Phillips, born in 1804, settled in Marietta in 1832, when but a young man. Here he followed his trades, making a specialty of the building of wheat-fanning mills. He died in Marietta, in 1882, at the age of 78 years. In early manhood, he married S. Mariella Morse, a daughter of Eusebus Morse. When rather young, she moved with her parents from Massachusetts to Washington County, Ohio. She died in 1880. By her Mr. Phillips had four sons, two of whom are now deceased, and two daughters; Rhoda, who married a Mr. Pierce and resides at Norfolk, Virginia; and Sarepta M., who married James Steen, and lives at Hamilton, Ohio.

Lyman W. Phillips shouldered the responsibilities of active business in the manufacture of brick at the age of 23 years. When the Civil War broke out, however, he felt forced to enlist. In 1861, with Company L, 1st Reg., Ohio Vol. Cav., he entered the Army of the Cumberland, and afterward participated in many hard fights. More fortunate than the majority of his comrades, he escaped without a wound, or injury to his health. He was mustered out at Atlanta, in 1864. After returning from the war, Mr. Phillips resumed his first line of business, that of brick manufacturing and contracting, which he followed until 1876, when he engaged in the manufacture of brick, having established a plant on Seventh street, between Putnam and Greene streets. This he continued on that site until 1883. He then moved to Eighth street, between Washington and Warren streets, where he remained until his retirement, about five years ago. From the start his business proved successful, and he has, by prudence and wise management, amassed considerable property. In 1889 he erected his present residence, a substantial brick structure, in a district now thickly settled, but then containing hardly any other houses on the square.

In 1856, Mr. Phillips married Eunice Wright, a daughter of David Wright, for many years a Washington County farmer, formerly of Morrow, Ohio. He died in 1876, at the age of 85 years. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips have had eight children, six of whom are married and five of whom live at Marietta. Their names are as follows: Alma, wife of Elliot Cochlan, a contracting carpenter; Frank, an engineer on the M. & C. R. R.; Leon, a bricklayer; Jane, who married John Becker; Emma, the wife of Levi Bell; David, a brickmason, who never married, and lives at home; Bertha, who married George C. Rowland, and lives at Chester Hill, where he is engaged in the pipe line business; and George, who died, aged 29 years.

Mr. Phillips possesses a remarkable physique, and has been a strong, vigorous man all his life. He passed through the war without being once enlisted on the sick list. Politically, he is a Republican.

DR. LOUIS H. CISLER, a successful practitioner of medicine in Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, was born near that city, and is a son of Charles Henry and Mary (Blohm) Cisler.

Charles Henry Cisler was born in Marietta in 1838, and is a son of Henry and Anna (Barnhardt) Cisler. He was educated in Marietta township, and later moved with his parents to the farm which is now his home. In 1869, he married Mary Blohm, a daughter of Louis and Frances Blohm, and they reared four children, as follows: Louis H.; Reuben T., D. D. S., of Marietta; Clara L., a graduate of Marietta High School, who is living at home; and John Wallace, who is also at home. Religiously the family is Lutheran.

Reuben T. Cisler, D. D. S., was born near Marietta, in 1874, and completed an academic course at Marietta. He studied dentistry in the Cincinnati College of Dental Surgery, and immediately after graduation, came to Marietta to practice. He has received a liberal patronage from the citizens of the community, and is everywhere held in high esteem. His office is at No. 210 Front street, and he resides at No. 209 Gilman street. He married a daughter of J. A. Davis, of the wholesale grocery house of C. L. Bailey & Company.

Dr. Louis H. Cisler was graduated from Marietta College with the class of 1892, and thereafter received careful preparation for his profession. He studied medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, in Philadelphia, from which institution he was graduated in 1895, and has since practiced successfully in Marietta. In 1898, he pursued a post-graduate course in the New York Polyclinic, and has always been a student of his profession. He is a member of the William Pepper Medical Society, of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Dr. Cisler married Miss Walker, a lady of Philadelphia birth, and they have three children,—Frances, Walker and Anna. His office and residence are at No. 317 Fourth street. Religiously he is a member of the Lutheran Church.

HOMAS BIRT HIBBARD, deceased, who spent half a century of his active life in Belpre township, was born near Sacket Harbor, New York, December 1, 1821, and died April 26, 1902. He was a son of James S. Hibbard, a former resident of Sacket Harbor, who located in Athens County, Ohio, when the subject of these lines was but eighteen months old.

Dr. Hibbard spent the balance of his life near Amesville, Ohio, where he practiced his profession with marked success. Especially was this true during the period when cholera was prevalent in that locality. His success in battling with that dread disease was phenomenal. He married Lucy Blanchard, whose mother's maiden name was Birt, which was adopted by the subject of this sketch as his middle name.

Mr. Hibbard was the eldest of nine children who grew to maturity. The others are Sophia; Henry; Juliette; Clark; Louisa; Mary; Rudolph; and Lucy. Thomas B. Hibbard took naturally to agricultural pursuits, and during his prime, was an extensive stock dealer, often shipping to Baltimore, Philadelphia, and other markets. Washington County had no more progressive man than he, and he was strictly honest in all his dealings, and charitable to all whom he believed worthy and deserving. These and kindred characteristics stand as a monument to his memory, and will perpetuate the name of this time-honored citizen.

He was joined in marriage with Sarah Porter, a daughter of Samuel Porter, who was a native of Massachusetts, but went west and settled in Ohio, near Little Hocking, in the early part of the history of Washington County.

Mr. Hibbard and his wife reared two daughters,—Edna A. and Sarah A.,—both of whom are deceased. Edna married Prof. Guthrie and their union was blessed with two children,—Frank H.; and Hattie A., wife of William Ellwood. Sarah A. married William Richards, and five children were born to them, as follows: Birt H.; Ruby; Garnet; Victor and Emerald. Mrs. Hibbard crossed the river of death to the life beyond, September 16, 1894, aged seventy-seven years. She was a devout member of the Congregational Church.

Mr. Hibbard was a member of no church, but was liberal in his views on the subject of religion, contributed largely of his means toward the support of all denominations, and will long be remembered as one of the most charitable men of that section.

The foregoing notes were furnished to the publishers of this book by Lucy D. Rosecrans, or Lucy Goss, as she is more commonly known, as a tribute to the memory of Mr. Hibbard, and as a token of her esteem for one who was always kind to her, and befriended her on many occasions.

Lucy D. Rosecrans is a niece of the illustrious Gen. Rosecrans and also of Bishop Rosecrans, formerly of Cincinnati. When but two weeks old, she was adopted by Daniel Goss and his wife. She has two brothers, Columbus and Eli, both residents of California.

JAMES WILEY WEST, who resides on his farm four and a half miles from Marietta, in Marietta township, Washington County Ohio, was born on the old homestead, where he now lives, in 1859, and is a son of James C. and Adeline B. (Thorniley) West. His paternal grandfather was William West. His maternal grandfather, John Thorniley, was a captain in the war of 1812. He was born in Chester, England, in 1810, and came to Marietta township, where he purchased the farm now owned by Mrs. Caleb Thorniley. He was a manufacturer of brick, and built the house which is occupied by Mrs. Caleb Thorniley; he also built the church located near her home. He and his wife reared the following children: William; John; Thomas; James; George; Elizabeth; Caleb; and Adeline. William married Eliza Rowland, a daughter of William Rowland, and has five children,—John, Minerva, Rinaldo, Alice, and Newton N. John married Jane Temple, a daughter of Benjamin J. Temple, and they had one child,—Benjamin Thorniley,—now deceased; Thomas married Mary Ralston, and their children are,—Nathan, Matilda, Sarah, and George. James and George are deceased. Elizabeth married Leumel Wells, and they have two children,—Joe, and Jennie.

James Wiley West, whose name opens these lines, married Annie Thorniley, a daughter of Captain William Thorniley, and they have two children, Helen E., aged nine years; and James William, aged three years. Mr. West has been engaged in general farming for a number of years, and has met with considerable success. He is conscientious and thrifty, has worked with untiring energy, and is considered one of the leading farmers in the township.

GEORGE DUDLEY MURDOCK, who has a clear title to a leading place among the farmers of Palmer township, Washington County, Ohio, gives undivided attention to the tilling of the soil. His farm, which was his birthplace, was known as the J. M. Murdock farm. He is a son of James Monroe Murdock, who was a prominent man in political affairs in the township and county, prior to his death, ever ready to uphold the Republican party, he did all he could to build up its interests and help it in its further advancement. He served as county commissioner one term, and was re-elected. During his second term, he caught the measles and this disease finally caused his death. He was a well-read man, fully posted on current events, and was a great stump speaker, being fluent and enthusiastic in his speeches. At one time he ran for the legislature, and was defeated by only a few votes.

George Dudley Murdock was born October 25, 1853, and after attaining manhood's years, was united in marriage with Mary E. Breckenridge, a daughter of Andrew F. Breckenridge. Their family consisted of four children, as follows: Clair M., who was born in June, 1880, and still resides on the home farm; Maude M., born in 1883; Hazel M., whose birth took place in June, 1895; and Fern M., born in December, 1899.

Mr. Murdock purchased his present farm at two different times. His first purchase consisted of 100 acres, which he bought of his father-in-law, A. F. Breckenridge, in 1880. He paid $25.00 per acre for this, and erected all the fences, buildings, etc., himself. For eighteen winters he had a sawmill on the farm, and he paid for nearly all the improvements from the proceeds of the sheep which he raised. These sheep are thoroughbred Merino and have taken many prizes at the fairs given in the county, especially at the county fair, the Beverly fair and the Barlow fair. Some time after his first purchase of land. Mr. Murdock bought sixty acres more, making in all 160 acres; well adapted to the raising of stock, as well as general farming. In carpenter work on the buildings he had only the help of one man, and the material, such as stone and timber, he obtained from the farm. His farm is now one of the best kept in the county, and through all the years spent in building on and improving it, no small credit should be given to the willing assistance of Mrs. Murdock, who helped in so many little ways to further the work.

Mr. Murdock is a member of the Republican party, in which he has been quite serviceable. For nine consecutive years, he was school director, and for ten years he served his township as land appraiser. He is a charter member of the Watertown Mutual Farm Insurance Company, and has been its agent since it was first organized. In religious belief he is a firm Methodist and holds to the old creed of the M. E. Church. Fraternally he belongs to the Masonic order, affiliating with Mount Moriah Lodge, No. 37, A. F. & A. M., at Beverly. Great confidence is reposed in the subject of this sketch by the people of his acquaintance.

OSMUND KOSSUTH HAMILTON.

The subject of this personal history, one of the best-known men of Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, is a member of the firm of Hamilton & Heidrick, merchant tailors, of that city. This business is the largest of its kind in Marietta, and was established, in 1884, by O. K. Hamilton and A. R. Heidrick, the building being located on Front street. The partners do all the cutting required by the amount of work they have, and employ from twelve to fourteen people for other work. They use two floors, and are strictly merchant tailors. The patronage of the firm speaks for the integrity and worth of its members, as well as their thorough-going business methods, for their custom is of the best, and there is plenty of it.

Osmund K. Hamilton is a Pennsylvanian by birth, and was born in 1853, at Allegheny, Pennsylvania. The following year his parents with their family removed to Marietta, Ohio, and there made their home. A brother, J. A. Hamilton, attorney-at-law, is represented by a sketch elsewhere in this book. Osmund K. Hamilton was the youngest in the family, and attended the public schools of Marietta for some years. He also took instruction in the private schools of Mr. and Miss Combs. At the early age of seventeen years he decided to become a tailor and for a while worked with Mr. Heidrick for C. C. Ketter, in the same establishment. Subsequently he learned cutting in New York City, previous to launching into business in 1884.

Mr. Hamilton was joined in marriage with Joan Cunningham, a daughter of Michael Cunningham, who was a veteran of the Civil War, and died in 1891, at the age of seventy years. His residence in Washington County dated back to its early history. He was survived by his widow until 1894, when she, too, was laid to rest. Mrs. Hamilton has one sister, Alice Cunningham, who now lives in Oregon. She taught school in Marietta, and graduated at the Cook County (Illinois) Normal School, in 1897. One year was spent in teaching in Chicago, and this was followed by two years of experience as a teacher in the State Normal School, at Charleston, Illinois. She now travels throughout Oregon for a Seattle firm, selling educational books and publications, especially to the Indian schools.

The subject of this sketch and his wife are active members of St. Mary's Catholic Church. Of their family of four daughters, LEWIS W. SMITH.

Ruth, the eldest, is a graduate of the Marietta High School, and is attending College at Marietta; Alice graduated from the parochial school in June, 1901; Marie graduated in June, 1902; and Margaret is still attending school at St. Mary's.

Mr. Hamilton is faithful to the principles of the Republican party. He is careful, conscientious business man, and his present position is gratifying to himself and the many friends who have watched him in his progress.

FREDERIC SPEARY was born in Macksburg, Ohio, in 1873, of German-French extraction, his father, who was born in France, coming to this country in 1861, and serving in the 7th Virginia Regiment, U. S. A., during the Civil War.

Mr. Speary, in early years, assumed the responsibilities of life by entering into the business world, having in 1884 affiliated himself with the Macksburg Pipe Line Company, now known as the Buckeye Pipe Line Company. On April 5, 1890, the offices were moved to Marietta, Mr. Speary remaining with the company. In 1892 he was made oil buyer for the Joseph Seep Purchasing Agency, which agency has its headquarters at Oil City, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Speary was married in 1899 to Nellie Best, who was born and reared in Marietta, being a daughter of G. C. Best, who was so well and favorably known. They now reside at No. 505 Washington street.

JOHN NOBLE MACKEY, a prominent farmer of Marietta township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in 1860 and is a son of James Mackey. James Mackey was born in Columbiana County, Ohio, in 1814, and purchased the homestead farm in 1847. He married Susan B. Corner, in 1851, and to them were born seven children, five of whom are now living, as follows: Mrs. Luella Middleswart; Mrs. Susie Kerr; Mrs. Annie Efferson; Frank; and John Noble. James Mackey died in December, 1900, after a life of usefulness and uprightness.

John Noble Mackey, the subject of this biography, was married to Fanny DeWitt, a daughter of Francis DeWitt. Francis DeWitt was born in 1824, and came to Washington County, at the age of ten years. There he married Eliza Dornan, in 1857, and they were blessed with six children, as follows: Frank, of Marietta; Charles, of Colorado; Mamie, wife of J. P. Brown, of Caywood; Hattie B.; Anna; and Mrs. J. N. Mackey.

Mr. Mackey and his wife were married in 1888, and they have four children, namely: James Dean, who was born in 1889; Arthur, who was born in 1893; Carlton Louis, who was born in 1895; and Ruth, who was born in 1902.

Mr. Mackey is one of the leading citizens of Washington County; he is influential in local affairs, and is a man of honor and integrity. He is well known in the county, and is deeply interested in its welfare.

MRS. MAGDALENA SMITH, whose wide circle of acquaintances and friends testifies to her goodness and popularity, is a woman of kindly impulses and generous disposition. She is a native of Germany, where she lived until 1874, when she came to the United States, and soon afterward located at Marietta, Washington County, Ohio.

While still living in that city she became acquainted with Lewis W. Smith, whom she married some time later. He was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1849, and during his life was all that a good husband should be. For a considerable time he was the owner and manager of a planing mill in Marietta, which he sold to James Foreman and James Hall, and purchased the farm on which Mrs. Smith now lives. In 1892, they settled on this farm, and here they reared three children; namely, Walter G., Charles F., and May M.

Mr. Smith departed to his final rest on April 23, 1901, and was mourned by the citizens of Warren township, as a good, useful citizen is always mourned. His portrait accompanies this sketch. On the farm of Mrs. Smith are now several producing oil wells. It is located about four miles out on the river road from Marietta, and is well cared for under the direction of Mrs. Smith, whose judgment and good common sense can always be counted upon.

COLONEL WILLIAM BION MASON, deceased, for many years a prominent and influential citizen of Marietta, Ohio, was born in Adams township, Washington County, Ohio, August 16, 1823, on land near Lowell, which he had inherited from his ancestors. He was a son of William Bond Mason, grandson of William Mason, and a descendant of Hugh Mason, who came to this country in 1634, from Ipswich, England, and settled in Watertown, Massachusetts.

William Mason, the grandfather, was one of the original 48 who came with Rufus R. Putnam from Massachusetts, and located in Washington County. He settled in Adams township, and was one of the earliest ministers of Rainbow Settlement, being a Baptist. He was a farmer, as was his son, William Bond Mason, who was a fine carpenter and cabinet-maker.

Colonel Mason was reared in Adams township and attended college in Meadville, Pennsylvania. He taught school for a number of years, beginning when he was 18 years old, and teaching one year near Keokuk, Iowa. He returned to Washington County, Ohio, shortly before his marriage in 1852, and in November, 1855, was elected county recorder. He was re-elected to that office in 1858, and served until June, 1862, when he resigned, leaving the office in charge of Manley Warren, his clerk. On July 27, 1861, he entered the militia, and served as captain of Company D, 1st Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., Third Brigade, Seventh Division, until October 10, of the same year. He resigned and the day of his resignation he signed the muster roll as a private, and was ordered to report at Columbus. Two days later, he was mustered in as 2nd lieutenant, and on December 2, of the same year, was promoted to be captain, under Jesse Hildebrand, colonel of the 77th Reg. Ohio Vol. Infantry. He was promoted to be major on August 26, 1862, and as such served until April 18, 1863, when he was promoted to be colonel of the 77th regiment. He served until December 31, 1863, and was mustered out at Little Rock, Arkansas. He returned home and one year later was elected county treasurer of Washington County, assuming the duties of office in the spring of 1867. He served in this capacity one term, until the spring of 1869. He was appointed postmaster by President Grant, and served efficiently in that position from 1870 to 1878. Then, for seven years, he was successfully engaged in the mercantile line, at No. 175 Front street. He was thus occupied at the time of his death, November 11, 1885. He was a man of the highest character, and was everywhere held in the greatest esteem.

Colonel Mason was married May 25, 1852, to Lucetta B. Mason (not a relative), who was born in Adams township, and was a daughter of William Mason. Two children blessed this union, Mary E. and William Bion. The subject of this sketch was a member of the Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias and Grand Army of the Republic.

William Bion Mason, son of Colonel Mason, was born at Marietta, in 1857, and received his mental training in the public schools. He entered the postoffice as clerk under his father, at the age of sixteen years, and served with the latter during the last five years of his incumbency, as assistant postmaster. He afterward served some time with S. L. Grosvenor and later in the Parkersburg postoffice. Later he was engaged in the mercantile line with his father, at No. 175 Front street, and continued the business three years after the father's death. Since 1880, he has been engaged in the railway mail service, over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and now runs between Chicago and Wheeling. The Mason family has resided at the corner of Third and Sacra Via streets for the past thirty-five years, and the present house of brick veneer was completed by Mr. Mason in May, 1900. Fraternally, he is a member of the Knights of Pythias and Har-mar Blue Lodge, No. 390.

JOHAN H. BECKER, occupying the prominent position of president and treasurer of the Becker Lumber & Manufacturing Company, of Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, is a man of great executive ability and is one of the most prominent citizens of Marietta.

Mr. Becker is a son of Jacob Becker, and claims Marietta as his birthplace. He chose Miss Wolfram for his life companion, and they have a family of four bright, intelligent children. The greater part of Mr. Becker's life has been spent in the endeavor to make his business a complete success.

The Becker Lumber & Manufacturing Company was first established in 1888. It was located on Front street and through the untiring efforts of Mr. Becker, its founder, became the largest plant by far in the city of Marietta. Throughout the entire history of the plant, Mr. Becker has been a potent factor, ever aiding in its development, ever willing to devote his talents and time to its advancement. In this he is aided by D. R. Rood, vice-president, and John Ploff, secretary, most valuable assistants in the work. In 1901, the location of this plant was changed from Sacra Via and Front streets to Pike and Queen streets, and there the buildings, which have been quite recently completed, occupy between two and three acres of space. The main structure is of brick, 64 by 112 feet, in dimensions, and besides the basement, has three stories, each being supplied with its share of machinery, etc. The other buildings, and there are many, are all equipped with the most modern machinery. The plant employs about forty-five people.

Hardwood lumber is mainly used, and a planing mill turns out a vast amount of custom work. The power of the plant is supplied by a 100 horse power engine, and it manufactures lumber and finishing goods. Besides the local trade, a heavy business is carried on by supplying the contractors of surrounding towns.

Mr. Becker is much interested in his plant, and is regarded as one of Marietta's most useful and progressive citizens. In fraternal circles, he is a member of the Knights of Pythias, and is Exalted Ruler of the B. P. O. E. He and his family enjoy a beautiful home at No. 631 Second street. In religious belief, they adhere to the doctrines of the German Lutheran Church.

THE MARIETTA STEAM LAUNDRY, of which C. H. Taylor and P. E. Clark are proprietors, is the largest place of its kind in the city of Marietta, Ohio. It was established in 1895, by the consolidation of the American Steam Laundry and the Marietta Laundry. The former was started in October, 1892, on Front street, by Mr. Taylor, and the latter, by Messrs. Clark & Cole. G. C. Mohler was identified with the American Steam Laundry prior to 1895, and when the two concerns were merged, on April 27, of that year, he continued in the business with Messrs. Clark and Taylor, Mr. Cole withdrawing. Mr. Mohler withdrew in the spring of 1901, and its present owners have since conducted the business. They occupy two floors at No. 205 Second street, and employ a force of twenty people. They not only control the local trade, but received patronage from towns as far distant as Belington, West Virginia, and the Maryland line. The plant is thoroughly equipped with modern machinery of the best type. To show the enterprise of its proprietors, it may be stated that they have placed in use a new collar and cuff machine at a cost of nearly $1,000, which is equal to any in use and is the only one in this section of the country. It produces work equal to new. The concern does work of every kind, making a specialty of collars, cuffs and shirts, and two wagons are constantly used in making the deliveries. The proprietors are men of recognized ability, and are held in high esteem by the citizens of Marietta.

C. H. Taylor was born in Zanesville, Ohio, in 1864, and removed to Marietta in 1891. He married a daughter of S. W. Harvey, and resides at Fairview Heights with his wife and family of four children. He is a Republican in politics, and socially, belongs to the Masonic fraternity. Religiously he favors Christian Science.

P. E. Clark was born at Beverly, Washington County, Ohio, April 19, 1862, and has spent most of his life in Washington County. From 1887 to 1894, he was mail clerk, running from Grafton, West Virginia, to Chicago, a distance of 560 miles, his home then being at Zanesville, Ohio. His first marriage was with a daughter of Captain R. N. Cole, of Marietta. She died leaving one child, Ruth. July 18, 1890, Mr. Clark formed a second union, wedding Mary McNamara, who is of Canadian parentage. In politics the subject of this sketch is a Democrat. He belongs to the Masonic fraternity and the Elks.

B. COEN, senior member of the firm of Coen & Wilson, lawyers and general practitioners of Marietta, Ohio, with offices in the St. Clair Building, was born in Noble County, Ohio, in 1871, of English ancestry. He is the son of Jacob S. and Lydia C. Coen, grandson of Richard Coen, and great-grandson of Abraham Coen, who came to this country from England during the Revolutionary War. Mr. Coen spent his boyhood days on a farm in Noble County, his father being a farmer and stock dealer. When he was ten years of age, his father died, and he and his mother thereafter continued to reside on the farm until 1890, when they removed to Mount Ephraim, a small town near their farm, where they lived until the former's removal to Marietta. At the age of 17 years, he became a member of the Christian Church, and after leaving school traveled as a vocalist, having sung in religious work in more than thirty States. While traveling he began the study of law with L. A. Koons, of the Athens County Bar, and continued his studies for more than four years, a large portion of which time was spent in the office of Mr. Koons. In 1898, he was admitted to the Bar in Ohio and since that time he has been admitted to practice in the United States Courts. He located in Marietta for the practice of his profession shortly after his admission to the Bar, and in the fall of 1900, formed a partnership with Mr. Frank Wilson, which still continues. Many lawyers are to be found among his ancestors. His great-grandfather was admitted at Westminster, and was for many years a successful practitioner of law in London. Mr. Coen was married in Omaha, Nebraska, to Anna E. Thompson. They have one daughter, Mildred L., and reside at No. 511 Warren street. Socially Mr. Coen is a member of Marietta Lodge, No. 477, B. P. O. E., and in politics he has always been actively allied with the Democratic party.

FRANK WILSON, junior partner of the firm of Coen & Wilson, lawyers and general practitioners, of Marietta, Ohio, with offices in the St. Clair Building, was born December 22, 1864, at Brownsville, Monroe County, Ohio, and is the son of Dr. Josiah and Ruth Wilson.

Until he was twenty-one years of age, he resided a part of the time on the farm, and part of the time in Brownsville. At an early age, he taught district schools in Monroe and Harrison counties, Ohio, and during the years 1892 and 1893 was principal of the public schools at Hannibal. In the meantime he was furthering his own education and in June, 1894, was graduated from Scio College. In 1895 he came to Marietta, and read law under the preceptorship of A. D. Follett, of the firm of Nye & Follett. In the fall of 1895, he went to Mount Pleasant, Ohio, and taught during the three years following, in the high school at that place. He pursued his law course while there, under the preceptorship of Attorney E.

JOHN T. CLEARY

L. Finley, of the Jefferson County Bar, and during the winter of 1898 and 1899 was identified with the schools of New Matamoras. He was enabled to enter the senior class of the law department of the Ohio State University, from which he was graduated in the spring of 1900. He was immediately thereafter admitted to practice, and in October, 1900, came to Marietta, and formed a partnership with Mr. Coen. He has been a success as a lawyer, and stands high at the bar of Washington County. Fraternally he is a member of the Knights of Pythias. He is a Republican in politics, and belongs to the M. E. Church.

JOHAN T. CLEARY, superintendent of the Constitution Stone Company, of Constitution, Ohio, and one of the prominent young business men of this locality, was born in Marietta, Ohio, on February 16, 1877, and is a son of Thomas and Catherine (Conley) Cleary. Thomas Cleary is a native of County Clare, Ireland, and his wife was born in Ohio.

Thomas Cleary was born on December 20, 1848, in the village of Ennis, Ireland, and is a son of Thomas and Bridget (Cunningham) Cleary, both of whom were natives of Ireland. Thomas Cleary, father of John T., was brought to America by his parents in 1850. They settled first at Whitehall, New York, where they remained one year, and then moved to the state of Maine, where Thomas first worked on the Boston & Maine Railroad. In 1853, he went to Pennsylvania, and thence to Washington County, Ohio, where the grandfather assisted in the first grading work on the Marietta & Cincinnati Railroad, between Marietta and Athens. Grandfather Cleary followed railroad work until about 1860, when he purchased a farm on which he spent the remainder of his days. He died in 1892, his wife having died about twelve years previously. Their children were as follows: Thomas; Michael; Catherine; James; John; Ellen; William; Margaret; Susan; Sarah; Mary; and one who died in infancy.

Thomas Cleary, the eldest of this large family, attended school in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, and later, in Washington County, Ohio. His first work was done in the stone quarries, as a laborer, and he afterward learned the mason trade, in combination with stone cutting, and was employed as a foreman by the old M. & C. R. R. Company for a period of four years. Later, he was employed in the grindstone business, but did not become an individual owner until 1899. He is now operating a very successful business at Moore's Junction, Ohio. On November 24, 1873, he married Catherine Conley, who was a native of Chillicothe, Ohio, and a family of nine children was born to them, namely: Thomas M.; John T.; William J.; Mabel A.; Mary J.; Ellen; Catherine; Edward; and Alice. All are living with the exception of Edward. Mr. Cleary supports the Democratic party. He has served as township trustee, and in the fall of 1901 was selected by his party as a candidate for County Commissioner. For a number of years he has served on the School Board and is a leading citizen of his locality. Fraternally, he is connected with the A. O. H.; K. of C.; and B. P. O. E. For four years, Thomas Cleary was a very efficient traveling salesman for the large wholesale grocery house of Bosworth, Wells & Company, of Marietta.

John T. Cleary attended the public schools of Constitution, Ohio, and his first work was done on a farm. Later, he entered the employ of the Constitution Stone Company, as a teamster, and three years afterward, on account of his reliability and efficient discharge of his duties, he was appointed assistant superintendent. He remained in this capacity until 1897, when he was made general superintendent of this important company. Although but 20 years of age, at that time, he had gained the confidence of the company to such an extent that he was placed in charge of the business of its three mills and five quarries, with at least 100 men under his supervision. This concern manufactures grindstones, and ships extensively to all parts of the United States. It supplies all the first-class tool houses, making a specialty of what are known as saw grit, file stones, knife stones and heavy tool stones. The company has a large capital invested, and its officers are: M. J. O'Connor, of Hartford, Connecticut, president; and Fergus C. O'Connor, secretary. The main office is located at Constitution, Ohio.

In political sentiment, Mr. Cleary is a Democrat. He belongs to the K. of C. and B. P. O. E. His career is a striking example of what may be accomplished by honesty, industry and energy.

THE OHIO DENTAL COMPANY, of which J. P. and T. A. Becker are proprietors, was established in Marietta, May 1, 1898, with office first in the First National Bank Building. The place of business was then changed to the Bellevue Hotel, and is at the present time well located in the Dime Savings Society Building. Dr. J. P. Becker has the management of the enterprise, and to him is due much of its success.

The Becker family has been one of prominence in this county for many years. George Becker came to this country from Germany in 1840, stopping for a short time in Cincinnati, Ohio, and then locating in Washington County, Ohio. He was a weaver and tailor by trade, and the family now has the scissors and eye-glasses used by him.

Peter Becker, son of George and father of J. P. and T. A. Becker, was born in Germany in 1828, and died in 1893. He was engaged in merchandising at Hills, Ohio, and owned a farm in that vicinity, which is still in the possession of members of the family. He was an extensive dealer in stock and produce, and shipped largely to Pittsburg. He was also interested in several of the first oil wells in the celebrated Cow Run field. In 1888, he was the Democratic candidate for county treasurer, and was defeated by only 119 votes, the county being Republican at that time by fully 600 votes. Peter Becker married Rhoda Whitney, who was born April 2, 1841, and is a daughter of Rev. John Whitney. Her father was born in 1804, and was a Baptist minister; his wife was Mrs. Hensel, of Pennsylvania. Mr. and Mrs. Becker became the parents of eight children, as follows: Eliza Rebecca; George Simeon; Thomas A.; Michael Augustus; Mary Catherine; Flora Nevada; John Peter; and Harriet, who was born August 3, 1883, and resides with her mother in Marietta.

Eliza Rebecca Becker, who was born March 27, 1860, is the wife of Dr. J. R. Spencer, of Cincinnati, Ohio, by whom she has a daughter, Mary.

George Simeon Becker was born March 12, 1862, and died July 13, 1893. He married Mary Wallbright, a daughter of John Wallbright, of Washington County, and they had one daughter, Clara.

Thomas A. Becker, one of the proprietors of the Ohio Dental Company, was born August 11, 1863, and during his business career, has been mainly engaged in oil production in the vicinity of Newport. He attended Marietta Academy under Professor Andrews, and was a member of the class of 1887. He married Margaret E. Caywood, a daughter of J. R. and Eliza Caywood, of Washington County, and they have two children: Anita Belle, born December 18, 1898; and Donald Caywood, born June 24, 1891. The family residence is at No. 226 Second street.

Michael Augustus Becker was born August 3, 1866, and is practicing dentistry in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, where he has a large and well established business. He was graduated from the Ohio Dental College of Cincinnati in 1888, with the degree of D. D. S. He married Anna Beiser, of Washington County, Ohio, and they have one child, Rhoda.

Mary Catherine Becker was born June 20, 1868, and is the wife of Capt. Gordon C. Greene, of the steamer "Greenwood," running between Charleston and Pittsburg. They have two children,—Wilkins Greene and Christopher.

Flora Nevada was born October 3, 1870, and married Ferdinand Haag, of Marietta, by whom she has two children, Baron and Naomi.

John Peter Becker was born January 12, 1875, and received his educational training in Sand Hill High School, under Professor H. E. Smith. In 1894, he entered Ohio Dental College, where he was graduated in 1897, having spent a part of his time as a demonstrator. He then went to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, where he acted as manager of the Albany Dentists for nearly a year, and then went to Scranton, Pennsylvania, in the same capacity. In 1898 he came to Marietta, and opened an office on May 1, of that year. The Ohio Dental Company, during its brief existence, has been a decided success, and its patronage is becoming larger every day. Dr. Becker is an enterprising man and is held in the highest esteem by all who know him. March 15, 1897, he was united in marriage with Floella Totton, who was born at Cynthiana, Kentucky, and is a daughter of Thomas W. and Ella (Slaughterback) Totton. Her father was a soldier in the Union army during the Civil War. Dr. Becker is a member of the Phi Alpha Chi, of Cincinnati College. Religiously he is a member of the Baptist church.

F. L. ALEXANDER, the efficient secretary of the M., C. & C. Railroad Company, is also president of the Sterling Brick Company on Seventh street, and of the Marietta Plaster & Fuel Company, of which he has been one of the most helpful promoters. He is a son of R. F. Alexander, and was born in Wood County, West Virginia, in 1869.

R. F. Alexander was a millwright by occupation, and for many years was manager of a sawmill, previous to engaging in agricultural pursuits. Later he became deeply interested in mercantile affairs, and is also serving as postmaster at Cutler, Washington County. He and the beloved mother of F. L. Alexander are still enjoying life as best they can. The subject of this sketch has one sister, Mrs. T. G. France, who conducts a successful general merchandise business in Cutler, in which he has a half interest.

Mr. Alexander first entered railroad service in 1887, when he became agent at Sharpsburg, for the Marietta, Columbus & Northern Railroad Company. This position was his for three years, and in 1890, he was transferred to service as clerk in the auditor's office in the Mills Building at Marietta, under Auditor G. W. Mulks. When the latter left in 1891 Mr. Alexander was given his place as auditor, while the name of the road was changed to the Toledo & Ohio Central Extension. The duties of auditor and cashier were faithfully attended to by him until November, 1900, at which time the road was sold to the M., C. & C. Railroad Company, and Mr. Alexander was shortly afterward appointed to his present lucrative position as secretary and auditor of the company. His duties are performed with promptness and accuracy, and he is most serviceable to the company. His business interests are extensive, of which he is president, and a description of one of the enterprises with which he is connected, the Sterling Brick Company, is given in another part of this volume.

Frances C. Irvine, daughter of Alexander Irvine, became the beloved wife of Mr. Alexander, and they have three children, namely: Harold V., Sarah Marjorie, and Kathryn Marie, aged ten years, six years and two years, respectively, all born in Marietta. Mrs. Alexander has one sister, Maggie Irvine, who is also a resident of Marietta. Her father was of Irish birth, and came to the United States, where he remained for a time in the South, but prior to the Civil War located at Decaturville, and was one of the early residents of Washington County.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander and their little family reside in their beautiful and comfortable home at No. 401 Second street. Although Mr. Alexander is a member of the Christian Church, he attends with the family, the services at the Presbyterian Church, that being Mrs. Alexander's preference. Politically he is a Republican, and in fraternal circles he is a K. of P., and a Mason of high degree. He is a member of Blue Lodge No. 390, at Harmar, of which he is also past master, having served as master in 1900 and 1901. He is a member of the Chapter, Council and Commandery at Marietta, and is a Shriner of Mad-din Temple, at Columbus, Ohio. The subject of this sketch is one of Marietta's most prominent and progressive citizens, and possesses the unlimited confidence not only of his employers, but likewise of all in the community.

JOHN W. ATHEY, ex-county recorder of Washington County, Ohio, and a prominent insurance dealer and oil operator of Marietta, with office in the Law Building, was born in Washington County, in 1844, and is a son of Solomon and Lucinda (Hill) Athey.

Walter Athey, grandfather of John W., came from the Valley of Virginia in 1808, and located on Duck Creek, as did James Hill, maternal grandfather of the subject of this sketch, who later removed to town. Solomon Athey was a native of Washington County, and was a carpenter and boat builder by trade, being in the employ of the Knox Company. He removed to Kansas in the spring of 1868, locating at Wamego, Pottawatomie County, where he died. His wife, who was a native of Washington County, also died in Kansas. They were the parents of seven daughters and two sons, all of whom reside in the vicinity of Topeka, Kansas, except a daughter, who is in Golden, Colorado; a son, James W., who is a railroad man, of Kansas City; and John W.

John W. Athey attended the public schools of Marietta and vicinity, and his first active business was as a contractor and builder. October 16, 1861, in the county recorder's office, he enlisted under Captain W. B. Mason, who was then recorder, in Company B, 77th Reg. Ohio Vol. Infantry. He served until February 26, 1866, when he received an honorable discharge, after a most thorough war experience. He was with Sherman at Shiloh, and later, participated in many important battles, including the siege of Corinth. After the war, he resumed his business as a contractor and builder, which he continued very successfully until 1893, when he was elected county recorder, on the Republican ticket. He held that office for six years and eight months, his term expiring September 1, 1900, and discharged his duties to the entire satisfaction of his constituents and every one concerned. He has since been engaged in the insurance business. He is also vice-president and director of the Washington County Savings, Loan and Building Association, one of the most successful institutions of the kind in the State. He is interested in the Long Run and Sand Hill oil fields. Prior to his election as recorder, he served ably as township trustee and member of the board of education of Marietta township. It was largely through his efforts and influence that the Sand Hill high school was brought to its present high standard.

Mr. Athey was united in marriage at Marietta with Lottie Chambers, and they have six children, as follows: Delbert R., a millwright and operator at Manilla, Iowa; David E., who is in the steam laundry business in Des Moines, Iowa; Harvey E., who is a millwright, in partnership with his brother, Delbert R., at Manilla, Iowa; Jessie F.; Gordon C.; and Nellie C. The family residence is at No. 503 Washington street. Mr. Athey is a member of Buell Post, G. A. R. Religiously, he is a member of the First Congregational Church.

ROBERT W. BESS, of Marietta, though scarcely past middle age, has for the last 37 years been a well-known person in the oil regions of his section. In 1865, before attaining his majority, he was initiated into the oil business in Macksburg, and he has since been engaged in the same line in various places and at different times.

R. W. Bess, his father, was for some time a resident of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, where he worked as a sheet and nail roller. Later, in 1855, he settled on a farm, which he purchased in Aurelius township, Washington County, Ohio, and turned his attention to agriculture. After 11 years of successful industry, he sold this place and moved to Belpre township. Finally, in 1884, he settled at Brilliant, Ohio, where he resided for the rest of his life, which ended there in 1895. Mr. Bess had eight sons and six daughters, as follows:

MRS. MILLIE M. AMOS.

JAMES L. AMOS.

Samuel, now a resident of Aurelius township; Robert W.; John, who lives at Brilliant, Ohio; William, who is in California; Benjamin, deceased; Benjamin, who resides in Athens County, Ohio; and Peter M., who lives in Belpre township; James, Cornelia and Hannah, deceased; Anna (Faulkner); Caroline (Reed); Jennie B.; and Katie V.

Robert W. Bess was born in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, in 1844. After two years' residence in Macksburg, where, as has been said, he was engaged in the oil business, he removed to Volcano, West Virginia. Here he made his home for about 17 years. Then, returning to Macksburg, he began operating in the oil fields of that section. Later, he fulfilled a two-years contract for a firm in Indiana, after which he went into the fishing and casing pulling business, in Macksburg. For four successful years, he carried on this industry. Then he resumed the oil-well drilling business at Corning, Ohio, in which he continued for six years. In 1866, Mr. Bess assisted in placing the first torpedo ever put in a well in Ohio. In the fall of 1900, he came to Marietta and purchased the Pascal Hoff farm, a well-cultivated 100-acre tract, valued at $7,500. After a few months, however, he erected a new residence at No. 104 New street, in West Marietta, where he now resides. T. S. Nicholson, his son-in-law, is now carrying on the farm. Mr. Bess, in partnership with George C. Best, W. L. Neubeck, and R. H. Bess, is at present successfully engaged in the oil business.

In Washington County, in 1867, Mr. Bess married Mary E. Davis, who was born at Little Hocking, and is a daughter of James and Attila (Barrows) Davis, of Belpre township. Of this union, there are two children, R. Harry and Attila. R. Harry, who was born in 1868, is now field manager of the oil company mentioned above. He married Emma Seidler, of Washington County, and they have one child, Helen Pauline. Attila, who was born in Wood County, West Virginia, in 1870, married T. S. Nicholson, of Guernsey County, Ohio, and has two children, Naomi Bess and Harry Grant.

Mr. Bess has ever evinced a keen interest in educational affairs, and while in West Virginia, served on the school board. Politically, he affiliates with Democrats, and fraternally, with the Knights of Pythias Lodge No. 420, Elba, Ohio. The Methodist Episcopal Church numbers him among its substantial members.

James Davis, father of Mrs. Bess, born in Vermont, in 1814, lost his father at an early age, and when six years old moved with his mother to Belpre township. She soon afterward married Squire Guthrie, and in a few years, died, leaving James an orphan. Through the kindness of his stepfather he was placed in the home of Judge Curtis, where he received careful rearing. He died at the age of 57 years, leaving a wife and 12 children, six of whom have settled in the Western state. Mrs. Davis is now in her eighty-first year.

JAMES L. AMOS, an influential farmer of Grandview township, is a man of wide experience in matters pertaining to agriculture, and is well known throughout Washington County, which has been his home since 1869. He was born in 1854, in Monroe County, Ohio, and spent his boyhood days there.

Robert Amos, his father, who was of English ancestry, was born in Harford County, Maryland, where he was reared. In 1835, he located in Monroe County, Ohio, and engaged in agricultural pursuits. During his youth, he drove the stage between Baltimore and Wheeling. He also drove on a stage route in North Carolina, and later drove from Marietta to Newport, Ohio, following the life of a stage driver for nine years.

Upon locating in Ohio, Robert Amos purchased an 80-acre farm in Benton township, Monroe County, and cultivated that tract for several years, but subsequently traded his farm for another, which he afterward sold. In 1869 he moved to Washington County, and purchased a tract containing 240 acres. This land was among the most valuable in Grandview township, and was located on the bank of the Ohio River. It formed the foundation of a splendid farm, additional purchases being made at intervals until at the time of his death, January 15, 1891, Robert Amos owned 500 acres, which then became the property of his heirs. He was united in marriage with Elizabeth Dye, a daughter of James Dye, a Virginian by birth, who followed farming in Monroe County, Ohio, where the birth of Elizabeth took place in 1822. She died August 12, 1892.

James L. Amos is one of 11 children. Those deceased are: Millie; Francis M.; Benjamin; George W.; and Corbin. Those living are: Minerva; Elam D.; James L.; Anna E. (Moore), a resident of Washington County; Martha E. (Locke), of St. Mary's, West Virginia; and Robert E., who resides at the home place. James L. Amos obtained his mental training in Monroe and Washington counties. After reaching manhood he engaged in the general merchandise business at Mill Creek, where he was located for three years. Since then he has devoted his time and attention to farming.

December 8, 1879, Mr. Amos married Millie P. Martin, who was born in New Matamoras in 1861, and is a daughter of Sylvester C. Martin, who is deceased. Mr. Martin was born in South Rygate, Vermont, March 21, 1824. He spent his boyhood in Vermont, and when a young man went to Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. He was a miller by trade. He moved from Pennsylvania to New Matamoras, Ohio, where he lived for several years. He afterward bought a farm in Monroe County, Ohio, and still later moved to Wirt County, West Virginia, where he died March 21, 1900. His wife, who was Hannah Curran, of Thomaston, Maine, bore him 12 children, as follows: Sylvanus; Charles S.; Mary (Holdren); Roberta (Alexander); Alberta and Sarah, deceased; Millie P.; Emma and Clara (Amos) deceased; Charles, Albert and Ollie Whitlatch. The father was a Methodist and the mother was an Episcopalian. On July 4, 1861, Mr. Martin sustained an accident during a celebration, by which he lost both arms. One was amputated below the elbow, and the other, a little further down. Strange to relate, he was able to do, with mechanical contrivances, all the ordinary farm work, and was never known to complain of his lot in life. Mrs. Martin died May 22, 1888, aged 59 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos had two children, of whom the elder, Charles E., died February 8, 1891. Ella A., the younger, is the only surviving child and in her many hopes are centered.

Mr. Amos, like his father, is a staunch Democrat. He has served as trustee of Grandview township for nine years, and as a member of the School Board for six years. Fraternally, he is a Master Mason and affiliates with Matamoras Lodge, No. 374, F. & A. M., of New Matamoras, Ohio.

FRANK GATES, city engineer of Marietta, his native place, was born in 1869, and is a son of E. D. and Margaret (Arnold) Gates. He is an excellent engineer and his ability in this line is recognized by all.

E. D. Gates, the father, was a native of Gallia County, Ohio, and when quite young removed with his parents to Washington County, where they located, near Marietta. When he made his start in life, he chose Marietta as his home, and there for many years, was profitably engaged in a general produce and commission business. His death took place in Chicago in 1891, and he left, besides his widow, three children to mourn for him. Their names are Mrs. W. W. Boyd, E. Frank and Mrs. James Bird. Mrs. Boyd is a resident of Painesville, Ohio. Her husband was formerly superintendent of the Marietta schools, and now holds the position of superintendent of the Painesville schools. They have one daughter, Marion, a native of Washington County. Mrs. James Bird is a resident of Marietta, and her husband is a musical instructor in the Marietta schools. Mr. Gates was a firm believer in the principles of the Republican party. His widow was born in Washington County, and is a daughter of Albert Arnold, an architect and builder, who is now over eighty years old and still resides, as does also Mrs. Gates, at Marietta.

The subject of this sketch graduated from the Marietta College in the class of 1889, having completed his course in civil engineering and immediately afterward began active work in his profession. He found his first employment in Mexico, where he was with the Mexican Northern Railway Company. After remaining there a short time, he returned to Marietta, where he soon afterward became city engineer and served two terms very successfully, from the date of his election in 1892 until 1896. He then made his way back to Mexico, where he was engaged as engineer on the Potosi & Rio Verde Railroad. There he remained a year, when he again returned to Marietta, and in the spring of 1898, was re-elected city engineer. In 1900, he was succeeded to this position by W. P. Mason, who held the office one term, for two years, and during that time, occupied his time in general surveying. In 1902, however, the citizens of Marietta, for the fourth time, elected him city engineer, and he is now fulfilling his duties to the best of his ability. His office is in the City building, on the corner of Third and Putnam streets.

Mr. Gates is unmarried, and makes his home in Marietta, where he takes great interest in his work, and is a public-spirited citizen. In religious attachment, he is a member of the Congregational Church. In a fraternal relation, he affiliates with the Knights of Pythias and the B. P. O. E.

also of Irish birth, and they had several children, among them, Thomas, the subject hereof; Mary (O'Lynn), of Warren township, Washington County; and J. J., also of Washington County, who died in 1898. In political affairs Philip McDermott always took a conspicuous part, having served his township for many years in the offices of treasurer, trustee, etc., and having been a resident of what was at that time Union township, ever since 1837, when he removed from Pennsylvania and took up the business of farming. His beloved wife departed this life in 1886, and two years later, he, too, was laid to rest.

Thomas McDermott resided on the home farm for many years. His mental training was derived from the schools of Marietta, and the instruction of Theodore Scott. In the spring of 1864 he presented himself for enlistment at Marietta, with the intention of serving his country, but was rejected on account of his health, which at that time was poor. Some years later he recuperated, and has since enjoyed the best of health. He was united in matrimony with Margaret Dyer, a daughter of P. J. Dyer, of Allegheny, Pennsylvania. Mrs. McDermott was born and reared in Washington County, and she and her husband have six children, as follows: Philip, who married, and lives in Marietta; John, of Marietta; Thomas; Charles; Ella (Jordan), of Watertown township; and Anna, fourteen years old, who is still at home. The family attend the Roman Catholic Church.

Mr. McDermott has taught school for nearly a third of a century. He resided until 1895 in Watertown township, and afterward removed to Marietta, where he taught in Marietta township for the four years following. The term lasted eight months, and in summer, his attention was fully occupied with farming. In 1900 he was elected to fill the office of Justice of the Peace of Marietta, and Marietta township, and is still fulfilling his duties with the directness and promptitude characteristic of all his actions. His office is in the St. Clair Building, where he may be found at any time. While his politics were formerly Democratic, he is now independent.

THOMAS McDERMOTT, a resident of Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, is a son of Philip and Anne (Clark) McDermott, and was born August 30, 1845, in Union (Watertown) township, Washington County, of Irish lineage.

Philip McDermott was a man of some prominence in his township, and during his long life of seventy-eight years, was ever active in serving his community. He was born in County Monaghan, Ireland, in 1815, but came to America when but a boy, and in 1837 located in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. There he was united in marriage with Anne Clark,

Mr. McDermott has the respect and esteem of all his acquaintances. He shapes his daily life with the aim of being of the utmost service to himself, his friends, his townspeople and his country.

EM. BOOTH is president of the Citizens' National Bank of Marietta, Ohio, which is one of the leading financial institutions of Southeastern Ohio. During the 13 years of business life of this institution it has developed into one of the most important commercial centers of the city.

Although the Citizens' National Bank is not the oldest institution of its kind in the city, its board of directors and its stockholders represent a large proportion of the wealth and solidity of Marietta's business circles.

To meet what seemed to be a public need in the way of banking facilities, the Citizens' National Bank was organized in 1889, and opened for business on December 9 of that year. Its first location was at 123 Putnam street, but in February, 1893, removal was made to the commodious quarters now occupied, on the corner of Putnam and Second streets. The capital of the bank was increased from $50,000 to $100,000, on June 1, 1895. The original officers of the bank were,—Harlow Chapin, president; Theodore F. Davis, vice-president; and E. M. Booth, cashier. Mr. Chapin died in September, 1891, and was succeeded in January, 1892, by A. T. Nye. D. B. Torpy being made vice-president. Mr. Nye died in January, 1899, and was succeeded, as president, by E. M. Booth. The present officers of the bank are as follows: E. M. Booth, president; D. B. Torpy, vice-president; T. M. Sheets, cashier; and C. L. Booth, assistant cashier. The names of the board of directors of the Citizens' National Bank, inspire confidence as representing the city's active and successful business men. They are,—D. B. Torpy, B. F. Strecker, Jacob Wittig, Frank Weber and E. M. Booth. Mr. Torpy, the vice-president, is identified with manufacturing interests in Marietta; T. M. Sheets has been connected with the bank since its organization; C. L. Booth has been in its service since 1890.

The statement of the condition of the Citizens' National Bank on July 20, 1902, was as follows:

Cash in bank.....	$ 61,267 72
Cash due from banks.....	147,637 04
Loans.....	300,241 74
U. S. bonds.....	51,700 00
Banking House.....	15,000 00
	$674,846 50
Capital stock.....	$100,000 00
Surplus and profits.....	45,077 88
Circulation.....	49,000 00
Deposits.....	480,768 62
	$674,846 50

The wise policy of President E. M. Booth has contributed very materially to the present splendid condition of this bank. His wise oversight, his careful and conservative investments and his thorough comprehension of banking, and of financial conditions, have gained for this institution the confidence of the public. It controls a large business not only in Marietta, but in the country tributary thereto, and it is regarded sound and reliable, its character being typical of those who so ably manage its important affairs.

EOL. J. H. RILEY, one of Marietta's most successful attorneys-at-law and an extensive real estate dealer, was born in that part of Virginia which has formed a portion of West Virginia since the establishment of the latter state. During his residence there he was admitted to the bar and engaged in successful practice. He was called upon to fill many offices of a public nature, among them being that of prosecuting attorney, and he was twice a member of the legislature. He was also a delegate to the Republican National Convention which nominated General Garfield for president. In 1881-1882, he was Grand Master of the A. F. & A. M., of West Virginia. In the fall of 1882 he moved to Marietta, where he has since continued in active practice. As a lawyer he has attained a high standing at the bar by his connection with many prominent cases, both in Ohio and West Virginia. He has a large practice in cases involving land titles, and has acted as counsel in many land cases before the Supreme Court of West Virginia.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES G. CAIN.

Col. Riley has been prominently identified with the affairs of Marietta. He is a member of the Board of Trade, and was for ten years a director of the Citizens' National Bank. He was chairman of the Republican Executive Committee of Washington County in 1891, and was a delegate to the National Convention which nominated General Harrison for the presidency. He was a member of the Ohio senate in 1898. The Colonel has a beautiful residence on the farm called "Orchard Place," near the city of Marietta, which is devoted to fruit growing.

JAMES G. CAIN, who is engaged in the nursery business and farming in Marietta township, Washington County, Ohio, was born January 21, 1838, in the town of Clinton, Pennsylvania, 18 miles from Pittsburg. His father was John Cain.

John Cain married Mary Swick, a daughter of John Swick, and they came to Marietta township in 1843, settling on the branch of Eight Mile. They came down the river from Pittsburg in a flatboat, bringing the family, farming implements and household goods, and also a team of horses valued at $500. John Cain and his wife raised 10 children, namely: Jane, who married Sinclair Baldwin, a cooper by trade, both of whom are deceased; William G., who was a farmer near Cedar Rapids, Iowa, until his death, October 25, 1896; Alexander, deceased; Mary Ann, who married John Woodward, of Williams County, Ohio; John, who was killed in Texas, in 1860; Sarah, who married Michael Dodson, a farmer, and died in Jackson County, West Virginia; Eliza, who married Henry Northrop, deceased; Nancy, who married Francis Peters, a steamboat man, living in Springfield, Missouri; James G., the subject of this sketch; and Martin S., of Toledo, Ohio, who is in a wholesale saddlery house in that city.

James G. Cain, whose name opens these lines, enlisted in Company B, 148th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., served 100 days, and was mustered out September 14, 1864. He has two farms: the home farm, which is located five miles southeast of Marietta, consists of 43 30-100 acres of fine farming land, and on it are four oil wells, which bring a royalty of $38 per month. The other farm of 18 acres, is on Sand Hill. Mr. Cain has lived in Marietta township since his childhood, and is very well known in the community, where he is admired for his energetic spirit, his thrift, and his upright, honest nature.

The subject of this sketch married Mary Ann Posey, a daughter of James Posey, and they have been blessed with five children, namely: Horatio B.; Leslie M.; Julius; William C.; and Lucy A. Horatio B., a gardner living at Sand Hill, married Kitty Kester, and has one child,—Letha. Leslie M. married Pearl Myers, and has two children,—David and Charles. Julius died April 14, 1900, aged 32 years. William C. is a Methodist minister, and is preaching 36 miles from Cleveland, Ohio. He married Fannie Kester, and has one child, Wilmer, aged eight years. Lucy A. is the wife of Roy McKibben, who is a gauger in the Jackson Ridge (Monroe County) oil fields. He has one child, James Wesley. In politics, Mr. Cain is a Republican. The family attend the Congregational Church. Mr. Cain is one of the most active and influential farmers of Marietta township, and is always ready to assist in any worthy enterprise undertaken by the citizens of Washington County.

CT. O'NEILL, of the firm of O'Neill & Ahlborn, attorneys-at-law, of Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, is a wide-awake young man and is rapidly identifying himself with many of the interests of the city. He is a native of Newport township, where he was born January 5, 1869, and is a son of William and Mary (Tompson) O'Neill.

William O'Neill was born June 24, 1829, in Ireland. He came to this country, in 1854, locating in Marietta, and shortly afterward removed to his farm in Newport township. December 11, 1841, he was joined in marriage with Mary Tompson, a daughter of A. D. and Elizabeth (Phillips) Tompson. Mrs. O'Neill's father was born at Harper's Ferry, West Virginia, in 1814, and there resided until 1855, the date of his removal to Ohio. There, he settled on his farm in Newport township, where he lived until his death, July 14, 1899. He was a Democrat in politics, and for many years was very active in political affairs. His wife was Elizabeth Phillips, before marriage, and she was born May 10, 1815, at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. For over four score years she has lived in Newport township, and is now one of the oldest residents in Lower Newport. Mrs. O'Neill had one child other than C. T., and her name was Lizzie. She was born in July, 1873, and for several years, was a school teacher in Washington County. Mrs. William O'Neill was born on the same farm as was her son, C. T., and since the death of her husband in 1901, has made her home with the subject of this sketch, at Marietta.

C. T. O'Neill spent the first eighteen years of his life on the farm; he then went to Marietta, and attended grammar school for two years. In 1890, he entered the Marietta township high school, and graduated the following year. Obtaining a teacher's certificate, he taught school in Defiance and Williams counties from 1891 until 1893, being in the neighborhood of Evansport most of the time. He decided to study law, and in 1893, entered the law department of the National Normal University, at Lebanon, Ohio, and took a two years' course. He passed his state examination soon afterward, and was admitted to the bar June 7, 1894. Mr. O'Neill then returned to Marietta and taught school in Washington County, also opening a law office. In November, 1896, he formed a partnership with Squire Ahlborn, which is still in existence. Their office was at first located in the Colonial Block, but in 1897 it was removed to its present location in the Union Block, on Front street.

Mr. O'Neill is yet unmarried, and resides with his mother at No. 333 Pike street. They favor the Baptist Church, and attend services regularly there. Politically he is a member of the Republican party, and socially, affiliates with the I. O. O. F. and the M. W. A., Lodge No. 4138. The subject of this sketch is commended for his ability as a lawyer, and has a bright future before him. He has won the esteem of all in this community by his uprightness and integrity. The business of the firm is growing daily, and has already extended far over the surrounding country.

WILLIAM W. MILLS is president of the First National Bank of Marietta, Ohio, a financial institution which well reflects the solid, substantial character of the capitalists of this section of the State. This bank was organized on November 14, 1863, the signers to the articles of association being leading business men of Marietta. The seven signers, Beman Gates, William F. Curtis, John Newton, J. B. Hovey, M. P. Wells, D. P. Bosworth and A. B. Battell, held all of the original stock of the bank, and constituted the first board of directors. On December 4, 1863, the new institution was authorized to commence business, by Hon. Hugh McCulloch, comptroller of the currency. On February 25, of the same year, the National Banking Act had become a law, and this institution was one of the first to organize under it, its number being 142. Since that date, nearly 6,000 National banks have been organized. The First National Bank of Marietta opened early in 1864, with Beman Gates as president; William F. Curtis, as cashier; and Dr. H. B. Shipman, as teller.

The first home of this great institution was in a small room in a building which then stood on the site of the Colonial Block. In January, 1867, the building at the corner of Front and Greene streets was purchased of D. C. Skinner, and after a complete remodeling, was occupied by the bank in November. Here it remained until May, 1901, when the business was transferred to temporary quarters in the Bellevue Hotel Block, the former building being torn down to give place to the present magnificent structure, on the same corner. This is modern in every respect, and in its interior appointments, is probably unexcelled by any like edifice in the Ohio Valley. The banking room proper, is a very large, well-lighted apartment, with marble floors, mahogany counters and furniture of substantial character and attractive design. A notable feature of this superb new bank building, is a massive, chrome, steel-lined vault, for money and securities, fitted with 221 safe deposit boxes, the metal, alone, in this impregnable vault weighing 25 tons. These safe deposit boxes are of special design and were made with a view of embodying every perfection possible. Two other fire-proof vaults for books and storage purposes are on the banking floor, while on other floors fire-proof vaults have been constructed for the use of the River Gas Company, the Buckeye and Eureka pipe line companies, and the Ohio River Bridge and Ferry Company, which occupy offices in this building. These vaults are entirely isolated from the walls or supporting foundations of the building, occupying a central space with a passageway all around them. The interior walls of the safe deposit vault are constructed of tempered, tested and impenetrable layers of chrome, iron, and Bessemer steel, while the entrance is protected by two folding, inner doors and by a massive outside door, weighing five tons, so perfectly balanced on ball bearings that it moves on its great crane-hinge, with ease. The inner doors are further protected by the attachment of an anti-dynamite device. The world-celebrated builders of these vaults assert that while they have constructed larger vaults, they have never built one more impregnable.

In immediate connection with the banking room, have been constructed a beautiful reception room for ladies, a customers' room, a private room for the president of the bank, a directors' room, coupon rooms, and a multitude of conveniences to facilitate business and also make it agreeable. The new home of the First National Bank is in keeping with the solid, substantial character of the institution.

The capital of the bank was increased from $50,000 to $100,000, in May, 1864, and to $150,000 in July, 1872. The surplus, for many years after the last increase of capital, stood at $30,000, but on November 1, 1900, it was increased out of the earnings, to $150,000, and on May 1, 1902, to $200,000, and the undivided profits now amount to $26,000 more. The following is a condensed statement of the condition of the bank, at the close of business April 30, 1902:

Resources.
Loans and discounts	$1,414,002 80

U. S. deposits	50,000 00—
	$1,707,002 54

The policy of the present management of the First National Bank is to build up a large surplus and undivided profit account, rather than to pay large dividends to its stockholders. During the nearly 40 years of its existence it has been a tower of strength in this community, and especially during its more recent years, it has been recognized not only as the leading financial institution in Southeastern Ohio, but as one of the strongest, most progressive, and at the same time, one of the most conservative banks in the whole Ohio Valley. Its business has grown immensely, until its individual deposits average more than $1,000,000.

The president of this reliable institution is William W. Mills, who succeeded Beman Gates, in June, 1887. The careful, conservative policy adopted by Mr. Mills has contributed in no small degree to its great prosperity, and to the public confidence which the bank has enjoyed since that time. His unerring judgment, together with his ability as a financier, has made his advice and direction of the greatest value, both to directors and stockholders. His financial acumen has largely enabled the bank to steer safely through great seasons of financial depression in the country, and its business has steadily increased, when many other concerns, with speculative tendencies, have gone down. The other officials of the bank have been connected with it for many years. Col. T. W. Moore has been vice-president since January, 1895; Joseph S. Gobel, cashier, has served continuously for 29 years; and George C. Best, assistant cashier, has been associated with it since 1869. The present efficient board of directors consists of William W. Mills, Col. T. W. Moore, Charles Penrose, W. D. Devol, and John Mills,—all substantial, reliable and prominent citizens of Marietta, whose names are synonyms for business stability.

CHARLES A. WARD, proprietor of the Wakefield Hotel, at Marietta, Ohio, is one of the successful young men of this city. Mr. Ward was born July 27, 1870, in Marietta, and is a son of Augustus T. and Kate L. (Wakefield) Ward.

Augustus T. Ward was born in Fearing township, Washington County, Ohio, and was a son of Robert Ward, who had come from England and engaged in farming in the above locality. Against his parents' wishes, at the outbreak of the Civil War, he ran away from home and became a member of Company G, 36th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., in the capacity of musician. He served until the close of hostilities, and left the army with a fine record as a soldier, and with the rank of captain. Mr. Ward was prominent in both political and business life in Marietta, after returning from the army. He served for three years as county recorder, and then entered into the gent's furnishing business, in which he was engaged until the time of his death, in 1874. On September 17, 1869, he married Kate L. Wakefield, of Lawrence County, Ohio, a daughter of Benjamin T. Wakefield. The Wakefields were of old colonial stock, the first of the family who came to America having landed in Boston in 1613. Mrs. Ward's grandfather was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. Two children were born to this marriage, namely: Charles Augustus; and Willia Wakefield, who married Charles L. Flanders of Marietta, in 1900.

In 1875 Mr. Ward married George P. Dye, of Marietta, who died July 26, 1888. Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Dye, namely: Alice, deceased, Florence B. and Grace L.

Charles A. Ward obtained his early mental training in the public schools of Marietta, took an academic course, and later graduated from Marietta College, with the class of 1890. In the fall of the same year, he went to West Superior, Wisconsin, where he was engaged for 18 months in the real estate and insurance business. He then purchased a half interest in the "Inland Ocean," a weekly newspaper published in that city, which he conducted until April, 1900, when other interests recalled him to Marietta. In 1894, during his residence in Wisconsin, he organized the Republican State Press Association, of which he was secretary for two years. During 1898 and 1899 he also served as secretary and acting chairman of the Douglas County (Wisconsin) Republican Committee.

After his return to Marietta Mr. Ward built the Hotel Wakefield,—thus designated in honor of his mother's ancestral name. This first-class hostelry has been in successful operation since December 1, 1900. Mr. Ward has other business interests, and is a member of the firm of Scott & Ward, newsdealers and tobacconists, of this city. He also served as secretary of the Introstile and Novelty Company, of Marietta. In the spring of 1902 he was elected as a member of the City Council from the Third Ward. On April 16, 1901, he was married to Annie K. Reppert, a daughter of Byron Reppert, of Marietta.

MILTON ELLENWOOD, one of the pioneer settlers of Dunham township, Washington County, was born in Belpre township on January 7, 1817, and is a son of Samuel and Pamela (Doty) Ellenwood. Samuel Ellenwood was born in the State of Maine, December 2, 1785, and his wife was born in Connecticut March 18, 1786. Both were consistent members of the Methodist Church, and in its precepts carefully reared their children, who were as follows: C. Melissa, born September 9, 1811; Sylvester, born July 11, 1813; Samuel S., born February 7, 1815; Milton, born January 7, 1817; Augustus, born October 12, 1818; Benjamin, born October 30, 1820; Harvey B., born August 7, 1822; Pamela A., born July 3, 1824; Cynthia, born March 26, 1826; and Persis, born October 3, 1829. In 1808, Samuel Ellenwood moved to Ohio and settled in Belpre township. He purchased of the Ohio Company a farm of 300 acres, which now belongs to his son, Milton Ellenwood. His life was one of industry and until within a few years of his death, which occurred at Harmar, now West Marietta, June 25, 1857, he continued his agricultural labors here. His wife died March 7, 1862, having passed through all the privations of pioneer

The only educational advantages enjoyed by the boys in the days of his youth in that locality were meager, but Milton Ellenwood attended every session in the old, log school-house when farm work did not claim his attention, and thus acquired a fair knowledge of the ordinary branches of study. When he started out to work, he was first engaged by a Mr. Bailey, at a salary of $13 per month. His parents had taught him the value of money, with other excellent lessons, and consequently he accumulated the means, in time, to enable him to purchase of Nahum Ward, in 1843, his present desirable farm. Mr. Ellenwood owns about 256 acres of very valuable land, which he has devoted to general farming and stock raising. He has seen this land develop from almost a wilderness into its present highly cultivated state, through his own energy and industry. Mr. Ellenwood has retired from active labors, and rents his property.

On September 23, 1840, Mr. Ellenwood was united in marriage with Sophronia Needham, of Warren township, Washington County, and the following children have been born to them: Rowena R.; M. Everett; Oscar N.; Pamela; Adelia; Ida; Estella; and Flora B. In religious faith, the subject of this sketch belongs to the Universalist Church, and is a leading supporter of its many benevolent enterprises. His political opinions are those of a Democrat. He is known as one of the substantial and reliable men of his township, and has been called upon to serve as trustee, supervisor and school director.

PATT B. CROSBY, agent for the Oil City Boiler Works, of Oil City, Pennsylvania, and also of the Star Drilling Machine Company, of Akron, Ohio, is a gentleman who has practically spent his life in the oil business, in different capacities, and who is an active worker in whatever he undertakes. He is a native of New York State, and has worked either in the oil fields or around the machinery of oil plants, since 1869. While in New York City, he was engaged with Day & Co., refiners, and in 1872, he went to Tidioute, where he was actively engaged in the oil exchange and brokerage business. His residence has been in many places since that time, the following cities being among the number: Titusville, Oil City, Parker's Landing; Petrolia, Millerstown, and Bradford. He returned to New York City for a brief time, then left for Pittsburg, thence to Sistersville, and in 1894 arrived in Marietta, where he has since lived.

Mr. Crosby's territory as agent extends over Western Virginia and Eastern and Southern Ohio, and he covers it in an able manner. He married Ella A. Baldwin, the daughter of a prominent attorney of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. They are devoted to the Episcopal Church, in their religious belief. Their home is at No. 222 Third street.

In fraternal relations Mr. Crosby is a member of the B. P. O. E. and St. John's Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Pittsburg.

THOMAS H. SUGDEN, a prominent citizen of Marietta, who is identified with the Buckeye Novelty Company and the Sterling Brick Works, was born in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, in 1845, and is a son of James and Elizabeth (Wostenholme) Sugden. Both parents were born in Sheffield, England, the father in 1812 and the mother in 1813.

James Sugden and his wife were married in 1834, and came to Pittsburg in 1842. George Wostenholme, a brother of Mrs. Sugden, was for many years manufacturer of the famous I. X. L. cutlery. Mr. Sugden was engaged in the manufacture of files for many years, and in the winter of 1853-1854, moved to Valley Mills, Virginia. Later, on account of war troubles, he went to Marietta, where he lived for some years, and then moved to Pittsburg, where he spent the remainder of his life. From 1866 until his death, he was engaged in the manufacture of hay-rake teeth. He died in June, 1892, and his wife died in February, of the same year. They were the parents of three sons and one daughter, as follows: William F., of Haysville, Pennsylvania; Mary Ann, deceased; Edward J., of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, who served in the 39th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf.; and Thomas H.

Thomas H. Sugden entered the 63rd Regiment, Ohio Vol. Inf., January 24, 1863, as a recruit, at first going into the telegraph service. When eighteen years old, he enlisted and served as a drummer until discharged in July, 1865. He was in many important engagements, and accompanied Sherman in his march to the Sea. Returning to Marietta, he engaged in the photographic business with Mr. Marshall, and some time later, returned to Pittsburg, where he was engaged in the manufacture of hay-rake teeth until 1886. He has since been a resident of Marietta, where he has been identified with many different enterprises. He established a gold and silver plating works, which, in the spring of 1901, was consolidated with the Buckeye Novelty Works, whose main product is a twine holder. This company was incorporated in May, 1901, with a capital stock of $50,000, and the following officers: W. H. Etter, president; J. A. Steadman, treasurer; F. A. Steadman, secretary; and Harry Moore, general manager. These officers and Mr. Sugden form the board of directors. Mr. Sugden owns the building at No. 224 Gilman Avenue, the two lower floors of which are occupied by the company, and the upper floor, by the Union Suit Factory. He is also a stockholder and director of the Sterling Brick Company, which was established, in 1899, by himself and the following gentlemen: Frank Morse; S. L. Alexander; William Morse; D. R. Ande; and C. W. Sugden. The first officers were: S. L. Alexander, president; D. R. Ande, vice-president; C. W. Sugden, secretary; T. H. Sugden, treasurer; and F. P. Morse, manager. Its present officers are: S. L. Alexander, president; Mr. Rude, vice-president and secretary; H. P. Bode, treasurer; and C. W. Sugden, manager. Thomas H. Sugden is one of the present board of directors. The company was capitalized at $30,000, and has a capacity of nearly thirty-thousand bricks per day.

The subject of this sketch married Clara W. Ward, of Pittsburg, and they have seven children, namely: Cora M., wife of Frank P. Morse; Charles W., manager of the Sterling Brick Company; Nelly L., who is attending Marietta College; Burt W.; Ralph C.; Clara B.; and Thomas H., Jr. Mr. Sugden is very prominent, fraternally, belonging to McCandless Lodge, No. 390, F. & A. M.; Duquesne Chapter, No. 193, R. A. M.; Pittsburg Commandery No. 1, K. T.; Gourgas Lodge of Perfection, 14 deg.; Pittsburgh Council, Princes of Jerusalem, 16 deg.; Pittsburgh Chapter, Rose Croix, 18 deg.; Pennsylvania Consistory, S. P. R. S., 32 deg. The lodges mentioned are all at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. Mr. Sugden is a member of the following lodges located at Marietta, Ohio; Marietta Council, No. 78, R. & S. M.; Marietta Chapter, No. 59, O. E. S.; P. G. Harmar Lodge, No. 115, I. O. O. F.; D. S. P. Harmar Circle No. 258, P. H. C.; Marietta Council, No. 32, U. C. T.; and C. B. Gates Post, No. 452, G. A. R. He is also a member of Syrian Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., of Columbus, Ohio; and Capital Council, No. 1, K. & L. of S., at Topeka, Kansas. Mr. Sugden has the English coat of arms of his ancestor, Sir Thomas Sugden. In religious attachment, he is a member of Harmar Congregational Church.

HARLES W. CLOGSTON, the genial proprietor of the 99-cent store, at Marietta, Ohio, is a capable business man and carries a complete assortment of the finest toys in the city. Mr. Clogston has had broad experience in the line of work in which he is engaged, having established his present business in 1878, at No. 131 Greene street, with W. T. Westgate as his partner. In 1883 the store was moved to 129 Greene street, which is its present location. The following year the firm lost $1,600 by the flood. On September 8, 1891, Mr. Westgate retired from the firm, having sold his interest to Mr. Clogston, who has conducted the business alone ever since. His large and commodious storeroom is 100 feet deep, and he has ample warerooms in the rear. His stock of toys is always large and finely assorted, and additions are made to it as necessity demands.

Mr. Clogston is a native of Marietta, his birth having taken place July 7, 1843. His parents were John Thomas and Mary Ann (Wood) Clogston, the former a native of Goffstown, New Hampshire, where his birth occurred in 1813. The paternal grandfather of the subject hereof died in New Hampshire, and in 1818 his father and grandmother removed to Marietta, Ohio, where the latter died many years afterward.

John Thomas Clogston was a carpenter by trade, and at one time served as city clerk, or recorder, as that official was then called. He was united in marriage with Mary Ann Wood, a daughter of Rev. James Wood, a Methodist minister. They reared seven children, viz.: Agnes; Rebecca; William; Maria; Mary; Charles W., the subject of this biography, and Frances. Of these children all are deceased except Charles W. and his sister, Mary, who is the wife of D. A. Dye, of Newport, Ohio. The beloved parents are also deceased, the father having laid down the burden of life in 1846, in early manhood. His widow survived him until 1895, and was eighty-five years old at the time of her death.

Mr. Clogston's education was derived from the schools of Marietta, where he finished a two-years high school course. He was but a youth when the Civil War broke out, but nevertheless, enlisted in Company B, 18th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., and served three months, until August, 1861, under the command of Captain Buell. In February, 1862, he re-enlisted as a member of the Pierpont Battery, and was in service for three years. Again he re-enlisted as a veteran, and served altogether 44 months, being a non-commissioned officer during his last term. The first battle in which he took part was at Cross Keys, but he afterward participated in twenty-two engagements, including Gettysburg and Chancellorsville, where he served in the artillery. He was on duty as night guard at a fort near Washington, D. C., when President Lincoln was assassinated. In the summer of 1865 he was mustered out and immediately returned to his home.

Mr. Clogston then entered upon the duties of clerk in the store of Mr. Westgate, and later served in the same capacity with Hovey, Imes & Company, wholesale grocers, for three years. During 1874, 1875 and 1876, he was in the auditor's office of the Cleveland & Marietta Railway Company, under General Warner, and shortly afterward entered into business in partnership with Mr. Westgate, as mentioned above.

Emily W. Brookover, who was born and reared in Washington County, and is a daughter of Thomas Brookover, became the wife of Mr. Clogston, and they reside at No. 710 Butler street, in a beautiful home, which was built in 1884. Her father was born and reared in Williamstown. Two children, Helene and Grace H., blessed this union. The former is a partner in the Carbon Studio, and the latter is a teacher in the Greene street schools. The family adhere to the doctrines of the Presbyterian Church, which they regularly attend.

In politics Mr. Clogston is a firm believer in the principles of the Republican party, and is an active partisan. Socially he affiliates with the G. A. R., being a charter member of the Buell Post. In 1867 he became a member of the I. O. O. F., in which he has since filled various chairs. His activity and willingness to do his part in everything in which he becomes interested, make him a valued member of these organizations.

NORMAN S. CADY, esteemed and honored by the people of Independence township, Washington County, Ohio, has lived a useful and exemplary life as a general farmer, and is now living in retirement and enjoying the fruits of his early years of toil. He is a son of Ira and Veronica (Sipple) Cady, and was born April 4, 1850.

Ira Cady was a native of New York State, where his birth occurred in December, 1810. At the early age of eight years he went to Washington County, Ohio, and was there engaged in farming all his life. He was united in matrimony with Veronica Sipple, a daughter of Martin Sipple, and they reared four children, as follows: Norman S.; George, who married Lovina Fulmer, and is now deceased; Ira H., who departed this life January 24, 1884; and Maggie, who became the worthy wife of John J. Dornbush, and now resides in Antioch, Monroe County, Ohio.

Norman S. Cady is the possessor of 237 acres of very fertile land, which he improves and cultivates in the most progressive manner. He was united in marriage with Robirda Rinard, who was born November 4, 1859, and is the daughter of Isaac Rinard. This ceremony took place in 1877, and their union resulted in six children, two of whom died in infancy. The names of the others are,—Emmett, who was united in marriage with Maud Edwards, and who is now residing on the home place; Lulu, deceased, who was the wife of Osborne Miller; Ethel, who is at home; and James Floyd.

In politics, Mr. Cady is an active worker in the interests of the Democratic party. In religious attachment he is a member of the Christian Church. He is a good, upright citizen, and has been prominent as a farmer in his township.

JW. WARD, M. D., a prominent physician in Independence township, Washington County, Ohio, was born January 3, 1856, and is a son of Jesse M. and Elizabeth (Kirkbride) Ward, well-known and esteemed citizens.

Jesse M. Ward and his estimable wife reared four children, as follows: Sarah J., wife of James Scott, who married Jacob Cline, deceased; Harriet, deceased, who was united in marriage with Isaiah Cline, who has likewise departed this life; Addie, the wife of Andrew Wilson, residing in Sistersville, West Virginia; and J. W.

Mrs. Ward was a daughter of Nathan Kirkbride, and proved a worthy helpmeet. Her husband was engaged quite successfully in farming for many years, and at one time, for five years, also conducted a hotel at New Matamoras, Ohio. His farm consisted of 298 acres of valuable land in Washington County,

PHILLIP BOYE.

Ohio, all of which he kept in the best condition. A Democrat in politics, he worked hard in the interests of his party. His religious association was with the United Brethren.

Dr. J. W. Ward had good educational advantages, and attended the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Baltimore, Maryland, from which he graduated. He has been practicing his profession since 1890, and has been pre-eminently successful. He owns a fine farm of 298 acres, on which is one oil well.

Matilda Snyder, a daughter of James and Margaret Snyder, became the wife of Dr. Ward. They had nine children, as follows: Mabel, who was united in matrimony with John W. Eddy, and resides in Independence township; Daisy E., the wife of L. S. Metz, of Mannington, West Virginia; John M., who is married to Martha Scott, of Archer's Fork, Ohio, and is prosperously engaged in business in East Liverpool, Ohio; Lorenzo; Otto; James Virgil, who departed this life March 23, 1898; Kathleen; Asa; and Mary.

The subject of this sketch is a Democrat in politics; in religious belief he is inclined to the doctrines of the M. E. Church. Socially, he affiliates with Masonic Lodge, No. 374, of New Matamoras, and is also a member of the J. O. U. A. M., of Wade, Ohio.

PHILLIP BOYE, one of the leading farmers and substantial citizens of Washington County, Ohio, owns a farm of 240 acres in Salem township. He is of German birth and ancestry, although he has been a resident of the United States since 1849. His life has been identified with the interests of Washington County since 1849, and he has been an important factor in the development of its industrial and agricultural resources.

The birth of Phillip Boye occurred in 1834, and with his parents he reached the United States on Christmas Day, 1849. Frederick W. Boye, his father, was born on July 9, 1795, and became a man of prominence in his native town in Germany, Sittensen, of which he was mayor; he was also controller of probates and state insurance, and operated a large farm. He came to the United States with some means and immediately became the owner of property and the operator of mills. His first location was at Whipple Run, in Fearing township, Washington County, Ohio. In 1851 he removed to Salem township, and erected a mill upon the site of the Mount Pisgah flouring mill, which is owned and operated by his son, Phillip. Mr. Boye was also engaged in farming, and prospered through a long life. He never became a citizen of the United States, on account of property interests in his native land, but he performed the duties of one, in upholding the laws and lending his influence to the support of all worthy enterprises. The mother of Phillip Boye, Christina (Bellman) Boye, was born in Germany in 1807, and died in Ohio in 1886. Both parents attended the Universalist Church. They had a family of seven children, as follows: Frederick W.; Phillip; Ernest, deceased; Theodore; August; Alma; and Bertha. Frederick W. is engaged in the wholesale grocery business in Cincinnati. Theodore, who died in Cincinnati, Ohio, enlisted in Marietta in 1862, in the 85th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., under Captain Moore, was at Harper's Ferry when Colonel Miles surrendered, was paroled, and after the war was secretary and treasurer of the Lane & Bodley Company, of Cincinnati. August, who enlisted in the 6th Reg., Ohio Vol. Cav., during the Civil War, is a farmer in Colorado. Alma resides with her brother, Phillip, and is a capable housekeeper. Bertha married David Thomas, and resides in Amelia, Clermont County, Ohio.

Mr. Boye has devoted the most of his life to farming and to managing and operating a custom feed and flour mill. His well cultivated and valuable farm is located one mile west of Salem. The Mount Pisgah mill is situated near Warner, and the latter village is a part of the Boye farm. In both lines of activity Mr. Boye has been successful, and is justly regarded as one of the substantial men of the county. In former days he was somewhat active as an Odd Fellow. His religious membership is with the Universalist Church. His standing among his fellow-citizens is one of honor, his integrity is unquestioned, and his business ability is everywhere recognized.

WILLIAM READER, most prominent and successful in his business as oil operator and producer, is a native of Erie County, New York, and was born April 15, 1848. He has traveled about through many places, seeking his fortune, and has always met with good success.

At East Aurora Mr. Reader attended school and spent most of his early life there, but when still a youth he left his home and unassisted, financially, by his parents has made progress in the world ever since. His first year away from home was spent in the lumber camps of Michigan, and when about twenty years old he went to Petroleum Center, Venango County, Pennsylvania, and later to Oil Creek. His work there was pumping or "engineering," as it was then known. Two years were spent in this way and then Mr. Reader removed to Mount Hope, on the Allegheny River, and there followed the same occupation until his removal to Petrolia, Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he took contracts for drilling wells for a number of years. In 1876 he began operating on his own account in the oil fields of Butler County but removed to the Bradford fields when they were first opened up. For five years he worked as a contractor and producer, and in 1882 spent the year in Allegany County, New York.

Mr. Reader then sold out his interest and went to Macksburg, Washington County, Ohio, where he did contracting for M. C. Guyder, James P. Lang and George McDonald. He drilled the "Lang" well, which occasioned a great rush and excitement, and the opening of the oil field at that place. Returning to Bradford, Pennsylvania, December 9, 1883, he remained there until March, 1884, and finally returned to Washington County and operated for himself from that time on, first at Elba, on the Archibald Dutton farm, and afterward at many other places. He continued to take contracts until about eight years ago, and has been a producer in the oil business since 1884, working in Washington County. He owns a 160-acre farm in that county and leases other farms. At present he controls 450 acres of land, and has, at this time, fifty-five producing wells. Most of this is individual property, but Mr. Reader has a partner, E. A. Myers, who controls a part of the leases. No matter what obstacles present themselves to Mr. Reader he overcomes them one and all, and for this reason, he has had the best of success in his business. He is interested in many other business enterprises and was president of the Ohio Valley Wagon Company and one of the prime movers in the building of its plant. He erected the buildings now occupied by that firm for their business, but has now sold his interest in it. He is a stockholder in the German National Bank, and likewise a stockholder and director in the new People's Banking & Trust Company.

Mr. Reader has been twice married. He chose for his first wife Violeta Henderson, of Franklin, Venango County, Pennsylvania, and the ceremony was performed at her home there. Two years later she died, leaving her husband, one daughter, Etta, who has since married C. A. Peary, and now has one child, —William Adelbert. She was a graduate of Marietta College in the class of 1884, and her husband is Mr. Reader's superintendent. Two other children, Harry and Charles by name, died in infancy. Mr. Reader was united in marriage some years later, with Hannah E. Bisher, the ceremony taking place at Bradford, Pennsylvania. She was reared in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania; they have no children.

The beautiful residence in which Mr. Reader and his wife make their home was built not very long ago, and is located at No. 127 Fifth street. Mr. Reader was reared and baptized in the Episcopal Church, but his wife and daughter are members of the Presbyterian Church. In politics he always votes for the Republican candidates. Fraternally he is a member of the A. O. U. W. of East Aurora, New York, and belongs to the Protective Home Circle, being a member of Lodge No. 253, of Marietta. He is a thirty-second-degree Mason, being a member of Blue Lodge No. 540, of Chicora, Pennsylvania; of Kittinging Chapter, No. 247; of Mt. Moriah Council, No. 2, of Pittsburg; of Marietta Commandery, No. 50; of Ohio Valley Consistory; and of Aladdin Temple.

RS. E. G. GILBERT, widow of the late Elbridge G. Gilbert, is a lady of many beautiful traits of character, who is well known in Marietta, Ohio. Her beloved husband died in March, 1899, and was one of the pioneer settlers of Washington County, in the region where the oil wells are now plentiful.

Mrs. Gilbert was the daughter of Daniel Davis, familiarly known as "Squire" Davis, of Lowell, Ohio, and Mary (Dutton) Davis, who was born in Virginia, and departed this life in 1882, eight years after her husband's demise, at the age of 92 years. The father of "Squire" Davis was a native of Massachusetts, and the latter came to Washington County with his parents while still a boy. He and his wife, who was Mary Dutton before her marriage, had the following children: Mrs. Gilbert; Mrs. Sarah (McHugh), residing in Marietta; Daniel, of Lawrence township; George, of Lowell; Joseph; Olive; Dudley; Marvel; Sylvester; Annie; and an infant, unnamed. The first four only are living.

In 1865, during the spring of the year, Mr. Gilbert was united in marriage with the subject of this sketch at Macksburg, Ohio. Mr. Gilbert was born in 1828, in Worcester County, Massachusetts, and prior to the Civil War went to Ohio, and settled in Washington County. In 1867 he and his beloved wife removed to Cow Run, and the family home was at that place until his death, in 1899. After this bereavement Mrs. Gilbert moved to Marietta, and is now living at No. 616 4th street. Mr. Gilbert was an eminent man of his county, and ever alert in his business affairs. He served as superintendent for the Burden Company for twenty or twenty-five years, in Cow Run, where the oil wells were operated, and always gave the greatest satisfaction to his employers. In politics he was a staunch Republican. He and his worthy wife had three children, as follows: Juna, Lora, and Ethel. Juna Gilbert died March 21, 1902. She was the wife of F. W. Bliss, of Massachusetts, and left one child, Warriner. Lora Gilbert married C. V. Dye, D. D. S., of Marietta, and they have one child, Frances. Ethel is now Mrs. G. W. Gray and has one daughter, Mildred, the family also being residents of Marietta.

Mrs. Gilbert is now an honored resident of Marietta, and is living in peace and contentment after her well-spent life, having earned the rest that is now her due.

ENTER C. DAVIS, prominent as an oil operator, and general manager and treasurer of the Ohio & California Refining Oil Company, has his headquarters at New York and his office at Marietta, Washington County, Ohio. He sustains a very important relation to this business and his services are essential to the company. He is a son of Dudley Davis, and grandson of Daniel Davis, who was a very early settler in Washington County.

Dudley Davis was also born in Washington County, and with his father and brothers, was largely interested in the early oil development. In 1861, he enlisted to fight for the Union and when the war was over he was an invalid, and died soon after returning home.

The subject of this sketch was born at Lowell, Washington County, in 1860, and there spent the early part of his life, and attended the High School. Beginning at the age of sixteen years, he spent three years in the drug store of C. R. Buchanan, who is still in business in Marietta. He became a registered pharmacist and followed that business in several states. He worked in Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, etc., and went to Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, in 1886. There he received some assistance from a friend, and engaged quite extensively in the drug business, owning at one time about five stores in different cities and towns.

When the oil fields of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio were opened up, and wells were drilled, the subject of this sketch, like many others, soon found himself interested in this industry. His first operations were in the McDonald field, but since then he has operated in all the above named states, as well as along the Kern River, in California, and now has several large contracts for drilling. The company in which he is interested owns thirty-eight wells, in Wood County, West Virginia, and controls 52,000 acres of land, altogether. Besides the Ohio & California Refining Oil Company, Mr. Davis is connected with several others, either as stockholder, officer or member. At one time he owned a half interest in the Bellevue Hotel, but sold it and removed from Pittsburg to Marietta in the fall of 1897.

While residing in Pittsburg, Mr. Davis was united in marriage with Miss Kaylor, a daughter of J. J. Kaylor, deceased. He has two children.—Dexter C., Jr., aged eleven years, and Ida M., aged thirteen years. They live in a handsome residence at No. 309 Putnam street.

It may be seen from the above that Mr. Davis is a very industrious gentleman, who realizes a good income from his business, and who fully and carefully reflects before attempting any new venture.

WILLIAM C. OLDS, who died August 21, 1887, was for thirty years a prominent railroad contractor. He was especially well known in the Ohio Valley, where he spent a great part of his life. His family now live at Marietta, in the fine residence recently erected at No. 125 Seventh street.

Mr. Olds was the son of Ezekiel and Roxanna (Wilcox) Olds, residents of Illinois. Born in Conneaut, Ohio, he there grew to manhood. Though scarcely 20 years old when the Civil War broke out, so zealous was he to help along the cause of the Union, that on August 6, 1862, he enlisted as a private in Company G, 105th Reg. Ohio Vol. Infantry. Ability and exemplary conduct secured him rapid promotion, and when he was mustered out at Cleveland, Ohio, at the end of the war, he was wearing the honors of a captain. During his service he fought in many important battles, and accompanied Sherman on the famous march to the sea. Fortunately he escaped without a wound, but his health was much impaired. After the war he attended a commercial school at Poughkeepsie, New York, from which he graduated, and for a number of years afterward, worked at bookkeeping, at which he was an expert. While engaged in this occupation at Corry, Pennsylvania, his health broke down, and he was obliged to go West to recuperate, taking his family with him. In 1881 he started out as a railroad contractor, and, meeting with success, continued as such until he died. He fulfilled many large contracts and employed a great force of men,—usually from 500 to 1,000,—besides large numbers of teams. Among the important lines which he assisted in building, was the Ohio River Railroad, the greater part of which he constructed.

October 1, 1867, Mr. Olds married Jessie Gould, daughter of Loren and Mary (Silverthorn) Gould. The Goulds were Quakers. Mr. and Mrs. Olds reared five children, namely: Clara, now a resident of Akron, Ohio, who married John B. Rieg, secretary of a large publishing company, and has one child, Alice; Loren Gould, now a farmer of Marietta township, who married Mahala McAllister, and has had one child, Rebecca, who is deceased; Mary, now a resident of Marietta township, who married Thomas Thorniley, and has two children —William and Phillin; William C., Jr., now a resident of Marietta, who married Irene Bressington, and has one child, Walter; and Robert E., 15 years old, who lives at home, and is attending school.

Mr. Olds was a man who always commanded the highest esteem from all who know him. Fraternally he affiliated with the Masons, and for many years, with the G. A. R. He and his family regularly attended the Congregational Church.

GOTTLIEB MEISTER, now in his 82nd year, is a retired citizen of Marietta, whose large and commodious residence stands at No. 745 Greene street. For many years he was one of the best known leather manufacturers in the Ohio Valley.

A well-directed ambition and an unlimited capacity for work are the traits which thus brought him to the front. These he inherited from sturdy German ancestors. His father, Godfrey Meister, was a well-to-do tanner of Wurtemberg, Germany. Late in life, in 1848, at the earnest request of Gottlieb, he took his wife and children to America, where they settled in Philadelphia, and in 1850 came to the Ohio Valley, where, in 1858, Godfrey Meister died. His wife survived him, dying in 1872, at the age of 78 years. Both are buried in Oak Grove cemetery at Marietta. Mr. and Mrs. Meister had five children, namely: Gottlieb; two daughters, now known as Mrs. Fredericka Roeser and Mrs. Mary Neubeck, who resides at Marietta; Christian, who died in 1859; and John, who came to Marietta in 1858, and now resides in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

Gottlieb Meister was born in Wurtemberg, Germany, April 9, 1821, and at an early age entered his father's tannery, where he became thoroughly acquainted with all branches of the business. After coming to America, he resided for some time in Cincinnati, Ohio, but in 1855, moved to Marietta, where he has since made his home. Here he engaged in the tannery business, first with Ebinger & Killin-ger, and later, with the late A. Roemer. About 1860 he dissolved his partnership and opened a tannery of his own, at the corner of Greene and Pike streets, where the Becker lumber buildings now stand. Mr. Meister started in on a small scale, and at first made a specialty of shoe leather. Subsequently, he undertook the manufacture of harness leather, and succeeded in making a very superior quality, which is still well remembered by Cincinnati dealers, his largest customers. Wise management enabled Mr. Meister to enlarge his business from year to year, and in 1873 he took in his five sons as partners. Under the firm name, "G. Meister & Sons," he carried on the most extensive leather manufacturing industry in the Ohio Valley, for many years. For a long time his business yielded an annual income of $50,000 or $60,000. Finally, in 1900, he closed out, selling the tannery to John H. Becker, who has since torn down the building.

In 1845 Mr. Meister married Elizabeth Stuhr, of Hanover, Germany, who died in 1891. Of this union, there are seven children, namely: Fred; Louis; George; William; Henry; Mary; and Anna. The sons are now engaged in different lines of business in Marietta. Mary, who lives at the Meister residence, married Capt. J. D. Otherbein, and they have five children—William, Henry C., Louisa, Mary and Amelia. Anna, who was born in Cincinnati, married Henry G. Ebinger, of Turner, Ebinger & Company's dry goods firm in Marietta.

Mr. Meister, a man of pronounced political views, adheres to the Democratic party. Deeply religious, he is one of the pillars and oldest members of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, of which for 12 years he was president.

RANK B. RANGER, of Marietta, whose pleasant residence stands at No. 308 Fifth street, is one of the foremost business men of the city. In years past he has occupied a leading place among the oil men of Washington County and of West Virginia, and he still has interests in oil fields. He has recently, however, turned his attention more especially to the real estate business.

Mr. Ranger's success has undoubtedly, been largely due to careful rearing. His father, Ephraim Ranger, a native of Connecticut, was for many years a prominent manufacturer of Marietta. When but four years old, he went with his parents to that place, where, for the most part, he made his home through life. In his youth he learned the trades of a millwright and a pattern-maker, which he followed with success for many years. Several mills in his section now stand as evidences of his skillful workmanship. Later in life he became a member of the Frank Foundry Company, with which he was associated for many years. This corporation was succeeded by the Leidecker Tool Company, which owns the largest manufacturing plant in Marietta. Mr. Ranger died in Marietta, in 1897, at the age of 84 years and five months. He married Mary A. Ault, who was born in Pennsylvania, and died in 1879. By this union there were two children.—Frank B.; and a daughter, born in Marietta, who married J. T. Towsley, and now resides in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Frank B. Ranger was born in Marietta, in 1862, and there grew to manhood. At an early age he learned telegraphy, and in 1887 secured a position with the Standard Oil Company, with which he worked as operator for some time. Later, he was assigned to field work, taking charge of the wells and attending to the running of the oil. He ran the first barrel of oil from the Sistersville field, in West Virginia. Encouraged by his successes, he left the Standard Oil Company, after a number of years, and in partnership with T. N. Barnsdale, leased large tracts of oil land and began operations of his own. Fortune favored the new enterprise, and shortly afterward, on the Whitaken farm, he struck the largest well in the vicinity, with a capacity of 80 barrels per hour. So valuable was it that the firm sold out for $100,000. The well has proved to be a remarkable producer, and is still earning for its purchasers a large premium on their investments. Within the last few years, Mr. Ranger has disposed of a large number of his wells and leases, and has invested largely in city property. At the corner of Wooster and Fifth streets, not long ago, he erected nine handsome modern flats, known as the Ranger flats, which he has since sold to good advantage, proving his investment to have been a wise one. He has made a success of all his business ventures, and now owns two elegant residences in Marietta, and a splendid 100-acre farm in Barlow township.

Mr. Ranger married Anna Nesperly, a daughter of Louis Nesperly, of Marietta, and they have two children,—Ruby and Ray. The subject of this sketch stands high, socially; he belongs to the local lodge of the B. P. O. E. Politically he is an influential Republican.

CHARLES HUTCHINS, the most extensive manufacturer of stogies in Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, learned the business of cigar-making and general tobacco manufacture, in McConnellsville, Ohio, in 1847, under the instruction of Lowry Cochran, with whom he remained until 1850. He worked as a journeyman from 1850 to 1852, and then went to Marietta, where he engaged in business with Gazley Paxton, under the firm style of Paxton & Hutchins, manufacturers of cigars. Their place of business was located on Ohio street, facing the "Island," and the firm continued for two or three years, and then dissolved partnership. Some years later the present business was established on Front street, and the present number, 123 Front street, has been their location since 1897. They have a large building, and occupy three floors. About twenty-five men and ten girls and women are there employed, and they manufacture from 100,000 to 125,000 cigars, weekly. They make stogies exclusively, and the Hutchins stogies, especially the "Missing Link," are justly famed far and wide. Mr. Hutchins has never solicited trade and his extensive business has been due to the superior quality of the goods.

The subject of this sketch is a son of William and Catherine (Heath) Hutchins, and was born near London, England, April 8, 1830. He came to the United States with his parents, in 1832, and they located at Zanesville, Ohio, upon their arrival in this country. William Hutchins followed the trade of a baker, and for some little time owned a shop at Zanesville, which was the first baker's shop in that city. Later he removed to McConnelsville, Morgan County, Ohio, where he lived until 1880, when his death took place in his ninetyeth year. Charles Hutchins' mother died when he was quite young, and the family were living in Zanesville. Of the three brothers and two sisters of the subject of this sketch, but two are now living,—William, the eldest child of the family, who is a wood-turner by trade, and a resident of Richmond, Indiana; and Mary (Cochran), who lives in Zanesville, Ohio.

The schools of Zanesville and McConnelsville were the sources of Mr. Hutchins' early mental training, and after leaving there, he immediately began to learn the business which has occupied the most of his time since then. Soon after leaving the employ of Lowry Cochran, he attended school for some months at Richmond, Indiana, then worked as a journeyman, and later engaged in business with Gazley Paxton, as before mentioned. Following his retirement from that business, he drove an omnibus for Vincent Payne, a venerable gentleman, now ninety-six years old. The Civil War then threatened our Union, and in the spring of 1861 Mr. Hutchins enlisted in the 100-day service, becoming a member of Company A, 87th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., under Captain David Moore. He re-enlisted in Company A, 148th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., under Colonel T. W. Moore, in the 90-day service, and at the expiration of that term was mustered out. During his service, he was taken prisoner by Stonewall Jackson at Harper's Ferry.

The lively business occupied Mr. Hutchins' attention for the first five years after his return home, but at the end of that time he again engaged in the cigar business, in which he has continued successfully up to the present time.

The subject of this sketch was joined in matrimony November 17, 1853, with Elizabeth T. Payne, a daughter of Vincent Payne, and a native of Marietta, where her birth took place November 17, 1835. They have two children, Lucy B. and Julia Helen. Lucy B. is now the wife of P. H. Glines, and her husband is associated with Mr. Hutchins in the cigar-making business. Julia Helen married J. C. McDonald, of Chicago, who is engaged with the Standard Oil Company. They have one daughter, Helen, born at Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Hutchins reside at their comfortable home at No. 410 Front street. They worship at the Congregational Church.

Politically, Mr. Hutchins does all he can for the benefit of the Republican party, and socially he is a member of the I. O. O. F., which he joined about thirty years ago. He is a busy man in all he undertakes, and has the respect and esteem of all the citizens of Marietta.

ATHAN EVANS RUSSEL, who is prominent among the citizens of Palmer township, is engaged in general farming and the raising of stock, although he is also interested in the oil fields of that section of the county. He was born December 2, 1830, in Goshen township, Belmont County, Ohio, and his parents were William and Nancy (Phillip) Russel.

William Russel was a son of John Russel, who was of English descent, and spent his life in Loudoun County, Virginia. William Russel was reared and schooled in that county, and at his majority, married Nancy Phillip, a daughter of Fielding Phillip.

Nathan Evans Russel grew to manhood's estate and upon the completion of his scholastic training, decided to follow the fortunes of a farmer. His starting place was the old Jenkins farm, where, in 1858, he began to till the soil. He continued on that farm for a number of years, but in 1875 sought a better place and purchased his present property consisting of 256 acres of land. He has never regretted this move, for his success has been great. The oil excitement in other places finally spread to this section of Washington County, and he soon began to take interest in the new field and now has seventeen wells on his farm. Although five of these are now dry holes, the other twelve are good producers, and their profit is large. By the use of good common sense and sagacious judgment, he has realized a large amount of gain from this industry, and his experience in general farming makes that, also, a source of profit.

The subject of this sketch has been twice married. His first union was on September 9, 1852, with Elohamia C. Leget, who twice bore him twins. Of these children, one of each pair died young, but the other grew to maturity. The second wife of Mr. Russel was Jane Breckenridge (Gard), the widow of Edward D. Gard, whom he married in 1858. She had one child, Mattie Gard, who was born May 17, 1856, and died April 17, 1881. The children of the second marriage were as follows: Arthur, who was born July 10, 1860, and died December 13, 1865; Lizzie, who was born November 29, 1863, and died August 9, 1866; Warren W., who was born in 1871, died August 8, 1873; and Carrie L., who was born November 13, 1866, was united in marriage with R. P. Leget, and lives in Palmer township.

In politics, Mr. Russel is a Republican, and has served commendably as school director and supervisor, giving satisfaction to all. The respect of all the citizens of his community is freely accorded to him, as his just desert.

HEZEKIAH FISHER, a progressive business man of Watertown, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Barlow township, this county, November 22, 1852, and is a son of Thomas and Mary (Cousins) Fisher.

Thomas Fisher was born in Lancashire, England, in 1811, and came to the United States in 1831, locating on the farm where Hezekiah was born. He first worked in Cincinnati, Ohio, and later on public works at Marietta, where he helped to build the dam in 1836. He finally settled in Barlow township, where he died in 1890. He was a member of the United Brethren Church, and in politics was a Republican. He married Mary Cousins, who was born near Manchester, England, and is now living at Fairview Heights at the advanced age of eighty-eight years. She is also a member of the United Brethren Church. Six children were born to Thomas Fisher and his wife, namely: Richard, a carpenter residing in Barlow township; John, deceased; Sarah E., who married Thomas J. Miller, of Fairview Heights, who was a soldier in the Union army, serving in the 148th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf.; Thomas J., who lives on the old homestead; Hezekiah; and Joseph, who owns and lives upon what is known as the Amos Prior farm, located near the old homestead.

Hezekiah Fisher is a prosperous merchant of Watertown, carrying a general line of goods. For some years he was engaged in farming and operating a sawmill. In 1898 he was one of a committee of five formed to build the Watertown and Vincent Telephone line which is now controlled by himself, together with H. W. Harvey and L. C. Hayes. In 1900 he formed the Marietta and Stockport Telephone Company, owned by himself, together with S. W. Harvey, L. C. Hayes, Joseph Fisher and Roscoe Wolcott. In 1898 the Watertown and Tunnel Telephone Company was also established, which is owned by Hezekiah Fisher, Roscoe Wolcott, Henry Mercer and Joseph Fisher. In 1901 he built the East Watertown Telephone line, which he owns and operates. All of these enterprises are in good, sound condition, and reflect credit on the promoters. Mr. Fisher also handles a general line of fertilizers, and has a large business in that line.

In 1874 Mr. Fisher was united in marriage with Lucy A. Seely, who was born in Watertown November 24, 1862, and is a daughter of John A. and Ianthie (Lafin) Seely. They have two sons,—Herman W., born August 1, 1893; and Emmett, born January 6, JOSEPH S. HUMPHREY.

1899. Fraternally the subject of this sketch is a member of Beverly Lodge, No. 37, A. F. & A. M. In politics he is a strong Republican.

LAURA A. HUMPHREY, one of the most esteemed residents of Watertown, Watertown township, Washington County, Ohio, owns a farm of 53 acres, on which she now lives and on which she was born in 1843. She is a daughter of Joseph S. and Elmina (Muchler) Humphrey, and a granddaughter of Seth and Olive (Smith) Humphrey. Joseph S., who was born in 1805, at Goshen, Connecticut, died in 1889.

Seth Humphrey was not content to spend his life in the East but started for the unsettled part of the country, and in 1816 arrived in Washington County, purchased the property now owned by his estimable granddaughter and lived there until his demise.

Joseph S. Humphrey, later came into possession of the property and when he was taken away by death he possessed about 300 acres of the most valuable land in his township. In politics, one could always count him among the workers for the advancement of the Republican party, and in his religious connection he was a devout member of the Presbyterian Church. His portrait accompanies this sketch.

Joseph S. Humphrey chose for his life companion a lady of many good qualities of mind and heart, Elmina Muchler, who was an honored resident of the town of Watertown until her death, in 1895. She was born in Watertown township in 1816, and she and her husband were blessed with three children, whose names are as follows: Laura A.; Elisha O. and Edward M. Elisha O. Humphrey now lives in Watertown township; in the Civil War he joined the 148th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf. (Ohio National Guard). Edward M. is also a resident of Watertown township. He was born in 1847, and married in 1876, to Aromantha Skipton, who was born in 1857. They have three children,—Mildred O., born in 1877; Joseph V., born in 1880, who is deceased; and Carl B., born in 1891. Mildred O. is the wife of William Sheldon, an attorney of Marietta.

The subject of this sketch is a devout member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. She is widely known for her many kind acts and thoughtful services to others, her unselfishness and generosity being among her best characteristics.

JAMES P. LAING is probably one of the most successful and widely known oil drillers in the Ohio Valley, and has for the past 18 years made his home at Marietta, his family now residing at No. 421 Second street.

Mr. Laing was born at Buffalo, New York, and here in early manhood, as a wholesale grocer, he first embarked upon his business career. In 1868, his attention was first drawn to the oil industry. In that year he took up his residence at Shamburgh, near Titusville, in the outskirts of the Pennsylvania oil region. Soon after this he moved to Petrolia, and hired out as manager for Kerr, Geider & Co. He also made short engagements with other companies, and remained there till about 1877. Later having moved to Bradford, he was employed by M. C. Geider. He then opened a hardware store, worked up a good patronage, and continued the business till 1883. In that year he moved to Macksburg, Ohio, and soon afterward, to Marietta, Ohio, where he has since resided. While in Macksburg, it was his good luck to drill the first paying oil well ever opened in that section. During the excitement coincident with the event, he opened over 100 wells in that vicinity. He has since been similarly engaged, drilling in wells at various places in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and West Virginia. He was interested in the second oil-producing well opened at Corning, Ohio, has driven over 80 wells in that field, and is still carrying on business there. At present he is starting operations at Athens, Ohio, with the best of prospects.

In early manhood, Mr. Laing married Nettie M. Allen, of Buffalo, and they have one daughter, who was born in that place. Politically, Mr. Laing is a Democrat. Fraternally, he is a member of the Masonic Lodge, of Buffalo, and of the Knights Templar.

T. J. Lockwood, a brother-in-law of Mr. Laing, is another well-known oil man. He, too, is a native of Buffalo, New York. In 1864 he went into the "upper oil country," where he began operations. Since then he has driven wells in nearly every oil field of Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, and West Virginia, having been prominently identified with several different companies. At present he is connected with a West Virginia firm, Lockwood & Currie. Fraternally he belongs to the United Commercial Travelers Association and the the RoYal Arcanum. Politically he affiliates with the Democratic party.

EORGE W. HAGERMAN, a prosperous farmer, located two and a quarter miles east of Beverly, where he owns valuable farming property, was born in Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, May 12, 1827, and is a son of William and Betsy (Greenman) Hagerman.

William Hagerman was born in Lycoming County, Pennsylvania. He came to Washington County in 1817, and located in Waterford township, where he followed farming. He died in 1870. He married Betsy Greenman, who was born in Waterford township and died at the age of fifty years. To them were born six children, as follows: Frank, of Water-town township, Washington County; Eliza, deceased; Aseneth, who married Sylvester Grubb, and lives at Marion, Ohio; Mary; George W.; and Hannah, who married James Leget.

George W. Hagerman enlisted from Waterford township, in Company I, 148th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., in 1864, and was mustered out September 16th, of the same year. He was in the battles of Bermuda Hundred and Deep Bottom. He was in the brush with Mosely's Cavalry at Harper's Ferry. He saw much hard fighting during his short period of service. After being mustered out he resumed his occupation as a farmer, which he has since followed, owning a fine farm of 100 acres near the city of Beverly.

In 1861 Mr. Hagerman married Eliza Wallace, who was born in Zanesville, Ohio, in 1844, and is a daughter of James Wallace, who was born in Ireland, and upon coming to this country, served in the United States Army, in the War with Mexico, during which he lost his life in battle. His wife was Theodosia Hull, who was born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and died in 1871, at the age of 46 years. They had two children,—Hannah, widow of Hiram Beebe, who was born in 1846, and lives in Nebraska; and Eliza, who married Mr. Hagerman. Mr. and Mrs. Hagerman have had seven children, as follows: Carrie, born in 1866, who married Roscoe Devol, of Adams township; Olive P., born October 15, 1869, who married Levi Cowell, of Marietta; Lizzie, born October 17, 1871, who is living on her farm in Waterford township; Lou, born September 2, 1873, who is a stenographer and lives in Pittsburg; Hubbell, born June 18, 1876, who died at the age of two years; Anna, born June 18, 1878, who is teaching school and resides in Washington County; and Nellie, born January 18, 1881, who lives at home.

ON. GEORGE IRISH, The death of George Irish in 1891, chronicled the passing away of one of the leading business men of Marietta. For over 20 years he prominently identified himself with the interests of this place, and the pleasant home at No. 333 Fourth street, which he erected in 1886, stands as an evidence of his thrift.

Mr. Irish was born at Tully, Onondaga County, New York. Ambitious for a western career, he cast his lot after reaching manhood, with the settlers of the newly formed State of Wisconsin. On a farm there, in 1848, he first took up his pioneer residence. Later he moved to Clinton, and for some time, resided, also, in Beloit, being mainly engaged in both these places in the general merchandise business. After four years' residence in Illinois, he finally, in 1871, settled in Marietta. Here he first tried his luck at one of the leading industries of the State—the oil business. Later he went into partnership with Gen. R. R. Dawes, and opened up an extensive trade in lumber and ties. So successful was he that he continued his connection with this business until he died.

Several years after moving to Wisconsin Mr. Irish married Martha E. Edmunds, of Senate, New York. To this union was born one child, Alice C., who is an ardent lover of art. Alice C. graduated from the Marietta schools and for two years attended the Academy of Design, at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. After the death of his first wife Mr. Irish formed a second union with Miss E. A. Gilbert, who was born at Rochester, New York, and in early life moved with her parents to Medina County, Ohio, and later to Norwalk, Ohio, where she secured her education, finishing at the Norwalk Seminary.

Mr. Irish was a staunch Republican throughout his life, and always evinced a keen interest in politics. While in Wisconsin he represented his district in the State Legislature, and displayed marked efficiency and much force of character.

citement to Cow Run, and spent eight years in the oil fields there. In 1873 he bought a farm on the Ohio River, three miles below Newport, upon which he resided for 21 years, removing to Marietta in the fall of 1895, where he now resides at No. 129 Gilman avenue. In the fall of 1856 he married Jane, a daughter of James and Jane Hoff, who was born in Lawrence township, Washington County, in 1836. Six children were born to this union, of whom those living are as follows: William, who is a partner in the Crescent Supply Company; Albert Austin, who is engaged in the oil business and resides near his father; and John Baxley, of the above named laundry company. The birth of J. B. Schnauffer occurred in Washington County, at Cow Run, on June 3, 1879.

The United States Steam Laundry was established in July, 1899, by J. B. and A. A. Schnauffer, the firm style being Schnauffer Bros. In February, 1900, J. N. Squier bought the interest of the junior partner, and at that time the present firm was formed, and the business has since been carried on under the name of the United States Steam Laundry. For one year the plant was located at No. 202 Gilman avenue, and was then removed to its present excellent situation on Maple street. The building occupied by this laundry is 90 by 22 feet in dimensions, with two floors in use, and employment is given to a force of from 18 to 20 skilled workmen, two wagons being required for delivery. Messrs. Schnauffer and Squier have equipped their establishment with modern machinery, and their patronage extends as far east as Oakland, Maryland, with a large trade along the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. They are progressive in their methods and were the first firm to introduce the steam mangle in Marietta. They were also the introducers of the convenient towel-racks or cabinets, supplied with toilet necessities into the court house, schools and other public places. Their business has developed into one of the larger industries of Marietta. Mr. Schnauffer is a Republican in politics, and is fraternally connected with the K. of P. and the B. P. O. E. He manages the business of the

IB. SCHNAUFFER AND J. N. SQUIER, proprietors and managers of the United States Steam Laundry, located at No. 118 Maple street, Marietta, are among the most progressive and successful business men of this city.

Mr. Schnauffer is of German ancestry, his grandfather, John Schnauffer having been born in Germany in 1791. According to the laws of his country he served a stipulated time in the German army, and obtained legal permission to emigrate to America. He located in Maryland, and there his son, William Frederick, the father of J. B., was born, July 15, 1831. In the boyhood of William F. the family removed to Washington County, Ohio. William F. was the eleventh child of his parents. Early in the "sixties" he went during the first oil explant, the power of which is supplied by a 25-horse power, high pressure steam engine, while Mr. Squier attends to the outside affairs.

J. M. Squier was born in 1872, at Chicago, Illinois, and lived in that city until he was ten years of age. In company with his parents, he traveled over a large portion of the West, but has been a resident of Marietta, practically, for the past 18 years. He enjoyed a two-years course at the academy, and spent one year at Marietta College. At the age of 17 years he began his business career, being connected for ten years with the Argand Refining Company in the oil business. After severing his relations with that concern, he entered upon his present partnership.

Mr. Squier is a member of Harmar Lodge, No. 390, A. F. & A. M., and the Marietta Club. His religious connection is with the Presbyterian Church.

PARLEY CHAPMAN MUGRAGE, proprietor of a livery establishment and horse exchange, located at No. 110 Second street, Marietta, has been a resident of this city since 1889.

Mr. Mugrage was born 64 years ago in Morgan (now Noble) County, Ohio, and is a son of Burnham and Mary (Chapman) Mugrage. Burnham Mugrage was born in 1814, near Bangor, Maine, and was a son of Simeon and Hannah (Davis) Mugrage. Simeon Mugrage was born in Scotland and died in 1845 at the age of 75 years. His wife was born in Maine, on the Penobscot River. In 1818 Simeon Mugrage, with his wife and son, Burnham, then four years old, moved to Ohio, making the long journey in an ox-cart, and settled at Dexter City, in Noble County. Burnham Mugrage died in 1878, and his widow, in 1897, at the age of 85 years. She was born in the same county, and was a daughter of Parley and Mary (Ogle) Chapman.

The subject of this biography is one of a family of 13 children, all of whom are still living, with the exception of two sisters and three brothers. Of those living, Dr. S. G. is professor of anatomy and surgery at Denver Medical College; James is a justice of the peace and a prominent citizen of Sheephorn, Eagle County, Colorado; S. S., is a resident of Newcomerstown, Ohio; B. M. is a resident of South Olive, Noble County, Ohio; F. N. is a resident of Dexter City, Ohio; B. H. is a farmer in Wayne County, Illinois; Mrs. Mary Weber lives in South Olive, Ohio; and Mrs. Margaret Cheshier resides in Flora, Clay County, Illinois.

The boyhood and youth of Mr. Mugrage were passed on the farm, and at the age of 20 years he enlisted in Company K, 30th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., and for three years did a faithful soldier's duty in the war for the Union. The three succeeding years he spent in the oil business in Noble County, Ohio, and then began railroading as foreman of a large force of men in the construction of the Marietta branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad. He was then given charge of a passenger and mixed train, as conductor, and continued as such until 1889, when he located in Marietta and opened up a livery and horse-exchange business. His efforts in this direction have been very satisfactory, his establishment securing the bulk of the business in his line in the city and vicinity.

Mr. Mugrage has been thrice married. His first wife was Elizabeth Davis, who died in 1874, leaving five children, as follows: Florilda A.; May; Robert L.; William S.; and John S. Florilda A. is the wife of E. T. Ogle, of Marietta. May is the wife of Professor William I. Bowers, of Clarksburg, West Virginia, who is connected with a business college there and formerly served in the same capacity in the Marietta Business College. Robert L. married Hattie Wells, of Caldwell, Ohio, and is foreman and manager of the livery establishment of J. W. Titley, of Marietta. William S., who is an oil well driller, resides unmarried in Marietta; and John S., who married Nellie McAllister, resides at Marietta, and is engaged in business with his father. The second wife of Mr. Mugrage was Charlotte B. Magee, a native of Lower Salem, Ohio. The present Mrs. Mugrage was Mrs. Marie Yeomans, a daughter of William H. Brown, of Washington County. The attractive and comfortable family home is located at No. 811 Front street, Marietta, where both Mr. Mugrage and his estimable wife delight to offer a generous hospitality to their many friends.

In 1867 Mr. Mugrage was made a member of the Masonic fraternity at Aurelius Lodge, in Macksburg, and is now connected with American Union Lodge, No. 1. He became a member of the G. A. R., at Dexter City, but since he located at Marietta, in 1889, he has been active in Buell Post, No. 78, of this city. For 30 years Mr. Mugrage has been connected with the Methodist Church, and he is a constant attendant at its services in Marietta, and a very liberal supporter of all religious enterprises.

The following is a copy of the marriage license of the maternal grandparents of Mr. Mugrage. It is highly valued as a bit of history, has been framed, and is now carefully preserved in the relic room of the Woman's Centennial Association, of Marietta, Ohio. The document reads:

"Marietta, Sept. 15, 1803.

"Washington County, ss:

"Whereas it hath been represented to me that Parley Chapman and Polly Ogle both of the town of Salem of sd. county, of legal age intend marriage. This is to permit any person legally authorized to solemnize the same to unite them in the bonds of matrimony.
(Signed)

"Edward W. Tupper, Clk."

CHARLES J. WOOD, a representative citizen and prominent farmer of Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Wood (now Pleasants) County, West Virginia, in 1835. He is a son of Joseph and Lavina (Cook) Wood.

Joseph Wood was born in Wood County, West Virginia, in 1808, and came to Washington County, Ohio, in 1855, locating in Waterford township. He was engaged in farming until his death, which occurred in 1899. He was a member and deacon of the Baptist Church. Politically he was originally a Whig and later a Republican, and at different times held minor offices. He married Lavina Cook, who was born in Dutchess County, New York, in 1812, and was a daughter of Job and Sarah Cook. Her father was a sailor when a young man and in later years, a blacksmith by trade. She was a member of the Baptist Church for many years prior to her death, in 1882. Eleven children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Wood, namely: Charles J., the subject of this biography; James M., a farmer in Illinois; Sarah E., wife of Benjamin F. Jackson, of Beverly; Theodore, deceased; Joseph N., of Sandusky, Ohio; one who died in infancy; William, deceased; Amanda, wife of Winfield Malster, of Waterford township; Mary Jane, wife of William Ethell, of Tippecanoe, Ohio; Herve D., who lives in California; and Frank, of Paris, Illinois.

Charles J. Wood received his schooling in his native county, and at an early age applied himself to farming, which has been his life vocation. He has 137 acres of valuable farm land along the Muskingum River, about one mile east of Waterford. A man of strong character, he is public spirited, and an admirable citizen. He served in the militia for a brief period during the Civil War.

In 1858 Mr. Wood was joined in marriage with Isabella Devol, who was born in Waterford in July, 1838, and is a daughter of George and Mary Ann (Boyzer) Devol. Her father was born in Adams township, Washington County, in 1800, and died in 1841, being drowned in the Muskingum River, near his home. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. His wife, Mary Ann Boyzer, was born in Virginia, in 1801, and died in 1887. She, too, was a member of the M. E. Church. They had the following children: Isaac, deceased; Mary E., who married George W. Townsend, of Waterford; George B., who was eleven years old when he met death by drowning, with his father; Rebecca S., deceased; and Isabella, wife of Mr. Wood. Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Wood had one child, Gertrude, who was born in November, 1859, and died in infancy. The subject of this sketch and his wife are members of the M. E. Church, of which Mr. Wood is serving as trustee. In politics he is a Republican.

LAUGHLIN DEVINE, a retired citizen of Marietta, now residing at the pleasant home erected in 1890 at No. 325 Franklin street, has been well known as a bridge builder and railroad man in his section for many years. He was also at one time a prominent agriculturist, having been trained in that occupation from his earliest years.

His father, James Devine, one of the pioneers of Washington County, Ohio, purchased a farm one mile north of Dunbar Station as early as 1830, where he resided for the rest of his life, and died there in 1877, at the age of 84 years. He married Mary McDonough, who was a faithful helpmeet for many years, likewise lived to the age of 84 years, and died in 1883. Of this union there were seven children. Of these, George, who was born in Pennsylvania, is now deceased, and Laughlin is mentioned below. John, a farmer, who died in January, 1902, was the first boy born on Shuttleworth's Run, Washington County, Ohio. Jane, who never married, died at the family homestead in 1901. Martha Matilda now owns a large share of the homestead, Elizabeth, who lives on the home farm, married a Mr. O'Conner (now deceased), who was for many years a conductor on the Marietta & Cincinnati Railroad, now the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern. William, a retired blacksmith and boiler-maker, having been employed in this line at Dayton for the Marietta & Cincinnati Company, is now living on the home farm. Mr. Devine was highly respected in his community, and acted as school director and road supervisor for some time.

Laughlin Devine, born in Northampton County, Pennsylvania, was but two years old when his parents moved to Fairfield township, Washington County, Ohio. Here he remained until he was 26 years years old, when he purchased a farm of his own near Qualey's Station, where he made his home until 1880. In that year he sold his farm, and four years later moved to Marietta. Thirty-five years ago, while living on the farm, he first became interested in railroading, and has since been continuously engaged in this line. He has built many railroad bridges in his section, has been bridge foreman on the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern road as far as Hampden, and has at different times acted as bridge inspector. For a number of years previous to his retirement in 1899 he acted as timber inspector and superintendent of bridges and track for the M., C. & C. R. R. Co. During his long experience in railroading he has had large forces of men almost constantly in his employ, but he has never had one injured,—a fact for which he may take great credit.

Mr. Devine was first married to a Miss Roe, by whom he had four children, namely: Esther J.; Ruth, deceased; James P.; and Mrs. Ella Taylor. His next wife was a Miss Crippen, of Athens County, Ohio, by whom he had one son, Owen G. After her death, which occurred in 1880, he married Mrs. Irvine, widow of the late John Irvine. Mr. Devine's active interest in politics has often brought him to the front in the public affairs of his place, and he has served his party as a candidate for various county and city offices. Socially he stands high, and while living near Stewart, belonged to the I. O. O. F., of Athens. He is a regular attendant of the Episcopal Church.

JOHAN V. ATHEY, M. D., a successful physician of Belpre, Ohio, was born in Wood County, West Virginia, March 26, 1872, and is a son of John W. and Chartley (Van Vlack) Athey, and grandson of Jonah Athey, who was a native of Virginia, and followed farming throughout life.

John W. Athey, the father, was born in Wood County, West Virginia, and was engaged in agricultural pursuits until the year 1890, when he located in Parkersburg and engaged in mercantile pursuits. He has since pursued that line of business in a most successful manner. He married Chartley Van Vlack, who was born in Lake County, Illinois, and they became the parents of seven children, of whom five are living at the present time.

Dr. John V. Athey attended the common schools of his native county, and then read medicine under Dr. Harry M. Campbell, of Parkersburg, West Virginia. In September, 1896, he entered the Eclectic Medical Institute, of Cincinnati, Ohio, from which he was graduated in May, 1899 with the degree of M. D. Immediately thereafter, he located in Belpre, where he has since enjoyed a fair patronage from the citizens of the community. Politically he is a Republican. He is a member of the M. E. Church, of Belpre, Ohio.

CHARLES MEISENHOLDER, residing at No. 101 Washington street, Marietta, is the senior member of the firm of Meisenhelder & Leonhart, proprietors of the marble and granite works at No. 147 Front street. He is one of the most expert marble-cutters in this section, which fact is due, undoubtedly, to his long experience and his excellent early training in this line.

John Meisenhelder, father of Charles, was a well-known marble-cutter of Marietta, for many years. He was born in Wurtemburg, Germany, and came to this country when a young man, settling at Marietta, where he has been a resident for the last 52 years he is now past 77 years old. Soon after coming here he opened a marble shop, which for many years, stood on Putnam street. It was he who cut the first block of marble ever brought into Marietta, and the work of which it forms a part is now standing in Mound Cemetery. He continued his business with much success until 1895, when he retired. His wife, Catherine Meisenhelder, a native of Wurtemburg, Germany, who is still living, is past 76 years of age. Seven children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Meisenhelder. Of these Edward served as Democratic mayor of Marietta in 1898 and 1899, and was for some time engaged in the marble business on Putnam street, and is now interested in the oil industry. Christina married C. C. Wagner, who is deceased.

Charles Meisenhelder was born in Marietta, in April, 1859, and there grew to manhood. From watching and assisting his father, he early became familiar with the marble business, and at the age of 18 years, began regular work in the shop. He has since followed this business steadily. At first he was associated with his father, but later took Mr. Leonhart as a partner and opened a shop of his own at No. 147 Front street, where he still carries on his business. The firm keeps a full stock of marble and granite, and most of the monuments in the cemetery, and by far the best of them have been turned out from its establishment.

Mr. Meisenhelder married Lulu Ross, a daughter of James Ross, who was a Lowell manufacturer, and died 25 years ago. This union resulted in one son,—John,—who is now 13 years old. Mr. Meisenhelder always manifested a keen interest in educational affairs, and he is now serving on the Board of Education. He is a thoroughly consistent Christian and is a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, on Fifth street.

CHARLES H. SCOTT, M. D., a well known physician and surgeon of Watertown, Watertown township, Washington County, Ohio, is also acting as medical examiner for prominent insurance companies of that place. Dr. Scott is a son of William and Rebecca (Havener) Scott, and was born in 1866, near Mill Grove, Morgan County, Ohio.

William Scott first saw the light of day in 1839, and was also a native of Morgan County. For some years in the early stages of his life he was a farmer. He is still living in Morgan County, a prominent and prosperous citizen. Politically he is a Republican, and has served in many of the township offices, to the satisfaction of all concerned. He was united in marriage with Rebecca Havener, whose birth occurred near Swifts, Washington County, and who is still living, at the age of 58 years. This worthy couple had three children, as follows: Albert H., a resident of Idaho, where he is successfully engaged in the raising of stock; Charles H., the subject of this sketch; and Annie M., whose death took place when she was but four years old.

During the Civil War Mr. Scott enlisted in the 17th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf. in the hundred-day service, and served until the expiration of his term. Both he and his wife are members of the Methodist Protestant Church.

Charles H. Scott received his early mental training in the country schools, afterward attended the McConnellsville High School, and still later matriculated at the Cincinnati Eclectic Medical School, in 1894, where he graduated in 1897. He immediately located at Watertown, Watertown township, and there has made his home ever since. He enjoys the best patronage and has the good will of the people in his community, who regard him as a well-read and skillful practitioner.

December 3, 1896, Mr. Scott was united in marriage with Lenore McVeigh, who is a native of Hooksburg, Morgan County, Ohio, where she was born in 1875, and is a daughter of James, Jr., and Lydia McVeigh. They have two children,—Russell T., born in April, 1898, and William L., who was born in December, 1900. Mrs. Scott is an active member of the Presbyterian Church, which the family attend.

The subject of this sketch is a member of the Ohio State Eclectic Association. In social circles he affiliates with the A. F. & A. M. lodge, at Beverly.

JOSIAH CALVERT, one of the substantial citizens of Belpre township, Washington County, Ohio, is a farmer by vocation. He was born July 19, 1828, and is a son of John and Edith (Beale) Calvert, and grandson of John and Esther (Jones) Calvert.

John Calvert, the grandfather, was a direct descendant of Lord Baltimore, of English renown, whose name was George Calvert. The former was born on the eastern shore of Maryland, and when he grew to manhood, moved to Center County, Pennsylvania, and farmed during all the succeeding years of his life. He was united in marriage with Esther Jones, who was born at sea, while her parents were coming from Wales to America. She and her husband had ten children, of whom the father of the subject of this sketch was one of the youngest.

The second John Calvert was a native of Center County, Pennsylvania, and went to Belmont County, Ohio, with his parents, who moved from Pennsylvania to Ohio when he was four years old. In 1842 he moved from Belmont County to Meigs County, Ohio, and still later settled in Athens County, of the same State, where he remained until his death in 1871.

He was united in marriage with Edith Beale, and they were the parents of sixteen children, fourteen of whom grew to maturity and married. They have an extraordinary record in this regard, but it is still more remarkable that nine of the sons were fighting in the Civil War at the same time, and all returned home safe and sound, except one, John W., who was killed at the Battle of Shiloh. The mother of these children was a native of Greene County, Pennsylvania, and lived to a good age.

Josiah Calvert enlisted in Company C, 17th Reg. Iowa Vol. Inf., on March 10, 1862, at Keokuk, Iowa, and was in the United States service three and one-half years, receiving an honorable discharge at Davenport, Iowa. He returned to Meigs County, Ohio, and applied himself to farming for a year. Then he moved to Illinois, where he remained five years. From Illinois he traveled west to Kansas, settled in the Republican River district, and carried on farming for the next twenty years. In 1893 he went to Porterfield, Ohio, where he purchased his present property, on which he has been diligently engaged in farming ever since.

Mr. Calvert has been married three times.

His first marriage, with Isabella Coe, resulted in three children, namely: Abram J., Ida M. and Charles C. His second marriage was with Ann DeCamp, and they had no children. His third wife was Margaret Coe Blake, the widow of Stephen Blake. They are devout members of the M. E. Church. In politics Mr. Calvert is a staunch Republican. The citizens of Belpre township honor and respect him for his worthy attributes as a citizen and farmer.

GEORGE A. HOWE, a representative farmer of Belpre township, Washington County, Ohio, whose farm is located on the outskirts of Belpre, was born on his present homestead October 1, 1836. He is a son of Rufus W. and Polly (Proctor) Howe, and grandson of Perley Howe, a native of Connecticut.

Perley Howe went to Ohio in the early stages of the history of Washington County, and settled in Marietta, where he taught school. His first position as teacher was in the Old Stockade, where he was known as Master Howe. In his day he was a very prominent man; his death took place in 1855 at the advanced age of eighty-six years, depriving Belpre of one of her best citizens. Persis Putnam, a daughter of Rufus Putnam, became his wife. She was one of four children, the others being,— Joseph, Perley, and Abigail. In religious belief he was a Presbyterian, and founded the first Presbyterian Church in Belpre, of which he was a deacon until his death. Politically he was an old line Whig.

The father of Rufus W. Howe was also born upon the farm now owned by his son, George A., which was the original Howe homestead. There he spent all of his life, engaged in agricultural pursuits, and died on July 24, 1865, aged sixty years. He married Polly Proctor, and reared the following children: Joseph; George A.; Persis P.; Rufus W. Politically he was an advocate of the principles of the Republican party and held the office of magistrate. His estimable wife departed this life August 9, 1865, at the age of fifty-nine years.

George A. Howe received what education was possible in common schools of the county. He has always been a farmer by occupation, with the exception of the period spent in the service of his country. At the breaking out of the war, he enlisted in Company H, 148th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., known as 100-day men, and was also a member of the state militia.

October 26, 1866, Mr. Howe led to the hymeneal altar, Charlotte A. Wyatt, a native of Amesville, Athens County, Ohio, who died, and left the following children: Charlotte W.; Mary E.; Persis P.; Blanche, and Jessie. The mother of these children was a devout member of the Presbyterian Church. After her demise, Mr. Howe, in the course of time, formed a second matrimonial alliance, this time with Mary S. Chapman, of College Hill, a suburb of Cincinnati, Ohio. She and her husband attend services at the Congregational Church. Politically, Mr. Howe is a member of the Republican party.

WILLIAM V. TORNER has been one of Washington County's most capable citizens, and is now prominently identified with the oil business as well as with agricultural pursuits, having been formerly engaged in the milling business. His birth occurred January 25, 1859, in Jacksonville, Lewis County, (West) Virginia, and his parents were Victor and Charlotte Gustavia (Weiss) Torner, both deceased.

Victor Torner was born in Stockholm, Sweden, March 29, 1815, and his wife first saw the light of day in Gothenburg, in 1824. They were united in marriage May 1, 1849, and reared the following children: Elvira, who was born in January, 1850, and married J. R. Dye, a native of Sistersville, (West) Virginia; J. S. Hugo, born January 6, 1853, who married Lucy J. Dye, and lives in Marietta, Ohio, where he is a prominent business man; and William V.

Victor Torner crossed the ocean from his home in Sweden in 1854, and landed safely in

New York harbor. From that place he journeyed west, and finally settled at Belpre, Ohio. Thence he moved to Cow Run and then to Newport, where he resided until his demise, December 29, 1891. His beloved wife had already laid down the burden of life, June 15, 1890. He was a Republican, of firm political opinions. His wife was a member of the Congregational Church, and was actively employed in church work. During his residence in Ohio Mr. Torner was mostly interested in the oil business.

The subject of this sketch was united in matrimony with Jennie A. Greene, a daughter of J. B. Greene; she was born September 7, 1863. Their union resulted in seven children, namely: J. V. H., born April 24, 1881; Florence M., whose birth took place May 10, 1886; Elsie L., the date of whose birth is March 10, 1889; Ruth C., born March 20, 1892; Lawrence G., born October 8, 1896; Norris G., born March 3, 1900; and W. Harley, born February 21, 1902.

Mr. Torner is a member of the Congregational Church and his wife is a Baptist. Previous to engaging in the flour mill business in Newport, Ohio, Mr. Torner was engaged in the oil business quite extensively. He still has six producing wells which occupy his attention, and his land consists of two farms—one containing 40 acres, and the other 34 acres—all cultivated in the best possible way. In politics he is a very earnest member of the Republican party and is active in public affairs. Fraternally he belongs to the Masonic fraternity, being a member of American Union Lodge, No. 1, F. & A. M., of Marietta, Ohio; and the Knights Templar, of the same place.

WILLIAM P. McKINNEY, for many years a prominent business man of Belpre, Ohio, is now living a retired life after years of the greatest activity. He comes of a prominent Pennsylvania family, and is one of nine children born to William and Mary W. (Miller) McKinney.

His grandfather, William McKinney, was born in Pennsylvania and served throughout the Revolutionary War. His wife was Frances Piatt, who saw General Washington and his command marching through Trenton, New Jersey. Many of the soldiers were without shoes, and these articles she supplied to some of them.

William McKinney, father of William P., was born in Pennsylvania. He served throughout the War of 1812, and then followed mercantile pursuits during the remainder of his life. He lived to reach a ripe old age, his death occurring in 1888. He married Mary W. Miller, a daughter of Robert Miller, an extensive farmer in Pennsylvania.

William P. McKinney was born in Wood County, Virginia (now West Virginia), December 24, 1821, and was reared on a farm until he was nine years of age, a greater part of his schooling being obtained during that time. When quite a youth he began to assist his father in his store, the latter being quite an extensive merchant. After working thus for several years, he was placed in charge of his father's store in Harrisville, Virginia, where he continued until 1855. He then embarked in a similar business for himself in Willow Island, West Virginia, and continued thus until he disposed of the store to engage in the oil business. As an oil producer he was eminently successful, and acquired considerable wealth. In 1865 he moved to Belpre and was engaged in the wharf-boat business for a period of fourteen years, his success being as great as that achieved in his former ventures. Upon disposing of that business he retired from active affairs and has since spent his time in Belpre in the quiet enjoyment of home life. He owns his home in Washington County, as well as property in the State of Florida, from which he derives a good revenue.

Mr. McKinney was united in marriage June 24, 1849, with Indiana H. Jackson, a daughter of William L. Jackson, of Clarksburg, Virginia (now West Virginia), and a second cousin of Gen. Thomas J. Jackson. Three children were born to them, namely: Benjamin J.; Josephine M.; and William, who died at the age of four years. Mr. McKinney and his family are devout member of the Presbyterian Church. His wife was a Methodist. She died May 29, 1865, and in compliance with her request was buried in Parkersburg, West Virginia. Fraternally the subject of this sketch is a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. His political views coincide with those of the Democratic party. He lives with his sister in a cozy residence on Main street, in Belpre, Ohio.

APT. JACKSON HARRISON, for many years one of the most prominent steamboat captains on the Ohio River, is now living a retired life at his home in Belpre, Ohio. He was born in Monroe County, Ohio, February 12, 1829, and is one of ten children born to Jesse and Phoebe (Mozney) Harrison. Captain Harrison is a grandson of Joseph Harrison, who was an extensive farmer.

Jesse Harrison was born in Norfolk, Virginia, December 20, 1794, and ran away from home to enlist in the American army during the war with England in 1812. He served throughout the war, and then returned home and engaged in farming. He married Phoebe Mozney, who was born in January, 1800, and was a daughter of John Mozney, who was of French birth.

Capt. Jackson Harrison attended the old log-school in his vicinity, and three months each winter attended pay school. He was reared on his father's farm until he reached the age of seventeen years, but, being ambitious to earn his own livelihood, ran away from home. He secured employment as a deck hand on a steamboat on the Ohio River, but was destined to remain in that capacity but a short time. His rise was rapid and he was promoted successively to be watchman, second mate, first mate and captain. In 1833 he became captain of his first boat, the steamer Viroqua, plying between Clarington and Wheeling, West Virginia. He served as captain of various boats until 1884, the year of the flood, when he retired from active business. He has lived in Belpre since 1867 and owns considerable valuable real estate in that city.

Captain Harrison was united in marriage with Louisa Shearer, a daughter of Joseph Shearer, of West Virginia. Eight children were born to them, of whom two survive,— Mary M., wife of E. W. Stone; and Dora, widow of George M. O'Neal; Mr. O'Neal died in January, 1897. Mrs. O'Neal resides in Belpre with her only child, Carroll H. Mrs. Harrison has been a member of the Episcopal Church for more than fifty years, and the Captain is a member of the same church. He cast his first vote for the Democratic ticket and has since voted that way. A brother of Captain Harrison, John W. Harrison, served in the Union army during the Civil War, and was killed in the Battle of Gettysburg. Captain and Mrs. Harrison are spending their declining years in a beautiful residence in Belpre, where they are surrounded by many friends of long standing.

OHN H. BRECKENRIDGE, a prominent farmer of Palmer township, Washington County, Ohio, has spent his entire life in that calling. He is a son of Robert and Mary P. (Murdock) Breckenridge, and grandson of John and Margaret Breckenridge, and his maternal grandfather was Elias Murdock, a sturdy citizen, known to many in this neighborhood.

Mr. Breckenridge was born September 26, 1861, in Palmer township. His early mental training was obtained in the public schools, and when his studies were over he applied himself to farming. He is now the possessor of 132 acres of valuable land and together with general farming, he raises stock advantageously. His home place is very comfortable and attractive, the buildings being well improved and neat, while his house is furnished with modern conveniences.

On March 30, 1887, Mr. Breckenridge married Agnes Cheadle, a daughter of Christopher Columbus Cheadle. She was born July 11, 1867, and is a woman of many amiable qualities. They were never blessed with any children. The religious sentiments of Mr. and Mrs. Breckenridge are broad and liberal, and their support is given to all denominations.

Politically Mr. Breckenridge is a Republican, and he has served in a number of township offices with satisfaction to all.

JOHAN DANA BROWNING, a successful liveryman of Belpre, Ohio, was born January 5, 1856, in Belpre, and is a son of Alexander H. and Augusta (Stone) Browning. His great-grandfather, William Browning, came from Massachusetts to Marietta in 1789, and later settled in Belpre, where he lived until his death, in 1823. He married Abigail Putnam, daughter of Gen. Rufus Putnam, and they were the parents of four children, of whom three grew to maturity, namely: William R., grandfather of John Dana; George; and Samuel M. William R. Browning married Sophia Barker, of Washington County, Ohio. Unto this union the following children were born, namely: William; Joseph; Abigail and Cynthia, both of whom died unmarried; Alexander H.; Sophia, who married Melvin H. Clark; and R. P.

Alexander H. Browning was born and reared in Belpre, where he carried on farming and merchandising for many years. He was the original owner of the land on which the village of Belpre is platted. He also operated a mill for some time. He died in April, 1873, and his wife survived him until October, 1884.

John Dana Browning was reared on his father's farm and obtained the greater part of his mental training in the common schools of Belpre township. He also attended Oberlin College. In early days he assisted his father on the farm, and afterward engaged in business in Belpre, where he continued for five years. He disposed of his stock and again farmed for three years, at the same time having the contract for carrying the mail to and from the depot. He fulfilled this contract for a period of six and a half years, and upon its expiration in 1899 engaged in the livery and feed stable business in Belpre. He has since continued in this line and enjoys a liberal patronage.

January 31, 1884, Mr. Browning was united in marriage with Mary F. Ryan, a daughter of James Ryan, of Parkersburg, Wst Virginia, by whom he has four children, namely: Laura N.; Julia M.; Frank R.; and Mary L. Religiously the family are Congregationalists. The subject of this sketch is a Republican in politics and fraternally he is a member of the Knights of Pythias, of which he is past chancellor.

SAMUEL E. WEAVER, superintendent of schools of Belpre, Ohio, was born on his father's farm near Sandyville, Ohio, August 15, 1870, and was the only child born to John D. and Mary (Cable) Weaver.

His grandfather, Frank Weaver, was a farmer by occupation and lived at Sandyville, Ohio, where John D. Weaver, father of Samuel E., was born. The latter is also an extensive farmer, and has always lived in the vicinity of his native town. He married Mary Cable, a daughter of Samuel Cable, the latter also being an agriculturist of some prominence.

Samuel E. Weaver was reared on his father's farm, and at an early day, attended the Eastern Ohio Normal School, at Pierce, Ohio. He completed a course of study at Mount Union College, and was finally graduated from the Ohio Normal University, at Ada, Ohio, in 1898, having completed three courses of study. His profession as an instructor then had its beginning at Belpre, where he is now serving as superintendent of schools. The choice of Mr. Weaver for this office proved a wise one, and met with universal approval, and Professor Weaver enjoys the confidence and hearty support of the public to a marked degree.

Mr. Weaver was united in marriage with Chloe McKinney, a daughter of Washington McKinney, of Stark County, Ohio, and they have three children, as follows: Owen K.; Guy F.; and Mary. Religiously the subject of this sketch and his wife are devout members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a Republican in politics, and fraternally is affiliated with the F. O. U. A. M. He has a very comfortable home on Main street, Belpre.

STEPHEN RAWSON, a successful farmer and esteemed citizen of Washington County, who owns and operates a large farm in Dunham township, was born in Pleasants County, (West) Virginia, August 31, 1844, and is a son of Stephen and Elizabeth (Guard) Rawson, both of whom were natives of the Old Dominion.

Stephen Rawson, the father, was reared on a Virginia farm and resided in that State until 1864, when he moved to Ohio and purchased a farm of 160 acres, from Neil McTaggart, who erected the residence upon it. It had originally been government land, and was formerly owned by Daniel Shaw and Douglas Putnam. A family of 12 children was born to Stephen and Elizabeth (Guard) Rawson, as follows: William; Louis, born July 26, 1829; Richard, born May 8, 1831; John, born June 10, 1833; Sarah, born July 23, 1835; Samuel, born July 12, 1837; David, born September 14, 1839; Elizabeth and Ann, twins, born April 28, 1842; Stephen, born August 31, 1844. Eliza, born July 31, 1847; and Mary Catherine, born October 6, 1849. The father of this family was born July 24, 1805, and died March 2, 1872; his wife was born January 19, 1805, and died July 1, 1884. They were attendants of the Baptist Church. In politics Mr. Rawson favored the Democratic party.

Stephen Rawson, the subject of this biography, attended the district schools of Virginia, in the neighborhood of his father's farm, and assisted in the farm management, which he also continued after the settlement of the family in Ohio. His father's will gave him the farm he now owns, and his own energy and industry have enabled him to add 112 acres to the original 160, making one of the large and valuable properties for which Washington County is noted. In connection with his son-in-law, Bannie Spencer, he carries on a general line of farming here, in connection with stock raising, a specialty being made of breeding fine cattle. Mr. Rawson also operates a feed mill which has a capacity of from 35 to 40 bushels an hour. This is well patronized by the neighboring farmers, to whom it is a great accommodation.

In 1867 Mr. Rawson was married to Mary S. Needham, a daughter of Jasper and Esther Marilla (Sage) Needham, who are residents of Ozark, Missouri, where Mr. Needham owns a farm of 160 acres. Mrs. Rawson was the eldest child in the following family born to her parents: Harlow E.; Marcus E.; Louis M.; Susan R. and Sophrona, deceased; Milton J.; John W.; Douglass A.; Stephen E.; Susan R.; Lucinda M.; and one that died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Rawson have one daughter, Elizabeth G., who is the wife of Bannie Spencer, and has had four children, namely: Ida L.; Harry E., deceased; Homer E. and Bertha L. Mr. and Mrs. Rawson are highly esteemed in their locality for their hospitality and their many acts of neighborly kindness. Mr. Rawson is an upright, reliable citizen, who looks well after his home and family and takes an intelligent interest in the well-being of his section of the township.

MRS. BETSEY J. THORNILEY, widow of the late Caleb S. Thorniley, is living on her farm of 110 acres, which is one of the best in Washington County, Ohio. She is a daughter of Edward and Delilah (Ryeson) Sheldon.

Edward Sheldon was born in one of the New England States, where he followed the trade of a carpenter and cabinet maker. He married Delilah Ryeson in Vinton County, Ohio, and they reared seven children, as follows: Thomas, a widower, who has seven children; Sarah, who married Henry Reckard, a farmer; Betsey J., the subject of this sketch; Hiram, a carpenter, living in Bradford, Pennsylvania; Lucina and Laura, deceased; and Eliza, who lives in Marietta, and is the widow of J. H. Talbot.

Caleb S. Thorniley was born on the old Thorniley homestead, and his death, which was sincerely mourned in the community, occurred in January, 1899. Mr. and Mrs. Thorniley were blessed with two children,—Ella, who married Charles Perkins, a farmer of Muskingum County, Ohio; and Bartlett S., who is living at Horton, West Virginia.

The Thorniley farm of 110 acres, owned by the subject hereof, contains several valuable oil wells, from which a good income is derived. Mrs. Thorniley has competent help to look after the place, and may well be proud of her home and the appearance which it presents. She is well known in Marietta township, and is a woman of many admirable traits of character. She is a member of the Baptist Church.

ABEL W. GLAZIER, one of Belpre's oldest and most highly respected citizens who is spending his declining years in retirement, was born November 13, 1823, in Amesville, Athens County, Ohio. He is a son of Lowring B. and Janette (Henry) Glazier, and grandson of Abel Glazier.

Abel Glazier was a native of New York State, where he also followed farming. His son, Lowring B., was born in 1795, in Washington County, New York, where he followed merchandising the better part of his life, and also farmed on a large scale for many years. He died July 10, 1859, and his wife died November 3, 1882. His wife, Janette Henry, was born in Pennsylvania August 15, 1795, and was a daughter of John Henry, who was also a farmer by occupation.

Abel W. Glazier attended the common schools of his native town, and was also a pupil in Amesville Seminary. After graduating from the latter institution, he clerked in a store for several years, and then gave his attention to farming. He began the manufacture of pumps in 1876, which he continued in a highly successful manner in Belpre until 1892, when he decided to retire and enjoy the fruits of his early toil. He sold out his business and has since lived in happy retirement, although he has looked after his large farming interests. In the year 1898 he suffered an attack of paralysis, which has partially disabled him. He is a man of prominence throughout this section, and he is held in the highest esteem by his fellow citizens.

Mr. Glazier was united in marriage with Mary W. Hyde, a daughter of William and Axie (Wyatt) Hyde. William Hyde was born in New York City, where he was a prosperous merchant. His wife, Axie Wyatt, was of old and aristocratic Pennsylvania stock. The subject of this sketch and his wife were married October 30, 1851, and to them were born seven children, three of whom died in infancy. Those living are as follows: Addie M., wife of William Coe, of Belpre; Herbert H., of Belpre; Lulu M., wife of Dr. H. J. Steward, of Logan, Ohio; and Bertha B., wife of Dr. Charles B. Ballard, formerly of Belpre, and now of Marietta. Mr. and Mrs. Glazier are members of the Congregational Church. Mr. Glazier has always voted the Republican ticket, and during 1886-1887, was a member of the State Senate from the Belpre district. He has also served on the school board, as land appraiser and as justice of the peace.

JOHN G. STEPHENSON, for many years one of the leading agriculturists of Marietta township, Washington County, Ohio, is now living in retirement at his home in Norwood. He was born on Sixth street in the city of Marietta January 23, 1826, and is a son of John Stephenson.

John Stephenson was born in Virginia, and was but six years of age when his father died. During the War of 1812, he was drafted into the army and in 1813 was mustered out at Columbus, Ohio. He walked from that city to Marietta, with which town he was so favorably impressed that he located there. He married Louisa Gray, a native of Marietta, and a daughter of Robert Gray, and they were the parents of the following children: John G.; Charles; Isabella, widow of Benjamin Cogswell, who died April 11, 1888; Russel J.; Henry, who is living in Kansas; Algernon, who lives in Marietta; Jewett, who lives in Kansas; and Anna, who died in Kansas about the year 1889.

John G. Stephenson was reared and schooled in the city of Marietta, after which he applied himself to farming. He met with great success at that occupation and became the owner of the entire section known as Norwood, which he finally disposed of for $25,000. He then retired from active business and bought a farm for his son near Columbus, Ohio, for which he paid $20,000. He is a man of high character, of strong personality and possesses many friends throughout this section of the county.

Mr. Stephenson was joined in marriage with Emeline M. Quinby, a daughter of Dr. Ephraim Quinby, whose parents were from England. Dr. Quinby was born and reared in Sharon, Pennsylvania, and moved to Marietta in 1823. He married Sarah (White) Guitteau, of Fearing township, Washington County, Ohio, and they had five children, as follows: Julia, who married George Hill, now deceased; Emeline M., the wife of our subject; George, deceased; Teresa, who is living in Kansas; and a child who died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Stephenson have a son, William E., who lives on a farm near Columbus. He married Rosa Coil and they have two children: John, born April 17, 1898; and Ernest, born November 17, 1900. Politically Mr. Stephenson is a Republican. He is a Methodist in religious belief.

WILLIAM J. WHARTON, senior partner of the firm of Wharton & Reed, wholesale and retail hardware merchants, of Belpre, Ohio, was born in Wood County, West Virginia, August 23, 1860, and is a son of Abner and Caroline (Cross) Wharton.

Abner Wharton was born in the State of Pennsylvania October 27, 1832, and when a young man moved to Wood County, West Virginia, and was there extensively engaged in farming until his death, which occurred in January, 1897. He married Caroline Cross, who was born in West Virginia October 27, 1840, and died in the fall of 1852.

William J. Wharton, after completing the course of study prescribed in the common schools, attended the Southern Ohio State Normal School. After graduation he began his career as a teacher, continuing thus for a period of five years. He then entered the employ of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company in the capacity of bill and rate clerk at Parkersburg, and remained with that company for several years. He then became identified with the Ohio River Railroad Company, in the auditor's office as revising rate clerk and continued with that company eight years. In the meantime he became interested in mercantile pursuits. To do justice to the latter he resigned his railroad position and with Mr. Reed purchased the present business, which they have since conducted most successfully. They own the building occupied by them, which consists of two stories and covers a lot 60 by 160 feet in dimensions. They are wholesale and retail dealers in general hardware, farm implements, fertilizers, vehicles, builders' supplies, guns, bicycles, cutlery, stoves and gas fixtures, and also manufacture tinware. They are agents for the Adriance Buckeye mowers, reapers and binders, and make a specialty of roofing and spouting. They are both enterprising and progressive business men, and have increased their business many times over. They carry a stock valued at $8,000, and the amount of their annual transactions exceeds $15,000. Mr. Wharton is also engaged in the production of oil, and owns two farms of 200 acres each, each one containing a large well. He has been a resident of Belpre since 1887, and has been engaged in his present business four years.

Mr. Wharton was married July 5, 1888, to Jessie Henderson, who departed this life in 1895, leaving two children.—Lloyd and M. Gertrude. He formed a second union June 29, 1898, wedding Carrie R. Reed, a daughter of Dr. George W. Reed, an eminent physician of Belpre, and later of Columbus, Ohio, where his death occurred. The subject of this sketch is a member of the First Baptist Church, and his wife belongs to the Congregational Church. He is a member of the Knights of Pythias, of which he is past chancellor. In political views he is a Democrat. When Belpre was first incorporated he was made city clerk, and has since served in that capacity.

RS. LUCY M. COLE, a highly esteemed resident of Marietta, is a direct descendant of one of the old and honored families of New England, which was connected with the early settlement of Dorchester, Massachusetts, and of Windsor, Connecticut. Mrs. Cole was born in West Marietta October 13, 1854, and is a daughter of Levi and Abigail (Kelly) Barber. Levi Barber was of the seventh generation in descent from the founder of the family in America.

The first generation of the Barber family in this country began with Thomas Barber, a native of Mildred Bridesrat, England, who, in March, 1635, at the age of 21 years, took passage from London in the good ship "Christian," and finally landed on the shores of New England. After taking the oath of allegiance, he resided among the early settlers at Dorchester, Massachusetts, and later joined the settlers at Windsor, Connecticut. He participated in the Pequot War, under Stoughton and, doubtless, was prominent in the affairs of the colony. He and his wife Jane, died in 1662. They had a family of six children.

In the second generation Samuel Barber, son of Thomas and Jane, was born in 1648, and first married either Mary Cousins or Mary Long, according to different records. His second wife was a daughter of John Drake. Two children were born of each marriage.

In the third generation Samuel Barber (2) son of Samuel, was born in 1673, and married Mercy, daughter of the first Thomas Holcomb. They had a family of four sons and two daughters. After the death of her husband, Mercy (Holcomb) Barber, with her six children, moved from Windsor, Connecticut, to West Shrewsbury, now Canton, Connecticut; this was in 1738, when she was 47 years old, 18 years younger than her husband. She died in 1787, aged 66 years.

In the fourth generation, Dr. Samuel Barber, son of Samuel (2), was born in 1713, and died in 1797. For his first wife he married Tryphena Humphrey, born in 1722, a daughter of Samuel Humphrey; she died in 1752. The second wife of Dr. Samuel Barber was Hannah Humphrey, daughter of Capt. Noah Humphrey, who died in 1819, aged 93 years. Seven children resulted from each marriage.

In the fifth generation David Barber, son of Dr. Samuel, was born in 1746, and died in 1783. He married Sarah Lawrence, who, after his death married William Dyer, of Hubbardston, Vermont. David and Sarah Lawrence Barber had six children, who were named as follows: David Humphrey, who died in 1860; Tryphena, who died in 1802; David, who died in 1814; Levi, who died in 1833; Timothy, who died in 1851; and Luther, who died in infancy, in 1783. The father of this family, after the Battle of Lexington, became a soldier in Massachusetts, and participated in the Battle of Bunker Hill.

In the sixth generation Levi Barber, son of David, was born October 16, 1777, and died April 23, 1833. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Capt. John Rouse, on February 15, 1803. She was born June 16, 1772, and died June 28, 1831. They had five children, namely: David; Elizabeth; Austin; Levi, who died in infancy; and Levi, again. The father of this family was known as Col. Levi Barber, and was a very distinguished citizen of Ohio. He was United States surveyor, aid to Gov. R. J. Meigs in the War of 1812, was clerk of the court of common pleas court of Washington County and the supreme court, receiver of public moneys at the United States land office at Marietta, and a member of Congress from the Marietta district from 1817 to 1819, and from 1821 to 1823. Col. Levi Barber was the grandfather of Mrs. Cole.

In the seventh generation of the Barber family Levi (2), son of Col. Levi Barber, was born at Marietta, Ohio, November 1, 1814, and died October 16, 1887. He married Abigail Kelly, who was born May 18, 1818, and died February 9, 1886. She was a daughter of Joseph and Cynthia (Flagg) Kelly. Four children were born to Levi and Abigail Barber, namely: Levi deceased; Henry, a resident of St. Louis, Missouri; David, deceased; and Lucy M., the subject of this biography. Until 1861 Levi Barber followed mercantile pursuits and steamboating on the river. In 1861, at the outbreak of the Civil War, he enlisted in the 36th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., going out as quartermaster, and later served as provost marshal until the close of the war. After his return he engaged in farming, near Carthage, Hancock County, Illinois, where he accumulated large means. He owned an extensive estate at the time of his death, which occurred at the home of his second son, Henry Barber. Col. Levi Barber also owned a large tract of land bordering on the site of old Fort Harmor, and this property he presented to his daughter, Mrs. Cole. With excellent business foresight Mrs. Cole has retained this land, which is very valuable, and upon it she has erected six residences, from which she enjoys an excellent income in rentals. Her handsome residence at No. 407 Fort street, was erected in 1829 by her grandfather, Hon. Levi Barber, and replaced a log house. Previously he planted two pear trees at either end of the log house, and these are still living and bearing fruit, and are doubtless the oldest in the city of Marietta.

Mrs. Lucy M. Cole was educated in the schools of her native city. In 1788 she was united in marriage with James F. Cole, who was born June 16, 1840, at Briscoe, West Virginia. He was a young man of unusual merit and bright promise, graduating in the class of 1871, at Marietta College. He died May 4, 1881, leaving his widow and two children, viz.: Seldon Barber, who was born May 11, 1879, and is connected with the railway mail service between Pittsburg, Canova and Cincinnati, Ohio; and Lucy James, who was born September 3, 1881. She was married December 27, 1900, to Edwin A. Fleming, of Alabama.

HENRY L. PUGH is engaged in farming, high grade stock and cattle raising, and oil producing. He is a representative of one of the old and honorable families of Virginia, which, for generations, has been established in Loudoun County, at the foot of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Mr. Pugh was born on April 19, 1839, on what is known as the old Hiram Pugh farm, on the west side of Wolf Creek, in what was then known as Roxbury township, but is now called Palmer township. He was a son of Benjamin, and a grandson of Benjamin Pugh. The last named had a family of seven children, namely: Benjamin; Hiel; Hiram; Harvey; Austin; William L.; and Joel.

The birth of Benjamin Pugh (2), occurred on the farm located to the east of the farm of Henry L., and there died on February 16, 1841, when Henry L. was but two years of age. His age was but 25 years, and his burial was in the old Gard cemetery, where a fitting monument to his memory is being prepared by his son. In February, 1837, he married Mary Johnson, who, after his death (in 1843), married his brother, Hiram Pugh. She still survives, in the enjoyment of excellent health, and in the possession of all of her mental faculties, despite her more than 83 years. She reads without glasses, and puts many younger members of her family to shame by her vigor and activity. Her home is with Henry L. Pugh, the only child of her first marriage. The children of the second marriage were as follows: Martha Isabel, who was born December 9, 1845, and died at the age of eight years; John Austin, who was born March 13, 1848, married Samantha Shields, a daughter of Levi Shields, and had two sons, Oliver Isaac and Arthur E.; Harvey, who was born August 8, 1850, married Josephine Byers, who, at his decease, left two sons—Everett G. and Perley H.; George, who was born February 22, 1852, married in Illinois, and had four children,—Bertha; Clarence; Nellie; and Jessie, who died at the age of two years; Thirsi, who was born October 5, 1854, married Timothy Blackimer, and has three children,—Annie, Lucy and Frank; and Lydia E., who was born June 10, 1858, married Charles B. Perry, and had a daughter, Lucy M., who died in October, 1881.

On November 29, 1861, Mr. Pugh enlisted at Stockport, Morgan County, Ohio, as a private, in Company F, 77th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., Colonel Hildebrand's regiment. He participated in all of the leading battles of the war and was promoted for gallantry on numerous occasions. He was mustered out of the service as captain, on March 8, 1865, after serving four years and nine months. Mr. Pugh had a fine record as a soldier, and he has sustained it as a citizen.

On February 6, 1864, the subject of this sketch was united in marriage with Catherine Blind, a daughter of John and Elizabeth (Isley) Blind, natives of Germany. Mrs. Pugh was born March 5, 1841, and became the beloved mother of the following children: John Henry; Benjamin M.; Lizzie Mary; Allie Katherine; Laura S.; and Charles Garfield. John Henry Pugh was born November 6, 1865, married Ella Armstrong and has the following children: Ella May; Alva Henry; Grace Mildred; Alice Gertrude; William McKinley; Jessie Blanche; and Bertha Edna. Benjamin M., born on February 28, 1867, married Dora Dougherty. Lizzie Mary, born on January 6, 1872, married Joseph J. Eldridge, and has one daughter, Marian Elizabeth. Allie Katherine, born on January 13, 1874, and Laura S., born on January 8, 1876, are teachers in the public schools. Charles Garfield, born on October 28, 1878, is at home.

Mr. Pugh's fine farm comprises 165 acres, and he is engaged in general farming and the breeding of fine Polled Angus cattle and Poland-China hogs. He has been prominent in Republican politics, stanchly supporting the principles of that party. Since 1866 he has served as a justice of the peace, and has his office at his farm. He has rendered 25 consecutive years of service as school director, and has been the promoter of much of the educational advancement of his locality. His religious connection is with the United Brethren Church, and he is a liberal contributor to its work.

Mr. Pugh is interested in 14 producing oil wells on his farm, from which he receives a royalty; he is also interested in outside leases. He has done much to develop this region, and has taken an active part in the leasing of oil lands, making his first leases in 1885. In 1890, with Armstrong Perry, he leased over 3,000 acres of oil land for Charles Duel, and in 1896, over 2,500 acres, for William Reader, of Marietta.

JOHAN F. MORGAN, passenger conductor on the Cleveland & Marietta Railway, running between Marietta and Valley Junction, has led a varied career, railroading, and has held his present position since 1886.

Mr. Morgan is a son of Abram and Nancy (Evans) Morgan, and was born in Clermont County, Ohio. He obtained his mental training in the country schools, and was reared upon his father's farm until he reached manhood. For a time, until 1864, he was identified with various business interests, but at last enlisted, when but twenty-two years old, in Company I, 38th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., serving one year, until he was mustered out of service in 1865.

After his return from the war, Mr. Morgan farmed for one year on the home farm and then began his railroad career in the transportation department of the Marietta & Cincinnati Railroad. From 1881 to 1883, he ran from Chillicothe, Ohio. He was next engaged on the Cincinnati Southern Railroad. After that he worked on the Flint & Pere Marquette Railway in Michigan, and then he went to Covington, Kentucky, where for a short time, he was employed by the Kentucky Central or the C. & O. Railroad Company. In 1886, he obtained employment as conductor on the Cleveland & Marietta road, and has been in that company's service until the present time. His has been a fortunate life for he has never sustained any injuries in all the years he has worked on railroads, thirty of which have been spent in the position of a conductor.

Mr. Morgan chose for his wife Helen M. Dewey, the daughter of Thomas Dewey, of Clermont County. He and his wife have had two daughters—Jessie M. and Lou Helen. Lou Helen was born in Michigan, and is now a student of Marietta College. Jessie M. was born in Chillicothe, Ohio, was a graduate of the high school in Marietta, and a Junior in the Marietta College at the time of her death. She died July 19, 1896, aged 20 years. The family reside at the beautiful new house recently erected by Mr. Morgan at No. 424 Fifth street. In religious attachment, Mrs. Morgan is a member of the Unitarian Church and her husband also attends services there.

Socially, Mr. Morgan is a member of Division No. 273, O. R. C., of Cambridge, Ohio, having served as chief conductor of the same. He is a prominent Mason, being a member of American Union Blue Lodge, Chapter, Council and Commandery, and is a Shriner in the Syrian Temple, of Cincinnati. Both Mr. and Mrs. Morgan are members of the O. E. S.

JOSEPH LEONARD RECKARD, a worthy and retired citizen of Marietta, Ohio, his native city, was born February 3, 1839. He is a son of Joseph L., Sr., and Delilah (Jennings) Reckard, and grandson of Calvin and Hulda (Leonard) Rickard, the family name being afterward changed to Reckard.

Joseph L. Reckard, Sr., the father, was a native of Ashfield, Connecticut, where he was born March 17, 1794. He was a blacksmith by trade, and after locating in Marietta, Ohio, opened the first livery establishment in that city, in connection with which he conducted a blacksmith shop. He continued to follow that line of work up to his death, in June 9, 1870, and his residence was on the corner of Green and Third streets. He was a devout Christian and spent half a century of his life in the service of the M. E. Church.

Joseph L. Reckard's mother, whose maiden name was Delilah Jennings, was born September 17, 1798, at Brownsville, Fayette County, Pennsylvania. She was a daughter of Jonathan and Elizabeth (Stevenson) Jennings, granddaughter of Zebulon Jennings, Jr., and great-grandfather of Zebulon Jennings, Sr. Mr. Reckard's parents were united in marriage May 2, 1816, at Marietta, Ohio, Stephen Lindsay officiating. The beloved mother passed to her final rest November 25, 1881. Eleven children were born to her and her husband. All are now deceased except three,—the subject of this sketch and two elder sisters. Margaret married Nathan Fawcett, now deceased, and resides in Marietta with her daughter, Mrs. Esther Hovey. Harriet Ellen married Henry M. Amlin, of Kansas City.

Joseph L. Reckard, the subject of this sketch was reared and schooled in his native place and upon reaching maturity, entered into the livery business with his father, which claimed his attention until his retirement from active business pursuits in 1900. During the ten years or more when he was associated with his father, the firm name was styled Reckard & Son. Upon the death of the father, Mr. Reckard carried on business alone until his son, Harry, was old enough to assist, when the original firm name was resumed. In the spring of 1900, Mr. Reckard sold the business, but still retains ownership of the barns.

On January 27, 1863, Mary Elizabeth Morse became the wife of Mr. Reckard, Rev. Edward Kirkham officiating at the ceremony. Mrs. Reckard was born in Marietta, April 14, 1839, and is a daughter of Justus and (Sarah) (Morrison) Morse. Two children blessed the union of Mr. and Mrs. Reckard. The eldest of these, Maggie Maria, was born December 5, 1864, and is now the wife of Arthur Grant Smith, who is a native of Syracuse, New York, but at the age of sixteen years went to Florida, which has been his home ever since. He is now a prominent wholesale and retail grocer, of Eustis, Florida, and they have two children,—Marie and Harold.

Harry Leonard, the youngest child, and only son, of Mr. and Mrs. Reckard, was born January 26, 1872. As before mentioned, he assisted his father in the livery business for a number of years. He was joined in marriage with Nancy Ellen King.

Mr. Reckard was an efficient and active member of the Board of Health for several years, and a member of the Board of Education 12 years. Socially, he is allied with the Knights of Pythias. His religious views are in accord with the Congregational denomination. He has a pleasant home at No. 802 Front street. In matters pertaining to politics, he is independent, frequently voting the Republican ticket, however.

L. B. THOMPSON, a prominent farmer and stockman of Washington County, and one of the leading citizens of Dunham township, was born in that township, on May 23, 1861, and is a son of Nathan K. and Mary (Needham) Thompson. Nathan K. Thompson was born in the state of New York, and his wife, in Washington County, Ohio.

The Thompson family has been identified with the interests of Washington County from the early days of its settlement, Caleb Thompson, the grandfather of L. B., having located here among the pioneers. In his native state he followed the trade of a shoemaker, but after coming to Ohio, he ran a ferry-boat on the Muskingum River, at Beverly, for a number of years. His death was caused by accident, in 1822. His wife was Electa Rasey, and they had three children,—Robert, Lydia and Nathan. Mrs. Thompson afterward married a Mr. Rich and had one daughter, Serena, who married John Brown. They moved to Illinois, where Mr. Brown still resides, near Pana.

Nathan K. Thompson, the father of L. B., was but seven years of age at the time of his father's location in Ohio, and his educational advantages were only those to be obtained in the primitive schools of the new settlement. From his father, he learned to be a shoemaker, and followed that trade for about 20 years, when he purchased the farm which is now occupied and operated by his son. According to deeds and old papers this land originally belonged to the Dodge family. It contains 206½ acres, and is so located as to be very valuable either as a stock farm, or for the production of all kinds of grain, vegetables and fruits. Here Mr. Thompson remained during his life, and took an active part in the development of Dunham township. His death occurred in 1897. His widow still survives, and resides with her son in the old home. She has been granted a long life, having been born on January 29, 1829, and has witnessed the wonderful changes which have taken place in this section of the county.

L. B. Thompson was the only child of his parents and obtained a good common-school education in the schools of Washington County. His early interests centered in agricultural pursuits, which he always followed, adopting modern methods and machinery, as occasion demanded. He has become widely known as a successful raiser and a breeder of fine horses, and is justly regarded as a representative of the agricultural community of his township. Although he is deeply interested in his farming operations, he has found time for other activities, and is identified with the Dunham and Constitution Telephone Company. It was mainly through his efforts that the rural mail delivery to the farmers of Dunham and Belpre townships became a fact, and in many ways he has proven himself a very useful citizen.

On January 4, 1890, Mr. Thompson married Dora Goddard, a daughter of Charles and Catherine (Pittenger) Goddard, both of whom were born in Jackson County, Ohio. Charles Goddard was born in 1847, in Jackson County, Ohio. His wife, Agnes Catherine Pittenger, was born in Jackson County in 1849. They were married March 17, 1869. They were the parents of five children, namely: Dora; Homer; Maud; Alva and Bessie. Charles Goddard was accidentally killed while taking a gun from a wagon, June 12, 1879. Mrs. Goddard is living in Wellston, Ohio. The following children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Thompson: Keth, deceased; Mary K.; Esther G.; and Gwendolyn. In political sentiment, Mr. Thompson adheres to the Democratic party; he has been a trustee of Dunham township for the past eight years. He has always been thoroughly in touch with all agricultural movements, and is an active member of the Grange.

EDWIN RUSSELL O'NEAL, a prominent farmer and dairyman, of Belpre, Ohio, was born in Belpre, on October 2, 1839. He is a son of Colbert and Sarah Dwight (Dana) O'Neal. The former was born in Culpeper County, Virginia, and the latter, in Newport township, Washington County, Ohio.

Colbert O'Neal was a cooper by trade, but followed farming during the greater part of his life. The farm which he purchased is now included in the thriving hamlet of Belpre, and is yearly becoming more valuable. He took an interest in the progress and development of his section, was ready to promote all worthy enterprises, and was one of the prominent men of the locality. Three children were born to him and his wife, namely: Foster, Amanda, and Edwin Russell. These children were carefully reared in the precepts of the Methodist Church, of which the parents were consistent members. In his earlier days Colbert O'Neal was a Whig, and later, identified himself with the Republican party, in the success of which he took a deep interest up to the time of his death, in September, 1900, at the age of 94 years. His wife passed away in 1886, at the age of 72 years.

Edwin Russell O'Neal obtained his primary education in the district schools of Belpre, and took an academic course at Coolville, Ohio. Upon his return to Belpre, he adopted farming as his vocation, and has successfully followed it ever since. He has also engaged extensively in dairying, which has yielded a handsome income. He owns 20 acres of land within the corporate limits of Belpre, and is considered one of the town's substantial and representative citizens.

In 1863, Mr. O'Neal was married to Nancy J. Scott, a daughter of William Scott, and two children were born to their union, namely: Joanna D., who graduated from the Belpre high school, and is now the proprietor of the Belpre book and stationery store; and William R., who is a prominent real estate and insurance man, of Winter Park, Florida, where he is treasurer of Rollins College, and postmaster. He married Mabel Copeland, of Berwick, Maine, and they have two children, Helen and Mabel. William R. O'Neal is also prominent in fraternal circles, —belonging to the A. F. & A. M., I. O. O. F., and K. of P. In religious connection, he is an elder in the Presbyterian Church.

Edwin Russell O'Neal has been one of the leading men of his township for many years. For six years he was a director on the board of the count infirmary, and has most efficiently served as township trustee, supervisor and school director. His character is that of an honest, upright and progressive citizen, and he enjoys the esteem of the community.

LW. ELLENWOOD, senior member of the prominent law firm of Ellenwood, Smith & Leeper, of Marietta, was born near Belpre, Dunham township, Washington County, Ohio, in 1855, and is a son of S. D. Ellenwood, and grandson of Samuel Ellenwood.

Samuel Ellenwood came from Massachusetts and located first at Port Harmar, and later, in Dunham township. S. D. Ellenwood, who was also born in Washington County, in 1813, was an extensive farmer and stock raiser. He was an active Democrat in politics, and held various township offices. He married Lucy Angeline DeLano, daughter of Thomas and Cynthia DeLano, of French descent. They had nine children, three of whom are living, as follows: L. W., the subject of this biography; O. O., a farmer, of Veto, Ohio; and a daughter, who married Judge L. W. Chamberlain.

L. W. Ellenwood attended the country schools, and also received instructions under a private tutor. He began the study of law in Marietta, and graduated from the Cincinnati Law School in May, 1879. He was admitted to the bar upon his graduation examination, and began practice September 1, 1879, at Marietta. Three years later he was elected prosecuting attorney, and served one term. On January 1, 1866, he formed a partnership with A. L. Smith, which has since continued, William H. Leeper becoming a member of the firm May 1, 1895. They have a very large general and corporation law practice, and represent numerous oil companies, and other prominent concerns in this locality. Mr. Ellenwood has also attained a reputation as a criminal lawyer, in which branch of his profession he ranks high in Southeastern Ohio. The firm is a reliable one in every sense, and commands the respect of the bar and of the citizens of the county.

Mr. Ellenwood was married March 1, 1883, to Effie E. Cole, a native of Washington County, and a daughter of William P. Cole, who was a highly respected and influential farmer in this county. They have one child, Ethel. The family residence is at No. 619 Fifth street. Politically the subject of this sketch is a Democrat, yet broad-minded, conservative and liberal. He has been a candidate for Congress, and the office of Probate judge, and declined a nomination for the State Legislature. He is a member of the Knights of Pythias and since 1884 has been an officer of the Grand Lodge of the State, having been elected and installed as grand chancellor in May, 1901, for the term expiring in May, 1902. The following article recently appeared in the Toledo Tribune, in connection with Mr. Ellenwood's term as grand chancellor of the order of Knights of Pythias:

"No Pythian administration ever surpassed that of Past Chancellor Ellenwood, for active, progressive work, and such successes as touch the heart, quicken the mind and make better and happier the lives and homes of men

"His logic and eloquence have advanced Pythianism and the public conception of its noble principles. His words, so eloquently spoken, will never be forgotten but echo forever in the home, in the heart, and be comforting to the poor and needy and a solace to the sick and afflicted.

"His magnificent championship of 'Practical Pythianism,' has invaded the precincts of all fraternities and all societies, subjecting malice, greed, hatred, haughty pride, with the sweet, soft notes of friendship, charity and benevolence. True manhood and true womanhood were given the sterling tributes of honor, of character and the station that is the highest, richest and the best.

"There is but one L. W. Ellenwood and he lives and labors for the good of humanity."

Mr. Ellenwood is a life member of the B. P. O. E., Lodge No. 477, and past grand of Lodge No. 67, I. O. O. F. Religiously the family are Unitarians, Rev. E. A. Coil being pastor of their church.

JOSEPH W. DOUDNA, vice-president and manager of the Marietta Mantel & Casket Company, is also engaged in undertaking business on Second street, just above Tiber Way. He was born on Wolf Creek, near the Washington County line, in 1852, and is a son of Joseph and Mary (Van Law) Doudna.

Mr. Doudna comes of Scotch ancestors. His paternal great-grandfather, when a boy, was kidnapped and taken on shipboard. Henry Doudna, the grandfather of Joseph W., was a pioneer of Morgan County, Ohio, and built one of the first houses at Chester Hill. He was a man of ability, with a natural bent toward mechanics. By his marriage there were three sons and eight daughters, namely: Elizabeth; Sarah; Margaret; Temperance; Mary; Joseph; Millicent; Henry; Martha; James; and Sarah. Joseph is mentioned below. Henry was a blacksmith near Malta, Morgan County, and died in 1893. James, now deceased, left four daughters and three sons, Mrs. Lida Dutton, of Marietta, being one of the former.

Joseph Doudna, father of Joseph W., resided in early life at Barnesville, Belmont County, Ohio. At an early date, in company with William Dewees, he came to Washington County, and there bore his share of the labor of opening up that part of the country to settlers. He helped to cut roads through the forests, and as a hunter of considerable skill, assisted in clearing the place of wild beasts. Having inherited a taste for handicrafts, he followed the trades of a carpenter and machinist for many years; and was also engaged in farming. He died in 1889, at the age of 83 years. His wife, Mary, a daughter of John Van Law, died in 1891, in her 79th year. By her he had 11 children,—Jeptha, now a resident of Zanesville, Ohio; Samuel, deceased; Joshua; Lindley N., now living at Zanesville; Lydia B., who died at that place; Henry, deceased; Rebecca, who died young; Charles, who died in 1900; and Sarah, who died in childhood; Joseph W., and John S., who died in 1898. Mr. Doudna was a Quaker in religious belief, and in politics, at first, a Whig, and, later, a Republican. A strong anti-slavery man, he was for some time connected with the underground railroad movement. At one time he and Mr. Dewees cared for 18 unfortunate negroes, and helped them on their way to Canada.

Joseph W. Doudna resided at the family homestead on Wolf Creek, in Washington County, until he was 12 years old, when he moved with his parents to Morgan County and there made his home with his family until he was 15 years old. At the age of 19 years, he went into business for himself as a cabinet manufacturer. Later he opened a furniture store with an undertaker's department, at Chester Hill. This he conducted with much success for 28 years. In 1894, a fire broke out in his establishment, destroying a large amount of property. Four years later, in the fall of 1898, he came to Marietta, and opened present shop on Second street. His family followed in the spring of 1899, and here he has since resided, and conducted a large business. Being an enterprising man, he has done much to build up city industries. He was one of the prominent organizers of the Marietta Mantel & Casket Company. This company was incorporated May 3, 1901, and was composed of five leading members, namely: Dr. A. O. Lambert, secretary; M. L. Luchs, president; J. W. Doudna, treasurer and manager; M. S. Luchs and Dr. E. W. Le Fever. The factory opened by this company is located on Fort street, in West Marietta, and here mantels of every style and in all varieties of woods, are turned out. From eight to ten skilled workmen are constantly employed. The show and stock room, of which Mr. Doudna has charge, is on Second street, near Tiber Way.

Mr. Doudna married Mary A. Gibbons, who was born near Plymouth, in Washington County, and reared at Chester Hill, in Morgan County. This union resulted in one daughter,—Agnes,—who married George Knight, and has one son,—Dean,—born in February, 1899.

Fraternally, Mr. Doudna stands high, and affiliates with the I. O. O. F.; the Pathfinders; and the Red Men, all of Marietta. As a Republican, he is keenly interested in politics. Religiously, he belongs to the Friends' Church.

IMEON WEBBER. This gentleman is one of the well-known and highly respected agriculturists of Grand View township, Washington County, Ohio. He was born in England August 14, 1834, and is a son of Charles Webber.

Charles Webber was born in England where he was a tavern keeper. He came to this country, in 1841, and located at Pittsburg, where he remained two months. Thence he removed to Ohio, where he entered 160 acres of land, on which Simeon Webber now lives. His death occurred September 5, 1873. He married Phebe Glover, who was also born in England, and they reared eight children, as follows: Robert, deceased; Anna, who married Mr. Edwards, of Grandview township; Simeon; Harriet; Winford; Henry C.; John, deceased; and Maria, who married Mr. Edwards of Grandview township.

Simeon Webber, the subject of this sketch, was reared on his father's farm, and followed the plasterer's trade for many years. In 1872, he located on his present farm, which consists of 83½ acres, on which he raises stock and carries on general farming. He has a thorough knowledge of the tilling of the soil, and is well known among the farmers of Washington County. He is a man of much ability, and is worthy of the success which he has won through years of industry and close application to his work.

In 1866, Mr. Webber married Isabella Taylor, who was born in Scotland, in 1843. The subject of this sketch is a member of the Presbyterian Church. He is a Democrat, in his political views.

GEORGE ROWLAND, a farmer of Palmer township, Washington County, Ohio, raises stock to some extent, but has leased his farm for four years to parties interested in the oil business.

Mr. Rowland is a son of Mordecai and Rachel (Maxwell) Rowland, the latter being of Irish descent. He was born in Morgan County, Ohio, December 11, 1859. His grandparents were Elisha and Phoebe (Adrian) Rowland. The Rowlands went to Jefferson County from their home in the east, and later, moved to Morgan County, where they resided many years. Mordecai Rowland chose Rachel Maxwell, of Guernsey County, Ohio, for his bride, and they made their home in Morgan County. Previous to her marriage Mrs. Rowland was a teacher, and taught school in Wesley township. She was well educated, having received her training in the schools of Marietta, and made a success of her profession. Her mother is now sixty-five years of age, and makes her home with Mr. Rowland's mother.

On September 25, 1879, George Rowland was united in marriage with Sidney Ann Chadwick, a daughter of Simeon and Lucinda (Bolen) Chadwick. Her mother was a daughter of Enoch Bolen and spent her youthful days in Greene County, Ohio, where the birth of Sidney Ann Chadwick took place March 15, 1858. Mr. and Mrs. Rowland had seven children, namely: Everett B.; Locia C.; Harley E.; Sydnia; Clarence E.; Sylvia May; and Matie. Everett B., born July 30, 1880, was united in marriage with Myrtie E. Smith, January 28, 1900. She was a daughter of Rolfe Smith, and has two children,—Sarah Hazel and Gertrude, the latter born July 14, 1902. Everett B. Rowland accidentally shot himself August 13, 1902, and although every effort was made to save him, he died August 15. Locia C., born October 10, 1883, is still single and resides at home. Harley E. was born December 26, 1885; Sydnia was born April 26, 1889; Clarence E. was born August 6, 1891; Sylvia May was born April 2, 1895; and Matie was born January 17, 1897.

The home farm consists of 80 acres of land, and it is well supplied by producing wells. Five wells, four of them producers, are now in operation, and the output is 180 barrels per day, yielding a handsome income. Mr. Rowland's attention is entirely devoted to the interests of his business, and he enjoys the well merited consideration which is due to a fair-minded upright citizen.

WILLIAM FULLERTON, a prosperous farmer of Dunham township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Warren township, in that county, in that portion which is now called Dunham, on April 23, 1839, and is a son of Daniel and Elizabeth (Fleming) Fullerton, both of whom were natives of Argyle-shire, Scotland.

Daniel Fullerton came to the United States about 1832, and located in Ohio, where he purchased a small property in Washington County, on Wolf Creek. He did not live long enough to see much result of his industry there, as his death occurred in 1843, when he was but 37 years old. His widow died in October, 1900, aged 79 years. Both were members of the Congregational Church at Belpre.

William Fullerton was the only child born to his parents. He was given the best educational advantages afforded in his neighborhood, and recalls the old, log schoolhouse with its rough, board benches, without backs, and with few books. Mr. Fullerton earned the money to pay his own tuition by farm work. Later he learned the carpenter and builder's trade and, in connection with farming, has followed it to some extent, ever since. His farm is well improved, and the substantial buildings erected upon it testify to his ability in the building line. Mr. Fullerton's farm comprises 320 acres of valuable land, which he has devoted to general farming, stock raising, and to the cultivation of fruit.

In 1894, Mr. Fullerton married Anna G. Dunlop, a daughter of Robert and Jenet (Greenlees) Dunlop, who were born in Argyleshire, Scotland. In politics, Mr. Fullerton is a Republican, and as one of the leading men in his township has been called upon to serve in its government, efficiently filling the office of trustee for a considerable period. He is a member of the Congregational Church. He is regarded as a reliable, substantial and representative citizen, and enjoys the esteem of the community in which he lives.

JOHNN LINDSEY MALSTER, a well-to-do agriculturist living in Palmer township, Washington County, owns a valuable farm of 415 acres, where he attends to general farming and the raising of stock.

Mr. Malster was born August 16, 1824, in Palmer township, a son of William and Sarah (Baker) Malster, and a grandson of Christopher and Margaret (Mahaffey) Malster. Christopher Malster was born in 1755, and removed from his home in Delaware to the State of Pennsylvania. Later he went to Ohio, where he lived until his demise, January 11, 1832. His son, William, was born December 11, 1795, and died February 12, 1876. William Malster married Sarah Baker. He had removed with his parents from Pennsylvania to Ohio, when quite young. Sarah Baker was a native of Delaware.

Nancy Breckenridge, a daughter of John and Agnes (Fleming) Breckenridge, became the wife of John Lindsey Malster. Mrs. Breckenridge was a native of Argyleshire, Scotland, where she was born May 12, 1798. She lived in Palmer township until her death July 7, 1838, and left a number of children, besides her husband, to mourn for her. Their daughter, Nancy was born on May 15, 1833. Mr. and Mrs. Malster had a family of 10 children, as follows: Flora A., who married Charles S. Pugh, and has seven children; Sarah E., who married Edward Tompkins, and has four children; William B., deceased, who left a widow and one child to mourn his loss; Dr. John Charles, unmarried, who makes his home in Stromsburg, Nebraska; Alva L., who married Mary Nixon, and has three children; Alfred E., living in single blessedness at home; Ella J.; Dr. Robert M., who is single and resides in Honolulu; Letha E., still at home; and Hattie, deceased.

The subject of this sketch does not belong to any secret order or to any church. In politics he has ever been a Democrat, and took great pleasure in voting for Cleveland and Bryan. He has a gentle, kindly manner to all, and oversees the farm work. Mr. Malster and his wife are highly esteemed by all who have the pleasure of their acquaintance, and their home surroundings are of the most pleasant nature.

ALEXANDER McTAGGART, JR., a prominent and representative farmer of Washington County, Ohio, was born upon the property which he now owns, in Dunham township, on July 27, 1844. He is a son of Alexander and Janet (Fleming) McTaggart. His father was a native of Scotland, and his mother, of Washington County, Ohio. The latter, who was a woman of Christian virtues, and a member of the Congregational Church, died in 1886, at the age of 64 years. The father lives at Pana, Illinois.

Alexander McTaggart, Jr., was the only child of his parents. He attended the district schools and assisted his father in his farming operations, and has always followed agricultural pursuits. He owns a very valuable property, which formerly belonged to the Cole estate, comprising 160, on which he is engaged in successful general farming and extensive stock raising.

In 1895 he was married to Istalina E. Knowles, a daughter of Addison Knowles, and one child has been born to their union, namely: Howard Fleming. Mrs. McTaggart is a lady of culture, her district-school studies having been supplemented by a course at Prof. John D. Phillips' Grammar school. Later, she became a teacher, and followed that profession for a number of years. She is a member of the Universalist Church, while her husband is liberal in his religious views. Their pleasant home is attractive, comfortable and hospitable, and they are among the most highly-esteemed residents of the community.

ADDISON KNOWLES, the father of Mrs. McTaggart, is a retired farmer of Dunham township, and now resides at Briggs Station. He was born in Newbury, Ohio, on April 17, 1825, and is a son of Amos and Polly (Porter) Knowles. His father was born in Had-dam, Connecticut, and his mother in the vicinity of Newburyport, Massachusetts. Amos Knowles, the grandfather of Mrs. McTaggart, was a son of James and Martha (Smith) Knowles, whose children were as follows: Reuben; Jesse; James; Amos; Samuel; William; Esther, who married Charles Curtis; and the youngest daughter, who married Daniel Estler, and lived in New Jersey.

In his early years, Amos Knowles followed the sea, visiting many foreign ports. He accompanied his parents when they moved to New Jersey, and later, became a pioneer in Ohio, where he followed agricultural pursuits until his death. He married Polly Porter, and they had a family of eight children, of whom the two survivors are Addison (2) and Stephen. The others were named as follows: Addison; Wallace; Wells; Reuben; Aseneth, and Harford.

Addison Knowles has been a farmer in Washington County during all his active life. In 1884, after a long and successful career, he sold his farm property and moved to Briggs Station, where he is passing the evening of life in contentment and comfort. In 1855 he married Diantha Deming, who was born in Watertown, Ohio. A family of five children was born to their union, namely: Istalina E.; Philip L.; Mary L.; Frank W.; and Anna L. In religious belief, Mr. Knowles is a Universalist. He is held in high esteem, and enjoys a wide acquaintance in Briggs Station.

DENNIS CASSADY, a prominent farmer of Belpre township, Washington County, Ohio, is a native of of a country which has contributed to America many of her most worthy citizens. Mr. Cassady was born in County Antrim, Ireland, in 1831, and in 1847, at the age of 16 years, came to the United States. His young wife accompanied him and they remained for several months in New York City, and then journeyed to Washington County, Ohio.

Work was plentiful in Dunham township, where Mr. Cassady settled, and he possessed plenty of energy and was determined to make a comfortable home for his family as quickly as possible. He obtained work by the month, and for several years labored as a section hand on the railroad. Later, he began farm work, which he followed for about 20 years. His first purchase of land, consisting of 80 acres, was made in Barlow township. Upon this he remained for nine years; he improved it, and sold it to great advantage. Mr. Cassady then bought his present fine farm, containing 200 acres, located in Belpre township, and known as the Dillely farm. He also owns 200 acres in Dunham township,—making large holdings in Washington County, which he had entered, a poor lad. Mr. Cassady has made a success of general farming and stock raising, and in former years he was a large sheep raiser. During the Civil War he was subject to draft, but his business required his attention, and he paid a substitute to take his place.

Mr. Cassady married Jeanett McPherson, who was a native of Argyleshire, Scotland, and they have reared a fine family of children, whose names are as follows: Alexander; Agnes; Henry; Daniel; John; Thomas; Ella; James and Jeanett. Mr. Cassady is well known and most highly respected in his neighborhood. In politics, he is a stanch Democrat, and exerts considerable influence. He belongs to the Catholic Church. His estimable wife died on March 12, 1896.

JOHN BARTH, well known throughout Washington County, Ohio, as a general merchant of Watertown, Watertown township, purchased from his brother-in-law, in November, 1901, the business in which he is now engaged, and has conducted it up to the present time with marked success.

Mr. Barth is a son of Marcus A. and Sophia (Lipps) Barth, the former, born in 1821, and the latter, ten years later. Marcus A. Barth crossed the ocean to the United States in 1853, and chose Cincinnati, Ohio, for his home, becoming immediately busy at his trade as nailsmith. He and his beloved wife had a large family, consisting of twelve children, of whom eight are living, as follows: Theresa, the wife of George Lorch, of Cincinnati; Andrew, who lives in Newport, Kentucky; John, the subject of this sketch; Lena, of Cincinnati, where her brother, Adam, also resides; Mary, who became the wife of Lewis Herper, also of that city; and Sophia and Charles, residents of the same place. Mr. Barth died in 1887, and his widow survived until 1898. He was a Republican, of strong and decided opinions and an upright citizen, in all respects.

John Barth was born in 1858 in Cincinnati. In the public schools of that city he received the mental training which fitted him to make his own way in the world. After leaving school he worked for Emerson & Fisher, and became an expert carriage-maker, remaining with the company twenty-two years, in all. In November, 1901, he purchased his present business from John L. Schweikert, Jr., having previously moved to Watertown.

Mr. Barth was united in marriage with Margaret Schweikert, in 1880. She was a daughter of John L. and Phoebe Schweikert, and a native of Watertown, Watertown township, where she was born in 1857. John L. Schweikert, Sr., was a native of Germany, and came, with his wife, at an early day, from their native country to the United States; he settled in Washington County in 1855. Mr. Schweikert was a wagon-maker by trade, and worked at his trade in Watertown for over forty years. Both the husband and wife were members of the German Lutheran Church. In 1901, at the age of eighty-one years, the husband was laid to rest, the wife having been laid to rest in 1898.

Mrs. Barth and her husband have two children, Mabel F., born in 1881; and Clifford M., born in March, 1885. Fraternally Mr. Barth is a member of the local lodge, I. O. O. F., and of the Provident Union.

JOHN FISCHER, a well-known German citizen of Macksburg, Washington County, Ohio, is a shoemaker by trade and conducts a business of his own in that city, where he is looked upon as a man of sturdy character. He was born November 15, 1837, in the Kingdom of Prussia, and his parents were Christian and Mary Ann (Michel) Fischer.

Christian Fischer crossed the ocean in company with his wife and children and arrived in the United States in 1854. He settled in Marietta, Ohio, and followed his trade as a shoemaker in that city until his demise in 1861. His children were as follows: William and Jacob, deceased; Louisa, the deceased wife of Herman Weber; Elizabeth, wife of J. Otto; and John.

The first seventeen years of John Fischer's life were spent in his native Prussia, but at that period he crossed the ocean with his father and with him settled in Washington County. With his father in Marietta, he learned all the details of the shoemaker's trade and made it his means of livelihood. In 1872 he moved from Marietta to Macksburg, where he has remained in business for himself until the present day. He has done much hard work in his chosen occupation, and by his efforts in various directions, has secured a good patronage.

In 1875, Mr. Fischer was united in marriage with Maggie Collins, a daughter of Andrew and Campsydell (Wheaton) Collins of Macksburg and they have had five children, four of whom are still living, as follows: John W., editor of the Marietta Leader; Walter E., bookkeeper and at present notary public and township clerk for Aurelius township; Freda; Louisa; and Mary, who died of diphtheria when but twelve years old. The family attend the M. E. Church, to the support of which Mr. Fischer contributes.

In political affairs, Mr. Fischer is a Republican, and socially, he is a member of Aurelius Lodge, No. 308, F. & A. M., and has been tyler of the same for the past twenty years. He is also a member of the Eastern Star.

MICHAEL MULLIGAN, one of Washington County's prominent influential citizens, who owns a fine farm of 480 acres, on the banks of the Ohio River, was born in County Mayo, Ireland, in 1837. His parents were Michael and Mary (Drudy) Mulligan, both of whom were natives of the Emerald Isle, and were good, industrious farming people.

The opportunities offered for advancement in his native land, did not seem sufficient, and in 1854, when but 17 years of age, young Michael decided his future by running away from the old home, and embarking for America. He had heard of other lads of his native land, who became rich and independent, in the United States, and he had enough confidence in himself to believe that he could accomplish the same results, if he had the chance. That he was right, is proved, by contrasting the poor Irish boy who landed in the great city of New York, with but a half-penny in his pockets, with the substantial and influential citizen of Washington County, who can now look over smiling acres of land and great herds of cattle. This change was effected by Mr. Mulligan himself. Making his way to Belpre, Ohio, he immediately secured farm work on the very property which is now his own, and although he was paid but $7 per month, a part of that was put aside for the purchase of the farm, which he intended to own, in the future. In time his industry and honesty were adequately rewarded, and he accumulated enough money to invest, under the advice of Thomas Lewis, for whom he continued to work until his death. So faithfully did Mr. Mulligan carry on the farming operations for his employer, that after his death, the sister of Mr. Lewis retained him, and he remained in her employ until 1866. At this date, he bought the property, although he was obliged to go somewhat in debt for it. Such was his reputation for honesty, however, that he had no trouble in securing the land, and in a short time, had it all paid for. Later, he purchased more land, and his 480 acres include some of the best land in Washington County. While he has been in engaged in general farming, he has made a specialty of stock raising and in this line he is an authority throughout Belpre township.

In 1867, Mr. Mulligan was united in marriage to Eliza A. Mendenhall, who was a daughter of James Mendenhall. She was born upon this property, where she was also married, and died. The following children were born to them: William; Edward; Mary; Martin; Albert; David; John; Julia; Ellen; Joseph, and one who died in infancy. In political sentiment, Mr. Mulligan strongly favors the Democratic party, but has steadfastly refused public office, although by character and reputation, he is well-fitted for responsible public positions. He has always been much interested in agricultural enterprises, and has taken great pleasure in the development and improvement of his own farm. He is known as a man of strict integrity, and his courage and industry, with their natural reward, may be held up as an example to other young men on the threshold of active life.

JOSEPH AMOS WICKENS, a prominent farmer and oil producer of Washington County, Ohio, is one of the most progressive citizens of Aurelius township. He is the youngest son of William R. and Sarah L. (Cadwell) Wickens, grandson of George and Charlotte (Rowland) Wickens, and great-grandson of George Wickens, Sr., who was a well-to-do farmer on the Isle of Wight, England, which was his home throughout his active life.

The paternal grandfather of the subject hereof, George Wickens, came to America in 1832, and settled in Aurelius township, where he cleared, cultivated and otherwise improved a large tract of land. This land is still the pride of his descendants. He married Charlotte Rowland, a daughter of William and Nancy (Beer) Rowland, who were among the pioneer settlers in Aurelius township. They also originally came from the Isle of Wight, England, which they left in 1820, and settled in America the same year. For further ancestry, see sketches of William R. and Henry Wickens, which also appear in this volume.

William R., the father, accompanied his parents to America in 1832, being then but nine years of age. They settled in Aurelius township, upon a farm which is his home at the present time. He is extensively engaged in farming and in the oil producing business. September 23, 1849, he married Sarah L. Cadwell, a daughter of James and Lucy (Hamilton) Cadwell. They reared four children, namely: Edward T., Charles A., Ellis W. and Joseph Amos, the subject of these lines. The eldest son, Edward T., is also engaged in the oil industry. The beloved mother passed to her final rest April 22, 1902, in her 70th year. She was a lifelong member of the Baptist Church.

Joseph A. Wickens was born October 4, 1865, in Aurelius township, Washington County, Ohio, which is still his home. He grew to manhood there and attended the common schools. Upon attaining his majority, he engaged on his own behalf as a pumper in the oil fields. In 1894 he became a producer, and still continues in this lucrative business. In connection with this industry Mr. Wickens has also been quite successfully engaged in farming. In 1898 he leased the Davidson farm of 112 acres, in section 30, Aurelius township, which he operates in addition to his own farm.

November 8, 1892, Mr. Wickens was joined in marriage with Mary Schlarb, who was born September 5, 1872. She is a daughter of Peter and Mary (Ruch) Schlarb, of Liberty township. The father of Mrs. Wickens was a native of Germany, but her mother was born in Washington County, Ohio. The subject of this sketch and his wife have three children, Ara, Ollie and Clarence. In politics, Mr. Wickens adheres to the principles of the Republican party. He is a valued member of Liberty Hill Grange, P. of H., and is popular among his neighbors.

HARLEY D. WOODFORD, who is engaged in farming to some extent, and is also a carpenter, is a member of the Watertown Planing Mill Company, which does a large planing business in that town. He was born in 1862, in Watertown township, Washington County, Ohio, and his parents were William and Emily R. (Deming) Woodford.

William Woodford was born in Watertown township, and departed this life in 1872, at the early age of thirty-three years, eight months and 12 days. He followed farming and also bought stock. In politics, he was a Democrat. He chose for his wife Emily R. Deming, who was born in Watertown township, and is still living, at the age of fifty-eight years. She was a daughter of Harley Deming, and is an active member of the Universalist Church. •

Mr. Woodford was one of a family of six children, namely: William G.; Harley D.; Mina, who married Charles Slaughter, and resides in Oklahoma; Mary S.; Anna L., who lives in Washington County, and is the widow of John Bohl; and an infant, deceased. William G. and Mary S. live in Watertown township.

On October 27, 1892, Mr. Woodford married Arie Wood, a daughter of Caius and Vesta (Burchett) Wood. She was born in Watertown township, December 1, 1873, and their union was blessed with five children, namely: Dewitt H.; Eugene, deceased; Helen, James and Mina.

Mr. Woodford owns a farm of twenty acres and is much interested in his work. He is wide-awake, up-to-date, and ready to have his say in all matters pertaining to the welfare of his county. In politics he acts with the Democratic party. Fraternally, he is a member of the I. O. O. F. and also affiliates with Mt. Moriah Lodge, No. 37, A. F. & A. M. of Beverly, Ohio.

SYLVESTER W. BARTLETT, living on his fifty acres of fine land about four and a half miles south of Beverly, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Union township, of that county, in 1838. He is a son of Smith Bartlett, and a grandson of Jeremiah and Jerusha (Jeferson) Bartlett.

Smith Bartlett and his wife had the following family: Lucinda; Sarah, deceased; John; Harriet; James and William, who are deceased; Charles; and Sylvester W. Smith Bartlett was born in Providence, Rhode Island, in 1798, and died in 1869. His first appearance in Washington County was in 1804, when, with his parents, he located three miles above Marietta, on the Muskingum River.

During the Civil war, Mr. Bartlett desired to fight for his country, and in 1864 he enlisted at Cincinnati, Ohio, in the United States Navy, serving faithfully until July, 1865, when he received an honorable discharge and returned home.

Mr. Bartlett was united in matrimony with Louisa Mossholder in 1856. She was a daughter of Jacob Mossholder, and was born in 1838, in Knox County, Ohio. They had eleven children, as follows: Mary; Lizzie; Smith; Addie; John; Leota and Lillie, twins; Charles; Georgiana; Levi; and Nellie. The family are devoted to the work of the M. E. Church. In politics Mr. Bartlett votes the Republican ticket. Fraternally, he is a member of the Dick Cheatham Post, G. A. R., of Beverly.

HARVEY MORRIS, an extensive agriculturist and land-owner of Watertown township, resides on his farm of 111 acres, about two and a half miles southwest of Watertown, and is regarded as a man of consequence among his many friends and acquaintances in Washington County. He is a son of John and Delilah (Biggins) Morris, natives of Virginia.

John Morris is a native of Loudoun County, Virginia, and first saw the light of day in 1796, while his wife was born January 22, 1805. The former was a farmer all his life and took up his residence first in Palmer township, and later in Watertown township, having arrived in Washington County in 1822. His wife was a daughter of John and Elizabeth Biggins, and was the eldest in a family of twelve children. She and her husband had eight children, namely: William, a resident of Palmer township; Minerva, deceased; John; Nancy, the widow of John Orrison, now residing in Belmont County; Tamar, who married Henry Smith and is living in Belpre; Elza and Elwood, twins, now deceased; and Harvey. John enlisted in Company B, 77th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., and served his country in the Civil War. He died in February, 1901, and was at that time filling the position of postmaster at Watertown. In politics the father of these children was a Whig and later a Republican. He died in 1886, the mother surviving until July 9, 1894, when she, too, passed away.

Harvey Morris was born in Watertown township in 1842, has followed the occupation of a farmer all his life, and thoroughly understands his business. He enlisted at Marietta, Ohio, in 1864, in Company I, 148th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., served until the fall of the same year, and was then mustered out of service. All of the Morris brothers served their country valiantly in time of need, and but two of them are living. Harvey Morris draws a pension of $24 per month.

In 1867 Mr. Morris was united in matrimony with Mary Smith, a daughter of Paul and Elizabeth Smith, who was born in Barlow township, in 1844. They have ten children, as follows: Annie, the wife of Martin Robinson, a resident of Marietta, Ohio; Elza, living at home; Cora, the wife of Putnam Phipps; Linnie, who married Levi Thornberry, and lives in Barlow township; Bertha, who was united in marriage with James Kinney, and resides in Palmer township; Harvey; Jesse; Carl and Smith, who are at home; and Emmett.

Mr. Morris is a member of the Republican party and serves his township to the best of his ability. He is a good, well-informed and industrious citizen.

RS. MELISSA B. BUELL, widow of the late Edward W. Buell, a prominent citizen of Marietta, occupies a recognized position in this city, both through her ancestry, and also on account of estimable personal characteristics, which command the esteem of the community.

Mrs. Buell was born in 1833, in Washington County, and is a daughter of Judge Joseph Barker by his second marriage, to Mrs. Mary Ann Shipman, (nee Edgerton), and a granddaughter of Col. Joseph Barker, of the militia, who came to Marietta in 1789, followed the trade of architect and builder, and left the Blennerhassett house, on the Island, as a monument to his ability. Colonel Barker died at Rainbow, in 1840. Judge Joseph Barker was born February 28, 1790, and was the first white child born in the Northwest Territory, as this section was then named. He was a man of prominence and ability, and served for a number of years as judge in Washington County. His death took place in February, 1860. Mrs. Buell's mother was born in Norwich, Connecticut, and came to Washington County, Ohio, in 1817. Four children were born to the second marriage of Judge Barker, of whom Mrs. Buell is the only survivor. Her brother, Joseph, served with distinction in the Civil War, and died in 1900.

The late Edward W. Buell was born in 1832, and was a son of Daniel Hand Buell, and a grandson of Gen. Joseph Buell, who for many years was a noted figure in Marietta, where his days ended. General Joseph Buell was born at Killingworth, Connecticut, the family belonging originally to Litchfield, Connecticut. He came with the troops to Fort Harmar, in 1786. A comprehensive sketch of this pioneer is embraced in an article treating of the early settlers of Ohio. His wife was a Miss Hand, a native of Guilford, Connecticut.

Edward W. Buell began his active career in the drug business, when quite a young man, and later went into the oil business. He engaged in the drug business, first with Dr. Cotton, and later, in association with his brother, the firm name of Buell & Bro. carrying weight and influence with it during the life of Mr. Buell. In city affairs he was prominent, and took a deep interest in the material development of his city and county. His death occurred in 1875, at the early age of 42 years. Six children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Buell, viz.: Alice, who married James Creelman, and resides in Washington, D. C.; Daniel Hand, who married a daughter of A. T. Nye, and is engaged in the manufacturing business, in Marietta; Edward Wylls, who is in the United States engineering service, and resides at Cincinnati; Marie, who married Donald Hart, of Boston; Joseph Lawrence, who is in business at Boston, Massachusetts; and Helen, who with her mother, resides in the pleasant home at No. 221 Fourth street. In political action Mr. Buell was a Republican. The family attend the Episcopal Church.

RS. MARY E. (WARD) RHODES, widow of the late Charles R. Rhodes, a prominent attorney and distinguished citizen of Marietta, who died in September, 1887, resides in this city and is one of the four surviving daughters of Nahum Ward, who at one time had larger landed interests than any other man in Southeastern Ohio.

Nahum Ward, the father of Mrs. Rhodes, was born October 23, 1785, in Shrewsbury, Massachusetts. He was a son of Thomas W. and a grandson of Artemus Ward, who was the first major-general of the Revolutionary army. Early in life he filled the position of a clerk, and gained the practical experience which served him well when he embarked in mercantile pursuits for himself. This was in 1807, and his capital was $500, given him by his father. Two prosperous years followed, but the young man was ambitious and desired a larger field in which to use his talents. In June, 1809, he sold his goods and turned his face toward what was then the great West, his destination being Marietta. He had a letter of introduction to Gen. Rufus Putnam, and was given every opportunity to see the lands which were thrown open for settlement. After traveling for six weeks over the State of Ohio the young man returned on horseback, as he had come, and was appointed a deputy-sheriff in his native town, from which he later moved to Worcester. The effect of his western journey soon became manifest in his purchase of about 5,000 acres of Ohio land.

In 1811 Mr. Ward returned to Ohio, and became a citizen of Marietta, where he remained until his death, in 1860. He continued his purchase of land, his foresight enabling him to see its great future, until he owned 37,000 acres, lying mainly within Washington, Athens, Morgan, Gallia, Lawrence and Meigs Counties. Making trips to Scotland, he secured desirable settlers upon these lands, in whom he never lost a personal interest. The title to over 100,000 acres of land in Southeastern Ohio was vested in Mr. Ward during his 48 years of residence at Marietta, and he greatly improved every part of this vast estate.

Mr. Ward's home at Marietta was in the house on Putnam street, between Front and Second, which had been built by Edward W. Tupper, and which Mr. Ward purchased in 1817. He was identified with public life in Marietta, and in 1845 was elected mayor of the city, in which office he continued for ten years. He was tireless in public-spirited efforts, and was more than generous in his beneficence to religious organizations. He built the Unitarian Church, on the corner of Third and Putnam streets, which was dedicated on June 4, 1857, at a cost to Mr. Ward of, probably, $30,000. This he donated to the First Unitarian Society.

Mr. Ward's first wife, whom he married in the fall of 1817, was Miss S. C. Skinner, a daughter of William Skinner, a prominent pioneer merchant, of Marietta. They had a family of seven children, five of whom arrived at maturity, viz.: William S., who carried on his father's business until his death, in 1871, his son, William Nahum, also passing away, in 1874, and leaving the name extinct; Sarah C., who is Mrs. W. L. Rolston; Mary E., who is the widow of Charles R. Rhodes; Harriet C., who is the widow of Goodrich H. Barbour, of Cincinnati; and Henrietta D., who is the widow of E. G. Leonard, of Cincinnati. Mrs. Ward, the mother of these children, died in 1844. In 1848 Mr. Ward married Harriet Denny, of Worcester, Massachusetts, who died in 1872.

Charles Rathbone Rhodes was born at Zanesville, Ohio, November 5, 1819, and was the third child of Dr. Dudley Woodbridge Rhodes. In 1835 he entered the preparatory department of Kenyon College, and in 1836 became a member of the freshman class, graduating with second honors in 1840. He studied law in the office of Messrs. Goddard & Converse, at Zanesville, and was admitted to the bar, at Newark, Ohio, in 1843. He moved at once to St. Louis, Missouri, where he practiced law until 1846, when he returned to Marietta. In January, 1855, he was elected prosecuting attorney, and served as such for two years. In February, 1858, he was elected judge of the Probate Court of Washington County, and served in this office until 1861.

During the Civil War many residents of Ohio near the border lived in constant fear of the depredations of lawless bands of the enemy, and Mr. Rhodes recognized the necessity for some protection. With the friendly assistance of Colonel William Craig, who was stationed at Marietta, Mr. Rhodes organized a company comprising from 40 to 60 men, and kept them equipped and drilled, ready for any emergency. He was captain of this company.

As a man of prominence in the Republican party, he was appointed by Gov. Rutherford B. Hayes a delegate to the National Commercial Convention which met at Cincinnati, and in the following year was sent again as a delegate for Southeastern Ohio to the convention at Baltimore. His whole life in Marietta was closely identified with the manufacturing and commercial enterprises of the city. Especially was he interested in the history and prosperity of St. Luke's Episcopal Church and Sunday-school. For 30 years he had been a member of this church, and had served as a member of the vestry. He was many times a delegate to the diocesan conventions, and for more than 20 years was superintendent of the Sunday-school.

In November, 1846, Mr. Rhodes was united in marriage with Mary E. Ward, and they reared a family of seven children, namely: Kate Rathbone; Rev. Dr. Dudley Ward; Mary; Harriet Denny; Edith; Charles Ward; and Eleanor. Kate Rathbone is the wife of T. Romeyn Bunn, of Amsterdam, New York. Dr. Dudley Ward, of the Episcopal Church, took a theological course at Philadelphia, and for twenty years was rector of the church at Mt. Auburn, Cincinnati, to the upbuilding of which he materially contributed. He has taken several trips abroad, and spent three years as a clergyman at St. Paul, Minnesota. Mary is the wife of F. R. Ellis, of Cincinnati, who is prominently connected with the American Book Company. Harriet Denny, who died in 1888, was the first wife of W. W. Harris, who later married her sister Eleanor. Edith married L. L. Peddinghaus, a leading jeweler of Marietta. Charles Ward is an artist of reputation, who is located at the University of Fine Arts at St. Louis, Missouri. He has studied at Berlin, Munich and other points abroad, was assistant director at the World's Columbian Exposition, and is now engaged in preparations for the coming exposition in St. Louis; and Eleanor, who became the widow of W. W. Harris, and is now Mrs. William B. Charles, of Amsterdam, New York.

W. MINSHALL, deceased, for many years a prominent oil producer, and a resident of Marietta, attained high distinction by his geological research in the oil regions and his practical demonstrations of the "anti-clinal theory." This theory was first brought to his consideration in 1878, in which year he noticed that the productive area in the Cow Run pool of Washington County, Ohio, was confined to the crests of a well-defined anti-clinal arch of small dimensions. This led to his making a careful survey and measurement of what is known as the White Oak Anti-clinal beginning north of French Creek, on the Ohio River, near the present station of Belmont, and running thence through Pleasants, Ritchie and Wirt counties, West Virginia, to Burning Springs on the Little Kanawha. A profile along the axis of the arch, and cross section at Horseneck, White Oak and Burning Springs were drawn to scale, and a detailed description of the whole line was published, with an account of the manner in which the action of natural forces caused the gas, oil and water to accumulate at different points along the arch. This appeared in the Parkersburg State Journal under the title of "West Virginia Geology," and was the first definite and thorough explanation of the theory, and facts by which it was sustained. The drawing and description were of a high order and of such importance as to be published in the United States Census Report, in 1880. Mr. Minshall's ability and knowledge in this line attracted much attention, and he was secured to furnish for the Ohio Geological Survey a chapter upon the history of oil development in Southeastern Ohio, from 1860-61 to 1886, when the work was published. Later his time was devoted to the geology of the subject, and he did more field work than any other person similarly engaged, measuring and mapping all the anticlinal folds in West Virginia and Southern Ohio, besides performing considerable work of like character in Southwest Pennsylvania. He was the first to secure gas for Marietta from "Fifteen."

Mr. Minshall was born in Illinois, in 1839, and there received his educational training. He prepared himself for the profession of law, and after his admission to the bar, practiced for a short time. At the outbreak of the Civil War, he enlisted at Springfield, Illinois, but was shortly called home by the serious illness of his mother. He was detained by his mother's death until his regiment had departed, and being persuaded by his relatives to temporarily abandon his war plans, he spent a few months in Danbury, Connecticut. He came to Marietta in November, 1864, and entered upon his career as an oil operator, which he was destined to follow the remainder of his life. He took charge of the business of the Bergen Oil Company, of New York, and was in its employ for several years. He then engaged with Girard Crane, in a refinery at Parkersburg, West Virginia, where he continued from 1869 to 1876. He moved with his family to Parkersburg in 1874, and remained there until 1886. In that year he sold his interests to the Camden Oil Company, a branch of the Standard Oil Company, but continued to be active in the oil fields. During the last five years of his life, he was in the employ of J. M. Guffey, of Pittsburg, in West Virginia fields, his death occurring December 27, 1900.

Mr. Minshall was married, in Illinois, to Maria Read, a native of New York City, who located in Marietta in 1865. Five children were born to them, namely: Katherine; Julia; Herbert, who is in the employ of the Citizens' National Bank; Eugene, who is in the employ of J. M. Guffey, of Pittsburg; and Marie. All but Eugene reside with their mother, at No. 421 Fourth street. In politics, the subject of this sketch was a staunch Republican. Religiously, the family are Unitarians.

HUGH GILBERT JACKSON, one of the leading farmers of Washington County, Ohio, is a steady, reliable citizen, and one who serves his township well whenever it is possible. He is a native of Aurelius township, and has lived in Washington County since his birth, on March 29, 1837. His parents were Hugh and Harriet (Putnam) Jackson, and his paternal grandparents were David and Sarah (Norris) Jackson.

David Jackson went to Washington County in 1802, and remained there during the remainder of his life. He purchased a farm, and with the help of his sons cleared and improved his land. His children were as follows: Hugh; Robert; David; Ruhama, who married Samuel Fulton; Margaret, the wife of William Hale; Phoebe, who married Perley Chapman; Jane, who married Joseph Reed; Sarah, who married Amariah Sutton; and Nancy, wife of Thomas Taylor.

The maternal grandparents of Mr. Jackson were Allen Putnam and his wife, Anne (Porter) Putnam, the former being a native of Chelsea, Massachusetts, a pioneer settler of Fearing township, Washington County, and one of the 48 settlers of the Ohio Company.

Hugh Jackson, father of the subject hereof, was born in Bedford, Pennsylvania, and went with his father and mother to Washington County in 1802. He was a soldier in the War of 1812, and spent the greater part of his life as a resident of Aurelius township, where he farmed to some extent. He married Harriet Putnam, and they had the following nine children: Clarissa, the wife of James Dye; Andrew; Thomas; Joseph; Olive, who married Samuel Hill; Henry; Harriet, the wife of John Clogston; Eliza, wife of John Ward; and Hugh Gilbert, the subject of this brief sketch.

Hugh Gilbert Jackson was reared in Aurelius township, where he attended school, and chose farming for his life work. December 20, 1860, he was united in marriage with Sarah M. Larcomb, a daughter of Emanuel and Phoebe (Ward) Larcomb, of Salem township. Their union was blessed with six children, namely: Emma; George; John; Charles; James; and Pitt. In politics Mr. Jackson is a Republican, and he has filled various local offices with credit. He is well informed on all current topics, and is generally known and respected throughout his county.

JACOB THOMPSON DILLON, a prominent oil producer in Macksburg, Washington County, Ohio, is a native of Monroe County, Ohio, where he was born October 14, 1858, and is a son of Peter and Julia A. (May) Dillon; he is of Scotch-Irish descent.

The maternal grandfather of the subject hereof was William H. May, who occupied a leading place among the farmers of Monroe County, and had a fine, large farm on the banks of the Ohio River. Peter Dillon, the father of Jacob T. Dillon, was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, and was one of the first farmers in Monroe County to deal extensively in stock. He married twice, his first wife being Miss Moore, by whom he had eight children, seven of whom grew to maturity, and are as follows: William; John W.; Hamilton; Mazie, who married Polk Baker; Susan, the wife of Jacob Dearth; Rachel, who married Mr. Coburn; James; and Mark. After the death of his first wife, Mr. Dillon again married, Julia A. May becoming his second wife. They had six children, namely: Mary L., who married Frank W. Litten; Jacob T.; Ida M., who married Thomas Crumbaker; Clara B., the wife of William M. Wickham; Eva, the wife of Edward Chapsaw; and Pearl, who married Blanchard Dean.

Peter Dillon was a soldier in the Civil War. He enlisted as a member of Company E, 8th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., and was mustered out of service as a captain, after three years of hard fighting. Three of his sons, Hamilton, Mark and James, also served in the army during this war.

The subject of this sketch was born in Ohio, and there he has lived all his life. He attended the county schools and afterward started out in life as a stock dealer. Later he was in the hotel business for a time in West Virginia. In 1886 he located in Macksburg, and spent five years in the liquor business. Since 1890 he has been successfully identified with the oil business, as a producer.

Mr. Dillon's first wife was Sadie McLaughlin. Some time after her death he married Rosa Wharff, a daughter of Henry and Mary (Rothley) Wharff, of Salem township, and they have one daughter, Julia. In religious views the family are liberal. In politics Mr. Dillon is a Republican, who takes much interest in township and county affairs, as becomes a true-hearted and earnest citizen.

JOHAN BOHL, M. D., one of the foremost physicians and surgeons in Watertown township, occupies a beautiful home in Watertown, Washington County, Ohio, and has spent over half a century in the practice of his profession in that city.

Dr. Bohl is a son of Conrad and Margaret (Smith) Bohl, and like his parents, was born in Bavaria, Germany, October 21, 1828. Conrad Bohl was born in 1791, and lived until 1874. He came to the United States with his wife and family in the spring of 1834, and located in Salem township, where he followed the occupation of farming. The family were members of the German Lutheran Church. In politics Mr. Bohl was always an advocate of the principles of the Democratic party. Mrs. Bohl was born in 1789, and lived a useful life until taken away by death in 1881. She and her husband had six children, as follows: Elizabeth; Nicholas; Barbara; Philip; Conrad; and John.

Elizabeth Bohl was united in marriage with Oliver Nelson, and both husband and wife are deceased. Barbara Bohl became the wife of Henry Barnburg, a minister of the M. E. Church, who is now laid to rest, and his widow makes her home in the city of St. Louis. Philip and Conrad Bohl are deceased. Nicholas Bohl is a progressive farmer and extensive land owner, residing with his family, three miles northeast of Watertown, on his beautiful farm. In 1845 he married Mary E. Gaddel, a lady of many commendable qualities, who was also of German descent. She was born in 1826, and died March 8, 1897. She bore her husband eight children, namely: Philip, of Nebraska; Conrad, living in Watertown; Mary, wife of Jared I. Budd, of Beckett's Station, Ohio; Katharine and Margaret, living at home; Nicholas, of Nebraska; and Jacob, and an infant, both deceased.

John Bohl received his scholastic training in different common schools, and attended the College of Medicine and Surgery, in Cincinnati, to fit himself for his chosen calling in life. From this institution he graduated with honor in 1859, and immediately afterward chose Watertown for his field of practice. Since the year in which he graduated, half a century ago, he has lived in no other city but this. He is a member of the National, State and County Medical societies, and helped to organize the last named association in 1860.

In 1851 Dr. Bohl was united in matrimony with Elizabeth Wehl, a daughter of Clephys and Margaret Wehl, born in Bavaria, Germany, in 1817. She was the mother of three children.—Elizabeth, wife of Dr. J. A. Reynolds, of Waterville, Minnesota; Jacob, a prominent physician in Marietta Ohio; and John, formerly a physician and surgeon in Watertown, Ohio, who died September 10, 1900. Mrs. Bohl departed this life October 28, 1895.

Dr. Bohl is a faithful member of the German Lutheran Church. In political opinions he is a Democrat. His experience and skill in the practice of his profession have won for him the confidence of all his friends, and of the citizens of Watertown in general.

LEWIS WALLER, a prominent farmer and oil producer of Aurelius township, Washington County, Ohio, is a native of Jackson township, Noble County, Ohio, and was born January 20, 1846. His parents were Thomas and Sarah (Taylor) Waller, natives of Noble County, Ohio.

The paternal grandfather of Lewis Waller was also named Lewis Waller; he was born in Ireland. He came to the United States and was one of the pioneer settlers and farmers of Jackson township, where he spent his life and died. He chose for his wife Phœbe Hughes, and they had a number of children.

Lewis Waller's maternal grandfather was William Taylor, a native of England, who was also one of the pioneer settlers of Jackson township. His wife's maiden name was Mary Taylor, but she was not related to him.

Thomas Waller, father of Lewis, was extensively engaged in farming in Jackson township, and lived and died there. He was united in marriage with Sarah Taylor, and their children were as follows: Phœbe, the wife of James Roff; Mary, who was united in marriage with Jacob Gessel; Lewis; Joseph; James and Lucy, the wife of George Bell.

Lewis Waller was reared in Jackson township, and in the common schools he learned what he could in the way of educating himself, and directly afterward applied himself to farming in Aurelius township. He now owns two farms of 85 and 57 acres respectively, located on sections 18 and 20, and 10 acres off of the Leper farm. In 1888 he became interested in the oil business, and now owns fifteen producing wells in his township, with an average yield of 150 barrels per month.

Mr. Waller was united in marriage, January 9, 1871, with Amelia J. Atherton, a daughter of John and Rebecca (Dickey) Atherton, of Jackson township, Noble County. They have six children, namely: Florence, now the wife of Elmer Wickens; Harry, deceased; Howard, twin brother to Harry; Armenia, the wife of Thomas Diehl; Lulu, who married Joseph Ward; and Frank.

During the Civil War, Mr. Waller enlisted in Company D, 174th Reg., Ohio Vol. Infantry. In September, 1864, he took part in the battles at Overall Creek and the Cedars, near Murfreesboro, Tennessee, and likewise in other minor engagements, and in August, 1865, he was honorably discharged.

Politically Mr. Waller is a firm believer in the principles of the Republican party, to which he gives his hearty support.

CARL BOESHAAR. For fully 30 years, Mr. Boeshaar has been engaged in the tannery business in Lower Salem, and by conducting a flourishing establishment and furnishing employment to a large number of men, he has been of great service to his community. He deserves the credit of having risen to his present position mainly through his own efforts. Born in Prussia, August 3, 1843, he is the son of Jacob and Philippina (Baker) Boeshaar.

Jacob Boeshaar, a tanner by trade, came to America in 1845. After a short residence in Pittsburg, Wheeling, Gravel Hill, and Belmont County, Ohio, he moved to Washington County, Ohio, and settled upon a farm in Aurelius township. Here he was engaged in agriculture, with much success, for many years. Later in 1867, he moved to Salem, and in 1869, with his son, Carl, opened a tannery. Two years later, in 1871, at the early age of 52 years, he died, leaving his son to continue the business. In early manhood, Jacob Boeshaar married Philippina Baker, who died July 4, 1867. To them were born nine children, namely: Carl; Carolina (1), Caroline (2), Jacob, Theobald, Mary, Fred, and Christian, all of whom are deceased; and John H.

Carl Boeshaar, was but two years old when his parents came to America, and was mainly reared in Ohio, where they finally settled. Here, with hard work and an active intellect, he obtained such education as the common schools could afford. Upon starting out in life, in 1865, he hired out as apprentice to a tanner. After three years, he became so proficient at the business that he was enabled to command good wages, and for nine months he worked as a journeyman. In 1869, as has been said, he with his father, opened a tannery in Salem. From 1871, the time of his father's death, until 1883, he carried on the business by himself, with very good results. He then closed the tannery for a period of three years, but in 1886 opened it again under the firm name of Carl Boeshaar & Son. Putting into this industry renewed strength and vigor, he was now enabled to conduct it on a larger scale than before. Each succeeding year has added stability and capital to the firm, which now turns out 130 hides per month.

In 1867, Mr. Boeshaar married Catherine Wetz, daughter of Jacob and Catherine (Saylor) Wetz, residents of Salem township. Six children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Boeshaar, four of whom have been married as follows,—Lizzie, to Daniel Mattern; Katie, to John Garver; Mary, to Jacob Hart; and Philippina A., to Lewis Hart. The other children are Carrie L. and Fred C. Mr. Boeshaar is a man of irreproachable character, and is a member of the Protestant Lutheran Church. Fraternally, he belongs to Lowell Lodge, No. 438, I. O. O. F.; and politically, he affiliates with the Democrats.

DANIEL R. SHAW, who for many years was successfully engaged in mercantile pursuits in Vincent, Ohio, which is still his home, is now serving a three-years term as County Commissioner of Washington County, having been elected to that office in November, 1899, on the Republican ticket. He took his seat in September, 1900, succeeding Mr. Randolph, of Bartlett, Wesley township. Mr. Shaw was born in Dunham township, and is a son of the late Daniel and Catherine Shaw.

Daniel Shaw was born in Argyleshire, Scotland, in 1798, and came to this country about 1820, and located in Washington County, Ohio, where he was among the early settlers. In politics he was a staunch Democrat. He departed this life in 1872. His wife came to Washington County in 1841, and survived her husband about 10 years. They reared a family of several children, who are mainly residents of Washington County.

Daniel R. Shaw remained in Dunham township until he reached maturity, and followed farming until 1884. In December of that year he went to Vincent and opened a general merchandise store, in connection with which he acted as agent for the Marietta Mineral Railroad Company, as it was then called. Three years later, in 1887, he sold his store to his brother, Alexander Shaw, and took a vacation which he spent principally in traveling and sightseeing. He was 18 months in California, having relatives about 30 miles south of Los Angeles, and during this time visited many places of interest.

Returning to Vincent, Mr. Shaw was engaged in mercantile pursuits until 1892, when he sold to advantage, and since that time various business enterprises have claimed his attention. In partnership with L. C. Hayes, he purchased and platted what is known as Hayes & Shaw's addition to Vincent. They also put down the first oil well in that vicinity, and Mr. Shaw is still extensively engaged in leasing and operating oil fields in various sections of the county. He owns a splendid farm but a short distance north of Vincent. Besides this he has a fine, large residence in Vincent, which was completed in February, 1894.

Mr. Shaw was joined in marriage with Blanche Agin, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Agin, both of whom are prominent residents of Vincent. Three children blessed this union, the eldest of whom, Luella, died in infancy. The others are Fergus, aged nine years; and Delbert, aged seven years. Although reared in the Presbyterian faith, Mr. Shaw has liberal ideas on religious subjects. In politics he has played a prominent part. When but twenty-one years of age he was elected assessor of personal property in Dunham township, and to his credit it may be said that he held that office for 14 consecutive years. In 1880 he was elected real estate assessor of the same township. Mr. Shaw is a public-spirited citizen, and is intensely interested in local and national affairs. To his efforts are largely due the successful completion and dedication of the new $200,000 Court House, which is the pride of the citizens of Washington County.

R. RICHARD H. WHITTINGTON, able and widely known physician of New Matamoras, Washington County, Ohio, has a general practice which does credit to his skill and experience.

He also owns a fine farm and does general farming. Dr. Whittington was born July 20, 1859, in Summerfield, Noble County, Ohio, and is a son of Benjamin H. and Hannah (Merrill) Whittington. His grandparents were Henry and Rebecca (Hunt) Whittington. The former was a native of Calvert County, Maryland, and the father of Massachusetts. The Whittingtons are of English descent.

Benjamin Whittington, like his father, claimed Maryland as his native state, and was born in Calvert County, August 16, 1832. At the age of 14 years, he journeyed west with his mother, to Belmont County, Ohio, leaving behind the pleasant scenes of his boyhood days. They located in Barnesville, and Mr. Whittington remained there until he attained the age of 17 years, when he again took his leave of familiar scenes, and went to Summerfield, Noble County, Ohio. There he resided until 1880, when he located in Washington County, and purchased a farm near Bloomfield, Ludlow township, where he spent the remainder of his life. The date of his demise was December 18, 1898. While still a resident of Noble County, he followed the occupation of tobacco raising on a farm there, and cultivated quite an extensive supply of tobacco.

Benjamin Whittington was united in marriage with Hannah Merrill, a daughter of Richard and Hannah (Perkins) Merrill. She is a native of Noble County, Ohio, where her birth occurred April 10, 1835, in Summerfield. Their union was blessed with eight children, as follows: an infant, deceased, born April 7, 1853; Sylvester, born April 29, 1854; Margaret R., born March 24, 1856; Richard H.; James T., born December 13, 1861; Elmer, born October 12, 1864; Laura J., born February 12, 1868; and William A. born September 25 1870. Mrs. Whittington died October 2, 1870. The father of these children was an active member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for twenty-five years. In political opinions he was a Republican. The mother was also an active member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Richard H. Whittington was reared in Noble County, Ohio, and attended the public schools. At the termination of his school career he became an instructor, and taught school for about six years. He spent eighteen months in Jefferson, Greene County, Iowa, and filled positions in Noble, Monroe and Washington counties in Ohio. After this he attended Starling Medical College, at Columbus, Ohio, to fit himself for the medical profession, and in 1891, received his degree. In May, of the same year, he purchased a fine farm near New Matamoras, but chose for his first field of practice the town of Rinard's Mills, Washington County, where he remained until 1893. He then left that place for West, Ohio, where he practiced successfully for a time, and then spent two years in New Matamoras. His health failed him then, and he was compelled to give up his practice there, and go to his farm near New Matamoras, where he began general farming on his 120 acres, and has since lived, and continued in general practice. He is especially fitted for a physician's work, having taken a post-graduate course of six weeks at the Starling University, where he graduated in the year 1896. He makes a specialty of female diseases but is also skillful in many others.

On June 24, 1894, the subject of this sketch was united in marriage with Clara Berentz, a daughter of Christopher W. Berentz, and they have had two children, namely: Starling, deceased, and Chauncey. By a former union Mr. Whittington has had two children,—Homer M., and Cora B. Mr. Whittington, together with his family, attends the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which he has been a member twenty-seven years. Since 1899, he has been a member of the American Medical Association. In politics, he is independent, and has served on the board of health of New Matamoras. He is a gentleman who enjoys the esteem and respect of his fellow citizens.

W. GRIMES, one of the foremost farmers of Grandview township, Washington County, Ohio, owns 171 acres of valuable land in sections 15 and 21, and carries on general farming, although he rents the greater part of his land to other people. He was born in Belmont County, Ohio, January 7, 1839, and is a son of John and Anna (Creighton) Grimes.

John Grimes was born in County Down, Ireland. He lived to see many years of active life, and when still a young man, previous to coming to this country, he was a weaver of fine linen. After arriving in the United States, he traveled from New York to Guernsey County, Ohio, and there made his home. He soon found work at that place, and was employed in doing contract work on the National Road. For a number of years, he also followed general farming, and in 1862, he moved from Belmont to Washington County, Ohio, where he purchased the farm now owned by his son, C. W., and lived there until 1882, the date of his demise.

Mr. Grimes was united in matrimony with Anna Creighton, while a resident of Guernsey County, and they were blessed with 13 children: Those now living are as follows: Jane; Mary; C. W.; Michael C.; Samuel S.; James K.; and George W. Michael C., James and George are ministers of the Gospel in the Methodist Episcopal denomination, having been reared in that faith by their parents. In politics John Grimes was always a Republican.

C. W. Grimes spent his time in various places in Guernsey and Belmont counties until the Civil War, when he enlisted as a private, August 12, 1862, in Company C, 52nd Reg., Ohio Vol. Infantry. He fought under General Daniel McCook, and saw hard service until he was honorably discharged in 1865, at Washington, D. C. He was in the battle of Perryville, on August 8, 1862, at Stone River, and in North and South Carolina with General Sherman. During this period he was wounded three times, once, July 19, 1864, in the left hand, while fighting in the battle of Peach Tree Creek, in Georgia, and again in the left shoulder, by a minie ball, at Bentonville, North Carolina. He was advanced, on account of valiant service, from a private's rank to that of captain. After the war, he returned to his farm, where he has continued until the present time, a well-to-do and successful farmer.

The subject of this sketch is a Prohibitionist, in his political opinions. He is an active member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at New Matamoras, Washington County, Ohio.

JOHAN H. RUSSELL, a prominent oil operator of the Ohio Valley, owning extensive holdings of valuable oil land both in Ohio and West Virginia, has been a resident of Marietta, since 1898. A Pennsylvanian by birth, he is a son of T. H. and Almeda M. (Firman) Russell, of whom the former was a native of the state of New York, and the latter of Pennsylvania.

T. H. Russell accompanied his parents, in childhood, to Warren County, Pennsylvania, where his father engaged in farming. In early manhood he became interested in the oil fields of the Keystone state, and embarked in the oil business, in which he continued through life. In 1893 he went to the vicinity of Corning, Ohio, and there his death occurred in 1898, at the age of 56 years.

The oil business has been familiar to John H. Russell since his boyhood. He is the senior member of the firm of Russell & Metzger, the scene of whose present labors is in the northern part of Washington County.

Mr. Russell and his family reside at No. 523 Second street, Marietta, and they are attendants of the Methodist Church. Fraternal-ly he is affiliated with the Masons and Elks.

ISAAC AND LEVI SOLE, brothers, and prominent agriculturists of Grandview township, Washington County, occupy farms side by side, about six miles from New Matamoras, on the Ohio River. They are prominent citizens of their township, and are experts in the line of work they pursue with such diligence and constancy. They are sons of Stephen and Catherine (Brown) Sole, well-known and respected citizens.

Stephen Sole was born in 1817, in the Keystone State, while his wife was a native of Belmont County, Ohio, where her birth took place in 1827. They had a family of thirteen children, of whom the following are still living: Isaac; Jacob, a farmer in Monroe County, Ohio; and Levi.

Isaac Sole was born in Monroe County, Ohio, on June 11, 1844, and lived on the home place until the Civil War broke out, in 1861. He then determined to fight for the Union, and enlisted in Company C, 2nd Reg., Virginia Volunteer Cavalry, in the Department of the East. Throughout the long struggle that followed he saw hard service, and fought with courage and resolution. While in Charleston, West Virginia, he was struck by a minie ball in the left shoulder, and the wound thus received kept him in the hospital forty-three days. On July 3, 1865, he was honorably discharged and returned to his home in Monroe County.

While serving his country he was united in marriage with Merinda E. Shriver, a native of Monroe County, whose birth took place in 1845. To their union were born eight children, as follows: James; Sylvester; Libby; Cordelia; Hattie (deceased); Catherine; Stephen (deceased); and Oscar. The family attend the United Brethren Church, of which Mr. Sole is a member.

After the war Mr. Sole purchased a farm in Monroe County and remained there in the interests of his calling until 1896, the time of his removal to his present farm of thirty acres. He does general farming and has been a tiller of the soil all his life. In politics he is a Democrat, and always defends his party principles.

Levi Sole, brother of Isaac, was born August 11, 1849, in Monroe County, Ohio. He was a resident of the homestead farm until 1872, when he was united in marriage with Mary Bowen, also a native of Monroe County, who was born in 1853. He then started out for himself, and after various experiences purchased his present home farm, beside that of his brother, Isaac. His family consists of four children, namely: E. Wilson; Charles; Maggie; and Elmer.

Levi Sole's farm contains forty acres of fertile land, which he keeps highly cultivated. He has always taken sides with the Democratic party, in politics, and is a valued member of that organization.

PHILIP F. KARCHER, who carries on general farming and dairying in Grand View township, Washington County, Ohio, is of German descent, but was born in Monroe County, Ohio, December 1, 1857. He is a son of Henry and Catherine (Voegley) Karcher. The former is a native of Alsace, where he was born in 1817, and the latter was born in Germany in 1821.

In 1844 Henry Karcher came to the United States and located in Pittsburg. Subsequently he went to Monroe County, and later on settled in New Matamoras, Washington County. He worked at his trade as a carpenter and also farmed during the remainder of his life there. He and his wife had nine children, as follows: Lena, who is the wife of Mr. Gautschi; Henry, deceased; Charles; William; August; Philip F.; Catherine, who married Henry Cerner, deceased; Henry; and Emma, who became the wife of Mr. Langsdorf. The family were members of the German Lutheran Church. In politics the father was an active worker in Democratic interests. He died December 19, 1898, age 81 years, two months and seven days. Mrs. Karcher is still living, aged 81 years.

The subject of this biography was born, reared and married in Monroe County, Ohio. His marriage took place August 7, 1884, when he led to the altar Caroline E. Lohr, who was born in Monroe County on July 6, 1859, and is a daughter of John and Caroline (Deagle) Lohr, natives of Germany. In 1838 Mrs. Karcher's father came to the United States. He was but nine years old at the time of this voyage. The family located in Pittsburg, and later moved to Monroe County, where he now resides, following the double occupation of carpenter and farmer. He and his wife had fourteen children, eight of whom are still living. Mrs. Karcher is the oldest child. The others are as follows: Margaret; George; John; Louise; Ed; Henry; and Amelia.

Philip F. Karcher and his wife have six children, as follows: Clarence; Olive; Roy; Lester; Archie; and Gracie. The family have lived in Washington County since 1891. Previous to their arrival Mr. Karcher was a barber in Moundsville, West Virginia, for ten years and ten days, but is now content with general farming and dairying on his 165 acres of land. He also raises stock to some extent, and prospers in all he undertakes. In politics is a Democrat of active partisanship. He and Mrs. Karcher are valued members of the Lutheran Church.

GEORGE DEXTER HARVEY, a well-known insurance agent of New Matamoras, Washington County, Ohio, was born at Flints Mill, in the same county, September 11, 1859. He is a son of George W. and Mary E. (Stout) Harvey, the former being a native of Greene County, Pennsylvania, and the latter of Pleasants County, West Virginia.

George W. Harvey went to Ohio in 1857 and located at Flints Mill, where he followed general merchandizing until his death, which occurred in 1873. He was preceded to the grave by his wife, who died in 1872. They reared four children, all of whom are deceased, except the subject of this biography.

George Dexter Harvey was the recipient of a good mental training. He attended the Greene Street School in Marietta, Ohio, and subsequently took a supplementary course in Duff's Business College, in Pittsburg. He then returned to Washington County, engaged as clerk on a steamboat and followed that occupation for a number of years. In 1894 Mr. Harvey embarked in the insurance business. He writes a large number of policies each year, dealing principally in fire insurance. He carries an agency for numerous eastern companies, and does quite an extensive business. Among the companies he represents are the Hartford, the Ætna, the Glens Falls, the Columbia, of Dayton, Ohio, and the Fire Association, of Philadelphia.

In 1885 Mr. Harvey was united in marriage with Lida Blanche Talbot, a native of New Matamoras, and a daughter of C. W. and Nancy J. Talbot. Mrs. Harvey was born May 5, 1860. She and her husband are active members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. They have three children,—Nellie Grant, Nancy Talbot, and Mary West. Fraternally Mr. Harvey affiliates with the Knights of Pythias. He is a man of broad ideas, and is a public-spirited and worthy citizen.

JOHN W. BERENTZ, cashier of the First National Bank of New Matamoras, was born in Adams County, Ohio, January 17, 1871, and is a son of Christian W. and Rebecca (Barrett) Berentz.

Christian W. Berentz, who is one of the old and favorably known residents of Washington County, was born January 8, 1836, in Pennsylvania. He led to the hymeneal altar Rebecca Barrett, a native of Monroe County, Ohio, and their union was blessed with ten children, as follows: Della; Eliza; George V.; Eveline; Alice; John W.; Belle; Clara; and Cora and Nora, twins.

John W. Berentz applied himself to his studies in the schools of Monroe and Grandview townships, and thus received his early training in the paths of knowledge. The greater part of his youth was spent on a farm, and when his school days were past Mr. Berentz began life as a teacher and taught school very ably and successfully for the twelve years that followed. Half of that time was spent in the schools near New Matamoras. Since 1902 he has held his present position as cashier in the First National Bank, and has won the confidence and approval of those around him.

In 1892 the subject of this sketch was united in matrimony with Lilly M. Springer, who was born in New Matamoras, September 19, 1891, and is a daughter of George Springer, of New Matamoras. They have two children,—George W. and Alma Beryl. The former was born February 19, 1893, and the latter October 14, 1899. The family attend the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mr. Berentz is a valued member of the Democratic party, to which he has been of service many times. He was clerk of his township for two terms, and village clerk two terms. His reputation as an honest, public-spirited citizen is untarnished, and he enjoys the good wishes of his fellow-citizens.

R. R. B. ROWLES, a rising young physician and surgeon of New Matamoras, Washington County, Ohio, has a profitable practice extending far into the surrounding country, and makes a specialty of treating nose, throat, and chest diseases, having taken special courses on such ailments.

Dr. Rowles was born in Monroe County, Ohio, October 30, 1865, and is a son of Jacob and Eliza (Colvin) Rowles, and grandson of John and Mary Rowles.

Jacob Rowles was also an Ohioan by birth, and in 1841 accompanied his parents to Monroe County. His wife was born in that county on May 3, 1835. In 1894 he located in New Matamoras, where he is spending his declining years. In politics he is a Democrat. He and his wife reared four children, viz: Addie, deceased; Charles; Benton, who is successfully engaged in teaching; and R. B., the subject of this writing.

R. B. Rowles attended the public schools of both Monroe and Washington counties, and took a supplementary course at Ada, Hardin County, Ohio, where he received the degree of B. S. He then entered the Baltimore Medical College, from which he graduated in 1899. He took special courses in nose, throat and chest ailments and has met with unqualified success in the treatment of those diseases.

Dr. Rowles located in New Matamoras in 1899, soon after his graduation, and is looked upon as one of the most successful physicians in that locality. April 21, 1898, he was joined in matrimony with M. Marie Walter, and two children bless their home. These children are twins, and their names are Everett and Emmett. Mrs. Rowles was born in Monroe County, Ohio, December 1, 1873, but was reared and educated principally in Washington County. She is a daughter of Israel and Catherine Walter, of New Matamoras. She is a member of the M. E. Church.

Politically Dr. Rowles is allied with the Democratic party, and fraternally is a member of the I. O. O. F. and K. of P. He is a good and useful citizen of his community, and has hosts of friends, who predict a prosperous future for him.

UGUSTUS DANA STONE, deceased, was one of Belpre's oldest and most prominent citizens. He was born February 17, 1835, in Washington County, Ohio, and was a son of Col. John and Charlotte P. (Loring) Stone.

Col. John Stone was born June 23, 1795, and was a son of Capt. Jonathan Stone, who first came to Marietta in 1788. Capt. Jonathan Stone was born at Braintree, Massachusetts, in 1751, and was a tanner by occupation. He enlisted in the Colonial army during the Revolutionary War, with the rank of orderly sergeant. He was commissioned captain in 1781, and served in that capacity until the close of the war. He was appointed treasurer of Washington County in 1792. He died March 24, 1801. Colonel Stone lived upon the old homestead, now occupied by the widow of Augustus Dana Stone. The house is over a hundred years old, and originally stood near the river. Later it was moved to its present location with thirty-eight yoke of oxen, in four hours' time. In 1826 Mr. Stone was made colonel of militia, and was thereafter known by the title of colonel. In 1819 he married Charlotte P. Loring, a daughter of Ezekiel Loring, who came to Ohio from Massachusetts, when she was seventeen years old.

Augustus Dana Stone received a good mental training in the log school houses of Belpre township, and thereafter took up farming, which he followed throughout life. He enlisted in the 100-day service during the Civil War, and served in the 148th Reg., Ohio Vol. Infantry. He was a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, and in politics was a strong Republican.

Mr. Stone was united in marriage with Rowena Nye Putnam, who was born in Belpre township November 5, 1834, and is a daughter of William P. and Rowena N. Putnam. Her father was born April 2, 1792, and died May 31, 1871. His wife was born August 15, 1802, and died in September, 1885. They had eight children two of whom survive, namely: Mrs. Stone, and Mrs. Julia Wilcox, who resides in St. Louis. William P. Putnam was the founder of the Universalist Church in Belpre township, and was very active in church work. He was a good man, and was held in the highest esteem by all who knew him.

Mrs. Rowena Nye Stone received her mental training in the common schools of Belpre township. She is well-read, and is thoroughly posted on the history of the township. She has always taken a deep interest in all that pertains to the welfare of the county, and now resides on the old homestead, which is located within the corporation limits of Belpre. Four children blessed her union with Mr. Stone, namely: Anselm Tupper; Grace, wife of P. W. Athey; Mary N., wife of Dr. F. S. McGee; and William N., who married Josephine Thompson, a member of a Pennsylvania family. Mrs. Stone is a member of the Universalist Church.

PETER HICKMAN, a retired farmer of Grandview township, Washington County, Ohio, is an upright, worthy gentleman, respected and honored by all. He was born December 28, 1830, in Monroe County, and is a son of William and Margaret (Green) Hickman, natives of the Keystone State. He is the only survivor of ten children born to his parents.

William Hickman was also a farmer, who went to Ohio about 1822, when still young, and located in Monroe County, where he lived all his life. In politics he was of the Democratic party.

Monroe County was the scene of Peter Hickman's boyhood experiences, and there also he received his mental training. When the Rebellion spread confusion and gloom over the country, he enlisted, in 1862, in Company D, 116th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., and served throughout the war, taking part in many skirmishes and battles. He fought in the battle of Piedmont and was wounded in the head by a minie ball; he was also in Hunter's raid in the Shenandoah Valley. He became sick at Staunton, and was sent to Gallipolis, where he remained in the hospital about a month, and then reported for duty at Harper's Ferry. He was sent to the Shenandoah Valley and there served under General Sheridan. Afterward he was on duty near Richmond and along the James River. He was in the hospital at Point of Rocks for some time, and was discharged at Dennison, Ohio, thus ending his service in the army.

At the close of the war Mr. Hickman returned to Monroe County and there lived until 1866, when he removed to Payton Island and farmed three years previous to his arrival in Grandview township, the place of his residence for so many years. He bought his farms there in sections 31 and 35, where he remained five years. Following this, he lived in Lower Newport for fifteen years, and then returned to his old homestead, where he has been in retirement during the past five years.

In 1854 Mr. Hickman chose for his wife Eliza Jackson, and they had three children, William Edward; John Thomas; and Elida Belle, who was united in marriage with Mr. Newlen. Mr. Hickman is a member of the Christian Union Church, and is a Prohibitionist in his political opinions.

C. THOMPSON, the genial proprietor of the Green Hotel at New Matamoras, Washington County, Ohio, has been located there only since 1900, but his place has become popular and enjoys a fair patronage. Mr. Thompson is a native of Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, where he was born November 8, 1861. He is a son of Captain John A. and Nancy (Adams) Thompson.

Captain John A. Thompson was born in Tytersburg, Pennsylvania, in 1823. From 1865 to 1869 he followed a river life and subsequently engaged in the hotel business, which occupied his attention for a number of years. He was located three years at Foxburg, Pennsylvania, after which he went to Clarion County, of the same state, and conducted a general store for a brief period. Selling out to advantage in 1873, he went to Butler County, Pennsylvania, and again engaged in the hotel business. He remained there two years, and afterward followed similar work in Bradford, Pennsylvania, where he spent the closing years of his life, and died in 1878. He was a Republican in politics.

Captain Thompson's wife was also born in Pennsylvania, near Parker's Landing. Their children are as follows: James; Minerva; Alfred; Cassius M. C.; O. C.; and Alfred. Mr. Thompson was reared in the state of Pennsylvania and New York. He followed the oil business for many years, and located in New Matamoras in 1900, as previously mentioned. In 1885 he was united in marriage with Minnie Golden, a native of Rochester, New York, where her birth took place in 1864. Mrs. Thompson is a daughter of P. Golden, who is now a resident of Butler County, Pennsylvania, where he follows the oil business. He and his wife reared six children, namely: Joseph; John; Walter; Minnie; Anna; and Agnes.

The subject of this sketch and his estimable wife have seven children, namely: Anna; Mabel; Louis; Agnes; Mary; Edna; and Helen. The family worship at the Catholic Church, of which Mrs. Thompson is a member. Mr. Thompson has liberal ideas on the subject of religion. In his political action he is an earnest supporter of the Democratic party.

CHARLES THEODORE NIXON, who is a prosperous farmer, owns a farm of 140 acres, about three and a half miles southwest of Beverly, Washington County, Ohio, and is well known all over the county for his integrity and industry. He is a son of George H. and Adaline A. (Smith) Nixon, and was born October 8, 1852, in Watertown township, Washington County.

George H. Nixon was born in Herkimer County, New York, April 7, 1828. He made his home in Watertown township, Washington County, in 1839, at which time his father, Otis Nixon, purchased the place now owned by his son, the subject of this sketch. George H. Nixon's demise took place in 1894, and was deply mourned by his fellow citizens, as during all his life he was highly respected in the community. He was a Democrat, in politics. October 28, 1851, George H. Nixon married Adaline A. Smith, who was born August 22, 1831, and is living in Washington County, on the home place. She is a native of Fairfield township and was the mother of five children, namely: Charles T.; Mary E., who was born December 27, 1854, and died May 31, 1862; Emma C., who was born July 20, 1858, and died June 21, 1862; George D., who was born June 15, 1860, and died June 19, 1862; and William W., who was born June 26, 1867, and now lives in Missouri.

July 4, 1872, Charles T. Nixon was united in marriage with Bernendina Bennink, a daughter of John and Fredricke (Darding) Bennink, and a native of Watertown township, where she was born in 1851. This union was blessed with two children,—Lawrence E., born November 30, 1874, who was killed September 1, 1884, when 10 years old, having been run over by horses; and Addie L., born July 8, 1879, who married Pearl Pickering, and lives in Watertown, Ohio.

John Bennink, Mrs. Charles T. Nixon's father, was a native of Zutphen, Holland, where, during his early years, he was a seaman, and later, took up the occupation of an awning-maker. After coming to this country, he farmed until his death, on June 14, 1875, at the age of 62 years. His wife, Fredricke Darding, before marriage, was a native of Durkheim, Bavaria, born in 1828, and is living in Louisville, Kentucky. She was the mother of 12 children, namely: Elizabeth, born May 1, 1849; Henry, born August 27, 1850; Bernendina, born January 22, 1852; Johana, born September 14, 1853; John, born January 13, 1855; Mary, born June 11, 1856; Fredericke, born June 20, 1858; William, born November 3, 1860; Amelia, born August 16, 1863; Louisa, born January 5, 1865; Jacob, born July 11, 1869; and Wilhelmina, born December 23, 1870.

Mrs. Nixon died July 19, 1881. She was a member of the Universalist Church, and was devoted to its work. On May 3, 1882, Mr. Nixon was united in marriage with her sister, Johana, and they have two children,—Minnie J., born July 10, 1884, who married Floyd L. Waterman, and resides in Watertown; and Maud A., born October 18, 1887, who is still at home. During the Civil War, Mrs. Nixon's father served as a telegraph repairer in the Union Army.

Mr. Nixon is a Democrat, in political affairs, and is now serving his second term as trustee of his township. Washington County would greatly miss him, since he is just the type of citizen that helps to elevate the standard of any township or county.

ALBANESS SPENCER, a well-known and highly respected farmer of Washington County, residing upon a fine, highly-cultivated farm of 131 acres, in Dunham township, was born May 3, 1822, and is a son of Samuel P. and Catherine (Proffitt) Spencer. His father was a native of Virginia, and his mother, of East Tennessee.

Samuel P. Spencer was a son of James Spencer, who was also born in Virginia, and during the greater part of his life, was a contractor for public works. He built many of the canals, which in his day were used as the principal transportation routes. His useful life closed at the age of 43 years. His wife survived until 1880, and died when 84 years old. Three children born to Samuel and Catherine Spencer, namely: Albaness, Mary and Adeline.

Albaness Spencer had but the meager educational advantages of those early days, his schooling being confined to the few winter months, when farm work was light. His tastes have always been in the line of farming, and to that he has devoted his attention, occasionally engaging in logging in the timber lands. The fine property owned by Mr. Spencer, which he has brought to such a state of productiveness, was purchased by himself. He is occupied in farming and stock raising.

In 1848, Mr. Spencer married Perlina Dye, who was a daughter of Amos Dye, and to this union has been born a family of nine children, namely: Amos, deceased; John R.; Thomas, deceased; Samuel; an infant, deceased; Bannie; Florence; Leota C. and Augusta. Mr. Spencer has reared his family in the faith of the Congregational Church, of which he is a member and to which he liberally contributes. His life has been a comparatively quiet one, filled with the duties of the hour; in its decline he finds himself surrounded with many friends.

Bannie Spencer, son of Albaness Spencer, is also a farmer and resides in Dunham township. Since attending the district schools of Washington County he has devoted his whole attention to agricultural affairs. He owns one of the finest farms in Dunham township, the old Gregg place, consisting of 112 acres, which he purchased in 1898. This is valuable, productive land, and under Mr. Spencer's excellent cultivation yields enormously.

In 1885, Mr. Spencer married Lizzie Rawson, who was a daughter of Stephen Rawson, and four children resulted from this union, namely: Ida; Harry, deceased; Homer and Bertha. In political adherence, Mr. Spencer is a staunch Republican, and capably filled the position of township trustee for three years. Being a man well qualified for almost any office in the gift of the party, he came near to being made the candidate for sheriff of the county, being beaten at the convention by a small majority. Mr. Spencer belongs to a substantial and reliable family, all of whom have been respected in their various communities.

GEORGE T. GALE, M. D., who commands an extensive practice in Newport and its vicinity, was born in that town, in Washington County, Ohio, December 22, 1852, and is a son of George Washington and Cathrine (Wells) Gale. His grandfather was George Gale, a sea captain by occupation.

George Washington Gale was born in Hampshire County, West Virginia, where he received his early educational training. He completed his education at Cumberland, Maryland, and prepared himself for the medical profession under the preceptorship of Professor N. R. Smith, of Baltimore. He began practice in 1821, and later located in Wood County, West Virginia, where he practiced until 1841, after which he was located at Newport, Washington County, until his death, in July, 1877. He married Catharine Wells, who was from Tyler County, West Virginia, and was a daughter of Nicholas Wells, for many years a farmer of that county.

Dr. George T. Gale was a pupil in the public schools in early life, after which he attended Jefferson Medical College three years, graduating therefrom in 1874. In that year he began the practice of his profession in Newport. He took a post-graduate course in 1891. He is one of the leading physicians of Newport, and his patients include many who reside in other counties and cities. Dr. Gale is a member of the Washington County Medical Society, the Ohio State Medical Society, and the American Medical Association. The Doctor is a breeder of fine, thoroughbred horses and cattle, and has a very fine home place consisting of ten acres, located in the suburbs.

Dr. Gale married Myra H. Hays, a daughter of Richard Hays, a farmer of Washington County. To them were born three children, of whom two survive, namely: George H. and Larry H. Religiously Dr. Gale is of the Catholic faith, while Mrs. Gale adheres to the Methodist Episcopal Church.

RUFUS M. MANKINS, a substantial, retired farmer of Dunham township and an esteemed citizen of the village of Belpre, was born in Dunham township, Washington County, Ohio, May 4, 1834. He is a son of John and Betsy (Ellenwood) Mankins, the former a native of Washington County, and the latter a native of Virginia.

John Mankins was a very successful farmer of Dunham township and was considered in his day one of the substantial men of his township. The excellent farm which is now the property of Esquire Phillips, in Dunham township, was a part of Mr. Mankins' estate. In politics he was an Old-Line Whig, and welcomed the advent of the Republican party, to which he attached himself, although never a seeker for political honors. He was much respected and his death, in 1884, at the age of 65 years, was very generally mourned. His widow died in 1892, aged 76 years. Their children were five in number, as follows: Rufus M.; Catherine L.; Caroline C.; Daniel E.; and Mary.

Rufus M. Mankins obtained his mental training in the district schools of Dunham township, and employed himself in farm work until the outbreak of the Civil War. With other loyal young men of Washington County he offered his services in defense of his country, enlisting at Camp Chase, in Company B, 88th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., under the command of Maj. John W. Schuyles and Capt. John C. Moon. During the greater portion of his three years of army service he was detailed for garrison duty, and was honorably discharged July 3, 1865.

Mr. Mankins then returned to peaceful pursuits, and continued to operate his large and valuable farm until 1892. This desirable property is located within three miles of a railroad, and being well watered, is well adapted to the raising of stock, in which Mr. Mankins has been extensively engaged, in connection with general farming, for many years. He became possessed of 90 acres of this farm prior to the war, and the other 94 acres he has added since then. In 1892 Mr. Mankins retired from active life and removed to a pleasant residence in Belpre, where, surrounded by comforts, he proposed to spend his declining years, leaving the management of his large farming interests to the younger members of the family.

In 1859 Mr. Mankins was married to Mary Brown, a daughter of John Brown, a native of Argyleshire, in the Highlands of Scotland. Mrs. Mankins was also born in Scotland, and belongs to a well-known family of this locality. Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Mankins, namely: Ella R., Norville W. and Anna B. Ella R. married Dillon Warfield, of Washington County, who operates the farm for his father-in-law. The children born to Mr.

and Mrs. Warfield are,—Sidney; Charles; Frank; Walker; Wilson; Mary; and John. Norville W. married Alice Grubbs, a native of Illinois, and they now reside on a farm seven miles from Kewanee, Illinois. Anna B. married David Abbott, who resides in Belpre, Ohio, and they have two children, Arthur and Harry.

Mr. Mankins is well and favorably known throughout the county. In politics, he is a Republican, and has very capably filled the offices of township trustee, supervisor and school director. His integrity is beyond question, and his personal attributes have won him many lifelong friends.

FRANKLIN MCGIRR, one of the most enterprising citizens of Little Hocking, Washington County, Ohio, is an extensive lumber dealer and manufacturer of building material; he is also a land owner, and an agriculturist of no mean ability. Mr. McGirr is a native of Washington County, where he was born in 1854, and is a son of Jonah and Lucy S. (Fairchild) McGirr, natives of Stark County, Ohio. The family is of Scotch lineage.

Jonah McGirr was a carpenter by trade, but during his active life he also farmed to a great extent. He has a fine farm, upon which he is now spending his declining years in peace and contentment. He and his worthy wife reared a family of four children, namely: Selden; Franklin; Emily; and Esther.

Franklin McGirr attended the common schools of his native county and then worked upon the farm until 1876. At that period he went to Little Hocking, and in company with his brother engaged in the planing-mill business, which they conducted profitably and well until 1880. Then Mr. McGirr sold his interest to his brother and purchased his present property and the manufacturing establishment founded in 1836 by William Bartlett and Horace Curtis. In this line he has met with success. He handles all kinds of paints, oils, glass and builders' hardware, and he has erected many substantial residences throughout Washington County, which testify to his ability and skill in that direction. In partnership with his wife, he owns one of the finest farms to be found in this section, consisting of 132 acres of land, and located on Big Hocking River, in Athens County, Ohio. This he devotes to the raising of good stock. On a part of the farm there is a fine young orchard of 700 choice apple trees, which will some day bring him a handsome profit, and which are now a source of pride and gratification to him.

In 1875 Mr. McGirr was united in marriage with Mary J. Bean, a daughter of Amos Bean, of Athens County. They have had eight children, five of whom are still living, namely: Orland; Laura; Estella; Grace; and Arthur J. Mrs. McGirr is a member of the M. E. Church, and Mr. McGirr is a believer in the Quaker faith. In politics, he is of a liberal mind, and has served as school director for five years with good judgment. He is a public-spirited citizen, and stands high in the community.

G. EVANS, M. D. Among the many good, reliable citizens of Washington County the name of Dr. W. G. Evans is exceptionally well known. He is a resident of Little Hocking, and is one of the foremost practicing physicians of this section. His birthplace was Richardsville, Jefferson County, Pennsylvania, where he was born February 4, 1869. He is a son of Lewis and Julia (Preston) Evans, both of whom were also natives of Pennsylvania.

Lewis Evans is still a resident of the Keystone State, and has been a prominent and influential citizen all his life. He is engaged in the occupation of farming and lumbering. He and his estimable wife had five children, as follows: Luther E., a practicing physician, of Alton, Ohio; Harry L., a school teacher and law student, living at Braddock, Washington County, Pennsylvania; Charles, who is pursuing a prosperous mercantile life in Pennsylvania; Elizabeth, the wife of Benjamin Snyder, a farmer and lumberman, of Hazen, Jefferson County, Pennsylvania; and W. G.

HAMILTON P. SHEETS.

W. G. Evans received his preliminary education in the common schools of his native county, and some time later attended the State Normal School at Edinboro, Erie County, Pennsylvania, for three years. He subsequently entered the Starling Medical College, of Columbus, Ohio, where he took a three years' course, and graduated with the degree of M. D. on April 14, 1898. He chose for his first field of practice, Jersey, Ohio, but soon afterward located at Little Hocking, Washington County, where he has been so successful as to be content to remain. His practice is steadily increasing, and he has some of Washington County's best citizens among his patients.

May 19, 1900, Martha Humphreys, a native of Jefferson County, Pennsylvania, became the Doctor's wife. They have one child, Mary Elizabeth, born June 23, 1902. In political opinions he is a firm Republican. Fraternally he belongs to Colville Lodge, No. 337, A. F. & A. M., and is also a member of the J. O. U. A. M.

WILLIAM ANDREW, a prominent farmer of Washington County, residing on a well cultivated farm in Dunham township, near Veto, was born in Palmer township, in the same county, on April 10, 1837. He is a son of William and Elizabeth (Breckenridge) Andrew, both of whom were natives of the highlands of Scotland.

William Andrew, the elder, came to America in 1836, and located in Washington County, Ohio, on a farm in Palmer township. Subsequently he disposed of this farm, and purchased land in Dunham township. His death occurred in 1860, at the age of 67 years. He was a typical Scot, careful, industrious and provident, and accumulated a large property, which insured the comfort of his family. He had also the integrity and honesty of his countrymen, and no bond was needed in any business transaction when William Andrew had passed his word. The children born to Mr. and Mrs. Andrew were as follows: David; Charlotte, who married J. H. Shaw, of Pana, Illinois; Elizabeth, deceased; William; Jane, widow of Peter Watterson; A. Thomas, deceased; Jeanette, who married J. H. Newell, and lives in Kansas; Margaret, who married Andrew Greenlees, and lives in Barlow township; and Emma A. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew were members of the United Presbyterian Church. In his early life, Mr. Andrew voted with the Whig party, but at the date of his death, in 1896, he was supporting the Democratic party.

William Andrew, the subject of this sketch, enjoyed the educational privileges of the public schools of Washington County, and at an early age became familiar with the life of a farmer. He has successfully followed agricultural pursuits since his school days. In 1872, he purchased his father's estate, which consisted of 200 acres of very valuable land, and since then has raised wheat, corn, oats and vegetables. As a grower of fine cattle and stock, Mr. Andrew is known through the county. He has about 150 sheep, and many head of hogs, cattle and horses.

In 1867, Mr. Andrew married Jane Greenlees, of Watertown township, Washington County. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew attend the services of the Presbyterian Church, at Veto, and contribute to its support. Mr. Andrew takes an intelligent interest in politics, and votes with the Republican party. His standing in his community is high, and he is regarded as a good neighbor and an excellent citizen.

HAMILTON P. SHEETS, of the firm of H. P. Sheets & Son, a prosperous general merchant in Lower Newport, Newport township, Ohio, is a son of Henry and Rebecca (Parr) Sheets. He was born in New Matamoras, Washington County, Ohio, June 13, 1847, and was the first child born there.

Henry Sheets was born December 8, 1807, in Washington County, Ohio. He laid out the town of New Matamoras, in 1847, and built the first store and flour mills there. His wife was Rebecca Parr, before her marriage, and was a native of Grandview township. Their offspring was as follows: John N., deceased; Minerva; Jesse P.; Sylvester; Leander; William H.; Alonzo; Rebecca, deceased; Ruth; Hamilton P., the subject of this personal history; M. Catharine; George W.; and Mary E. Henry Sheets is now deceased.

Hamilton P. Sheets received his mental training in the schools of his native place. He chose for his wife, Kate A. Wamsley, a daughter of Judge Thomas O. Wamsley, of Edina, Missouri. She was born October 23, 1854. Her father was county judge of Knox County, Missouri, and a very prominent jurist of his day. It was while he was visiting in Knox County, that Mr. Sheets married his daughter. The nuptial ceremony was performed February 16, 1875. They now have three children, —Grace E., born February 12, 1876; Henry Lee, born January 19, 1878; and Bertha F., born January 23, 1885. The family attend divine worship at the Baptist Church.

Mr. Sheets has a fine farm of 125 acres, which he cultivated until 1898, but since that time he has been in the merchandise business with his son, Henry L., although meanwhile superintending his landed interests. Politically, he may be relied upon to promote the success of the Democratic party. He has never had reason to regret his change of occupation, as a mercantile life offers many inducements to one who has energy, and is alert for the main opportunity.

ON. AUSTIN L. CURTIS, ex-member of the Ohio Legislature, has held all the township offices in Belpre township, and represented his district in 1865, 1866 and 1867 in the State Legislature; he is now a prominent farmer in Belpre township. His fine residence in the Newbury settlement is not only one of the most attractive in that section of Washington County but is the ancestral homestead of the Curtis family.

Mr. Curtis was born December 19, 1828. He is a son of Judge Walter and Almira (Guthrie) Curtis, and grandson of Eleazer Curtis. The Curtis family are of English descent, and the grandfather of Austin L. accompanied his parents from Connecticut in 1792. In 1828 he settled upon the property now owned by the subject of this sketch, and soon afterward built the substantial brick house upon his farm, the brick in which was manufactured from clay found upon the property. He owned at one time 400 acres of land, and carried on general farming and stock raising. He was one of the substantial men and progressive farmers of his day.

Judge Walter Curtis was a native of Warren, Litchfield County, Connecticut, where he was born September 20, 1787. He was a Whig, and held all the township offices, always taking a very prominent part in politics. He was a member of the state legislature in 1837, and was associate judge for a number of years. He and his wife were Universalists. They reared four children, as follows: Augustus Stephen; Caroline C.; Marion; and Austin L.

Austin L. Curtis was reared to agricultural pursuits. He obtained, in Washington County, Ohio, such meagre education as the district schools afforded, which was the only mental training the youth of those early days received. After reaching maturity he remained on the farm, and has made a specialty of general farming.

The subject of this sketch has been twice married. In 1854 he was joined in matrimony with M. Bethia Putnam, a daughter of William Pitt Putnam, of Belpre. This union resulted in the following children: Henrietta D., wife of A. J. Hitt, of Chicago, Illinois; Laura G.; Herbert S.; Elizabeth P.; and three others who are deceased. A. J. Hitt was formerly general manager of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway, and is still a prominent official in connection with that road. Laura G. married George Preston, of Marietta. Herbert S. is a successful dentist of Parkersburg, West Virginia. Elizabeth P. is unmarried.

In 1879 Mr. Curtis was called upon to sustain the loss of his beloved companion, and some years later contracted a second matrimonial alliance. This time Mrs. Mary A. (Pennybacker) Tompkins was the lady of his choice. The present Mrs. Curtis is a native of West Virginia, and one child blessed her union with Mr. Curtis. His name is Harry P., and he is still at home. By a former marriage, with Dr. J. C. Tompkins, Mrs. Curtis had one child, Anna L. Tompkins.

In religious belief, Mr. Curtis and his family are Universalists. In his political opinions, he is a staunch Republican, and has ever been faithful to the interests of his party. During the Civil War he enlisted with the 100-day men, as a member of Company H, 148th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf. At the expiration of his term, September 4, 1864, he received an honorable discharge. In the campaign along the James River Mr. Curtis contracted malarial fever, and was many months in recovering. He is recognized as one of the representative citizens of Belpre township, and is exceedingly popular and influential throughout Washington County.

LE ROY C. KERR, a stock buyer and shipper, and a prominent liveryman of Newport, Ohio, is one of a family of five children born to Samuel and Hannah (Brown) Kerr. His father was a Pennsylvanian by birth and followed the life of a farmer, and was also engaged in the river work during his younger days. While farming he paid considerable attention to stock raising and shipping.

LeRoy C. Kerr was born in Newport township, Washington County, Ohio, September 20, 1851, his mother dying when he was a mere lad. He received a common school education and was reared on his father's farm, where he obtained a considerable knowledge of stock dealing. When he grew to manhood he engaged in stock buying and shipping, and continued in that business for a period of seventeen years. In the spring of 1898 he established in Newport a fine livery, sale and feed stable, which he has since conducted. It has been a great success in every way, and he enjoys the patronage of the leading citizens of the community.

Mr. Kerr was united in marriage with Susie Mackey, a daughter of James Mackey, of Marietta township, one of the prominent and well-to-do farmers of the county. This union was blessed with two children, namely: Carrie H. and Katherine M. Mrs. Kerr and her children are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Kerr has always been a staunch Democrat in politics. He owns a fine residence in Newport, and he and his family enjoy the respect and friendship of the community.

B. MCGILL, a prominent farmer of Dunham township, and a leading citizen of Washington County, was born upon his present farm, on March 22, 1844, and to the improvement and development of this property, he has devoted a goodly portion of his active life.

Mr. McGill is a son of Neil and Isabel (Patterson) McGill, both of whom were born in the highlands of Scotland. For a number of years, Neil McGill followed the carpenter trade in the city of Glasgow. In 1832, he came with his family to America, and located in Washington County, Ohio, where two years later he purchased a farm of 60 acres. This, his industry and good management increased to 180 acres. His useful life ended in 1871, when he was 72 years of age. The children born to Neil McGill and his wife were as follows: John, born in Scotland; Sarah, and Hugh, Mary, and W. B., born in America. An infant child of the family died in Scotland, and another in America. These parents were pious and estimable members of the United Presbyterian Church, and brought their children up in that religious faith.

W. B. McGill, the subject of this biography, was reared on the farm which he has increased to 300 acres. He acquired a good common-school education in Dunham township. His early environment caused his selection of agricultural pursuits as an occupation, and through life he has used his efforts and influence not only to improve his own large property, but also to further the interests of the farmers in his locality. His connection with the Grange movement has been active, and when elected to positions of public trust, he has endeavored to secure legislation of advantage to the agricultural regions. In politics, Mr. McGill is a Republican, and as a man of worth and responsibility, he has been called upon, at various times to serve his township. He represented his district in the state legislature during the session of 1896-1897.

In 1875, Mr. McGill was united in marriage with Mary Drain, who was a daughter of Daniel Drain, a native of Washington County, Ohio, and two children were born to their union, namely: Frank C.; and Bonnie B., who is the wife of Rev. Samuel E. Foote, of Barlow township. Mr. McGill is a leading member of the Presbyterian Church, of Veto, Ohio, in which he is one of the elders. He is interested in a number of enterprises in his community, and is one of the directors of the Washington County Mutual Insurance Company, of Marietta. He is known as a thorough business man, and enjoys, in no small degree, the confidence and esteem of his fellow citizens.

REV. EDWARD MORRIS, a minister of the Universalist faith, residing at Center Belpre, Washington County, Ohio, is district superintendent of the Universalist churches for the South-eastern Ohio district. Rev. Mr. Morris was born in Stockport, England, on January 24, 1837. He is a son of Jesse and Frances (Cheetham) Morris, both natives of England. Jesse Morris came to America in 1841, and settled in Columbus, Ohio, where he plied his trade of plasterer for many years. His death took place in the same city in 1884, when he was sixty-nine years old.

Edward Morris began to acquire an education by diligently attending the public schools of Columbus, Ohio. This was supplemented by a complete theological course at the St. Lawrence University, at Canton, New York, which he attended for three years, graduating from the theological department of that institution in 1864. His first charge in ministerial work was at Lansing, Michigan, where, however, he remained but a short time. He then located at Mt. Pleasant, Henry County, Iowa, where he labored earnestly for two years. But the western climate impaired his health, and on this account he returned to Washington County, Ohio, where he regained his health.

After recuperating Rev. Mr. Morris preached at Mt. Gilead, Ohio, after which he again spent a brief period in Washington County. His next field of labor was at Kent, Portage County, Ohio, where he remained five years. The five years following were spent in the State of New Jersey, after which he labored four years at Chatham, Massachusetts, and three years at Weymouth, in the same State. In 1898 Rev. Mr. Morris returned to Washington County, which has been his home ever since.

Mr. Morris moved onto a farm in Washington County belonging to the Loring estate, and in connection with his ministerial duties he is quite a prominent agriculturist of Belpre township. October 26, 1866, he was joined in matrimony with Delia M. Loring, a daughter of Hon. Oliver Rice and Orinda (Howe) Loring. Her father was associate Judge of Washington County for many years. Her paternal grandfather, Daniel Loring, was born in Sudbury, Massachusetts, and was one of the original settlers of Washington County. He settled at Center Belpre, opposite the famous Blennerhasset Island. In company with other settlers of those early days, for the sake of safety, he lived in the farmer's castle, which was built for the purpose of protecting the white settlers. He accumulated 200 acres of valuable land along the Ohio River, which he bulwarked during the period of Indian activity.

Mrs. Morris is one of a family of nine children, five of whom died in infancy. Those who reached maturity are, besides the wife of Mr. Morris, Francis H.; Delia M.; Lethe S.; and Corwin H. The father of these children died November 23, 1873. By a previous marriage, contracted with Fanny Warren, three children were born to him,—D. W.; Lucy R.; and Jesse D. The mother of Mrs. Morris survived her husband many years, her death taking place April 30, 1889. Both Mr. and Mrs. Morris are highly esteemed throughout Washington County, and they are among the most prominent citizens of Belpre.

MALCOM SHAW, who is prominently identified with the farming, mercantile and political interests of Washington County, was born in Dunham township, Washington County, Ohio, April 15, 1853, and is a son of Daniel and Catherine (McKay) Shaw, both of whom were natives of Argyleshire, in the highlands of Scotland.

Daniel Shaw was born in 1798, and died in 1873, aged 75 years. In 1819, at the age of 21 years, he came to America and located in Washington County, Ohio, where he at one time owned 800 acres of land, and was one of the largest tax-payers in the county. He was a man of excellent reputation, became prominent in Democratic politics, and efficiently filled the office of township trustee for a considerable period. He was also a leading member of the United Presbyterian Church, to which he was a liberal contributor. His generosity is remembered in connection with many benevolent enterprises. Daniel Shaw was twice married. His first wife, Mary Harvey, left, at death, two children,—Maria and Harvey. Mr. Shaw, in course of time, married Catherine McKay, and the surviving children of this union are as follows: Daniel; Neil; Alexander; Malcom, Dougal; and Ella, Katherine, deceased, was the wife of James Fleming.

Malcom Shaw was reared on the farm, and continued to assist his father in agricultural pursuits until he was 25 years of age, in the meantime acquiring an excellent, common-school education. His tastes led him into mercantile pursuits, and at this time he established himself at Veto, Ohio, where he has successfully operated a large store. Mr. Shaw carries a complete and varied stock of everything to meet the demands of the trade in his locality, including groceries, boots, shoes and gent's furnishings. Although his has been a prosperous business from its inception, and one which has required close and careful management, Mr. Shaw has found time to be actively interested in many other enterprises. In connection with H. B. Goddard, he is conducting an agricultural and carriage business, including robes and harness, and is handling in this vicinity the McCormick mowers, binders and reapers. He also deals in the goods of the Cincinnati Buggy Company, and of the A. B. Piepho Company, of Melbourne, Kentucky, and holds the bulk of such business in Washington County. Mr. Shaw is also a heavy buyer of wool and farm produce. He liberally supports the United Presbyterian Church, of which he is a member, and is active in promoting the general prosperity of his community. In the Democratic party he has long shown an active interest, and is the present efficient township treasurer.

In 1877 Mr. Shaw was married to Phoebe J. Agen, a native of Washington County, and one daughter was born to their union, Laura Mae, who married H. B. Goddard. Mr. and Mrs. Goddard have one son, who has been named Herbert Shaw.

ANDREW FLEMING BRECKENRIDGE, one of the most highly esteemed citizens of Palmer township, Washington County, Ohio, was born July 25, 1823. He is a son of John Breckenridge, a grandson of Andrew Breckenridge, and a great-grandson of John Breckenridge, all of whom have been men of sterling worth.

In the contention between Robert Bruce and John de Baliol for the throne of Scotland, many most worthy gentlemen were involved, causing losses of estates and changes of residence. Among the refugees who fled from the successful aspirant and took refuge in the Highlands of Scotland, were the Breckenridges, who settled in Argyleshire. From this family came John Breckenridge, the great-grandfather of Andrew Fleming Breckenridge. His children were as follows: Hugh; John; Andrew; Isabel; William; Thomas; Peggy; Mary; and Jane. Four of this family came to Washington County, Ohio, of whom the names of two are unknown. The others were Isabel and Thomas. Isabel married John Clark and settled in Virginia. Thomas came to Belpre, Ohio, in 1831, with a large family, named as follows: Mary, who married Thomas McMillen, and settled in Iowa; Sarah, who married George Turner, and resides in Barlow township, Washington County; Margaret, who married James Fleming, and also lives in Barlow township; John, who married Nancy Clark, of Virginia, and settled in Belpre; Thomas, who married Polly Brown, and located in Palmer township, where he was postmaster for many years; and Samuel, who on March 26, 1851, married Sarah M. Dunlevy, and moved to Iowa in 1852, where she died November 9, 1897. No other records of the family of John Breckenridge (1) have been discovered.

The children of Andrew Breckenridge, son of John (1), were as follows: Robert, born February 24, 1794; Isabel, born January 7, 1796; John and Hugh, born May 12, 1798; Edward, born January 25, 1803; William, born December 10, 1805; Elizabeth, born March 30, 1808; and Nancy, born October 10, 1815. Of these, Robert married Catherine Harvey, April 25, 1818, and left Greenwich, England, on June 1, 1818, arriving at Marietta, Ohio, October 4, 1818. He first located in Wesley township, Washington County, but in 1828 removed to Barlow township, where he died October 2, 1871. His wife died in her 85th year.

John Breckenridge (2) married Agnes Fleming, and they had the following children: Andrew F.; John; Robert; Jane; Nancy; and Martha. The mother died July 7, 1838, aged 36 years; the father died October 23, 1882, aged 84 years, six months and 11 days. He was one of the leading members of the "Old School" Presbyterian Church in Barlow.

Andrew F. Breckenridge has been engaged through life in farming and stock raising, and still owns an estate of 226 acres in Palmer township. The subject of this sketch has been one of the most prominent men of his township, and has efficiently filled many of the township offices, his standing as a reliable and representative citizen making his selection appropriate. In politics, he is a Republican.

December 12, 1848, Mr. Breckenridge married Elizabeth Palmer, and they have the following children: Sarah Jane, the wife of John C. Stoller; Nancy B., the wife of Hugh B. Murdock; Lydia J., the wife of Thomas E. Ferguson; and Mary Allen, the wife of George D. Murdock.

WILLIAM W. WARREN, M. D., a successful physician of Newport, Ohio, was born in Marietta township, Washington County, Ohio, August 8, 1868. He is a one of a family of four children born to Dr. Leonard Warren and Mary (Whiston) Warren, the former a native of South Olive, Ohio, and the latter of Marietta township, and a daughter of Jesse Whiston. Dr. Leonard Warren is one of Washington County's most prominent physicians and is located at Marietta, where he is held in high esteem.

William W. Warren received his mental training in the common schools. At the age of fourteen years he worked on the Ohio River, and during that period saved about $480, which amount he used in obtaining his professional education. He attended Columbus Medical College, from which he was graduated April 4, 1889, and was then located in Marietta for a short period. He next went to Newell Run, where he remained in practice for two years. He came to Newport, Ohio, in 1893, and has acquired a large and remunerative practice. He was appointed by the infirmary directory township physician, and has served in that capacity for a period of thirteen years, with the exception of one year, when ill health prevented his discharge of the duties of that office.

Dr. Warren was united in marriage with Marie Garber, whose parents were from Pennsylvania. They have had three children born to them, of whom Fred is the only survivor. Mrs. Warren is a member of the Presbyterian Church. Fraternally the Doctor is a member of Lodge No. 255, J. O. U. A. M.; Lodge No. 82, K. of P.; and Lodge No. 477, B. P. O. E. He also belongs to the American Medical Association and the Washington County Medical Society. In politics he affiliates with the Democratic party.

JOHAN HADLEY, who was for many years prominently engaged in the milling business in Washington County, Ohio, is now living in retirement at Newport. He was born in Roxburghshire, Scotland, April 22, 1831, and is a son of Thomas and Jane (Patton) Hadley. Thomas Hadley was born and reared in Scotland, where he followed farming until his death in 1852. His wife died in 1850.

John Hadley received his mental training in the common schools of his native country, and while yet in his teens, learned the trade of a miller. At the age of twenty-three years he came to America, two brothers and an uncle having preceded him to this country. With his wife he set sail on July 18, 1854, and upon landing in New York left for Marietta, Ohio, the same day. On September 3, 1854, he began milling under J. O. Cram, as head miller, and continued thus for three years. He then became superintendent of a mill which had been built at Harmar; it was a water mill and had been converted from an old sawmill. He continued in charge of this for two years, and then formed a partnership under the firm name of King, Breckenridge & Hadley, and constructed a mill at Rockland. Some years afterward this mill was remodeled and moved to Belpre village. A new company was formed and Mr. Hadley continued as a partner. In connection with the flouring mill, they conducted a sawmill successfully. Mr. Hadley remained in Belpre until 1879, when he moved to Newport and formed a new company, which built what is now known as the Newport Mill.

He operated this mill until July, 1901, when he disposed of his interest and is now spending his declining years in comfort and ease.

John Hadley was united in marriage with Margaret Scott, a daughter of George Scott, of Scotland. They were married in Scotland in April, 1854, and six children were born to them, of whom two died in infancy. Those living are: Thomas S., whose biography appears elsewhere in this work; Isabel E.; Maggie G.; and John D. The three last named reside in Newport. Religiously the family are Congregationalists. The subject of this sketch is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic. During the Civil War he enlisted at Belpre in a company under Capt. John Mitchel, recruited for the 100-day service, and remained four months. He and his family are well known in Washington County and are universally held in high esteem.

EDWARD M. HALSEY, proprietor of the leading furniture store and undertaking establishment of Belpre, Ohio, was born in Meigs County, Ohio, June 15, 1866, and was one of eight children born to Leroy and Mary (Stewart) Halsey.

Leroy Halsey was born in the State of New York, where he followed farming for some years. He continued at that occupation after his removal to Meigs County, Ohio, until his death in 1892. He married Mary Stewart, who died in 1891, and of the eight children born of this union, four survive.

Edward M. Halsey received his early mental training in the common schools of his native county, and this he supplemented with a course in the State Normal School. He taught school for a period of five years, and as an instructor, met with success. He entered the Massachusetts Embalming College, and was graduated from that institution in April, 1900. He then engaged in the undertaking business in Belpre, in connection with a furniture store which he established. He commands a liberal patronage of the citizens of the community, and is meeting with deserved success. He carries an excellent stock of furniture, valued at $2,000, and is one of the progressive merchants of Belpre.

Mr. Halsey was joined in matrimony with Ollie Griffin, of Meigs County, in March, 1891, and they have one child, Kenneth. Religiously the subject of this sketch and his family are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church and take an earnest interest in church work. Politically he has always been affiliated with the Republican party.

ARTHUR G. REED, junior member of the firm of Wharton & Reed, hardware merchants, of Belpre, Ohio, was born October 21, 1876, and is a son of Dr. George W. and Mary (Davis) Reed.

Dr. George W. Reed was born in Washington County, Ohio, near McConnelsville, and became one of the prominent physicians of the county. He practiced here until his death, which occurred on April 4, 1896. He was chairman of the Washington County Medical Society, and was one of the officials of the Ohio Medical University. Mrs. Reed was born in Lowell, Ohio, and came of one of the pioneer families of Washington County. She died in 1876, the year in which Arthur G. Reed was born.

Arthur G. Reed received his mental training in the common schools of his native county and later attended the grammar and high schools of Columbus, Ohio, and the Ohio State University. After completing his studies he was engaged in business with a Wheeling firm for a short period, and was later in the grocery business at Parkersburg, West Virginia. After acquiring a sufficient knowledge of general merchandising, he formed the present partnership with Mr. Wharton in 1898. They have since continued and each year has witnessed a large increase in the amount of business transacted. They carry a stock valued at $8,000, including everything known to the hardware trade, together with plumbers' supplies, vehicles, etc.; they also manufacture tinware. They carry a line of builders' and building materials and do house roofing. They have an extensive trade, amounting to $15,000 annually, a portion of it coming from Parkersburg.

Mr. Reed was united in marriage June 20, 1901, with Matilda Roeser, a daughter of William Roeser, one of Marietta's most prominent citizens. She was graduated from Marietta College with the class of 1901. She is a member of the First Congregational Church, which her husband also favors. He is a member of the Republican party, and upon the incorporation of Belpre, was honored with the position of sealer of weights and measures. Fraternally he is a member of the Knights of Pythias.

ELMER S. COX, Litt. D., an eminent educator and lecturer of Belpre, Ohio, was born at Morgantown, West Virginia, February 29, 1842, and is a son of Moses and Charlotte (McDermitt) Cox. His father was born in Loudoun County, Virginia, in 1777, and was a captain in the War of 1812. He was a farmer and followed that occupation throughout his entire life. His wife was of Scotch-Irish ancestry.

Elmer S. Cox received his preliminary education in the public schools, and in a college in Morgantown, Ohio. He afterward graduated from a college at Waynesburg, Pennsylvania, and continued his education with the special study of English literature in the East under teachers at Harvard and Cornell Colleges. Soon after leaving college he entered upon his career as a teacher, first as principal of the State Normal School at California, Pennsylvania. About 1869 he took charge of the Beverly Academy, which he conducted about three years, preparing boys for advanced standing in colleges. The thoroughness of this preparation won for the academy from the President of Marietta College the credit of being the best preparatory school within his knowledge. Prof. Cox left Beverly in 1873 to take charge of the public schools at Parkersburg, West Virginia, where he remained for five years. His work in the schools of that city testified strongly to his efficiency as a superintendent. Under his administration they were brought up from a crude condition to that of the best-ordered and most successful public schools in the State. He was next superintendent of the public schools of Bellaire, Ohio, for two years and resigned to accept a similar position at Portsmouth, Ohio, in the fall of 1883. There he prepared and put into effect a course of study which was fully abreast of the best thought and work of the time, raising the schools of that city to a high standard. He was elected superintendent of schools in Chillicothe, Ohio, in 1888, and remained there a number of years. As a school superintendent and scholar, Professor Cox is accredited among the first in this country. He is especially proficient in English literature, is well up in the ancient and modern languages, and is noted as a botanist. He has contributed largely to literary and educational periodicals, and has frequently read papers before State and National institutes. His reputation as a writer is national, and as a lecturer he is most favorably known for the refined, logical and lucid character of his productions. Professor Cox took charge of the schools in Sidney in September, 1894, and remained there six years. During this period he devoted considerable time to the study of the improvements in educational methods in this country and Europe, and organized the school under his charge in accordance with the best modern thought and work. During the past two years he has been engaged in lecturing in various towns and cities on the English language and literature. He has also assisted his son, Edward Cox, in the preparation of an elaborate work on the English language. This work is based upon an exhaustive examination of the usage of the great writers of English in all periods from old Saxon, Gothic, etc., to the present. In 1895 Mr. Cox received the degree of doctor of letters for special investigations in the English language.

Professor Cox was married August 10, 1869, to Frances McCollum, a daughter of Samuel and Anna M. (Barclay) McCollum. Her father was from a prominent family of Pennsylvania. He was in the ministry for some years and later became an extensive merchant. The subject of this sketch and his wife are the parents of four children, namely: Edward L., a graduate of Virginia University and Johns Hopkins University, who is a prominent attorney; Frank M., a graduate of Hering Medical College, of Chicago; Anna L.; and Winifred G..

Professor Cox is now in the zenith of his reputation and usefulness. He is honored in his offspring and enjoys the profound regard of thousands of people who have profited by his patient and unselfish endeavors.

JOHN HENRY COLLINS, who has been successfully engaged in agricultural pursuits all his life, owns a fine farm in Grandview township, Washington County, Ohio, where he was born on October 7, 1852.

The Collins family is an old and prominent one of the county and was established here in 1803 by John Collins, who was born in 1754, and died in 1842. His wife was Sarah Henthorne, who died about 1814, leaving three sons and four daughters. John Collins formed a second union with Deborah Dickerson, who died in 1847. Henry Collins, a son of John Collins, was born in Pennsylvania in 1788, and came to Grandview township with his father in 1803. In 1810 he married Frances Ewart, widow of William Peyton, and they had a family of six children, among them being Francis E., father of the subject of this sketch.

Francis E. Collins was born in 1818, and became one of the most successful farmers of Washington County. He was one of the leading men of his community, and owned a farm of 238 acres, most of which was cleared by him. He was married in 1851 to Margaret M. Bell, who was born in 1829. Of four children born to them three are now living, as follows: John Henry; Mary E.; and Frances B.

John Henry Collins received his intellectual training in the public schools and in Mount Union College. He then devoted his attention to agricultural pursuits, in which he has been quite successful. He has a farm of 140 acres and carries on general farming. He is an industrious and intelligent man, and takes a deep interest in all that pertains to the welfare of his county, State and country.

John Henry Collins was married in November, 1891, to Narcissa Williamson, who was born in Grandview township August 15, 1857, and is a daughter of H. A. Williamson. The Williamson family were among the first to settle in Washington County, and has since been closely identified with its development. Mr. and Mrs. Collins have three children,—Hannibal F., Edward W. and John B. The subject of this biography is a Democrat in politics. He has served as trustee of the township, and also as a member of the school board. Mrs. Collins is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Fraternally Mr. Collins is a member of Matamoras Lodge No. 374, F. & A. M., of New Matamoras.

JUSTUS ALDERMAN, deceased, for many years a prominent merchant and one of the most highly respected citizens of Belpre, Ohio, was born in Homer township, Morgan County, Ohio, September 10, 1837. He was one of eight children, seven sons and one daughter, born to Hosea and Hannah Alderman. His father died in October, 1843, and was survived many years by his wife, who departed this life in 1880.

Justus Alderman moved with his family to Belpre, Ohio, in the fall of 1866, and here became established in business as a dry goods merchant. He met with success from the first and grew to be one of the town's most able and substantial business men. His prosperity was born of his own industry; it was not due to chance or a stroke of good fortune and it can never be said that success came to him by another's misfortune. He was a man of big heart, generous to a fault, and was ever ready to assist his less fortunate brothers. He possessed an even temperament, with the power of almost perfect self control, to such an extent, in fact, that it has been remarked that even his brothers had never seen him angry. He was a devout Christian, and was identified with the Methodist Church for about twenty years prior to his death, assisting in all church work and charitable undertakings. He continued in business in Belpre for twenty-two years, and was called to his eternal rest October 21, 1888, at the age of fifty-one years, one month and eleven days.

Justus Alderman was united in marriage November 10, 1861, to S. Josephine Brown, a daughter of Benjamin Mason Brown. Her father was born in Hartford, Washington County, New York, November 27, 1797, and was a son of Benjamin Brown, and a grandson of Capt. Benjamin Brown, who was born in the State of Massachusetts. He was a very successful farmer in Athens County, Ohio, and located in Washington County, Ohio, in the early "forties," when Mrs. Alderman was but four years of age. He was at one time sheriff of Washington County. He married a daughter of David Gard and to them were born five children. He died July 24, 1849.

S. Josephine Brown was born June 3, 1840, in Athens County, Ohio. This union resulted in one son, Dorus M., who was born September 8, 1865, in Lawrence County, Ohio, and was reared in Belpre. His early mental training was obtained in the public schools at Belpre and was supplemented by a course in Delaware College. He became associated in business with his father in the dry goods store at Belpre as a clerk, and learned the business in all its details. Upon his father's demise he succeeded to the ownership and management of the establishment. He carries a general line of dry goods and notions, valued at about $8,000, and commands a large patronage. He is a thorough business man and enjoys the respect and confidence of the community. Fraternally he is a member of the Knights of Pythias, and the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. May 18, 1893, he was united in marriage with Louise O'Neal, of Belpre, and they became the parents of two children, one of whom, Justus O., survives. Mr. Alderman is a Republican in politics.

GEORGE WIESER, who is a leading undertaker of Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, is also engaged in the furniture business in that city. He was born in Marietta and is a son of John Wieser, deceased, who came to this country from Germany in 1855. The subject of this sketch has one brother and two sisters, living in Marietta, namely: John, Mary and Theresa.

George Wieser was reared and educated in Marietta, having graduated from Marietta College in 1881. From 1884 to 1892 he served as city clerk of Marietta. In 1890, in connection with J. L. Reynolds, he established his present business, and for three years the firm name was Wieser & Reynolds.

Mr. Wieser erected the building which he now occupies, which is one of the most substantial in Marietta. It is a four-story structure, with basement, is steam-heated throughout and has a combination freight and passenger elevator. The building is located at Nos. 212-214 Putnam street, and is 125 by 26 feet in dimensions. The first floor, which is finished in oak, with steel ceilings, is a general display room, filled with a fine assortment of furniture. The rear is devoted to the office, while in the front part is a fine show-window. The second floor, which is also finished in oak, with steel ceilings, is devoted to the undertaking department, in the front part of which is an elegantly fitted chapel, together with a display room. This room is of Mr. Wieser's own design, and is one of the neatest and best appointed in the State. The chapel is used for holding religious services and is unique in design. To the rear of the chapel is a full stock of carpets and rugs. The third floor contains furniture and upholstering goods, while the fourth is devoted to a display of chamber suites, iron bedsteads, mattresses, etc. The basement contains the large stock which Mr. Wieser handles. He pays particular attention to undertaking, and his entire business is one of the most successful in that city. While it is mostly retail, Mr. Wieser does some wholesale business around Marietta. The subject of this sketch is a man of splendid business ability, and he has won a good reputation for his straightforward methods and honest treatment of all who have dealings with him.

He is a member of the Knights of Columbus.

GEORGE F. L. DODD, who has charge of the Washington County oil interests of the Carter Oil Company, is a resident of New Matamoras, Ohio. He was born in Armstrong County, Pennsylvania, September 27, 1860, and is a son of John Dodd.

John Dodd was born in England in 1820 and came to the United States in 1841, landing at New York City. He first located at Wheeling, West Virginia, and later at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and continued to reside in the latter State until his death in 1902. He married Mary E. Dunlap, who was born in Pennsylvania in 1822, and is now deceased. They were the parents of nine children, namely: Matilda, Robert and Mary, deceased; Sarah A.; Rebecca; Eve A.; John; Louisa; and George F. L.

George F. L. Dodd was reared in Pennsylvania and has been engaged in the oil business most of his life. He located in Belmont, West Virginia, in 1892, and later in Sistersville, where he was superintendent for William Johnson until the latter sold his business to the Carter Oil Company. Mr. Dodd was then engaged with the firm of Betman & Watson, of Sistersville, for a short time and has since then been foreman for the Carter Oil Company. He now has charge of the company's work in Washington County, Ohio, and his many years of experience enable him to render his employers invaluable service. He located in this county in 1895 and since 1901 has made his home at New Matamoras, where he is held in high esteem.

In 1884 Mr. Dodd was married in Pittsburg to Jennie P. Murdock, who was born in Ireland in 1862. They have five children, namely: Warren; Anna; George; James; and John. The subject of this sketch is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a Republican in politics.

CHARLES ROWLAND has for nearly forty years been one of the prominent agriculturists of Newport township, Washington County, and is also well known as a steamboat navigator on the Ohio River. He was reared in this section, having been born in Newport May 29, 1827.

His father, William Rowland, who was born in 1789, was one of the early settlers of Washington County, where he was engaged in farming for many years. For a considerable time he also worked at keelboating, making trips from Nashville to New Orleans. In early manhood he married Annie E. Clark and they had ten children, as follows: Eliza, John, William and Robert, deceased; Thomas; Charles; Lewis, deceased; Virginia, George and Rufus. Mr. Rowland was a well-informed Whig, and always took a keen interest in politics. In religious belief he was a Baptist.

Charles Rowland was reared to farm work and also, through his father, early became familiar with river boating. Naturally, as a young man, he turned to these occupations. After considerable preliminary experience in farming he purchased his present place,—a splendid 125-acre tract in Newport township. Here he has resided for 38 years, and has made a thorough success of his work,—a fact of which his well-kept farm bears evidence. For a number of years during this same period he also materially increased his income by running a steamboat on the Ohio River.

Mr. Rowland married Jane D. White, who was born in Watertown township, Washington County, Ohio, March 5, 1842, and is a daughter of Kyes White. From this union there have been born six children, as follows: Addie, born May 22, 1869, and now residing at Zanesville, Ohio, who married George Heslop; Charles, born December 4, 1861, who is a resident of New Matamoras, and married Tillie Semon; Lucy, born April 12, 1862, who married Douglas Dilley; Willard G., who was born April 13, 1864, and died at the age of 11 months; and Myrtle B. and William S., both of whom are deceased; the former was born February 9, 1866, and the latter January 3, 1870. Mr. Rowland is one of the influential Republicans of the township. Religiously he is a highly esteemed member of the Baptist Church.

CHARLES S. DANA is president of the Marietta Paint & Color Company, manufacturers of superfine colors, paste fillers, surfacers and wood finishing specialties. This company is the only plant of the kind in Marietta, and there are but six in the United States. The other officers of the concern are C. J. LaVallee, vice-president and secretary; and Robert Walker, superintendent.

The Marietta Paint and Color Company was incorporated on March 18, 1898, practically by the same men who are now its officers, for the manufacture of wood finishing materials and prepared paints. They purchased the plant at Fort and Wood streets, which had been built for the Marietta Bucket Company about fifty years before. This was remodeled and equipped with suitable machinery and is an up-to-date plant in every respect. It is 40 by 100 feet, in dimensions, and is constructed of brick with a stone foundation. It consists of three stories and a basement, and is all used by the company. The amount of business transacted exceeds $150,000 annually. Six traveling men cover the territory reaching from New York City to Leavenworth, Kansas, and from the St. Lawrence River to the Gulf of Mexico. Two of these travel in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, Canada. Frank Wallack is the export representative. The New York office is located at No. 39 Cortland street. Distributing stores are maintained at Marietta and Parkersburg, supplying paints and wall paper to the wholesale and retail trade in their immediate vicinity. The plant is well located in respect to railroad facilities, and has a side track of its own, all goods being handled by car-load lots. The company has a commodious and well-appointed office in the front of its plant. This is an extensive concern and a credit to the city of Marietta.

Charles S. Dana was born in Belpre, Washington County, Ohio. He is a son of George Dana, grandson of George Dana, Sr., and great-grandson of Capt. William Dana.

Capt. William Dana was one of the earliest settlers of the county in which he located in 1788. He was a Revolutionary soldier and received a grant of land from the Government. He was a native of Worcester, Massachusetts, enlisted from New Hampshire, and served at Bunker Hill, and in other engagements until the war closed. He bought a farm in Belpre, Washington County, Ohio, in 1789, which is still in possession of the family and is known as the Dana farm. He married Mary Bancroft, a relative of the great historian. Their son, George Dana, Sr., was among the youngest of eleven children. He made his home at Belpre, and was a prominent and successful business man and farmer.

George Dana, the father of Charles S., was born in Washington County and was a fruit farmer and manufacturer of vinegar at Belpre, where he died in June, 1892, at the age of seventy years. He married Lucy Byington, a granddaughter of Ichabod Nye, and also of General Tupper. She died in June, 1899, at the age of sixty-nine years. They reared nine children, namely: John, who is in business in Belpre; Mrs. T. D. Dale, of New York City; Mrs. D. C. McKay, of Marietta; W. F., of Marietta; E. B., an editor in Muskegon, Michigan; Mrs. G. P. Devol, of Beverly; Lawrence N., member of a zinc mining company, of Joplin, Missouri; George B., a musician, of Paris; and Charles S.

Charles S. Dana attended Marietta College from 1879 to 1886, and since then has been in various lines of business. He was in the fruit canning business in Belpre, with the firm of George Dana & Sons, the business being now conducted by John Dana. Mr. Dana married Mary Anderson Sayre, a daughter of Capt. D. F. Sayre, deceased, who was a prominent man, of Marietta. They have a daughter, Frances Bancroft Dana. The subject of this sketch is a member of Harmar Lodge, No. 390, A. F. & A. M.; and the Knights of Pythias. He is a Republican in politics and served a term in the State Senate in 1896.

CHARLES TRACHEL, although not one of the foremost farmers and oil producers of Washington County, has his place in the list of those who in the pursuance of this occupation spend their time most diligently and successfully, and by reason of their industry and frugality, are a credit to the township and county in which they live.

Mr. Trachel was born in Germany in 1834. In 1849, his parents sailed over the ocean to this country, bringing their son, Charles, with them. They found a suitable location in Warren township, Washington County, and there engaged in farming. They reared a family of five boys and three girls, whose names are as follows: John; Charles; Walter; Andrew; Herman; Christina; Louisa; and Fredericka. These children grew to manhood and womanhood, and are good citizens of their respective towns.

Charles Trachel married Martha Bartman, of Monroe County, Ohio, and they have five children, namely: Emma; Henry; Lucy; Janet; and Charlotte. Emma is the wife of John Hanna, a farmer in Warren township, and they have four children,—Henry; Clarence; Helen; and Madeline. Henry is a farmer in Barlow township, and married Mary Anderson. His two children are named Herman and Jennie. Lucy married Joseph Perdw, and their family consists of Dean, Twila and Bernice. Janet still lives at home, and Charlotte married Edward Finch, of Marietta.

The subject of this sketch has been living at his present farm since 1878. He has three oil wells, all producing, and besides these, he leases about 67 acres of land, on which are two producing wells. Politically, he is a Democrat. He and his family are believers in the doctrine of the German Lutheran Church.

A. GOEBEL is well known as the proprietor of one of the largest furniture establishments in the Ohio Valley, located at No. 206 Front street, Marietta. It is one of the oldest concerns in the city and was originally the store of his father, Louis Goebel.

Louis Goebel was born in Prussia in 1829, and came to America in 1852. After spending three years in New York State, he came to Marietta, Ohio, in 1855. He was identified with the Marietta Chair Company until 1865, and the following year embarked in the furniture business. After the first year the partnership of Schmidt & Goebel was formed, which continued until 1879. He then built the present storeroom at No. 206 Front street and continued until 1894, when he was succeeded by his two sons, Henry T. and F. A. Goebel. In 1896 Henry T. Goebel took a half interest in the firm of J. Krupp & Son, at Sandusky, Ohio, an old-established furniture and undertaking house, and F. A. Goebel has since continued as the head of the Marietta house. Under capable management the volume of business has increased to many times that of seven years ago, more room being required from time to time until three floors and a basement are now utilized, the basement being devoted to a stock of linoleums, bed-springs and a general surplus stock. In passing the store one is impressed with the artistic arrangement and decoration of the show-window. It is plastered and beautifully decorated in oil inside, and covered outside with steel, thus rendering it absolutely dust-proof. It was designed by F. A. Goebel. The white, steel ceiling and the white trimmed elevator shaft, in contrast with the highly polished and luxurious furniture on the first floor, present a neat and attractive appearance. A solid pine walkway leads from the front door diagonally to the rear, and is covered with rubber matting, making footsteps noiseless. The second floor contains three rooms, all steel-sheeted, as below, and is stocked with parlor furniture and leather goods, the walls being gracefully adorned with beautiful pictures. The carpet room is in front, and here is carried a complete line of carpets and rugs, of the highest grades. The third floor is 100 feet square and contains four rooms, extending over the German National Bank, Wittlig's jewelry store, and the Schram Block; the table and stand room being over the last named. The other rooms contain large stocks of chamber suites, iron beds, chairs, hall furniture, etc. A complete line of rugs and portieres is carried in stock. The distributing room, or warehouse, is located on Butler street. Mr. Goebel is one of the enterprising and progressive citizens of Marietta, and stands high in the esteem of the public.

EV. F. M. WOESMAN, who is pastor of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Cincinnati, Ohio. He has been a resident of Marietta since 1892.

Rev. Mr. Woesman was educated at St. Xavier's College, Cincinnati, Ohio, having completed the classical course in 1874. He then went to St. Mary's of the West, and completed the theological course there in 1878. He was ordained the same year by the Rt. Rev. S. H. Rosecrans, a brother of General Rosecrans, and a graduate of Kenyon College. Rev. Mr. Woesman assisted at the cathedral in Columbus, under the pastor, Father M. M. Meara, for two years and the next four years were spent as assistant at Newark, Ohio, under Rev. Mr. De Cailey.

Father Woesman's first pastorate was at Churchtown, Washington County, where he remained from 1884 to 1892, and then accepted the pastorate of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in Marietta. Under his direction and the active support of his parishioners, the church has grown largely and a fine school has been built near its place of worship. February 22, 1900, the congregation purchased the "Putnam Hall" property at the corner of Fourth and Wooster streets, at a cost of $15,750, and plans are now being considered for a new church, the edifice to cost about $100,000.

Father Woesman is a man of fine character, and is sympathetic and charitable. He is deeply loved and revered by the people of his parish and is held in the highest esteem by the citizens of Marietta.

HOWARD W. STANLEY is a member of the wholesale and retail furniture firm of Stanley & Grass, which conducts the largest business of the kind in Marietta, Ohio. He was born in Marietta and is a son of John W. Stanley.

John W. Stanley came to Marietta about 1855 and was for a number of years a director in the Marietta Chair Company, out of which grew the furniture establishment of Stanley & Grass. Mr. Stanley started in business where Welber's meat market is now situated, and in 1866, built and occupied the four-story building at No. 166 Front street, which is now occupied by the firm and is the pioneer establishment of the kind in that section, which now constitutes the business heart of the city. In 1868 he built the building adjoining on the north. These buildings, with the warehouse in the rear, contain a total floor surface of 30,000 square feet. John W. Stanley continued in the business until 1880, when he retired. He is now living in Marietta at the advanced age of eighty-one years. He has always been stanch in his support of the Republican party. Religiously he is a member of the First Congregational Church. His wife died in 1897. Howard W. Stanley was reared in his native town and attended Marietta College, from which he was graduated in June, 1880. He then went into business with his father and continued until the latter retired in 1880. In January, 1881, the present firm was organized, which consists of Howard W. Stanley and Charles Grass. They have the largest establishment of the kind in Marietta, and one which will compare favorably with any in the Ohio Valley. The buildings are the property of Howard W. Stanley. The front of the first floor is used for the display of sideboards, cases and fine cabinet work,—more than thirty-five sideboards being shown. The rear contains a large and complete assortment of wall paper. To the rear and extending to Second street is a large warehouse, the two buildings being separated by an alley for the convenience of wagons. The second floor front is occupied with parlor chairs and dining room furniture, and in the rear is the large carpet room, extending over the two stores, the dimensions being 40 by 90 feet. There is a man in charge of each of the different departments, including curtains, wall paper, carpets and packing. A full line of piece goods in carpets is carried, and the firm does the fitting and laying of carpets, when so desired. The third floor is devoted to chamber suites, parlor tables and fancy cabinet work, the front being a double storeroom. The rear of the third floor contains a large stock of iron beds and couches. On the fourth floor is to be found bedding supplies and rockers. An elevator makes access easy to all the floors. Twelve people are employed steadily, and frequently more, and members of the firm give their exclusive attention to the business. The wholesale business extends within a reasonable radius of Marietta, and is mainly carried on as a mail-order business. The firm has always contributed liberally to all worthy enterprises tending to improve the city,—considering this a part of their duty as progressive and representative business men. They also conduct quite an extensive real estate business, mainly in the city. Mr. Stanley purchased the first Norwood lot, and was among the early purchasers of the Glass Plant lots. John T. Stanley, his brother, is in the wholesale carpet business in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Charles Grass, who has been identified with the firm since 1871, was born at Marietta, and is a son of William Grass, deceased, who was a miller by trade, and came here about 1840. Charles Grass began as clerk in a grocery and has assisted materially in building up the prosperous business of Stanley & Grass.

Howard W. Stanley married Nettie Glines, who died in January, 1892. Their only child, Edith, is attending Marietta Academy, and giving special attention to music. The family residence, at No. 514 Second street, was built in 1883 by John W. Stanley and remodeled in 1901 by the subject of this sketch.

EDWARD MELLOR, a farmer living about four miles from Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, is a substantial citizen of his township, and possess the high respect of all his acquaintances. He is a son of Jesse and Mary Ann (Kidwell) Mellor, and was born in 1840 in what was then Union township, but has since been changed to Warren township, Washington County.

Jesse Mellor was born and reared near Beverly, Ohio, and during his long life did much to win the esteem and admiration of his neighbors and friends. The subject of this sketch obtained his mental training in the Warren township schools. He subsequently learned the carpenter's trade, which he followed in connection with farming until the Civil War stirred all parts of our country and the call for 100-day men was issued. He enlisted, served 100 days and re-enlisted as a member of the 2nd Reg. Ohio Vol. Cav., and served until mustered out at the close of the conflict. He then returned to his home and took up farming as an occupation, and has lived thus ever since. His farm consists of twenty-two acres of good, valuable land, which he keeps in a high state of cultivation.

Mr. Mellor was united in matrimony with Catherine Wright, a daughter of Robert and Sarah (Pinkerton) Wright, and they reared ten children, as follows: Margaret; William; Naomi; Joseph; James; Thomas and John, all deceased; Catherine, Mr. Mellor's wife; Sarah Jane; and Robert.

Mr. and Mrs. Mellor have reared six children, namely: Martha; Jesse; Clara; Frank; Etta J. and Bertha, of whom the last named is still living with her parents on the farm. Martha married Abner Harris, now deceased, and had two children, Austin and Lloyd. Her second husband was Andrew Pinkerton, and they had three children,—Adda, Lina and Martha Elizabeth. Jesse was united in marriage with Eliza Miller, and lives in Bloomington, Illinois. Mrs. Jesse Mellor was the daughter of William and Mary Miller, and she has had two children,—Clifford and Selma. The third child, Clara, was united in marriage with John Keed, and they had five children, namely: Ellis; Cora, deceased; Annie; Carlos; and an infant. Frank Mellor chose Susanna Miller, a daughter of William Miller, for his wife. They have three children,—Huldah, Ora and Dollie May, and are at present living in Kansas. Etta J. married Henry Fann. They have three children,—Wreatha, Harold, and an infant, unnamed, are also residents of Kansas.

The parents of these children are attendants of the M. E. Church. Mr. Mellor is a Democrat in politics, and in fraternal relations he affiliates with the G. A. R., belonging to the C. B. Gates Post.

H. BACHELDER, for years a prominent and judicious oil producer of Newport township, is also a real estate holder of Newport. By his prudent manner and wise management he has won the esteem and confidence of his neighbors and fellow citizens generally. He is a son of Nelson D. and Mary Ann (Fisher) Bachelder, and a grandson of Abner S. Bachelder.

Nelson Bachelder is a native of New York, where he was born January 31, 1848. He chose for his life companion Mary Ann Fisher, of Saratoga, New York, and they reared two children,—Willis, who is deceased; and G. H.

G. H. Bachelder married Annie Neath, a daughter of Jasper Neath, and they have had three children,—Georgiana, Helen Marie and Lucile. The last named died October 29, 1899. The others were born July 19, 1895, and October 29, 1897, respectively. Mr. Bachelder is a member of the M. E. Church, where he and his children worship.

DR. JOHN H. MARTIN.

The subject of this sketch was born in Venango County, Pennsylvania, December 14, 1867. During his entire active life he has pursued the oil business successfully. Since June 13, 1901, he has mourned the loss of his beloved wife, to whom he was married October 24, 1892.

In political affairs Mr. Bachelder is a Prohibitionist of the strictest type. As a business man and citizen he stands among the most prominent and most worthy people of Washington County.

R. JOHN H. MARTIN, a physician and surgeon, of New Matamoras, Ohio, is reputed to be one of the ablest practitioners in Washington County. The Doctor is no stranger in his community, as he was born in Monroe County, adjacent to Washington County, and his parents were natives of the same county. He was born March 3, 1861, and is a son of the well-known Dr. F. P. Martin, and his wife, Adeline A. (Davis) Martin.

Dr. F. P. Martin was born May 12, 1836. He attended the Barnesville Academy, and later, the Cincinnati Medical College, graduating from the latter institution. He located in New Matamoras in 1862, and practiced his profession continuously for more than 40 years, meeting with unqualified success. He finally retired to his old home in Monroe County, where he still resides and is still recognized as one of the most skillful physicians of that section. His wife was born in 1840 and they reared nine children, of whom John H. is the eldest. The others were as follows: Francis, deceased; Lillian; Addie, deceased; Thaddens T.; Nimrod A.; Luther R.; Matilda; and Lucy.

Dr. Martin was the recipient of a good education, and after completing his studies, he engaged in teaching. He first had charge of the school in Ludlow township, which he taught one year. He followed teaching for an unbroken period of thirteen years. He served three years,—from 1888 to 1891,—as superintendent of the New Matamoras schools. He then attended a medical college at Baltimore, Maryland, having previously read medicine. He graduated in 1893, and the same year, returned to New Matamoras, and commenced the practice of his profession.

September 26, 1880, Dr. Martin was joined in marriage with Amelia V. Burghbacher, a native of Woodsfield, Ohio, where her birth occurred July 19, 1863. The Doctor and his worthy wife have one son, Francis Eugene, who is now attending medical college at Baltimore, Maryland, and is a member of the class of 1905. Like his father, Dr. Martin is a Democrat, in politics, and has served two terms as town clerk, and nine years as township clerk.

Dr. Martin is a man of broad ideas, is public-spirited, and takes a fitting interest in the welfare of his community. He is a member of the Board of Education, and in fraternal circles, is master of Matamoras Lodge, No. 374, F. & A. M. The subject of this sketch is up to date in his profession, and is well-read upon all the leading questions of the day. He is a valued member of the Washington County Medical Society.

STEPHEN L. ANGLE, cashier of the German National Bank of Marietta, while a comparatively recent comer to that city, is recognized as a representative and able business man. He located in Marietta in the summer of 1899, where he assisted materially in organizing the bank. He was born in the southern part of New York State, and since first entering upon a business career has been engaged in the banking business.

His first duties in a bank were at Bradford, Pennsylvania, and for two years immediately preceding his location in Marietta he was cashier of the First National Bank at Sistersville, West Virginia. Mr. Angle spent twelve years in Buffalo, New York, where he was engaged mostly in the Bank of Commerce. Thus he is thoroughly familiar with every detail, and perfectly qualified to assume the responsibilities and duties of any position in the banking business.

Mr. Angle is a member of the National Bankers' Association and State Bankers' Association, and is a stockholder in one of the banks in Richmond, Virginia. Fraternally he is a member of the B. P. O. E. Religiously he is a member of St. Luke's Episcopal Church. Mr. Angle has become well known as one of the leading men in business circles in Marietta, and he is highly esteemed for his upright principles and superior business methods.

L. SMITH, who is a member of the well-known law firm of Ellenwood, Smith & Leeper, of Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, is a native of that county, and a son of S. B.

Smith.

Samuel Smith, the grandfather of A. L., died in 1824. His son, S. B. Smith, father of the subject of this sketch, settled in Washington County in 1816, when he was but four years old, his parents having removed from their native town,—Clinton, Connecticut, which was formerly known as Killingworth. S. B. Smith had several brothers, one of whom conducted a nursery for several years near Marietta. Mr. Smith married Susan Racer, a daughter of Benjamin Racer, who came as a boy, in 1793, from Penmar, Pennsylvania. He was a farmer and also flat-boated produce down the Ohio River. Susan Smith, the mother of A. L., died in 1888. She had five sons, all of whom reside in Marietta township.

A. L. Smith, whose name opens these lines, attended the county schools and later graduated from Marietta College, with the class of 1875. For several years he taught school, having charge of the schools at Volcano, West Virginia. He was for three years clerk under Probate Judge C. T. Frazier, after which he went west, where he had charge of schools in Olympia, Washington, during the winter of 1881-1882. He was then engaged in the United States Land Office at Olympia, and returned to Marietta in 1882. Having studied law with Judge M. D. Follett and others, prior to his western trip, Mr. Smith was admitted to the bar in 1881, and upon his return to Marietta formed a partnership with Judge Frazier, which continued until 1885. In that year he entered into partnership with L. M. Ellenwood, and ten years later Judge Leeper also became a member of the firm. Business is conducted under the firm name of Ellenwood, Smith & Leeper, and their practice is general.

EDGAR W. GODDARD, a prominent and representative farmer of Fairfield township, Washington County, was born in this township May 30, 1854, and is a son of Abram W. and Maria Jane (Coulter) Goddard. His birth occurred in the house now occupied by Waldo Putnam, located opposite to Blennerhassett Island.

Abram Wood Goddard, the father of Edgar W., was a son of Charles Hapgood Goddard, who was born in Connecticut, while his mother was born in New Hampshire. Thus Abram Goddard came of good, old, New England stock and although he had but a limited schooling, he became a man of enlightened mind, acceptably filled many of the leading offices in his township, and served for many years as justice of the peace. He was noted for his excellent penmanship, and it was often a great convenience for his neighbors to induce him to write their documents. When Abram W. Goddard settled on his farm in Fairfield township, the forest was still supreme, and here he built his log cabin, cleared up his land, every year encroaching farther and farther upon the woodland with his plow, until at the time of his death, in 1882, he had accomplished wonderful changes. These his sons later carried on to successful completion, turning the wilderness into one of the finest farms in Fairfield township.

The mother of Edgar W. Goddard was the eldest sister of Isaac B. Coulter, a well-known resident of Cutler. She was married to Mr. Goddard in this township April 23, 1843, and a family of nine children was born to them.

as follows: Melissa Emeline, who married William F. Quinn, of Palmer township, and has two children; William Rodney, who married first, Anna Blake, of Salem, and second, Fannie Henry, of Athens County, and who lives in the latter place and has seven children by his last wife, and three by the first wife; Edna Rosalie, who married James Randolph, lives in Cutler, and has two children; Talma Ferona, who married W. W. Roland, lives in Racine, Wisconsin, and has three children; Edgar Warren, who is the subject of this sketch; Hammer Hapgood, who married Emma A. Randolph, and has three children; Alva Curtis, who died at the age of two years; Zaidee Estelle, who married first, Lewis Quinn, and second, Daniel Deweese, lives on the old home farm and has two children; and Minerva Ellen, who married George B. Henry, resides in Cutler, and has four children.

Edgar W. Goddard was reared to hard work on the pioneer farm, and attended first, the district schools of his locality, and later, the select schools in Plymouth, acquiring a good education. On March 3, 1877, he married Emma A. Bucey, a daughter of J. K. Bucey, of Palmer township, and the two children resulting from this union are,—Don C., born April 15, 1878, and Georgia Estelle, born October 26, 1883. The former married Bessie Trickle, daughter of Dr. Trickle, of Cutler, and they have one daughter, Pauline Frances.

On July 3, 1879, Mr. Goddard located on his present farm, consisting of 160 acres, which at that time was heavily wooded. He has placed it in excellent condition, and has been very successful in his stock raising, many of his specimens being so purely bred that they could be easily registered. All of the modern, comfortable and convenient buildings on the place, with other improvements, have been added by Mr. Goddard, and his is one of the model farms of the township. He takes an interest in and belongs to the Grange. During the Cleveland administration Mr. Goddard voted the Populist ticket, but is identified with the Democratic party. His liberality extends to all churches, although his leanings are in the direction of the Universalist belief, as his parents were of that denomination. Mr. Goddard has been too busy to be a politician, but he has acceptably held the offices of trustee, justice of the peace and assessor, being always ready to do his part toward advancing the interests of his township in every legitimate way. He is a man very highly esteemed in Fairfield township.

CAPT. HIRAM F. TOBEY, who is the genial proprietor of "Pleasant View Fruit Farm," located in Decatur township, Washington County, Ohio, is a well-known and universally esteemed citizen. Captain Tobey traces his ancestry through William, Eliakim and Samuel Tobey back to the first hardy member of his family who left the shores of England and settled in America on the coast of Maine. There, in the village of Norridgewock, on October 16, 1834, Captain Tobey was born. He is a son of farmer William Tobey (2), who resided near the Kennebec River. William Tobey (2), was born on March 6, 1812, and died on April 26, 1848, at the age of 36 years. He was a man of most exemplary life and an active supporter of the Free Will Baptist Church. His widow, Ruth (Norton) Kelly, born in 1814, still lives on Marthas Vineyard, in good health. His three children were: Hiram F., of this sketch; Julia, who was born in 1836, is a resident of Hartford, Connecticut, and has two children; and Marcellus, who was born in 1842, died in Torch, Ohio, in 1888, and is buried there. His wife, also, Sara M. (Pease), born in Edgartown, Massachusetts, lies in the Torch cemetery by his side. One son, W. Milton Tobey, survives.

Captain Tobey for a period of twelve years belonged to that bold and hardy set of men known as whalers, and sailed from New Bedford in many expeditions, gaining his title in this way. On June 12, 1864, he was drafted while at sea and came into New Bedford a few days after and paid $550 for a substitute. In 1865 he came to Ohio, bought the farm property on December 23, 1867, and settled in his new home March 4, 1868. Under Captain Tobey's management Pleasant View farm has justified its name. He is engaged in general farming, but cultivates fruit particularly, and with great success, his peaches being among the finest raised in the State. He is also successfully engaged in the breeding of registered Hereford cattle, and his herd is very valuable. Bees also have done well under his magic care, and for their accommodation he grows great fields of fragrant clover. The buildings on the farm are as well adapted to their purpose as those of any rural home, and it is the delight of Captain Tobey to offer hospitality to his friends and to any worthy visitor who can appreciate the thorough cultivation of this most charming and valuable place.

Captain Tobey was identified with the Republican party until 1867, when he became a Democrat. In 1891 he was a very prominent candidate for the Legislature, and has most efficiently filled many of the township offices. Fraternally he is a member of Coolville Masonic Lodge No. 337. In religious life he has long been connected with the Universalist Church at Little Hocking, Ohio.

On August 12, 1866, Captain Tobey was first married, to Mary C. Ballard, a daughter of Zebulon and Mary Ann (Cole) Ballard, who was born September 27, 1847, and died August 21, 1897, without issue. On May 17, 1899, the Captain was married to Myrtle E. Philbrick, widow of B. F. Philbrick, of Summit County, Ohio. Captain Tobey is widely known, and has many friends in Decatur township. His reputation as a farmer, horticulturist and apiarist is second to none in Eastern Ohio.

DR. IRVING J. JOHNSON, well known as a leading physician in the town of Constitution, Warren township, Washington County, Ohio, has been prominently identified with the medical circles of that city since 1887, and has a large number of patrons. He enjoys a reputation for energy, skill and determination, and these qualities have given him a successful practice, and placed him in a high position.

Dr. Johnson was born in Bolton, Ontario province, Canada, but after undergoing primary instruction, studied for a time at Dartmouth College, in New Hampshire. Wishing to fit himself more thoroughly for his profession, he took a post-graduate course at the university in Baltimore, Maryland. His first work was done in Vermont, but not being satisfied with matters there, he moved to his present location, and soon found a suitable place for his practice in Constitution. He has given his work in that place undivided attention since 1887. Shortly after locating there, he purchased the ground on which is his comfortable residence, together with his office.

TECUMSEH SHERMAN NICHOLSON, who owns and operates a fine truck farm in the vicinity of Marietta, was born in Guernsey County, Ohio, in 1866. His parents were Jacob and Mary (Cramblett) Nicholson, of whom the former was reared in Noble County, Ohio, and is still living at the age of 69 years. Six children were born to Jacob Nicholson and his wife, namely: Ida; Eli; John; Grant; Tecumseh Sherman and Hobert Moody.

Ida, the eldest of the family, married Luke Thompson, who is a farmer in Guernsey County, and they have one child, named Burt. Eli is a farmer in Noble County. He married Josie Berson, and has three children,—Edna, Irel and Ava. John is engaged in the hardware business at Byesville, Guernsey County. He married Nancy Trott, and has three children,—Wilbur, Dwight and Nancy. Grant is a resident of Guernsey County. His marriage with Etta Secrest resulted in three children,—Ruth, Lowell and Lillian. Hobert, the youngest member of the family, is at a theological seminary in Springfield, preparing for the ministry. He married Bertha Kackley, and they have one child, Beatrice.

Tecumseh Sherman Nicholson, the fifth member of the above family, is successfully engaged in the cultivation of one of the most desirable farms in this part of Washington County. It is located on the west side of the Muskingum River, within one and a half miles of the city of Marietta. This fertile and productive land is valued at $500 per acre. Mr. Nicholson has been actively engaged in agricultural pursuits for a long period, and is generally regarded as one of the best farmers in this locality.

Mr. Nicholson married Tilla Bess, daughter of R. W. Bess, who resides on New street, in Marietta. They have two children,—Nami, aged eight years, and Harry, who has seen but three birthdays. In fraternal affiliation Mr. Nicholson is an Odd Fellow, and a member of the Knights of Pythias. Politically his sympathy is with the Democratic party, and his religious connection is with the Lutheran Church. He is a much respected citizen, who is known to be honest and upright in his business dealings, and who is ever ready to show friendly feeling and neighborly kindness.

ALBERT DOLE, a blacksmith, of Warren township, Washington County, Ohio, is skilled in the work of his trade, and has a good patronage. He was born in that township in 1868, and is a son of Robert and Sarah (Cunningham) Dole. His father was a native of Montreal, Canada, and was a blacksmith during his active life. He worked at blacksmithing in the Union army during the Civil War.

At the close of the conflict he settled down in Warren township, and followed his trade until a few years ago, on the farm which he had purchased, and which he still possesses. He is now eighty-nine years old, and is spending the sunset of his life in retirement, free from the cares he has always known. His son, Albert, has his blacksmith shop on the premises, and is thus near the father who takes pride in his skill and success.

Mr. Dole was united in matrimony with Katie Skipton, a daughter of Samuel Skipton, who owns a farm in Warren township, on which are a number of oil producing wells. Their union was blessed with three children namely: Myrtie M., Dewitt A., and Kelmer M., aged respectively eight, six, and four years. The family are devout members of the United Brethren Church.

In politics, Mr. Dole is ever ready to defend the principles of the Republican party against the arguments of those who do not believe in them.

FRANK R. SMITH, the efficient engineer of the Buckeye Pipe Line Company, at Elba pump station, was born in Reinersville, Morgan County, Ohio, October 21, 1878, and is a son of John and Rachel (Clendenning) Smith, both natives of Morgan County, Ohio. His paternal grandfather was Adam Smith, a Pennsylvanian by birth, but of German descent. Adam Smith is one of the pioneer settlers of Morgan County, and has spent his entire life in farming. He is now ninety-five years old, and is residing at Reinersville. His wife was Elizabeth Patterson.

The father of Frank R. Smith is a farmer in Morgan County. In early life he drilled for oil in the Macksburg district, before oil was discovered there, but failed to find any. He was a soldier in the Civil War, having enlisted at Marietta, as a private in the 77th Reg. Ohio Vol. Infantry. He was taken prisoner at Little Rock, Arkansas, while on special duty, and was honorably discharged after four years service, with the rank of captain. He married Rachel Clendenning and they reared six children, as follows: Willis, deceased; Joseph A.; Frank R.; William; Harry, who grew to maturity, but is now deceased; and Edna.

The subject of this sketch was reared in Morgan and Washington counties, and attended the public schools. He served an apprenticeship at telegraphy at Elba, where he has been located since 1895. He was in the employ of the Cleveland & Marietta Railroad Company until 1897, since which time he has been in the employ of the Buckeye Pipe Line Company.

November 30, 1899, Mr. Smith was united in marriage with Alice Harper, a daughter of John H. and Sarah (Porter) Harper, of Reinersville, Morgan County, Ohio. Mr. Smith is a member of the Christian Church, and in fraternal circles affiliates with Marietta Lodge, No. 477, B. P. O. E. In politics, he gives his support to the Republican party.

JOHAN C. PRESTON, a prominent lawyer of Beverly, Ohio, who has frequently been called into public service, is one of the enterprising and influential men of the city. He was born in Washington County, Ohio, two miles northeast of Beverly, October 3, 1832, and is a son of Frederick and Joanna (Chapin) Preston.

Frederick Preston was born in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, and died in 1862, aged about sixty-five years. He came to Ohio in 1819, located two miles northeast of Beverly, and followed farming all his life. Politically, he was a Whig. He married Joanna Chapin, who was also born in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, in 1798, and who died in October, 1854. They were members of the M. E. Church. Nine children were born to them, namely: Wesley, William and Solomon, deceased; Lucinda, widow of Isaac Hedges, who resides at McConnelsville, at the age of eighty-six years; Delia A., who married J. M. Truesdell, deceased; Mary, who died December 3, 1900, and was the wife of Thomas Sweazy; Washington, who lives in West Marietta; James H., who died in Kansas City, April 4, 1900; and John C.

John C. Preston attended the common schools, and was a pupil for one term in the academy at Columbus, graduating in 1847. Upon completing his studies, he served an apprenticeship to the trade of a blacksmith, at which he worked for six years. He was then employed in a machine-shop until 1860, when his health began to fail. In 1858 he had been elected justice of the peace of Waterford township, and in 1861 was appointed postmaster of Beverly, by President Lincoln. In 1857 he studied law under S. B. Robinson, and had made arrangements for admission to the bar when the Civil War broke out. Upon two different occasions he tried to enter the Union Army, but, because of physical disability, he was not accepted. When the war broke out, his office became a recruiting office and remained such until the conflict ended. He continued to serve efficiently as postmaster of Beverly until 1876, when he resigned and was admitted to the bar. He entered upon the active practice of law, which he has since continued, with office at Beverly. In politics he was first a Whig, but became a Republican, upon the organization of that party. He has served as justice of the peace, as postmaster, fifteen years, as mayor of Beverly, a number of terms, and was elected attorney of the county in 1891. He was re-elected to the last-named office in 1894, receiving next to the largest majority ever polled in the county. The majority was 2,167, and of this, Mr. Preston may well feel proud, as it attests the character of his service, and the esteem in which he is held in the county. He has been a notary public since 1859.

November 23, 1855, Mr. Preston was joined in marriage with Hannah Anderson, a daughter of James and Catherine Anderson, her father being the first mayor of Beverly. She was born in 1836, in Beverly, and died in March, 1873, leaving three children, namely: Burton, who is engaged in the granite and statuary jobbing business at Mansfield, Ohio; James A., who lives in Seattle, Washington, and is engaged in farming; and Kate C., wife of Edward Oliphant, a lawyer at Seattle. Mr. Preston formed a second matrimonial alliance, wedding Kate Shoop, who was born in Bristol township, Morgan County, Ohio, in 1857, and is a daughter of William and Emeline Shoop. They have four children, namely: Bessie, a school teacher; Fred N., a theatrical man; Mabel C., also a teacher; and John C., Jr. The subject of this sketch is a member of Mount Moriah Lodge, No. 37, F. & A. M., of Beverly, of which he is past master; and Rufus Putnam Chapter, No. 108, R. A. M., of which he has been high priest for years, and is the present incumbent of that office.

OLIVER S. GILCHREST, a prominent hardware merchant of Macksburg, Washington County, has been in that business since 1898, and has made a great success of it. He was born in what is now Wolfsburg, Bedford County, Pennsylvania, July 10, 1845, and is a son of Thomas and Catherine (Manspeaker) Gilchrest, natives of Pennsylvania, the former, of Westmoreland County, and the latter of Bedford County. He is of Scotch-Irish, English and German descent.

The paternal grandfather of Mr. Gilchrest was a native of Scotland, and his wife was born in Ireland, but they came to America, and became pioneer settlers of Westmoreland County. The maternal grandfather was Reasomer Manspeaker, born in England, whose wife was Sarah Leader, and they were pioneers of Bedford County, Pennsylvania.

Thomas Gilchrest followed the trade of a carpenter, but before the time of railroads he drove a team between Baltimore, Philadelphia, Ligonier and Wheeling. The greater part of his life, however, was spent in Bedford County, Pennsylvania, where his death occurred.

Mr. Gilchrest was reared in Bedford County and received a common school education. Prior to the Civil War, he was employed for four years at the miller's trade. At the beginning of that conflict, he enlisted in Company H, 54th Reg. Penn. Vol. Inf., served nine months as a private, and was honorably discharged. On his return home, he worked for a time at the painter's trade, and in 1864, went to Macksburg, Washington County, where he has, practically, lived ever since. He became connected with the oil business, finding employment in the George Rice refinery, for two years, and for the following five years, led a railroad career. From February, 1885, until 1898, he was in the grocery and dry-goods business in Macksburg. Then he opened up a hardware store, and has been successful in this last venture, as in all others. During President Cleveland's administrations he held the position of postmaster at Macksburg, and served two terms of four years, each.

In 1865, he was united in matrimony with Nancy J. Eagler, a daughter of John and Mary (Scotfield) Eagler, of Noble County, Ohio. They had two children,—Frank, now deceased, and Kenner Fred, a tool-dresser in the Macksburg oil field, who married Della Dilley, daughter of E. M. Dilley, of Macksburg, and has two children, Catherine and Robert.

Mr. Gilchrest is a thorough Democrat, in politics. He takes much interest in public affairs, and is ever ready to do his part. He has been useful to the city of Macksburg, both as mayor and as clerk of the school board. The latter position he held for many years. The subject of this sketch affiliates with the Aurelius Lodge, No. 308, F. & A. M., the J. O. U. A. M. Lodge, No. 247, of Macksburg, and also with the K. of P. lodge, of that city. He and his family attend services at the M. E. Church.

HARRY O. GOODRICH, the enterprising editor and proprietor of the Beverly Dispatch, a weekly newspaper issued every Friday, at Beverly, Ohio, is a journalist of recognized ability, being both conservative and progressive. Mr. Goodrich was born February 19, 1863, in Caldwell, Noble County, Ohio, and is a son of the late Charles H. Goodrich, whose death took place in Washington, D. C., August 31, 1892.

Charles H. Goodrich was a native of Sharon, Ohio, and was a man of prominence in his day. He was first a physician, and later a lawyer, and devoted many years of his life to the practice of these professions. In the latter part of his career, his principal occupation was that of a newspaper organizer, and his success proved that he possessed an unusual degree of executive ability. He founded the Noble County Republican; The Collied Press, The Newmarket News (Ohio); Argus; The Rocky Mountain News, at California, Missouri; The Monroe Gazette, at Woodfield, Ohio; and The Troy Chronicle, at Troy, Ohio.

In 1889, Charles H. Goodrich was appointed doorkeeper of the House of Representatives at Washington, D. C. At the close of that congress he was appointed Fourth Assistant United States Treasurer, under Charles Foster. While still filling this position, he was cut off by death, as before mentioned. His widow still survives, and makes her home in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Goodrich has three brothers, all engaged in newspaper work. Charles F. is connected with a newspaper in Indianapolis; Louis P. is employed on the Mail-Tribune, at Charleston, West Virginia; and Walter R. is engaged on the New York Tribune.

January 2, 1892, Mr. Goodrich was united in marriage with Mary I. Smith, of Caldwell, Ohio. They have four children, namely: Catherine L., Syble L., Mary L. V., and James Hugh. The family worship at the M. E. Church, of which Mrs. Goodrich is a member.

Mr. Goodrich located in Washington County, Ohio, September 23, 1899, and at that time, succeeded R. J. Smith in control of the bright, newsy sheet which it is still his pleasure to edit. The Dispatch was established in 1878, by William C. Walters and C. E. F. Miller. The subject of this sketch is now the sole proprietor of this paper, which is Republican in politics and has an established and profitable advertising patronage. It is the aim of Mr. Goodrich to do good work, stick to his business, give the people all the news possible, and thus merit the approbation of every one. He shows individuality in his writings, convincing both the advertiser and the candidate that while he labors for money, yet it is not his sole purpose in life. He realizes that the country press is more powerful than the metropolitan papers, because it reaches more homes and influences the farmers, who compose the bone and sinew of the republic. Therefore, in editing his paper, his motto is "upward and onward." In fraternal circles the subject of this sketch affiliates with I. O. O. F. Lodge, No. 616, at Carnegie, Pennsylvania.

ILLIAM R. PARKER, the well-known druggist of Beverly, Ohio, was born in Stockport, Morgan County, Ohio, in 1850, and is a son of Ezra and Lucy (Ross)

Parker.

Ezra Parker was born in Belmont County, Ohio, January 3, 1824, and was of Quaker parentage. His father, George Parker, was a native of North Carolina, and a son of Jacob and Rhoda (Belmon) Parker, his mother being a native of France. He married Rachael Jones, the only child of Joseph and Mary (Gilbreath) Jones. Joseph Jones was of Irish birth, having come from the North of Ireland to Georgia, in 1776; his wife was born in Wales. Ezra Parker left Belmont County and came to Washington County, where he was engaged in a variety of pursuits, engineering, in the employ of the Government, operating in oil during the early days of the Duck Creek field, conducting a shoe-manufacturing business in Beverly, and finally operating lumber and flouring mills at Plainfield. Coshocton County, where he moved in 1872. He lived in Plainfield until his death in 1881. His remains rest beside those of his wife, in the cemetery at Beverly. He married Lucy Ross, who was born in Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, and died in 1872, at the age of forty-eight years. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. One child blessed this union, William R., the subject of this sketch.

William R. Parker was reared in Beverly, where he attended the public schools. He went into the drug business at his present location, where he has had an uninterrupted business career. He has a first-class store, carrying a complete line of drugs, paints, wall-paper, books and stationery, and enjoys a liberal patronage from the citizens of Beverly and its vicinity.

November 9, 1872, Mr. Parker married Mary E. Hoge, who was born in Beverly, Ohio, January 23, 1851, and is a daughter of Solomon Gore and Lucy McIntosh (Chamberlin) Hoge. Her father was engaged in steamboat trade between Pittsburgh and Zanesville, and Marietta and Zanesville. He first came down from Belmont County, to clerk in his brother's store. In the last few years of his life, he was engaged in the manufacture of cigars. He was a Republican, in politics, and served as postmaster of Beverly under the Garfield-Arthur administration. Mr. and Mrs. Parker have two children,—Walton Hoge, who was born in Beverly, July 9, 1873, and is assistant to his father, in the drug business; and Lucy, who was born in Beverly, January 6, 1881, and is at home. The subject of this sketch is a member of Mount Moriah Lodge, No. 37, F. & A. M. He is a Republican in politics. His son, Walton Hoge Parker, is a member of Mount Moriah Lodge, No. 37, F. & A. M., of which he is now worshipful master. He has reached the 32d degree, and is a member of Cincinnati Consistory, and of Marietta Commandery, K. T. He was educated in Putnam Military Academy, graduating with the class of 1893. He is now treasurer of the corporation of Beverly.

AMUEL R. NICKEL, ex-mayor of Beverly, and the proprietor of a barber shop in that town, was born in Beverly, August 10, 1845, and is a son of Samuel R. Nickel, who came to this country from County Antrim, Ireland, at the age of twenty-five years. He located in Beverly, where he died in 1897, aged eighty-five years.

Samuel R. Nickel was educated in the schools of Beverly, and went into the drug business at an early age. He continued in that line for ten years, and then engaged in the tonorial line. He has a well-patronized shop on Main street, employing competent men to attend to the work. In the spring of 1900, he was elected mayor of Beverly, his opponent being J. C. Preston, the Democrat overcoming the Republican majority. He served in that office with great acceptability, faithfully discharging his duties.

Mr. Nickel was married, in 1865, to Eliza Beatty, a daughter of William and Eliza Beatty. She was born in Belmont County in 1843, and has had five children: Margaret, who married Irvin Beatty, in Beverly; Anna, who married Curtis Leget, and is living in Waterford; Lily, who is at home; Mary, who married Dow D. Davis, and is living in Kansas City; and William P., who died in 1892. Mrs. Nickel is a member of the Methodist Church.

Mr. Nickel has been one of the most active and progressive citizens of Beverly for a number of years, and is trustee of the cemetery. It was through his instrumentality that a neat, brick walk, 1150 feet long, was laid from the town to the cemetery. The subject of this sketch is always deeply interested in any public enterprise, and cheerfully gives his assistance to every worthy cause. He is well known in the vicinity, and has many friends.

OLUMBUS F. HAYWARD, a representative farmer of Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, was born on the old family homestead, of which his farm now forms a part, April 13, 1831, and is a son of Rotheus and Rebecca (Gray) Hayward.

Rotheus Hayward was born in Easton, Massachusetts, October 14, 1781, and came to Washington County, Ohio, in 1805, locating one mile up the river from Waterford. He purchased a farm, and at the time of his death, May 22, 1842, owned 500 acres of land. He followed farming and stock raising very successfully. Religiously, he was a member of the Presbyterian Church. He was a member of the Masonic order, and in politics, was a Whig. He was a captain in the militia, and served as township trustee many years. He married, first, Panthea Nye, a daughter of Ichabod Nye, January 29, 1807. They had seven children, namely: Joseph; Benjamin Tupper; Rotheus; Ichabod; Lydia M., who married August W. Shaw; Edward N.; and George B. The mother of this family died in 1823. Mr. Hayward was again married, to Rebecca Gray, who was born at Fort Fry, near Waterford, October 4, 1791, and died September 28, 1876. She was a daughter of Captain William Gray, who was captain of the garrison at Fort Fry. Her mother was a Miss Diamond, a native of Massachusetts, as was her husband. Mr. and Mrs. Hayward reared five children, namely: Charlotte and Panthea, deceased; Daniel W., who lives in Empire, Oregon; Columbus F.; and Cyrus B., who lives on the home farm.

Columbus F. Hayward attended the common schools of his district and Beverly High School. He has always been engaged in agricultural pursuits, but is not active now, although he still looks after his farm of 100 acres, which was a part of the old home farm on the Muskingum River.

In 1869, the subject of this sketch was united in marriage with Emily Devol, who was born in Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, September 24, 1829, and is a daughter of Stephen and Silance (Hatch) Devol. Her father came from Rhode Island and her mother from Connecticut. Her father was a farmer, and both were members of the Methodist Church. He was a Whig, in politics, and later a Republican. Silance Hatch first married a Dr. Buell, who died in Gallipolis, and their only child is also deceased. Mr. Hayward and his wife have one son, Edward T.

Dr. Edward T. Hayward was born in Waterford township, September 15, 1871, and received his educational training in the select school known as Beverly College, and in Marietta College, from which he was graduated in 1893. He then read medicine with Dr. P. H. Kelley, and entered Bellevue Hospital Medical College, from which he graduated in 1896, with the degree of M. D. He returned home, opened an office, and has since practiced successfully. He is a member of the Ohio State Medical Society, and the Washington County Medical Society. In politics, he is a Republican.

Columbus F. Hayward is a member of Mount Moriah Lodge, No. 37, F. & A. M., and also of the Chapter, R. A. M. Mrs. Hayward, who died May 30, 1900, was a faithful member of the Presbyterian Church, of which her husband is also a member. He is a Republican, in politics, was formerly justice of the peace of Waterford township, and is now township clerk.

R. SAMUEL G. ADAIR, a successful physician of Beverly, Washington County, Ohio, is a native of Guernsey County, Ohio, and was born in 1848. His parents were Arthur B. and Eleanor G. (Orr) Adair.

Arthur B. Adair was also a native of Guernsey County, and was born in 1818. His death occurred in 1893. He was a farmer by occupation, and was well known in his locality. His wife was born in Ireland, in 1818, and was but six weeks old when her parents moved to this country. Her parents, George and Elizabeth Orr, are long since deceased. Arthur B. Adair and his wife had five children, namely: Mary D., who married Henry Berkey, and died in Denver, in 1890; William A., a physician, who died in Athens County in 1899; Samuel G., the subject of this sketch; Jennie J., who died at the age of twenty-two years; and Robert O.

Dr. Samuel G. Adair, the subject of this biography, obtained his early mental training in Athens County, Ohio, in the common schools, and at Atwood's Institute, at Lee, Ohio. He was but five years old when his parents removed to Athens County, and he remained there until 1879. At the age of fifteen years, he entered the army, serving in the transportation department for a short time. He attended Downington University in Meigs County, Ohio, after which he taught school four or five years, and then went into the office of his brother, where he read medicine. He attended lectures at the Ohio Medical College, and received his diploma from that college in 1879, after which he at once located in Beverly, where he has been in active practice up to the present time. In 1901, he took a course in medicine at The Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital of Chicago. He is one of the best physicians in and about Beverly, and his practice is large and lucrative. He aims to advance with his profession, and is thoroughly modern in his ideas and treatment.

Dr. Adair married, in 1879, Ella F. Patterson, a daughter of John Patterson. She was born in Athens County, Ohio, in 1853, and five children have resulted from their union, namely: Lee P.; Florence B.; Wilbur G.; Frank E.; and Raymond G.

Dr. Adair and his wife are members of the Presbyterian Church. He is a member of the Odd Fellows lodge, Court of Honor; and of the State and Washington County medical societies. In politics, he is a Republican. He has been a member of the Pension Examining Board for nine years, and is a member of the town council and school board.

DR. CHARLES W. EDDY, who has been a practitioner of medicine for the past twenty-five years, and a resident of Marietta, for the past twenty-one years, is a native of Washington County, Ohio, and was born in 1852. He is a son of Erastus Eddy.

Erastus Eddy, the father of the subject of this sketch, was born March 27, 1829, in Massachusetts, and settled in Ohio in 1838. He located in Adams township, Washington County, where he followed farming and stock raising during his active life. His wife was born in Noble County, in 1832, and they now live in Marietta. Two children blessed their union, namely: Dr. Charles W., the subject of this sketch; and Elvin Parker Eddy, who died in 1897. He was a graduate of the Ohio Dental College, and was practicing in Marietta at the time of his death. Erastus Eddy served a number of years as justice of the peace, and also as trustee of Adams township.

Charles W. Eddy, the subject of this sketch, attended Beverly Academy, after which he took the full course at the Miami Medical College in Cincinnati, where he graduated in 1877. He is a general practitioner, and at present is located at No. 304 Front street.

Dr. Eddy married Anna Teter, a native of Van Buren County, Iowa, and they have one son,—Homer E. In politics, the Doctor is a Democrat. He has served two years as a member of the staff in the Hospital for the Insane, at Athens, Ohio, and for eight years was a member of the Board of Pension Surgeons in Marietta,—during both of Cleveland's administrations. Fraternally, he is a member of the following organizations: American Medical Association; American Association of Life Insurance Examiners, of which he was a charter member; the Ohio State Medical Society; and the Ohio Pediatric Society; he has served as both president and secretary of the Washington County Medical Society. He is a member of the American Union Lodge, No. 1, A. F. & A. M., and the Knights of Pythias. Religiously he is a Methodist.

Dr. Eddy ranks among the leading physicians of Washington County, and is a man who commands the respect of all who come in contact with him.

SAMUEL BAILEY, who is postmaster of Beverly, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Morgan County, Ohio, April 24, 1847, and is a son of James and Mary M. (Price) Bailey.

James Bailey was born in Jefferson County, Ohio, in 1799, and died in 1865. He removed to Morgan County, in 1830, and was a merchant at McConnellsville, in partnership with Alexander Simpson, for a number of years. He afterwards bought a farm near Deerfield Church, where he spent the rest of his days. He lies buried in the noted Deerfield Cemetery. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church. His wife, whose maiden name was Mary M. Price, was born in Zanesville, Ohio, in 1808, and died in 1896. She was a daughter of John Price. James Bailey and his wife had nine children, namely: John, a member of Company B, 62nd Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf.; James M., a member of Company E, 78th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., who died in the hospital at Vicksburg, and is buried in that city; Benjamin, a member of Company E, 78th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., who was wounded in the battle before Atlanta, and is buried in Rome, Georgia; William, deceased; an infant deceased; Sarah, who married James M. Ferguson, and is living on the home farm; Mary, who married Hiram Johnson, and is a widow, living in Missouri; Nancy V., who died in 1858, of what was then called putrid sore throat,—the first case of diphtheria in South-western Ohio; and Samuel, the subject of this sketch.

Samuel Bailey attended the common schools of his native county, and after leaving school, followed farming until 1880. He then followed civil engineering, in railroad work, for ten years, and in 1893, located in Beverly. He was elected justice of the peace in 1897, but resigned that office to accept the appointment of postmaster of the town, under President McKinley. He now fills that office to the entire satisfaction of his constituents. He was mayor of Beverly during 1895, filling the unexpired term of John Lansley.

Mr. Bailey was united in marriage in 1870 with Ella Filler, a daughter of William Filler. She was born near Roseville, Muskingum County, Ohio, and died in 1888, leaving four children, namely: Hattie L., who lives near Denver, Colorado; Oakley M., agent for the Rio Grande Western Railway Company, at Murray, Utah; Mary E., who lives near Denver, Colorado; and Anna, deceased. Mr. Bailey married, secondly, in 1891, Mary M. Jumper, a daughter of Mrs. Margaret Jumper. Her father was Captain John Jumper, and she was born at Rainersville, Morgan County, Ohio, in 1857.

Mr. Bailey is a Republican, in politics; he holds a commission as notary public from Governor George K. Nash. He is a member of Valley Lodge, No. 145, F. & A. M. of Malta, Ohio; and of the Rufus Putnam Chapter, and Fraternal Mystic Circle. He is a Presbyterian, in religious belief, while his wife is a Methodist.

B. WEST, who, during his active career, has been engaged in various lines of business and has been identified with many enterprises, is a successful oil producer, and one of the leading men of Marietta, Ohio. He was born near Moundsville, Virginia (now West Virginia), in 1838.

When about eighteen years of age, Mr. West removed to the neighborhood of Parkersburg, and came to Marietta during the Civil War. He first engaged in the grain and produce trade. For several years he was a member of the firm of Reppert, West & Jones, dealers in grain and produce, their place of business being where the Bellevue Hotel now stands. He operated in oil, to some extent, in West Virginia, prior to 1869, and then at Federal Creek, Morgan County, Ohio, in the Chesterfield district. Later, he sold there, and is now interested in Athens and Washington counties. He has a large number of wells, is interested in many oil companies, and is manager of the Alice Oil Company. For years he was secretary and manager of the Konk Oil Company. From 1879 to 1889 he dealt in Pittsburgh coal under the firm name of J. B. West & Co., with floats and barges at the foot of Butler street, on the Muskingum River, his office being near the corner of Putnam and Front streets. He disposed of his coal business, and again resumed oil operations, in which he has attained a high degree of success. Mr. West was superintendent of the Marietta City Water Works from its inception until July, 1900, when he resigned and was succeeded by J. S. H. Torner. He is a public-spirited man, and has taken a deep interest in the welfare and progress of Marietta.

Mr. West has two brothers,—Dr. W. L. West of New Matamoras; and Dr. G. B. West who is identified with the banking business at Sistersville. The subject of this sketch was joined in marriage with a daughter of Willard.

JOHN T. HAINES.

Merriman, who was born and reared in Washington County, Ohio. Her paternal great-grandfather was one of the original 48 settlers of Marietta, of whom Amos Porter, the youngest member, was the last survivor. One child blesses this union, namely: James Herbert, D. D. S., a graduate of Marietta College, who is engaged in practice at Mansfield, Ohio. By previous marriage, with Mary C. Neal, of Parkersburg, West Virginia, there was one son, William Edward, a steamboat man of Huntington, West Virginia. Mrs. West was an own cousin of Stonewall Jackson, who was brought up in her father's family. Politically, J. B. West is a Republican. He is a member of the Ancient Order of United Workmen. In religious convictions, he is a believer in the Congregational Church. He owns a home at No. 326 Third street, but resides at the corner of Third and Putnam streets.

JOHAN T. HAINES, one of the representative farmers and stock raisers of Washington County, Ohio, owner and operator of a fine farm of 80 acres in Palmer township, was born in Guernsey County, Ohio, on August 15, 1838. He is a son of Charles and Phoebe (Cook) Haines. His great-grandfather was of Holland birth and ancestry.

Charles Haines was born in 1810, in Belmont County, and his wife was born in 1818, in Guernsey County. They came to Washington County in 1847, and located in Wesley township, near Plymouth.

John T. Haines has devoted the greater portion of his life to agricultural pursuits. His education was obtained in the public schools. During the Civil War he enlisted in the 100-day service, and performed the duties of a loyal citizen. Mr. Haines has been located on his present farm for 25 years. He devotes it to a general line of farming and to stock raising, making a specialty of registered Jersey cattle. He keeps a herd of about 30 head, and has the reputation in Marietta, of making the best quality of butter in Washington County. Mr.

Haines operates his farm with the assistance of his son-in-law, John T. Ullom.

On February 24, 1862, the subject of this sketch was united in marriage with Rachel J. Dunsmoor, who was a daughter of Lucius P. and Mahala (Williams) Dunsmoor. The former was born in January, 1810. Mrs. Haines was born December 20, 1842. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Haines are Clara and Carrie D. The last named married John T. Ullom, and has one son, George Lawrence Theodore. The brothers and sisters of Mrs. Haines are as follows: Albina; Polly; Mahala Josephine; Lucius Jasper; Laura Virginia and Lodema A. The first wife of Mr. Haines died on June 10, 1899. On January 1, 1900, he was married to Ella Webster, a daughter of Joseph and Mary Webster.

In political sentiment the subject of this sketch has been a lifelong Republican, as was his father, and he actively supports that party's candidates. For 30 years, he has been a member of the Universalist Church. Mr. Haines is connected with no secret orders, although he is a man of social instincts and delights to offer hospitality to his wide circle of friends. He is a quiet, self-respecting man, who is liberal with his means when he sees the need of the unfortunate. He is kind to his neighbors, and looks well after his business and his family, dealing justly with all. In fact, he is a first-class, typical American citizen.

DR. E. SLOAN, who has been successfully engaged in the practice of medicine at Marietta, Ohio, since October, 1894, was born in Independence township, Washington County, Ohio, in 1847 and is a son of Mathias and Margaret (Coan) Sloan.

Mathias Sloan was a descendant of a Pennsylvania family which at an early day removed from Belmont County, Ohio, to Washington County, Ohio, where he died in 1874, on New Year's Day. After marriage he moved to Independence township. He married Margaret Coan, who was of Irish descent, and died in March, 1854, leaving four children, namely: E., a physician; Nancy Jane, wife of Rev. Mr. Taylor, of Independence township, by whom she has two children,—Amelia, aged nineteen years, and James, aged seventeen years; Elizabeth, wife of Joshua Goodman, of Independence township, by whom she has several children; and Lydia, who married Rev. Luther Handlan. She died in Florida, and Mr. Handlan, who was again married, died at Plymouth, Ohio, leaving one son, Irving. Mathias Sloan was married a second time, to Miss Donalley, now deceased, and ten children were born to them, as follows: Barnard, of West Virginia; John, who lives near Martin's Ferry; George, who lives in Martin's Ferry; Margaret; Ella, who resides at Martin's Ferry; Katherine, who resides in East Liverpool, Ohio; James, of Newport, Ohio; Isaac, deceased; Carrie, of Martin's Ferry; and Effie, deceased.

Dr. E. Sloan attended the schools of Independence township, the high school at Newport, and Dennison University. He taught one term in the schools of Newport, and several terms in the surrounding country. He entered the Eclectic Medical Institute, of Cincinnati, in the fall of 1872, and was graduated in January, 1874, with the degree of M. D. He practiced at Archer's Fork, Independence township, for a short time, and then went to Williamstown, West Virginia, where he practiced with good results until 1894; in October of that year he located at Marietta. He soon became well established, and now has an extensive practice. He has been a student of his profession through all these years, and is thoroughly familiar with all new discoveries in medical science. He is held in the highest esteem by the citizens of Marietta and the medical fraternity. He belongs to the Eclectic Medical Society of Ohio.

Dr. Sloan was married March 21, 1872, to Sarah E. Cline, a daughter of Reuben and Diana (Cady) Cline. Her parents now reside at Williamstown, as does also her brother, who is a physician. This union resulted in the birth of four children, as follows: Mira E., who was married in the spring of 1902, to Samuel H. Plumber; Dr. H. E., a graduate of the Eclectic Medical Institute, of Cincinnati, who is now practicing at Clarksburg, West Virginia; Arthur D., D. D. S., a graduate of the Cincinnati Dental School, who is practicing in Marietta; and Clarence R., who graduated in the spring of 1901, with the degree of M. D., and is associated in practice with his father. Religiously, the family are Baptists.

ARVEY E. SMITH, for many years a prominent educator of Washington County, is at the present time assistant manager of the Cumberland Oil Company, with headquarters at Marietta, Ohio.

Mr. Smith was born in Morgan County, Ohio, in May, 1863, and is of Quaker parentage. He was educated at the Ohio State University, at Columbus, after which he took up the profession of teaching. He first taught at Chester Hill, Ohio, and other towns, until 1869, and then came to Washington County, and had charge of the schools of Marietta township for two years. His ability was soon recognized and he became principal of the Marietta High School, in which capacity he served for eight years. In November, 1899, he accepted his present position with the Cumberland Oil Company. He gave marked satisfaction as an instructor, and his resignation was accepted with regret. Mr. Smith has done considerable work of a literary character, which has attracted much attention.

The Cumberland Oil Company was chartered in 1899, at Portland, Maine, with a capital stock of $500,000, to operate in Ohio. The officers are,—George P. Wescott, president; J. G. Shaw, vice-president; George F. West, treasurer; H. C. Lord, general manager; and H. E. Smith, assistant manager. Mr. Lord is an old time oil operator who came to Marietta in 1898, and in July, 1899, consummated the organization of the company, which runs several strings of tools. It is actively engaged in developing the mineral resources of this section, and owns a number of productive wells. In 1897 Harvey E. Smith was engaged with J. A. Lowell, to locate the pool that supplied the wells on the Joy farm, and they, with others, drilled a score of wells to ascertain its location. Persistent effort finally resulted in success. The corporation, which maintains offices in the St. Clair Building, has done good work for this section of the oil country.

The subject of this sketch was married to Ella Curry, of Morgan County, Ohio, who was also engaged in teaching school. Mr. Smith has one son, Edward Orton, who was born in Morgan County. Politically, Mr. Smith is a Republican. He is a member of the Board of Education, for which office none is better qualified. Religiously, he is a member of the First Methodist Episcopal Church.

ILLIAM P. DYE, a retired oil producer and successful business man, of Marietta, Ohio, was born there in 1844, and is a son of James H. Dye, and grandson of Samuel Dye.

Samuel Dye was born in Prince Edward County, Virginia, and removed to Washington County, Ohio, where he located in Lawrence township, early in the nineteenth century. He married Susan Huff, and they reared nine children, as follows: John H.; Jonathan T.; James H.; George; Sophia; Annie; Betsey; Mary and Nancy, all of whom are deceased.

James H. Dye was born in Lawrence township, on the Little Muskingum River, in 1816, and came to Marietta in 1830, when fourteen years of age. He learned the trade of a tanner with Thomas Vinton, and followed it until 1862, when he engaged in the cutlery business. One year later he established a livery, which he conducted until his death, in 1880. His establishment was located on 3rd street, between Greene and Church streets. He was prominent in local affairs, and served for a number of years as a member of the city council of Marietta. He married Clarissa Jackson, who came of a prominent Washington County family, and was a daughter of Hugh Jackson. She was born in 1817, and died in 1899. They were parents of nine children, namely: Harriet, deceased; George and Mary, of Marietta, the latter being the widow of Mattison Holmes; William P.; Catherine, who died young; Marcellus, who died in December, 1900; Louisa, wife of Wallace Scott, of Marietta; Henry, a physician, of Cleveland, Ohio; and Fanny R., who resides with her brother, William P., as does also Mrs. Holmes.

William P. Dye attended the grammar schools of Marietta, and in 1862 entered the Union army. He enlisted as a member of Company A, 87th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., for three months' service, and returned to Marietta in September, 1862. In 1864, he enlisted on the gunboat Louisville, on the Mississippi River, where he served as a sailor for twelve months, and was mustered out July 3, 1865. Returning to Marietta, he conducted a livery, in connection with his father, until the latter's death, when he became a partner of his brother, Marcellus, in the same business. This they continued until 1893, when the subject of this sketch engaged in the oil business at Chester Hill, Morgan County. He still has large oil interests, but his health has been such as to prevent him from taking any active part in the work in recent years. He was elected sheriff of Washington County, on the Republican ticket, in 1893, serving until 1897; and was formerly a member of the city council from the Second Ward.

Mr. Dye was married at Marietta to Clara Kinnard, a daughter of Pascal Kinnard. She was born in 1844, and died in September, 1879, leaving two children.—James K., who was born in 1873, and died in 1898; and Agnes U., who was born in 1875, and died in 1887. Fraternally Mr. Dye is a 32d degree Scottish Rite Mason, and belongs to Harnar Blue Lodge, No. 390. He resided in the Second Ward until 1889, when his home was destroyed by fire. He then purchased a lot, and built a home at No. 312 Third street, where he now resides with his two sisters. Religiously the family belongs to the Methodist Episcopal Church.

HENRY WENDELKEN, a retail grocer of Marietta, Ohio, located at No. 250 Front street, has been a resident of that city since 1853. He was born in the Province of Hanover, Germany, in 1840, and is a son of Gerd Wendelken.

Gerd Wendelken brought his family to America in 1853, and conducted a general store from 1855 to 1870. He died February 27, 1893, at the age of eighty-three years, his wife having died some years previous to that time. Mr. Wendelken has two sisters who are married, and live in Wheeling, West Virginia, and a brother, Martin K. Wendelken, who is a member of the firm of R. Van Metre & Company.

Henry Wendelken, subject of this sketch, went to school until he was fourteen years old, and then became employed in a bucket factory on the west side of Marietta, which was then conducted by John Newton, the site being that of the present Marietta Manufacturing Company. After four years' employment in that factory, he learned the carpenter's trade, at which he served a four-years' apprenticeship. In 1864, he entered the army, and served four months, after which he assisted his father in the store until 1865, when he engaged in business for himself. He first opened a general store on Front street, where Craig's photograph gallery now stands, and carried it on for ten or twelve years. He is now engaged in handling groceries, alone, and has a fine stock of both staple and fancy goods. He has occupied his present building, which was erected in 1859, for the past twenty-four years. Mr. Wendelken now owns the building, which, when first built, was 60 feet deep. He has added 40 feet to the rear, and the store is now 100 feet long, and 20 feet wide.

The subject of this sketch was wedded, in 1866, to Elizabeth Andreæ, of Matamoras, Ohio. She died in 1885, leaving six children, whose names are as follows: Edward, who is in the employ of the Buckeye Pipe Line Company; Clara, the wife of William Sayres; Emma, the wife of George Schad; Sargeant, who assists his father in the store; Louisa; and Harry, a clerk in the First National Bank of Marietta. Mr. Wendelken married, secondly, in 1888, Mrs. Elizabeth Rotchey, and they have one son, Gerd, who is in school.

Mr. Wendelken is a director in the Dime Savings Society, and also has other business interests in Marietta, although he devotes most of his time to the grocery business. He is a very successful man, and his success has been of his own making, as he has striven untiringly for many years. He is honest and upright in every way, and enjoys the confidence and esteem of all in the community. In politics, he is a Republican. He is a member of Buell Post, G. A. R., and has served three terms as senior vice-commander. He attends St. Paul's German Church.

ELMER E. WHITTINGTON, who carries on a general merchandise store at West, Grandview township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Summerfield, Noble County, Ohio, October 12, 1864, and is a son of Benjamin Whittington.

Benjamin Whittington was born in Maryland August 12, 1832, and went to Belmont County, Ohio, with his mother, at the age of twelve years. There he lived until he reached the age of twenty-one years, when he settled in Noble County. In 1881, he moved to Monroe County, where he continued to reside until 1898, and then located in Washington County, where he died December 13, 1898. He was a farmer, and an upright, honest man. He married Hannah Merrill, who was born in Barnesville, Belmont County, Ohio, and is now deceased. They reared the following offspring, namely: Sylvester, a farmer, of Monroe County; Marguerite, who married M. Snyder, and is living in Noble County. Dr. Richard H., of Washington County; James T.; Elmer E.; Laura J., deceased; and William A., a teacher in Washington County.

DR. J. D. PARR.

Elmer E. Whittington came to Washington County, in 1891, where he conducted, in partnership with his brother, James T., a general merchandise store at West. There they supply the wants of the farmers of the vicinity, and also the residents of the neighboring towns. They carry a good line of stock, and are well patronized. Mr. Whittington is well known in the community, and is a man worthy of the confidence placed in him.

The subject of this sketch was married September 20, 1898, to Julia A. Loman, who was born in Washington County, Ohio, September 9, 1872, and is a daughter of John R. Loman, deceased.

Mr. Whittington is a Republican, in politics. He was appointed postmaster of West in 1891, and has served in that capacity most acceptably since that year. He is a member of the Methodist Church.

DR. J. D. PARR, a well known practitioner of Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Washington County, September 3, 1858, and is a son of Nathan and Casinda (Ancrum) Parr.

Nathan Parr lives near New Matamoras, Washington County, and is a native of this county. His father, Samuel Parr, died at the age of ninety years. J. D. Parr, the subject of this sketch, remained at home until he was 21 years old. He attended the grammar school of John D. Phillips, and taught school eight years in Washington County. He spent two years in Kansas, where he also taught school about 30 miles southeast of Kansas City. He began the study of medicine in Kansas City, with Dr. M. T. Runnels. On returning home, he took a course at Pulte Medical College, in Cincinnati, from which institution he was graduated in 1890. He at once began the active practice of his profession, spending the first two years at New Cumberland, West Virginia. He then practiced for nine years in Huntington, West Virginia, and moved to Marietta, in September, 1901. There he purchased a fine home, in which he has his offices. Dr. Parr is a physician of more than ordinary ability, and has a large and increasing practice. He is a man who inspires confidence in his patients, and treats them with consideration and sympathy. His knowledge of his profession is thorough, and he is constantly seeking to advance, taking a deep interest in the progress made in that science.

Dr. Parr wedded Mary F. Dailey, a daughter of Nicholas Dailey, of Washington County. Her people come from Belfast, Ireland, and with the exception of herself and brother, John Dailey, of Pittsburg, are all deceased. The Daileys came to America in 1840, and located at Wellsburg, West Virginia, whence they moved to Washington County. Dr. Parr and his wife have three sons, viz: Donley J., who was born March 12, 1892, at New Cumberland, West Virginia; Robert Wesley, who was born March 9, 1894, at Huntington, West Virginia; and Willie Everett, who was born March 14, 1897, at that place.

Dr. Parr is a Democrat, in politics. He is a member of the Homeopathic Medical Society, of West Virginia; the Hahnemann Medical Society, of Cincinnati, Ohio; and the American Institute of Homeopathy; and has served as examiner for various old-line insurance companies. He is the examiner, at Marietta, for the M. W. of A. lodge, of which he is a member. In religious belief he is a Methodist.

JOHN M. WALKER, who has been engaged in farming in Grandview township, Washington County, Ohio, since 1866, was born in Noble County, Ohio, April 2, 1845, and is a son of John and Elizabeth (Low) Walker.

John Walker was born near Morgantown, Morgan County, West Virginia, and when twenty years of age moved to Ohio and located in Noble County. In 1867, he settled in Liberty township, Washington County, Ohio, where he followed farming until his death. He married Elizabeth Low, who was born on Duck Creek, Noble County, Ohio, in 1820, and they reared the following children: Sarah (Fleming); James A., of Belmont County, Ohio; Elizabeth; John M.; George, who was a member of Company C, 36th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., and died during the Civil War; David, deceased; Susan Ann, wife of I. Birch, of West Virginia; Delilah, wife of C. Wise, of Monroe County, Ohio; and Eliza (Wiley), of Washington County, Ohio.

John M. Walker came to Washington County, Ohio, in 1866, and located in Grandview township. He purchased forty acres of his present farm in 1868. Since 1878, he has added by purchase, 137 acres, and now has 246 acres of fine farm land. He is engaged in stock raising and deals largely in wood, and his success has been continuous.

In 1866 Mr. Walker was united in marriage with Mary Shaw, who was born in Pennsylvania, in 1844, and they have had five children: William H., and Francis E., deceased; Flora B., and Robert and John D., deceased. Mrs. Walker died May 10, 1876. John M. Walker was again married, in 1878, Emma J. Wells, who was born in Washington County, Ohio, becoming his bride. Their children are as follows: F. Warren; Mary; George; Edna C.; Blanche E.; and Thurman R. Politically, Mr. Walker is a Prohibitionist, and has served two terms as township trustee. Religiously, he is a member of the Christian Church.

THOMAS STANTON, one of the well-known and representative farmers of Washington County, Ohio, who has been identified with the growth and development of Wesley township for many years, was born in Somerset township, Belmont County, Ohio, in 1828, and is a son of William and Mary (Leslie) Stanton.

William Stanton was born in North Carolina, in 1796, and there in the home of his parents, he grew to maturity, learning the tanning business. Later in life, he became a farmer and died in 1861. The maternal grandfather of Thomas Stanton was Robert Leslie, and the grandmother was Rachel Rogers, both being honored names in the State of Maryland, where Mary (Leslie) Stanton was born in 1801; she died in Ohio in January, 1868.

Thomas Stanton was reared in Belmont County and learned the blacksmith trade in Somerton, where he conducted a shop for seven years. He moved to Little Hocking in 1859, and cultivated his small farm, which he left to enter the army. He enlisted under the 100-day call, and after his service was ended, he sold his 50-acre farm at Little Hocking, and moved to Athens County, where he bought another farm and operated it for seven years. In 1872 Mr. Stanton secured his present fine farm, which was at that time known as the "Windfall" tract, on account of its big timber having gone down in a very destructive storm which swept over the locality some years prior to Mr. Stanton's purchase. With the exception of 50 acres, he cleared this land and has made his farm a model in tillage and improvements. The property comprises 164 acres, and originally belonged to the well-known Nahum Ward, and was a part of "the Ohio Purchase." Mr. Stanton keeps only good stock, and he has been particularly successful in sheep growing, his wool bringing the highest market price.

In 1851, Mr. Stanton was married to Patience C. Hobbs, a daughter of Amos Hobbs, of Belmont County, who was born in 1830, in Maryland, and came with her parents to Ohio, in childhood. To this union the following children were born: Greenberry W., born in 1852, who married Jennie Barton, has four children, and lives in Morgan County, Ohio; Mary E., born in 1854, who married John Murphy, and lives in Athens County; William A., born in 1856, who died at the age of 18 years; Charles J., born in 1858, who resides at home and is unmarried; Louis Eugene, born in 1859, who married Emily Fawcett, has one child, and lived in Colorado; Elmer Ellsworth, born in 1862, who married Laura E. Edgar-ton, and has five children; Sarah A., born in 1866, who resides at home; and Schooley, born in 1867, who resides in Marietta, and is connected with the Standard Oil Company. Mr. Stanton gave his children excellent educational advantages, in select schools at Bartlett, and two of them took business courses. Both Ellsworth and Eugene taught school in Iowa and Dakota. The former is now a rising attorney at Stromsburg, Nebraska, and the latter is a successful physician at Sterling, Colorado.

In politics, Mr. Stanton has been identified through life with the Republican party, his interest beginning when he was 12 years old. His first vote was cast for the Free Soil ticket. Although he never sought office, he has served as assessor and school director, and is regarded as one of the most useful, reliable and substantial citizens of Wesley township.

EORGE W. PFEIFFER, a well-known educator and agriculturist of Washington County, is now living upon his well kept farm in Lawrence township.

William Pfeiffer, father of George W., our subject, was born in Hesse-Darmstadt, on the Rhine, in Germany, February 27, 1820. On January 1, 1847, he landed in New York and after some time settled in the Ohio Valley. Here he followed wood turning, and was also engaged for many years in farming. He married Priscilla S. Bircher, who was born in Sussex County, Delaware, September 15, 1831. Mr. and Mrs. Pfeiffer reared four children, namely: Lizzie, deceased; George W.; Lenora and Charles S., deceased. After settling in this county Mr. Pfeiffer became a citizen, and was a Republican in politics. He became a member of the Christian Church in middle life.

George W. Pfeiffer was born in Newport, Kentucky, April 18, 1858. He received a good education, and after reaching manhood began teaching school. This profession he followed for 17 years, giving most excellent satisfaction. In the meantime he had become interested in agriculture, and being a progressive man, he puts into practice the latest and most approved methods of farming. His specialty is the raising of Durham cattle, and swine.

Mr. Pfeiffer married Etta Athey, who was born October 7, 1867, and is a daughter of Hezekiah Athey. This union has resulted in three children,—Charles, Georgiana and Theodore Alston. Mr. Pfeiffer keeps thoroughly informed upon all the leading questions of the day. Politically, he is a Republican, and takes much interest in local politics, having served his community as assessor for one year. He is a man of irreproachable character, and is highly esteemed by all who know him.

EORGE WORRALL, who is one of the active and prominent young business men of Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, is treasurer of the "Worrall Grocery Company," which he conducts. He was born in Morgan County, Ohio, at Chester Hill.

Mr. Worrall attended the common schools of Chester Hill, and began his business career by clerking in a general store in that village. He has had many years of experience in the grocery business, having spent ten years in service with the Penrose & Simpson Company.

The Worrall Grocery Company was incorporated under the laws of Ohio, in September, 1900, and its officers are as follows: J. S. Pierpont, president; P. W. Leedom, vice-president; M. E. Coffman, secretary; and George Worrall, treasurer and manager. The building now occupied by the firm is on Second street, and was built for their use, consisting of four floors and a basement. This company has an entire floor space of about 20,000 square feet. Three traveling men cover the territory for a radius of sixty miles. The business of 1902 shows an increase of 20 per cent. over the corresponding months in 1901. They carry on purely a wholesale business, and have one of the largest and finest stocks of groceries in Marietta.

Mr. Worrall married Miss Leedom, of Butler, Pennsylvania, and they have one son,—Ralph L. They live at No. 408 Scammel street, and are members of the Congregational Church.

Mr. Worrall was secretary and treasurer of the Marietta Council of United Commercial Travelers of America, which organization was established in April, 1891. He was one of the thirty charter members, and from 1894 to 1899 held the office of secretary and treasurer. This organization now consists of 110 members, and its present officers are as follows: E. C. Wise, past counselor; A. H. Strecker, senior counselor; Lou Strecker, junior counselor; W. M. Dearth, conductor; O. J. Hawk, sentinel; and M. Rea Gano, secretary and treasurer.

Mr. Worrall is one of the rising young business men of Washington County, and is possessed of more than ordinary mercantile ability. He is progressive and active and is keenly alive to the necessity of untiring energy and zeal in this day of keen competition. He displays much tact and good judgment in the management of his business, and is a man of upright principles.

JAMES F. BRIGGS, numbered among the substantial and representative citizens of Warren township, Washington County, Ohio, is well known and popular in that vicinity, and is ever ready to perform his share of the duties of a citizen.

Mr. Briggs is the son of Andrew and Mary (Black) Briggs. The subject of this sketch was born in Morgan County in 1839, and has been located at his present place since 1890. The father was born in Ohio and the mother in Pennsylvania.

In 1864 Mr. Briggs enlisted in the 174th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., in the 23rd Army Corps. He spent most of his time in Tennessee, doing brave service under General Schofield, at Cedar Creek, Murfreesboro, and Over-all Creek. He was honorably discharged at the close of the war and returned to Ohio.

Mr. Briggs chose for his life companion Harriet E. Marshall, a daughter of Thomas and Jane Marshall, of Muskingum County, Ohio. They have had five children, namely: Emmett, who died in infancy; Evert; Theodosia; Charles A.; and E. Stanley. Theodosia and Charles A. are still residing at home. E. Stanley is running a lease in the oil business with great success. Evert married Emma Pfeffer, and they have two children,—Floyd and Alta. The family are faithful in their attendance on religious service at the Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Briggs is a Republican in politics and is often of service in helping to advance the interests of his chosen party. His good-natured ways and pleasing manners have won him many friends on every side, who delight in his prosperity.

FURMAN J. DYE, an extensive agriculturist, living on his farm four miles from Marietta, on the River Road, is recognized and has been for some years past, as one of the most substantial citizens of Warren township, Washington County, Ohio.

Mr. Dye is a son of Samuel and Lucinda (Dye) Dye, and was born November 10, 1841, in Lawrence township, Washington County. His father was born September 24, 1806, in Lawrence township, Washington County, and died June 3, 1884. In 1868 he moved to Warren township, where he spent his last days. He and his wife were the parents of 16 children, six of whom are now living, as follows: Morgan I.; John J.; Furman J.; Hattie R. (Scott); Joseph R.; and Samuel M. Samuel M. resides with his brother on the home farm. He married Mary Ward, a sister of the wife of Furman J. Dye. Samuel M. and his wife have a family of five children, as follows: Thomas; Lizzie; Edna; Mamie; and Wirt.

Marietta College furnished the education with which Furman J. Dye made his start in life, and it was while he was attending to his studies there that his father purchased the farm now owned by his three children, Furman J., Samuel M. and Hattie R., wife of D. A. Scott. It consists of 232 acres of the best kind of land, and Mr. Dye is deriving great profit from its cultivation; he raises principally grain and hay. On this farm, the first oil in the vicinity was discovered, and there also the first well was drilled by Newton & Company at "Cow Run," the farm at that time being still in the possession of his father.

Furman J. Dye was united in matrimony with Lizzie Ward, a daughter of Patrick and Mary Ward, of Warren township, and their union resulted in two children, namely: Howard and Dewey W., whose ages are twelve and two and a half years, respectively.

Mr. Dye is an upright, consistent and reliable man, progressive in all his methods of farming, and public-spirited as a citizen. The greater part of his time and energy are spent on the farm in attending to its various duties.

WILLIAM ROWLAND WICKENS, oil and oil producer in Aurelius township, Washington County, Ohio, which has been his home since early boyhood, was born on the Isle of Wight, England, March 15, 1823, and is a son of George and Charlotte (Rowland) Wickens, both natives of the same place.

George Wickens, the paternal grandfather, spent his entire life on the Isle of Wight, actively engaged in farming. The maternal grandfather, William Rowland, was a native of the same isle, where he followed the occupation of a ship carpenter. In 1820 he came to America, and was among the pioneer settlers in Aurelius township, Washington County, Ohio. He married Nancy Beer, and they reared six children, as follows: Harriet, who married James Rowland, known as James May; Jane, who married John Hutchins; William Rowland; Charlotte; Mary A., who married Alfred Regnier; and Edward, who married Eliza Kidd.

George Wickens, the father of William Rowland, sought a home in America in 1832, bringing his family with him. He located in Washington County, Ohio, and purchased land in Aurelius township. He was a shoemaker by trade, and worked at the bench for 40 years. After clearing a portion of the land he engaged in tilling the soil, and also improved his farm by the addition of substantial buildings. Upon this farm he and his wife passed their closing years, having realized their fondest hopes.

Five children were born to him and his estimable wife, namely: George; Betsey, who married Allen Pierce; William Rowland, the subject of this biography; John; and Henry, a short sketch of whose life appears in another part of this work.

William R. Wickens was reared and schooled in the vicinity of his present farm, which consists of 300 acres. A part of this land was taken up as a government claim, by his brother, George, shortly after the family came to America. This tract not only ranks among the best farming land in Aurelius township, but is good oil property. Over 200 acres of it was cleared by its present owner, who, in 1865, began prospecting for oil. His efforts were crowned with success, and since that time, much attention has been given by Mr. Wickens to the development of the oil industry in his section. He now has a large number of wells in successful operation, yielding an average of 70 barrels of oil every 24 hours.

September 23, 1849, Mr. Wickens was joined in marriage with Sarah L. Cadwell, a daughter of James and Lucy (Hamilton) Cadwell. Their union was blessed with four children, namely: Edward T., Charles A., Ellis W. and Joseph A. Two of these, Edward T. and Joseph A., are farmers of considerable prominence, as well as oil producers. An appropriate account of their careers is found in another part of this volume.

April 22, 1902, Mr. Wickens was deprived of his beloved companion by death, when she was in her seventieth year. She had been a devout and active member of the Good Hope Baptist Church, since 1856. Mr. Wickens is a member of the same church, and served in the capacity of deacon for more than a quarter of a century. He is a firm advocate of the Republican party, and is highly esteemed as a citizen.

APTAIN J. C. MORROW, a gentleman well known to the citizens of Washington County, Ohio, is sheriff of the county, in which he has lived most of his life. He was born in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, in 1833, and is a son of James and Sarah (Moore) Morrow, both natives of Pennsylvania.

The parents of Captain Morrow removed to Washington County, Ohio, in 1845, accompanied by their five children. They located in Wesley township on a farm, and the father followed farming and blacksmithing for many years. He was a staunch Republican in politics. He died in 1892, at the age of eighty-eight years, and his wife died in 1888, aged about eighty-five years. The five children born of their union were as follows: Rebecca, who died in 1880; John, who was a farmer of Wesley township, and died in 1896; Polly, who was the wife of Mr. Williamson, of Wesley township, and died in 1855; Charles, who is living in retirement in Bartlett, Wesley township, and has served as township trustee and in other official positions; and J. C., the subject hereof.

Captain J. C. Morrow spent his boyhood and youth in Washington County, and then located in Athens County, Ohio. He enlisted from Amesville, in August, 1861, as a private soldier in the 36th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., and served in four different companies of that regiment, namely: B, F, G and D. He became orderly sergeant and later second lieutenant, and during the latter part of his army career was captain of Company D, 36th Regiment, which rank he held for more than a year. During the year 1864 he commanded General Cook's escort. During his entire service he was never wounded or ill. Throughout his life he has been a stranger to sickness, and is now as hale and hearty as a boy. At the close of the war he returned to Athens County, Ohio, and followed blacksmithing, a trade he had learned with his father. He continued there for about two years, and then returned to Bartlett (Post Office), or Plymouth, as it is now called, in Wesley township, where he followed his trade. He still owns and conducts a blacksmith shop there, and hires men to do the work. In 1898 he was appointed postmaster, and served under McKinley's administration until he resigned to accept the office of sheriff of Washington County, to which he was elected January 9, 1901, succeeding John McAllister. He was for twenty-three consecutive years treasurer of Wesley township, and resigned when he removed to Marietta in the winter of 1900-1901. He is a faithful and efficient public servant, and is held high in the esteem of his fellow men.

Mr. Morrow married Lucy A. Van Law, who was born and reared in Washington County, and is a daughter of Thomas Swain, an old resident of the county. Her mother resides at Bartlett, at the age of almost ninety years. This union has been blessed by the birth of four children, as follows: Lucy A. (Luft), of St. Louis, Missouri; Charles, a tinner by trade, now residing in the West; Elma Leotia (Steele), whose husband is a merchant of Bartlett; and Myron M., aged twenty-two years, who is assisting his father in the office.

B. SUNDERLAND, a prominent real estate dealer, of Marietta, Ohio, is engaged in business at No. 229 Second street. He was born in Belmont County, Ohio, near Barnesville, and is a son of Richard P. Sunderland, deceased. He has two brothers and one sister, living in the West.

The Sunderland family removed from Belmont County to Athens County, Ohio, when G. B. Sunderland was very young and there he received his early training and schooling. For a number of years he was an extensive stock buyer and seller, and in that business was very successful. He located in Washington County, in 1876, where he continued in the stock business until 1895. In 1895 he engaged in the real estate business, in connection with his brother-in-law, B. B. Putnam, and they are now among the foremost real estate firms of Washington County. Mr. Sunderland has established a reputation as a man who deals fairly with all, using only the most open business methods. He is well known in that section of the Ohio, and is a man of splendid business ability.

He married Miss Hay, of Fairfield, Wayne County, Illinois, and they reside at No. 606 Third street, in Marietta. Mr. Sunderland is a Republican, in politics, but does not aspire to political preferment. He is a member of the First Presbyterian Church.

APT. REES N. COLE, an extensive fruit grower and prominent resident of Warren township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Gallia County, Ohio, December 27, 1839. He is a son of Samuel and Mary (Davis) Cole, and grandson of Samuel Clay Cole.

Samuel Cole was born and reared in New York state, and afterward settled in Saint Clairsville, Ohio, where he followed farming. His wife was a native of Cork, Ireland, and they were married in Belmont County, Ohio. Later Samuel Cole purchased the farm in Gallia County, on which Rees N. Cole was born. Nine children were born to him and his wife, as follows: Rees N.; Marshall G., who enlisted in 1861, when the call for three-hundred-day men was issued, in the 7th Reg., Ohio Vol. Cav., in which he became a second lieutenant, and who was killed in the Wilson Raid at Selma, Alabama, which occurred after the declaration of peace; Sardis, who is a farmer of Lancaster, Ohio; Samuel Clay, a railroad engineer, who makes his home at Indianapolis, Indiana; Leroy F., who is a cabinet-maker of Indianapolis; William F., who is a cabinet-maker of Indianapolis; Mary, wife of Samuel McElhenny, who lives in Gallia, Ohio; Celicia Jane, who is living at home with her mother; and Emma, who married Warner Safford, of Gallia County, Ohio. Samuel Cole died in April, 1887. Mrs. Cole resides in Gallipolis, Ohio, at the age of 86 years.

Capt. Rees N. Cole was a captain on the river for many years, following steamboating from 1856 until 1870. He then moved on a farm, and at the present time is a prosperous fruit grower, having a fine farm in Warren township. He was united in marriage with Amelia Elizabeth Dyar, a daughter of J. B. and Abigail (Proctor) Dyar, and granddaughter of Jeremiah Dyar. Her father came to Washington County, Ohio, from Nova Scotia, with his parents. Eight children were born to bless this union, namely: Abigail Proctor, who married P. E. Clark, of Marietta, and died in 1898, leaving a daughter, Ruth, who is now thirteen years old; Rees Herbert, a machinist by trade; Caro Amelia, who married John F. Bukey, by whom she has a son, Joseph Dyar, aged fourteen years; Harriet Estella, wife of Walter McNeal, of Charleston, Virginia, who is cashier of the Standard Oil Company at that place; Marshall Grasson, who lives in Gallipolis, Ohio; Emma Safford, wife of W. J. Cram, of Marietta, Ohio; and Chester Dyar and Joseph Dyar, who are at home. Captain Cole is a Republican in politics. His wife is a member of the Congregational Church.

RS. CHARLOTTE C. CONE is a lady who has passed through many varied circumstances of life, and one whose personality and agreeable traits are recognized by a large circle of friends and well-wishers about her home near Marietta, Ohio.

Mrs. Cone is a daughter of Charles and Mary (Frazier) Little, and was born in Newport township, Washington County, Ohio, where her parents lived on a farm. The father died at the advanced age of seventy-eight years and his wife preceded him some years to the grave. They had a large family and among their children were the following: Pamela, widow of William Greenwood; Otis, now living in the west; Jane, who married Stephen Dana, of Marietta, Ohio; George and Nathaniel, deceased; Charlotte C.; Wealthy, who was united in marriage with James Dills, of Parkersburg, deceased; Maria, wife of John Cook; Charles, a resident of Marietta; Arthur Little, ex-sheriff of Marietta; and Cora Columbia, the wife of James Record, now living in the suburbs of Chicago.

Mrs. Cone and her husband were the parents of four children, three of whom grew to maturity, and are as follows: Cora, who was united in matrimony with Henry Harnish, assistant postmaster at Parkersburg, West Virginia; Joseph, a resident of Marietta; and Linnie, living with her beloved mother on the home farm. Mr. Cone died in 1895, aged 78 years.

Mrs. Cone has spent the past forty-one years of her useful life on the farm that is now her home. She has had the best of teachers, time and experience, and is in a fitting position to give valuable counsel and admonition to the rising generation. She has a kindly disposition and her gentle ways come from a heart that is full of regard for those whose privilege it is to be counted among her friends and acquaintances.

On Mrs. Cone's farm, which is about four miles out of Marietta, on the River Road, are four oil wells, which give the property additional value.

MARY E. CISLER. Among the many respected and honored residents of Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, the lady whose name heads this short biography holds a high place, and is much esteemed for her many excellent qualities, both moral and intellectual. She is a daughter of Peter Young, of Marietta, who came from Germany to the New World, and settled in Marietta, where he subsequently embarked in the coal business.

The subject of this sketch was united in marriage with Henry William Cisler, a son of Henry and Anna Cisler, in 1871. Mr. Cisler was engaged in the dairy business until his death, in 1887, at the early age of forty-two years. He was a Democrat, in political opinions, and faithfully performed his duties as a citizen. He and his wife were blessed with four children, namely: Flora, who married Frederick Blume, a barber in Marietta; Bartlett, who married Nellie Racer, and has one child, Ruth; Mary L., a resident of Marietta; and Alice Ann, who lives on the home place. Bartlett is quite profitably engaged in farming on his mother's farm. The family are members of the Lutheran Church.

BLOOM F. MURDOCK, a highly respected resident of Columbus, Ohio, was born on March 9, 1859, and is a son of George W. and Sarah E. (Shinn) Murdock, who were married on June 10, 1854.

George W. Mudrock was born on June 26, 1831, and died on April 16, 1899. He was a son of Elias and Malinda (Penothers) Murdock, who were married on January 16, 1826, and had the following children: Elizabeth A.; James Monroe; Mary P.; George W.; Virginia A.; Jesse G.; Sarah C. and Charles J. Elizabeth A. was born November 6, 1826, and died January 25, 1827. James Monroe was born March 4, 1828, and died August 12, 1886. He was married October 24, 1849, to Nancy Breckenridge, and had five children. Mary P., who was born September 24, 1830, was married on October 25, 1849, to Robert Breckenridge, and has five children. Virginia A., who was born February 26, 1833, was married to Alonzo B. Ellis, who died in a Confederate prison. Her second marriage was to Brazil Waterman, of Watertown, and her four children were,—Josie, born in 1852; Orlando, born April 1, 1854; Edwin, born in 1856; and Alonzo B., who was born May 7, 1862, and died March 27, 1883. Jesse G., who was born November 1, 1834, was married November 3, 1860, to Mary A. Palmer, and their children were,—Augustus E., born August 5, 1862; Susie A., born in 1864; Addie J., born June 21, 1866; Julia S., born in January, 1868; James D., born in September, 1870; Annie Louise, born in 1872; and Nellie, born in 1875. Sarah C., who was born October 16, 1837, was married on October 17, 1857, to Dr. William H. Bryan, and they have had three children,—Charles E.; George M.; and Hattie O., who died February 3, 1871. Charles J., who was born January 28, 1840, and was a soldier during the Civil War, died while at home on a furlough on April 29, 1864.

Sarah E. (Shinn) Murdock was born March 19, 1829, in Guernsey County, Ohio, and died on June 4, 1898. She was a daughter of Samuel and Mary (Pugh) Shinn. The children resulting from her union with George W. Murdock were as follows: Matie; Bloom F.; Milton S.; and Charles Jerome. Matie, born December 2, 1855, is the wife of John Lightner, of Wolf Creek, and is a lady of liberal education. She attended Beverly Academy, under Prof. R. J. Smith, and later taught school successfully for ten years in Morgan and Washington counties; she is a consistent member of the Methodist Church. Milton S., who was born August 25, 1862, married Charlotte Winner, a daughter of Moses and Sarah Winner, and they have the following children: Clarence A.; Roy E.; Alice R.; Zoria T.; and Bertha. Charles Jerome, who was born March 11, 1872, married Bertha Dill, of Columbus, Ohio, and they have one daughter, Doris.

MARY EMMELINE DEVOL, the esteemed subject of this biography, is now residing on a farm about three miles from Marietta, Ohio, on the Muskingum road. The farm is owned jointly by her brothers, Jesse B. and Gordon B., and herself. She is a daughter of Josiah and Catherine (West) Devol, and a granddaughter of Wing Devol.

Wing Devol was one of the pioneer settlers in the section of country known as Washington County, and formerly lived in Rhode Island. He passed to his final rest in 1866, at the good old age of ninety-two years, leaving the homestead farm to the care of his son, Josiah Devol, father of Mary Emmeline.

On this farm Josiah Devol was born and reared, as was also the subject of this sketch, her four brothers and one sister. They are as follows: E. W.; Jesse B., living on the home farm; Clara, who was united in marriage with William Gates; Gordon B., and Josiah H., Jr.

Gordon B. Devol married Mina Harsha, and lives on the home farm, having three children: Robert Gordon, aged four years; Harry M., aged two years; and Wilmer Deane, an infant. Josiah H., Jr., married Florence Stowe, and has three children,—Gerald, Glenn, and Norman. They are now enjoying life in California.

The subject of this sketch is a valued member of the Congregational Church. She is of a kindly and generous disposition, has many friends, and is esteemed and loved by all.

LESLIE BURFIELD, a prominent farmer and representative of Washington County, Ohio, who owns one of the fine farms in Palmer township, was born in that township on March 31, 1844. His father was Francis Burfield, and his mother was Mary Ann (Campbell) Burfield, who was a daughter of Moses Campbell, and died in 1863, leaving four children, namely: Jordan; Leslie; Charles; and Nancy Jane. The first marriage of Francis Burfield took place on August 8, 1852, and his second, to Isabel Campbell, occurred in August, 1865. She bore the same surname as his first wife, although no relationship existed. The children of the second marriage were also four in number, namely: Mary; Eva Jane; Elsworth; and Ida. Mr. Burfield still resides on the old home farm, which has been his home for 55 years. It contains 204 acres, and is devoted mainly to sheep raising and general farming.

The early life of Leslie Burfield was passed and the farm and his mental training was obtained in the district schools. On April 3, 1883, he was united in marriage with Rowena Selby, a daughter of Hines Selby, of Athens County, Ohio, and a family of five children was born to their union, namely: Oscar; Selby; Roy Lawrence; Lyle; and Ethel.

Mr. Burfield operates a farm of 213 acres, is engaged in general farming and stock raising and breeds pure Durham cattle. In both lines of activity he has been very successful, and is justly regarded as one of the substantial citizens of Palmer township. He enjoys great popularity, of which, perhaps, no better proof could be offered than the fact of his election for 15 years, in a Republican township, to the office of trustee. He is identified with the Democratic party. For many years he has also served as school director. He was engaged for 22 years with his brothers in the lumbering business, and in taking Government contracts, but now devotes his attention exclusively to his farming interests. His fraternal membership is with Watertown Lodge, No. 852, I. O. O. F.

RICHARD LANE, one of the prominent and representative farmers of Washington County, who is the owner and operator of a well-improved and productive farm in Wesley township, was born June 9, 1832, in Wesley township, on an adjoining estate. His parents were Hiram and Drusilla (Davis) Lane. Hiram Lane was born in 1802, in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, and was brought to Ohio at the age of four years by his father, John Lane, who settled in Roxbury township. John Lane was an iron manufacturer and made the iron that was used in the construction of the jail at Marietta.

Hiram Lane was a prominent citizen of Wesley township for many years and as one of its trustees was associated with the Breckenridges, the Goods and others whose names are representative. His wife was a daughter of Jesse Davis, whose father came to Marietta in company with Rufus Putnam, and her brother, Simon Davis, was one of the children born in the blockhouse at Waterford, opposite Beverly.

Richard Lane attended the district schools of Palmer township, and was also a pupil in the select schools in 1856-1857, and he remembers among his teachers Jefferson Yarnell and Zodach Bundy, late auditor of Washington County. Under their careful instruction he became qualified to take charge of the district schools himself, and for six winters taught through Palmer, Wesley and Windsor townships. In 1859 he purchased his present valuable farm, formerly the property of Deacon Isaac Melvin. It contains 124 acres of excellent farming land, 25 of which Mr. Lane cleared from its original growth of timber. Although there has as yet been no oil development, it is in the near vicinity of the oil belt, and there are many indications of its presence. The land, however, is admirably adapted to the production of general crops, and few agriculturists in this locality have been more successful in the growing of fine Durham cattle and Merino-Delaine sheep. Mr. Lane has commodious and attractive buildings on his farm, and a general air of comfort and thrift prevails. This is most gratifying, as he has accomplished everything through his own endeavors.

In 1861 Mr. Lane was married to Elizabeth Miller, a daughter of Samuel G. Miller, of Pennsylvania, whose ancestry was German. Mrs. Lane passed from this life in 1896. The children resulting from this union were as follows: Minerva, born in 1862, who was married, and died in 1900; Adella, who was born in 1864, and died unmarried in 1895; Mary, born in 1866, who married John Coleman, and has two children; Homer, born in 1868, who resides at home; Ralph, born in 1870, who married Ida Geddes, and has two children; and George, born in 1872, who resides at home.

In politics Mr. Lane is identified with the Democratic party, following in the footsteps of his father, who cast his first vote for Andrew Jackson. The subject of this sketch cast his first presidential vote in 1856. He has served the township both as trustee and supervisor. Mr. Lane is much esteemed in Wesley township, where he is recognized as a man of honesty and strict integrity, an excellent farmer and an intelligent and useful citizen.

JOSEPH I. HOLDREN, who conducts a sawmill and operates oil wells on his farm, is also one of the most influential farmers of Grandview township, Washington County, Ohio. He was born in that township November 26, 1843, and is a son of Thomas Holdren and grandson of Joseph Holdren.

Thomas Holdren spent most of his life in Grandview township, where he was engaged in farming. He departed this life on the farm of his son, Joseph I. He married Mary Ann Riggs, who was born in Pleasants County, West Virginia, and they reared eight children, namely: J. Calvin; Joseph I.; Edward; George H.; Allen; Josiah; Mary E.; and Eliza J.

Joseph I. Holdren was engaged in operating a sawmill for several years, and for one year and a half he conducted a general merchandise store in New Matamoras. His farm consists of 198 acres, on which are four valuable oil wells. He drilled the first well in 1890. It is the first oil well drilled in Grandview township, and is 1,200 feet deep. At present he has five wells producing oil. Mr. Holdren has met with much success, and is widely known in Washington County. He is progressive and energetic, and may well be proud of his success, which is due entirely to his own efforts. Mr. Holdren was for several years engaged in river traffic, and bought and sold produce from New Matamoras to Vicksburg, Mississippi. He was in that business during the Civil War, which caught him with his first load of produce at Nashville, Tennessee.

Mr. Holdren was married October 31, 1867, to Mary M. Martin, who was born in New Matamoras February 2, 1852, and is a daughter of Sylvester Martin. Mr. Martin was born in New Hampshire and was a miller by occupation. He married Hannah Curran, of Thomaston, Maine, and they reared eleven children, as follows: Sylvanius and Charles, deceased; Mary M., the wife of Mr. Holdren; Roberta and Alberta, deceased; Amelia M. (Amos); Sarah, deceased; Charles; Emma and Clara, deceased; and Ollie.

Mr. Holdren and his wife have been blessed with 12 children: Carrie B., born October 9, 1868; Charles M., who was born April 18, 1870; Roberta J., deceased; Frank, born February 28, 1873; Ollie A., born November 3, 1875; Thomas P., born January 15, 1878; James C., born March 12, 1880; Mae, born April 26, 1882; Emma, born November 24, 1884; Ruth, born March 22, 1886; Bessie, born September 4, 1888; and Otis, born June 3, 1891.

Mr. Holdren is a Republican in politics. He has served as township trustee, and was assessor for six years. He is a member of the Center Valley Baptist Church. Fraternally he is a member of Matamoras Lodge, No. 374, F. & A. M., of New Matamoras.

THEODORE HEDDLESTON, who is engaged in mercantile pursuits in New Matamoras, Washington County, was born in Grandview township, October 4, 1857, and is a son of David and Sarah (Meeks) Heddleston. His parents were natives of Washington County.

Theodore Heddleston attended school in New Matamoras, where he learned the trade of a carpenter, and worked at it for twenty years. He engaged in merchandizing in New Matamoras in 1892, and has continued thus ever since. He carries a full line of general merchandise, his store is liberally patronized and his customers receive the best of attention and fair dealing. Mr. Heddleston is a man of good business ability, honest and straightforward in his methods, and has met with much success in New Matamoras.

The subject of this sketch was married in June, 1885, to Jennie Mitchell, who was born in Grandview township in 1868, and they have reared the following children: Thurman; Lewis; Charles; Roy; Walter; and Paul.

Mr. Heddleston is a Democrat in politics. He served as township trustee for a period of nine years,—from 1886 to 1895. He has been a member of the town council, and has served as a member of the board of health. He belongs to the Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias. He attends the Baptist Church.

WILLIAM E. DETLOR, president of the Ohio Valley Supply Company, and an extensive oil producer of that locality, is a well known citizen of Marietta, Washington County, Ohio. He is a Canadian by birth, but for twenty years was a resident of Bradford, Pennsylvania.

The Ohio Valley Supply Company was incorporated in 1900, with the following officers,—William E. Detlor, president; M. J. Peters, vice-president; F. F. Howe, secretary and treasurer; and William H. Westerman, general manager. The plant, which is located on South Third street, has a frontage of 210 feet, and the building is 210 by 180 feet in dimensions. About thirty-five men are employed in the establishment, most of these being skilled laborers. The company manufactures oil well supplies, tools, and gas engines, and also has the agency for the Ajax Steam Engines, and Brennan boilers. The Ohio Valley Supply Company is the most complete plant southwest of Pittsburg, and handles all tools used by oil men, and all kinds of oil-well machinery.

In addition to this, Mr. Detlor is extensively interested in the oil business, as well as in various other enterprises, and is one of the most highly successful business men in Ohio. He is a stockholder and director in the German National Bank and the Marietta Mantel and Casket Company. He is president of the Union Overall Garment Company; treasurer of the Marietta Building and Savings Company; is a charter member and a stockholder in the Crystal Ice & Preserving Company; the First National Bank of Chester Hill, Ohio; and the Pioneer Produce and Dairy Company. Mr. Detlor has various real estate interests, and has been an oil producer for many years. For the past eighteen years, he has been an employer of labor, and he may well be considered one of the most progressive, substantial and successful business men of Washington County. His success is entirely of his own making, and he is a self-made man in every sense of the word. He has worked with untiring energy and zeal, and his career, which has been one of usefulness and conscientious labor, is one of which any man might well be proud.

Mr. Detlor is married and resides with his family at No. 419 Fourth street. His children are,—William Edison and Bertha E. Mrs. Detlor and the children are members of the Episcopal Church. Mr. Detlor is independent in politics. In a fraternal connection, he is treasurer of the B. P. O. E. lodge, of Marietta, in which he is a charter member. The subject of this sketch is much interested in the welfare and progress of the citizens of Marietta, and is always a liberal supporter of any worthy cause.

WILLIAM HENRY CORDRAY, a prosperous farmer of Grandview township, and an extensive land owner of Washington County, Ohio, was born in that portion of Tyler County which is now Wetzel County, West Virginia, November 20, 1835, and was the only child of Nathan and Drucilla W. (Paden) Cordray.

Nathan Cordray, the father, was born in Morgantown, Pennsylvania, and was a miller and wheelwright by trade. He located when quite young in that part of Virginia which became West Virginia, and lived in Tyler County a number of years. He served under General Houston in 1836, during the war with Texas, and died in Jefferson, Texas, in 1841. On Christmas day, 1834, Mr. Cordray married Drucilla W. Paden, who was born in Tyler County, Virginia (now West Virginia), November 20, 1806, and was a daughter of

GEORGE W. BONNELL.

William Paden, a farmer of Paden Valley, West Virginia. She died in September, 1893, at the age of 87 years and two months.

William Henry Cordray was about five months of age when his parents first located in Washington County, Ohio, and was reared on his present farm. He attended the district schools, and has since followed farming all his life. His home farm consists of 290 acres, and all told he possesses 908 acres of valuable farm land in Washington County. He also has 160 acres in Monroe County, Ohio. He is a man of many excellent traits of character, and is held in the highest esteem by his fellow men.

November 25, 1869, Mr. Cordray married Anna S. Algeo, who was born in Monroe County, Ohio, September 15, 1839, and was a daughter of Charles and Eliza Algeo, her father being a farmer. She died December 7, 1899, having had four children, three of whom are now living, viz.: Fannie, Eliza and Cora. The subject of this sketch is a strong supporter of the Democratic party. Mrs. Cordray was a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

SAMUEL F. KOONTZ, a member of the firm of Koontz & Meyer, engaged in the general harness, saddle and shoe business at New Matamoras, Washington County, Ohio, is a native of Brownsville, Monroe County, Ohio. He was born January 15, 1854, and is a son of Peter F. and Ann (Speck) Koontz.

Peter F. Koontz was born in Hagerstown, Maryland, in 1825, and was a merchant for many years. He settled in Monroe County in 1848, where he became a merchant at Brownsville, and resided there until his death. He was a Democrat, in politics, and in religious attachment belonged to the Methodist Church. His wife, Ann Speck, was born in Hagerstown, Maryland, in 1848. They had four children, all of whom are living as follows: William T., of Woodfield, Ohio; Martha R., who married C. A. Cline; Samuel F., the subject of this sketch; and Addie, who married Dr. G. B. West.

Samuel F. Koontz located in New Matamoras in 1881, where he worked as a clerk for Cline & Son. He engaged in his present business in 1898, forming a partnership with Mr. Meyer. They carry on a general harness, saddle and shoe business and the store is very well patronized. Mr. Koontz has been very successful in a business way, a fact which is due entirely to his own efforts.

The subject of this sketch was married in 1881 to Jennie Ellrod, who was born in Monroe County, December 29, 1859. They have two children,—Mattie R. and Della. Mr. Koontz is a Democrat, in politics, and is a member of the Masonic order. He served as postmaster of New Matamoras, under President Cleveland, from 1884 to 1892, and has served as township clerk three terms.

GEORGE W. BONNELL, recorder of Washington County, Ohio, is a resident of Marietta. He was born at Brownsville, Monroe County, Ohio, March 31, 1847, and is a son of George W. Bonnell.

George W. Bonnell was a native of Virginia, and for many years resided in Barnesville, Belmont County, Ohio. He was a miller by trade, and followed that occupation until he settled in Monroe County, when he became a dealer in, and packer of, leaf tobacco. He married Cavy Ann Anderson, who was reared in Guernsey County, Ohio, and died in 1852. Their children were as follows: George W., the subject of this sketch; Ruth (Cochran), of Marietta; V. T., of Center View, Monroe County, Ohio; Harriett (Reynolds) of Dupont, Jefferson County, Indiana; Sarah (Rominger), of Hartsville, Indiana. George W. Bonnell, Sr., died in 1867.

George W. Bonnell, the subject of this sketch, resided in Monroe County until 1867, when he came to Washington County. He returned to Monroe County in 1868, and three years later settled in Grandview, Washington County, Ohio, where, for 22 years, he was engaged in merchandizing with G. A. Shapley.

The last three years of that time he was also engaged in the leaf-tobacco business, as a dealer for himself. He was elected county recorder, to succeed John W. Athey, in the fall of 1899, and assumed the duties of his office, in September, 1900, moving to Marietta in June of that year. He has filled this office in a most acceptable manner, and bids fair to hold it for some time to come.

He married Amanda J. McCracken, who was born in Monroe County, Ohio, and was reared in Greene County, Pennsylvania. They live on the west side in Marietta. Mr. Bonnell belongs to Lodge No. 374, F. & A. M., of New Matamoras, American Union Chapter, No. 1, R. A. M., of Marietta; and Marietta Council, No. 78, R. & S. M. He is a member of Buell Post, G. A. R. He enlisted at the age of 17 years, in Monroe County, and served 10 months in Company I, 179th Reg., Ohio Vol. Infantry.

THE PENROSE & SIMPSON COMPANY. This firm, which deals in wholesale groceries at No. 157 Front street, Marietta, Ohio, is the largest concern of the kind in that city and its vicinity. It was incorporated in 1898, and its present officers are practically the same as those who established it. Charles Penrose is president; J. S. Simpson, vice-president and treasurer; R. G. Simpson, secretary; and W. M. Sprague and Frank Penrose are directors.

The firm of Penrose & Simpson succeeded Bosworth, Wells & Company, January 1, 1891. Bosworth, Wells & Company had conducted a similar business in Marietta for, probably, fifty years, and were well known in the states of Ohio and West Virginia. The building which Penrose & Simpson now occupy is 30 feet wide, extending from Front street to the next street west, and consists of three floors and a basement. Twelve men are employed in the house, and four traveling salesmen cover the territory of Washington, Noble, Monroe, Morgan, Athens and Meigs counties in Ohio, and also the border counties in West Virginia and along the Ohio River. Besides this, a large mail-order trade is done. Only a high grade of stock is carried, and the business, which increases annually, is one of the most successful in Marietta.

Messrs. Penrose and Simpson, president and vice-president of the Company, respectively, were formerly general merchants in Morgan County, Ohio, the former, at Chester Hill, and the latter, at Pennsville, for over twenty years.

J. S. Simpson is a native of Morgan county, and has devoted his life to mercantile pursuits. He married a daughter of John Penrose, and with their children, they live on Fifth street, in Marietta. The children are as follows: Robert J., who is secretary of the Penrose & Simpson Company; Mary P., who is the wife of Dr. Donaldson, of Marietta; Ethelyn, who is a graduate of Marietta College; Charles O., who graduated from that college in the class of 1902; and Janet and Filmore, who are in school. Mr. Simpson is president of the Pioneer Building & Loan Association; and is a member of the Commercial Travelers' Association and the Board of Trade. He is a thorough business man, is known as one of the representative citizens of Marietta, and has taken a deep interest in the advancement of that city.

Charles Penrose, who is also a native of Morgan County, married a daughter of James B. McGrew, who was a pioneer of Morgan County. They have four children, namely: Frank, a salesman for his father's company, who lives in Marietta, and married Lillian Sleight; Mary, the wife of T. E. McKinney, of Marietta College; James, who graduated from Marietta College, with the class of 1902; and Chester, who is at present employed in the offices of the Penrose & Simpson Company.

Mr. Penrose is a member of the Board of Trade and a director in the First National Bank of Marietta. Both Mr. Simpson and Mr. Penrose are members of the Congregational Church. They stand very high in Marietta, both in a business and social way.

JOSEPH FISHER, a well-known farmer and business man, residing in the northeast corner of Barlow township, is prominently identified with various successful enterprises in Washington County, Ohio, and ranks among its most enterprising citizens. Mr. Fisher is a native of Barlow township, where, since 1884, he has resided on his fine farm of 330 acres. For a number of years he was engaged in buying and selling wheat and wood, and he also spent ten years in the lumber business. Some time later he was a prime mover in establishing an oil industry in his immediate vicinity. He secured leases covering considerable territory, and in company with his brother, put down a well which proved to be an abundant producer and caused great excitement in the neighborhood. Mr. Fisher subsequently sold his leases to the Fisher Farm Oil Company, which is composed of reliable oil men and has its office in Marietta. He retains, however, an interest in the business, from which he derives considerable income. The company operates 12 pumping wells, which are quite productive.

Various other business enterprises claim the attention of Mr. Fisher, among them the telephone system conducted by Messrs. Hayes & Harvey, which has been so beneficial to the community, and which is described elsewhere in this volume. He is also successfully engaged in general farming.

Mr. Fisher has been twice married. His first wife was Marion B. Turner, a daughter of George B. Turner. Her death took place in 1900, and some time later, Mr. Fisher was united with Ruth Brockway, a daughter of Herman Brockway, a prominent resident of Washington County.

Fraternally, Mr. Fisher is a charter member of the I. O. O. F. Lodge at Watertown, and for the past twenty-two years has affiliated with Mt. Moriah Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Beverly, Ohio. He is regarded as one of the most successful men of the township, and he is virtually a self-made man, his success being due to his individual efforts, and his good investments. His farm is well improved, well stocked, and kept in excellent order. A few years ago, a handsome seven-room cottage, of modern design, was built on it, and other modern improvements were added, until he now has one of the most attractive homes in the vicinity.

JOSEPH A. ARNOLD is one of the prominent farmers of Washington County, and lives upon his productive and well-improved farm of 200 acres, which is located partly in the northern portion of Barlow township and partly in the adjoining township of Watertown,—being principally in the latter.

Mr. Arnold was born in Watertown township, on May 12, 1846, and is a son of Henry S. and Janett (Woodruff) Arnold. The former was born in Rhode Island, in the early part of the 19th century, and died on July 26, 1874. He came with his father, Joseph P. Arnold, to Marietta, the trip being made by flatboat, which also conveyed ox-teams and farming implements, with household goods and domestic conveniences. Reaching Marietta, the goods were loaded on wagons, and the little cavalcade started for Lancaster, Ohio, where it was the intention to locate. Progress through the woods was necessarily slow and wearisome, but by the end of the second day the family had reached the hamlet of Wooster, which had probably been so named by Esquire Woodford, who was then the only resident. Owing to the high waters of the creek, Joseph Arnold found that he could proceed no further, and making a virtue of necessity, he located one and a half miles north of the intended village, remarking to its inhabitant, that in his opinion the name of the place should be changed to Watertown, which it henceforth became.

The first marriage of Henry S. Arnold was to a Miss Burlingame, who, at her death, left one child, now Mrs. Elizabeth Yarnell, who is a resident of Columbus, Ohio. His second marriage united him with one of the most prominent families in Washington County. He married Janett Woodruff, who was born on the farm adjoining Mr. Arnold's present home, and was a daughter of Isaac and Margaret (Green) Woodruff. She resides now in Watertown. Isaac Woodruff died May 4, 1861, aged 73 years, nine months and 28 days, his wife having passed away on February 13, 1853, aged 62 years, six months and four days. The maternal granduncle of Mr. Arnold was Abner Woodruff, who came from New Jersey to Watertown, in 1802 or 1803, bringing with him his wife and three sons, viz: Abner Jr., Isaac and Elias.

Abner Woodruff, Jr., was born December 11, 1801, and died October 11, 1882. His first wife, Mary H., died October 6, 1833, aged 32 years, leaving one daughter,—Emily A.,—born June 29, 1829, who died in the 15th year of her age. The second wife of Abner Woodruff, Jr., was Parmelia P. Gilmore, who died December 13, 1849. A daughter of this marriage, Amanda L., born July 4, 1832, married John Ford, who was a brother of Seth Ford, of Barlow township,—this family being also one of prominence. Mrs. Ford died on May 29, 1893, at Arkansas City, Kansas. Abner Woodruff, Jr., fell heir to the Woodruff farm, which Mr. Arnold purchased in 1874.

Elias Woodruff was born in New Jersey, on June 20, 1793, and was brought to Washington County, Ohio, in April, 1798, where he lived until his death, on October 21, 1874. His wife, Eleanor McGuire, was born on November 16, 1793, in Hampshire County, West Virginia, and was brought to Ohio in 1801; she died January 12, 1877. Their daughter, Mrs. Sarah Ann Browning, died on January 2, 1894, aged 72 years and 10 months. Ten children were born to Isaac and Margaret (Green) Woodruff, as follows: Silas; Duty; John; Chester; Janett; Caroline; Parmelia; Maria; Nancy; and Calvin. The last-named died in Decatur township, in 1861. Silas, the eldest of the family, was born December 13, 1811, and is now the oldest man in Barlow township; he still resides upon the farm on which he was born. His first marriage was to Mary, a daughter of David Stump, and they had the following children: Hiram, a resident of Kansas; Isaac, deceased; David and Anson, both residents of Kansas; Sarah, deceased, who was the wife of Samuel Cross;

Maria, widow of Isaac L. Palmer, a resident of California; and Mary A., wife of Harvey Martin, of Iowa. Mrs. Silas Woodruff died in 1859, and Mr. Woodruff married Mrs. Elizabeth Stoller, daughter of Peter and Martha J. Young, natives of Pennsylvania. By her first marriage, the second Mrs. Woodruff had four children, namely: Mrs. Sarah Ann Dilling, of Iowa; Peter W., who died in Kansas; and Cromwell and John H., both of Waterford township, Washington County. Four children were born to Mr. Woodruff by his second marriage, namely: Mrs. Alfretta Potter, who died in Belpre township; Calvin E., who lives in Oklahoma; and Marion G. and Clarence L., both of whom are at home. Silas Woodruff is a highly esteemed man, and is noted far and wide for his charity and benevolence. He is a man of large means, oil having been discovered in large quantities on his land, and several wells being in operation there. Duty Woodruff served as a soldier in the Union army during the Civil war, and died in Missouri. John left Washington County in 1849, for Pike's Peak, and has never been heard from since. Chester died in Missouri. Caroline, born February 5, 1821, is the widow of Hiram Martin, who died December 31, 1888, aged 69 years; she resides at Watertown. Parmelia is the widow of William Bell, who died June 17, 1868, aged 58 years; she resides in Barlow village. Her children were as follows: Ansell J., who died August 13, 1875, aged 22, years; Henry L., who died in September, 1901; Charles W., also deceased, who is buried in Barlow cemetery; Mrs. Hannah Henry, who died at Amesville, Athens County, Ohio; Vesta, who is the wife of Hugh Greenlees, of Barlow township; John, who resides at Fishtown, or Layman, in Fairfield township; and Isaac, who resides in Barlow village. Maria was the wife of John Atkinson, and died in Gallia County, Ohio, about 15 years ago. Nancy married Joseph Stump, and died near Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois. The mother of Joseph A. Arnold was the oldest daughter of the family.

A family of two sons and three daughters was born to Henry S. and Janett (Woodruff)

M. Coffin au

Arnold, as follows: Joseph A., the subject of this sketch; George, who resides in Watertown township; Mrs. Emeline Hildebrand, who resides in Palmer township; Mrs. Mina A. Drain, who also resides in Palmer township; and Mrs. Mary Jane Bingham, of Watertown township.

Joseph A. Arnold was reared on his father's farm, the same property on which his brother, George, now lives, and attended the Barlow schools, and later, the Beverly high school. In 1863 when Morgan, the guerrilla, was making his raids through portions of Ohio, Mr. Arnold became a member of the Home Guards, or state militia, and was out in pursuit of the famous raider, for two weeks. Although but 18 years of age, in 1864, he succeeded in enlisting in the army, and took part, as a member of Company I, 148th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., which was raised at Watertown, in the operations of General Grant's army before Richmond and Petersburg. He is thus entitled to his honorable membership in Barlow Post, No. 434, G. A. R., of which he was commander one year, and quartermaster for 16 consecutive years. After the surrender of General Lee and the close of the war, Mr. Arnold came home and resumed peaceful pursuits. With all his experience he was still a youth, in years, and while looking about for a suitable career, began to teach school. He passed the winter of 1867-1868 in following that profession, in Missouri, and was likewise engaged in Washington County, Ohio, after his return. In 1871, he went to Kansas, and then taught school in Missouri, until his second return east, in the fall of 1872. During that winter and the one following, he taught the school in his home neighborhood, having then completed 10 terms as a teacher, which proved his great adaptability to that calling. Had his lines fallen in that direction, Mr. Arnold, without doubt, would have become noted as an educator. He is one of the most intelligent, thoroughly-posted and progressive farmers of this part of the county, and manages and operates his large farm with a thoroughness which produces most satisfactory results. In the fall of 1901, he remodeled his residence, and also built a home for his tenant, in the vicinity; he carries on extensive modern farming. Mr. Arnold has valuable oil land, and on July 16, 1902, a 100-barrel well was bored on his farm, and other wells are under way.

In 1874, Mr. Arnold was united in marriage with Agnes Greenlees, a daughter of David and Nancy Greenlees, and a native of Watertown township. Three children have resulted from this marriage, namely: Ella V., born June 20, 1882; an infant son, who died in 1879; and an infant daughter, who died in 1890. In politics, Mr. Arnold is an active member of the Republican party, and has served as township trustee, and, very frequently, as his party's delegate to county and state conventions. He is a man of broad views and progressive ideas, and takes an interest in those enterprises which promise to benefit his community. He is the president of the board of directors of the Watertown Farmers' Mutual Insurance Company, which is officered by the following reliable and responsible men of Washington County: Joseph A. Arnold, president; J. M. Tresh, of Warren township, vice-president; William Biedel, of Watertown township, secretary and treasurer; and Joseph Fisher, of Barlow, J. M. Brown, of Palmer, and W. C. Arnold, of Watertown, directors. The office of the company is located at Watertown village.

AUSTIN COFFMAN, who is extensively engaged in the real estate business in Marietta, Ohio, was born in Warren township, Washington County, Ohio, and is a son of John and Jane (Miller) Coffman.

The Coffman family has long been one of prominence in Washington County. Jacob Coffman, great-grandfather of S. Austin, was born in Germany, and at an early age came to America, first locating at Lancaster, Pennsylvania. He moved to Washington County, Ohio, in 1795, settled in Marietta township, and later located in Warren township. In 1834, he moved to Hardin County, Ohio, where he lived until his death. He was the father of five children, namely: Jacob; Polly; Fannie; Deborah; and Thomas. Thomas Coffman, grandfather of S. Austin was born November 8, 1805. June 18, 1829, he married Rebecca Callahan, who was born in Watertown township, Washington County, Ohio, October 18, 1807, and they had nine children, as follows: Mary J.; Henry; George W.; Charles; John; Thomas A.; Sarah; Lucy; and Martha. Thomas Coffman served 15 consecutive years as township trustee.

John Coffman was born in Watertown township, February 28, 1840. He married Jane Miller, June 1, 1862, and they are the parents of the following children: Lizzie; S. Austin; Franklin; and Carrie.

S. Austin Coffman attended the J. D. Phillips grammar school, after which he was engaged in teaching for two terms. In 1888 and 1889, he was with the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company and the United States Express Company, in different capacities. He was also engaged in agricultural pursuits until 1895, when he moved to Fleming, Barlow township, and conducted a general store for two and a half years. In 1898 he sold out his business to Mr. Starr, and moved to Marietta. He purchased the Plumer & Cochran insurance business, in addition to which he subsequently engaged in the real estate business. He recently sold the insurance branch to C. C. Evans, who is a native of Butler County, Ohio, and a graduate of Marietta College. Mr. Coffman is now devoting his attention entirely to his real estate transactions, and oil interests at Tunnel and other fields. His office is at No. 6 Mills Building.

Mr. Coffman was joined in matrimony with Kate A., a daughter of William and Lucinda Wittekind, and a native of Warren township. They have a son, Melvin Ray, aged eight years. Fraternally, Mr. Coffman is a member of Hammar Lodge, No. 390, F. & A. M.; American Union Chapter, No. 1, R. A. M.; Marietta Commandery, No. 50, K. T.; Marietta Council, No. 78, R. & S. M.; Syrian Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., of Cincinnati; Lodge No. 115, I. O. O. F., of Marietta; Lodge No. 1544, Royal Arcanum, of which he was a charter member, and has served as secretary several years. He and his wife are members of the Order of the Eastern Star,—the ladies auxiliary of the Masonic order. They belong to Gilman Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Coffman served most acceptably as clerk of Warren township a number of years. In 1900 he was elected to the Council of Marietta from the Sixth Ward, and was re-elected in 1902.

RS. CLARINDA JANE MCINTOSH, deceased, a member of one of the most prominent old families of Washington County, Ohio, resided in Beverly, where she had many friends, whose acquaintance she had enjoyed for many years. She was born at the old homestead on Fifth street, Marietta, February 17, 1811, and was a daughter of John and Laura (Shepard) Clark.

John Clark was born near Boston, Massachusetts, in 1765, and was a son of Samuel Clark, who was born in Massachusetts, and was engaged in ship building. John Clark was a lumber man in Maine, for some time, and in 1793, came to Marietta, Ohio, where he followed farming in the vicinity of Beverly. He was sheriff of the county from 1803 to 1810, and was serving as such during the Burr expedition. In serving subpoenas in the celebrated case brought by the government against Burr, Mr. Clark rode fifty miles a day, for a month, going as far as Tennessee. He speculated somewhat in cattle and horses, and at one time lost considerable money in iron speculation. In 1795, he bought lots, on which, in 1798, he began the construction of the old family homestead, on Fifth street, Marietta. Two years were consumed in its construction, and the deed to the property was in the possession of Mrs. McIntosh at the time of her death. Mr. Clark, in 1793, brought from Pennsylvania the first sheep known to have been in Washington County, and they had to be kept near the house, as a protection from the wolves. He died in 1850, and was buried at Mound Cemetery. Fraternally, he was a prominent Mason. His first marriage was with Rosanna McAllister, by whom he had four children, namely: John; Sally, who married Benajah Curtis; Polly, who married Jason R. Curtis; and Isaac.

After the death of his first wife, John Clark married Laura Shepard, who was born in Massachusetts on the day the Battle of Bunker Hill was fought, June 19, 1776. In 1788, she accompanied her parents to Marietta. She was a daughter of Enoch and Esther (Dewey) Shepard. Her father brought with him a company of twenty-three artisans to the new settlement at Marietta. Mr. and Mrs. Clark became parents of nine children, as follows: Laura, who was born November 23, 1800, and married Lawrence Chamberlin; Melissa, born November 25, 1802; Timothy T., born December 19, 1804; Edward W. T., born October 8, 1806; Esther Ann, born October 9, 1809; Clarinda Jane, the subject of this biography; Nancy, who was born in 1813, and died in infancy; Samuel, born in 1815; and Hannah, born in 1818. Mrs. Clark was a member of the Congregational Church.

Clarinda Jane Clark obtained her education in the private schools of Marietta and Zanesville. After leaving school she taught for nine years, and in 1838, was married to Charles Russell, a son of Squire John Russell. The latter was born in Connecticut, and came to Marietta some time before the Indian War. He married Betsy Smith, a daughter of James Smith. Charles Russell and his wife became parents of one child, Julia.

Julia Russell was born October 26, 1839, and was married, in 1861, to Robert M. Applegate, a son of Daniel and Margaret Applegate. He was a wholesale grocer and banker, of Zanesville, Ohio, where he died September 9, 1896. He was a member of the Episcopal Church. They had four children: Charles, who is in the bank at Beverly; Margaret, wife of Louis Robinson, of Coshocton, Ohio; Grace, who married W. V. Van Metre, of Marietta; and Jane, wife of Dr. E. T. Haywood, of Waterford, Ohio. Charles Russell died in 1841.

After the demise of her husband, Mrs. Russell again engaged in teaching school, at which she continued for a period of twenty-seven years. In 1868, she married Colonel Enoch S. McIntosh, who was born in Marietta, May 23, 1793, and died March 30, 1889. He was a banker and extensive farmer, owning seven hundred acres of land. He was appointed colonel in the militia by Governor Brown, of Ohio. Religiously, he was a member of the Presbyterian church. He was a member of the Pioneer Society, of which he was president, and of the State Board of Public Works. He was a prominent and influential man. Mrs. McIntosh was a member of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, of Marietta, and lived in Beverly. She embodied the highest type of womanhood, and was loved and respected by her neighbors and friends. The date of her demise was June 30, 1902.

JAMES F. WAGNER, who is superintendent of the public school of Beverly, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Morgan County, Ohio, in May, 1858, and is a son of Harvey M. and Susan (Crawford) Wagner.

Harvey M. Wagner was born in Licking County, Ohio, and is now living in Waterford township, where he is retired from active business life. He is now seventy-five years old. For many years he was a teacher in the public schools of Washington County. He is a strong Republican, and for a number of years has been justice of the peace and a notary public. He is a trustee of the Coal Run Methodist Church, in which he is an active worker. He married Susan Crawford, who was born in Morgan County, Ohio, in 1836, and is a daughter of John and Margaret (West) Crawford. They have had six children, namely: Arthur W.; James F., the subject of this sketch; Warren; Ida, who married Edwin Sprague, and is living in McConnelsville; David; and an infant child, deceased.

James F. Wagner received his education at Beverly Academy and the Lebanon Normal College. He engaged in teaching. Immediately after leaving school, he had charge of a district school for four years. He then taught the village school in Coal Run for three years, when he removed to Belpre, and taught there for four years. He took charge of the school in Beverly in 1888, since which time he has been its superintendent. He has 175 pupils enrolled at the present time, and is thoroughly competent to instruct and manage so large a number. He is modern in his methods of teaching, and has met with much success, receiving a great deal of praise for his discipline and good instruction.

Mr. Wagner was united in marriage to Vesta M. Glines, who was born in Morgan County, Ohio, in April, 1865, and is a daughter of Frank and Hannah Glines. Her father was a farmer in that section. The subject of this sketch and his wife have six children: Claudia T., born in June, 1885; Rowena M., born in April, 1887; Glenna L., born in July, 1890; Pauline E., born in August, 1894; Alva, born in June, 1897; and Herrick, born in August, 1900.

Mr. Wagner is a member of the Methodist Church. He is a member of Beverly Lodge, No. 84, I. O. O. F.; Shiloh Encampment, No. 158; and the Court of Honor. He is a Republican in politics, and has served as county school examiner for ten years. At the last session of the Cambridge District M. E. Conference, held at Summerfield, Ohio, he was licensed as a local preacher.

ALLEXANDER ORMISTON. Among the well-to-do farmers of Barlow township, Washington County, Ohio, the name of Alexander Ormiston deserves especial mention in this volume. He was born August 22, 1835, and has spent almost his entire life in the vicinity of his birth place. He is of Scotch extraction, and his parents were James and Lucinda (Wil-mirth) Ormiston.

James Ormiston was a native of Lanarkshire, Scotland, and came to the United States in 1828, locating for a time in Marietta, Ohio, where he secured employment in the boat yards. In 1830 he settled permanently on section 16, in Barlow township. The following year, his father, James Ormiston, Sr., and his wife, took passage for America and soon after their arrival, settled on a farm in the same county. They reared the following children, namely: James, the father of Alexander Ormiston; David; Michael; Janet (Hoddow); Agnes (Anderson); Christina; and John.

James Ormiston, Jr., was an old line Whig, and later in life a Republican in politics. He died in Barlow, in 1889, in his eighty-fourth year. His marriage took place in Wesley township, where he was united with Lucinda Wil-mirth, who proved a faithful companion throughout the remainder of his life. She survived her husband for twelve years, and died in December, 1901, in her eighty-eighth year. Twelve children were born to this couple, viz: Alexander; Isaac A.; Martha N.; Christiana; James F., who for the past forty years has lived in the West; Janet, deceased; Jane, who died in infancy; Mary Lovina (Root), a widow; Rufus P.; Anna Jane, deceased; Thomas L., a resident of Barlow township; and Ruth Lucinda, of Meigs County, Ohio.

Alexander Ormiston lives on a part of the ancestral farm which contains 130 acres, which he purchased forty-three years ago. His farming is diversified, and a portion of it contains an oil pumping station and is leased to oil prospectors, who are developing the natural resources of the land. In 1861, Mr. Ormiston responded to our country's call for volunteers, and enlisted in Company G, Ohio Volunteer Infantry. He served three years and ten months in the 16th and 17th Army Corps,—the latter portion of the time as a non-commissioned officer, and participated in twenty-two engagements, fortunately escaping injury or capture.

The subject of this sketch was united in matrimony with Isabella Heslop, who was born in the North of England, in 1833, but is of Scotch parentage. Two sons resulted from their union. The elder of these, James W., was born in 1870, and married Elma Gilbert. They reside with Mr. Ormiston, and have one son, Frank, born in February, 1900. George

THOMAS HANCOCK.

H., the younger son, married Jane Fleming, and resides on a farm near that of his father. They also have one son, Alexander Clifford, born in 1897. In his political views, Mr. Ormiston is an ardent Republican, and took an active part in the formation of that party, casting his first presidential vote for John C. Fremont. He is a prominent member of Barlow Post, No. 434, G. A. R., of which he served as chaplain at the time of its organization. He is also a prominent figure in religious circles having been an elder of the Presbyterian Church for a number of years.

JOHAN BEAVER, one of the well-to-do farmers of Grandview township, Washington County, Ohio, is a native of Maryland, where he was born May 16, 1831. He is a son of Michael and Catherine (Benine) Beaver. The latter is a native of Maryland, where she was born September 10, 1760.

Michael Beaver was a farmer all his life, and a valued member of his community. He was born in Germany, in 1784, and when still a youth he and his parents crossed the ocean to the United States, and located, for the time, in Maryland. In 1832 Michael Beaver left that state and settled in Monroe County, Ohio, where he bought his farm, and tilled the soil for many years. In 1838 he bought more property in Washington County, removed thither, and made his home there until his death.

Michael Beaver was united in marriage with Catherine Benine, and they reared nine children, three of whom now survive, namely: Nancy, who married Thomas Lee, and is a resident of Independence township; Rachel, who married Mr. Mount, and lives in Grandview township; and John. The family were United Brethren in their religious faith. In politics, Mr. Beaver voted the Democratic ticket. He was a useful citizen and an expert agriculturist.

John Beaver was reared and schooled in his native place. He has been a farmer all of his life, and located on his present ample farm in 1882. It consists of 145 acres of excellent land, located in section 28, and well adapted to farming.

Mr. Beaver was united in marriage with Rebecca Thompson, in 1856. She was a native of the Keystone State, and was born in 1840. They have had thirteen children, nine of the family still living, as follows: William, born January 13, 1858; Martha, born August 18, 1856, who married Mr. Northcraft; Belle, who was born June 2, 1860, and married a Mr. Mounts; Elmer, born July 7, 1865; Florence, who married A. M. Mounts; Etta, born June 29, 1871, who married Mr. Thompson, of Marietta, Ohio; Charley, born August 26, 1875; Ada, who was born July 2, 1874, and married Harry Lane; and Harman, born August 13, 1881.

Mr. Beaver is a Democrat in political opinion. Fraternally, he affiliates with the J. O. U. A. M. He is a member of the United Brethren Church.

THOMAS HANCOCK, superintendent of the city electric light plant of Marietta, was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, September 10, 1832. His father was Jacob Bradshaw Hancock, of Belfast, Ireland, a scholar of unusual attainments, and a graduate of both Dublin and Oxford universities. After coming to this country he became connected with the public schools of Cincinnati. In that city, in 1830, he married Mary Hubbard of Westfield, Massachusetts.

When Thomas was 13 years old, his father died. Being the eldest of a large family, this calamity threw him upon his own resources, and after a brief course in the Marietta Academy, having a natural aptitude for mechanics, he apprenticed himself to the machinist's trade. A few years later, when steamboating was in its prime and presented an alluring field of employment, he followed that occupation, as chief engineer, and worked on the Mississippi and Ohio rivers, and many of their tributaries.

During the entire War of the Rebellion, he was in the United States transport service, upon the steamers "Fanny McBurnie" and "Ohio No. 3." One of these was captured by Gen. Albert G. Jenkins, of the Confederate forces.

On the 27th of September, 1870, at Marietta, Mr. Hancock was united in marriage with Estelle Frances Wilson, a native of Ellsworth, Maine, and an only daughter of Asa and Rebecca Joy Wilson. This union resulted in two children,—Mary Rebecca born October 25, 1872, and Winfield Scott, born April 30, 1876. The latter is a lawyer by profession, and a member of the well known firm of Way & Hancock. In 1899, Mary Rebecca was married to Asa Davis McCoy, assistant postmaster of Marietta, Ohio. Kingston Chanler Ware McCoy, born August 19, 1900, is the only grandchild of Thomas Hancock.

Since leaving the river, Mr. Hancock has been identified with the city of Marietta in an official capacity for 24 consecutive years. He has had the supervision of the fire apparatus, and the management of the City Opera House. Taking a keen interest in electricity, and especially in municipal lighting, he was appointed superintendent of the city electric light plant at its installation in 1889, a position he still retains.

SETH FORD, a prominent and representative farmer of Washington County, Ohio, who resides upon a well-improved farm in Barlow township, was born on September 12, 1830, in Barlow township, and is a son of Amon and Hannah (Parke) Ford.

The Ford family is an old and respected one of the state of Connecticut, where its members have lived since colonial days. In 1795 William Ford, the grandfather of Seth, came to Ohio from Avon, Connecticut, in company with his father, also William Ford, and located in Watertown township, where William Ford (1) erected one of the first houses within its boundaries. This sturdy pioneer died in 1825.

Amon Ford, son of William (2), and father of Seth, was born in 1808, in Watertown township. He remained at home, and assisted his father in the clearing of his land until he had reached his majority. He then settled in Barlow township, Washington County, three miles east of the village, where he remained until 1839. At that period he moved to Watertown, where his death occurred August 7, 1895. He married Hannah Parke, who was born September 5, 1809, and died at Barlow, on Christmas Day, 1892. The children born to Amon Ford and his wife were as follows: John, who died in Barlow township, in 1860; Seth; Sarah, who was born September 23, 1847, and died at Watertown at the age of 15 years; Lucy and Laura, twins, who were born in June, 1834, the former dying at Cincinnati and the latter becoming Mrs. Thompson, of Barlow; Jude, who was born in 1836, and died in Kansas, in 1880; and William, who lives in Kansas.

Seth Ford left Barlow township at the age of eight years and acquired his mental training in Watertown. Possessed of an adventurous spirit, and desirous of seeing something of the world, he made the trip across the country to California, in 1852, and returned to Ohio in 1863. During these years, he was engaged in mining, farming and other occupations, and for a time, drove the stage between Half Moon Bay and San Francisco. He was clerk at the first election held in San Mateo County, California. Upon his return to Ohio, in 1863, he resumed farming at Watertown, where he lived for 30 years. In 1893, he returned to Barlow township, and in the fall of 1897, located upon his present farm of 12 acres, which he improved with comfortable and commodious buildings, and made of it one of the finest rural homes in the locality.

In 1863, Mr. Ford married Margaret Ross, who was born in Perry County, Ohio, in 1840, and is a daughter of James and Sarah (Dutton) Ross. James Ross was born December 27, 1813, in Perry County, moved to Watertown in 1850, and died there September 12, 1864. His widow died at the home of Mr. Ford on December 30, 1899. Mrs. Ford has one brother, James Ross, who lives in Guthrie County, Iowa. Mr. and Mrs. Ford have had four children, namely: Frank, Mary, Hattie and Fred. Frank was born on November 27, 1864, married a Miss Murdock, resides in Palmer township, and has one son,—Leland. Mary was born January 1, 1867, and died in June, 1870. Hattie was born on May 7, 1873, and resides at home. Fred was born on December 3, 1874, married a Miss Wible, resides at Vincent, and has one daughter,—Freda Ferne. In politics, Mr. Ford is a Republican. As three of his uncles were ministers in the Presbyterian Church, his religious tendencies are in that direction.

GEORGE VAUGHN, who is engaged in the general merchandise business in Waterford, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Washington County, in 1844, and is a son of Robert and Eliza (Drury) Vaughn.

Robert Vaughn was a native of Washington County, and he died in 1864, aged 57 years. He was a farmer, and lived two miles south of Waterford post office. He was a member of the Baptist Church, and a Republican, in politics. He married Eliza Drury, who was born in Vermont, and died in 1869, aged sixty-five years. They reared eight children, namely: Lucy, who married Elias Olney; Elmira, who married Alva Israel and is deceased; Mary, deceased; Sarah L., deceased; Emily, who lives with her brother, Charles; George, the subject of this sketch; and Frank B., who is in the drug business in Lowellville, Mahoning County, Ohio.

George Vaughn was married, in 1874, to Jane Webster, a daughter of Owen and Eliza Webster. She was born in Washington County, and has borne her husband four children, namely: George O.; Harriet; Clara; and Mabel.

Charles E. Vaughn, brother of George went into the general merchandise business in 1879, and three years later, George Vaughn entered into partnership with him. They located in Waterford, where they carry on general merchandizing, having a large store, which is very well patronized. They carry a full stock of dry goods, groceries, etc., and their customers receive prompt and ready attention.

Charles E. Vaughn was born in Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, August 18, 1851. He married Julia Sprague, in 1875. She was born in Waterford township in 1857, and is a daughter of Benjamin and Lucina Sprague. She is a member of the Presbyterian Church. He is a Democrat in politics, and was postmaster of Waterford under President Cleveland's first administration.

George Vaughn and his wife are members of the Presbyterian Church. The former is a member of the Odd Fellows' lodge. Both he and his brother are very well known in Washington County, and are business men of undisputed ability.

LYNES E. BOOHER, who is efficiently filling the position of superintendent of the high school of Waterford, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Mount Zion, Noble County, Ohio, July 25, 1856, and is a son of Samuel A. and Harriet (Broughton) Booher.

Samuel A. Booher was born in Mount Zion in 1823, and is living on the home farm. He has always followed farming and has been very successful. Religiously, he is a member of the Lutheran Church. Politically he is a Republican. He married Harriet Broughton, who was born in Belle Valley, Noble County, Ohio, in 1831, and was a daughter of Andrew Broughton. She was a member of the Protestant Methodist Church. Her death occurred in 1894, and she left four children, namely: Lynes E.; Emma C., who married Henderson Williams, a carpenter of Chaseville, Ohio; Mareta, who is living on the home farm; and Margaret, wife of George Buckey, who also lives on the home farm, now owned by L. RUSSEL J. STEPHENSON, a prosperous farmer of Marietta township, living about one mile from Marietta, Ohio, was born in 1835, and is a son of John Stephenson.

John Stephenson was born in Rockingham County, Virginia, and served in the War of 1812. He was a shoemaker, and also followed the tanning business. He would buy a large drove of hirses, and putting the shoes in bags, which he had manufactured, would drive to Eastern markets, where he would sell both horses and shoes before his return. He married Louisa Gray, a daughter of Robert Gray, of Rockingham County, Virginia, and they reared the following children: John G., a retired farmer; Charles R., deceased; Isabella, who married B. F. Cogswell, now deceased; Russel, the subject of this sketch; Henry, who now lives in Oklahoma; Algonon, who is living on a farm in Marietta County; Jewett, of Kansas; and William and Annie, deceased.

The subject of this sketch enlisted with the 100-day men during the raid of Morgan, in Ohio. He was schooled in Marietta, and is now living on his farm one mile from Marietta, his sister, Isabella, also making her home with him. Mr. Stephenson has a finely improved farm, on which is a handsome brick dwelling. He is considered one of the foremost farmers in Washington County. He is a well-informed man, and is thoroughly modern in his ideas of farming. Mr. Stephenson has a host of friends in the county and is highly respected by all who come in contact with his pleasing personality.

J. PEGG, who stands well toward the front as a prominent producer in the oil business, has been identified with that line of trade during the greater part of his life, but is also engaged in farming to some extent.

He is a son of Henry and Nancy (Hall) Pegg, and was born June 7, 1851, in Newport township, Washington County, Ohio. His father was born in 1801, and lived to a good, old age. He was prominent in his township as a farmer, and superintended the cultivation of 200 acres of land. He married Nancy Hall, and they reared a family consisting of eleven children, namely: Sarah E., deceased; Margaret; J. M.; Eliza; Henry L.; John; Thomas; Carrie; Ebenezer; A. J.; and C. W. Henry Pegg was a Democrat, of fixed opinions. In religious matters, he and his wife were Methodists, and gave their support to the M. E. Church. His life was full of service to others, and in all things he was a model of integrity and truthfulness.

A. J. Pegg was united in matrimony with Frances S. Lowther, a daughter of Cambyes and Sarah Lowther. Mrs. Pegg was born August 5, 1850, and was a faithful wife. She and her husband had six children, namely: Cyrus, whose birth took place March 4, 1876; Ella B., born August 4, 1877; Martha, who was born April 27, 1879; Jennie, born January 15, 1881; Wylie M., born July 4, 1887; and Frances H., born August 6, 1896. The family attend services at the United Brethren Church.

Mr. Pegg owns 68 acres of land, and 12 oil wells, all producing. He is a Democrat, in his politics, but has not held office. In fraternal circles he is a member of the I. O. O. F. organization, affiliating with Lodge No. 67, of Marietta, and Elk Eye Encampment, of the same place. He is conspicuous in the oil business in his part of the country, and has met with success in all he has undertaken.

M. THORNILEY, of the firm of Thorniley Bros., successful produce merchants of Marietta, Ohio, who was the first to engage in that business in Marietta, is also a farmer to some extent. He is a son of S. S. and Frances E. (Middleswarts) Thorniley, and is a native of Marietta, where he was born February 2, 1803.

S. S. Thorniley was born June 6, 1831, in Marietta township, and his occupation was that of a farmer and gardener. He and his wife reared a family of ten children, as follows: E. J.; Annie; J. M.; Cora B.; Harry; Jane; Elizabeth; Stephen; Elmer; and Emma. He was a Republican, in politics, and was active in public service. The mother of these children was born February 12, 1837.

J. M. Thorniley was united in matrimony with Columbia McClaskey, born March 29, 1864. They have two children,—Margaret and Harold. Mr. Thorniley owns 150 acres of the best kind of land, fertile and productive. As between political parties, he chooses the Republican, using his influence in its favor whenever it is needed.

The subject of this sketch is a thorough business man. He is a member of Marietta Council, U. C. T.

V. ALTVATER, a prominent florist of Newport, Ohio, who has an area of 10,000 feet under glass, has followed that line of work for about ten years, and has the reputation of having the choicest flowers and the best-kept greenhouses in his vicinity. He makes a specialty of growing carnations, and roses of many different varieties, and has made a success of growing cucumbers in the winter time, having received as high as $3.50 per dozen in the Pittsburg market. He also grows tomatoes, lettuce, radishes and cauliflowers under glass, and finds a ready sale for all he can raise. He also raises early plants, such as sweet potato, early and late cabbage, celery and tomato plants.

Mr. Altvater was born September 12, 1856, near Durkheim, Rheinfalz, Baden, Germany, and is a son of John Altvater. The latter, who was a blacksmith in Germany, and a farmer in this country, near Marietta, left Germany May 16, 1862, and reached New York July 18, 1863. He remained in that city until the following February, and then came to Ohio, landing at Marietta, February 9, 1864, and settling on a farm near that town.

John Altvater's marriage to Katherine Stork took place while he was yet a resident of the Fatherland. Five children were born to them, namely: Lizzie, wife of John Mattern, of Marietta; Benjamin, who married Barbara Stork, and resides in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania; W. V.; Philip, who married Amelia Spindler, and resides in Marietta; and John, who married Miss Healey, and located in Pittsburg. Mrs. John Altvater died at Marietta, November 10, 1896, aged 71 years. John Altvater died at Marietta, October 11, 1897, aged 71 years. The family name is sometimes spelled Attwater.

W. V. Altvater was joined in marriage with Ida Gibert, an accomplished daughter of Godfrey Gibert, and they have eight children, namely: Estella M.; Walter G.; Rose F.; Myrtle May; Gordon; Nora; Cornelia; and Julius. In his political opinions Mr. Altvater is a Democrat. He is a member of the Lutheran Church. He owns valuable real estate in the town of Newport, and has been a resident of that place for 20 years, ten of which were spent at carpenter work. About ten years ago, he engaged in business as a florist and grower of early vegetable plants. He is a popular and deserving citizen, and enjoys a fair patronage.

A. HAMILTON. This gentleman has won distinction as a lawyer of much ability, and is a well-known resident of Marietta, where he has been engaged in practice for a number of years. He was born in Allegheny City, Pennsylvania, in 1847, and is a son of Dr. David and Ruth (Allen) Hamilton.

Dr. David Hamilton was born in Pennsylvania, and his death occurred in 1872. He brought his family to Marietta, March 14, 1853, and there continued to reside until his death. His wife reached the age of eighty-three years, May 14, 1902. Their children are: J. A., the subject of this biography; O. K., of the firm of Hamilton & Heidrick; Albert G.; and Mrs. Robert Bruce, all of Marietta.

J. A. Hamilton was schooled in Marietta, and although very young, enlisted in the 2nd Ohio Heavy Artillery, during the Civil War. He served in the army two years, after which he returned to Marietta, and in 1868 took up the study of law with Colonel Alban. He remained with that gentleman until his admission to the bar, in April, 1871, after which he at once began practice in connection with Knowles & Alban, the firm name reading Knowles, Alban & Hamilton. This partnership continued for several years, the office being located on Putnam street. Mr. Hamilton then formed a partnership with Judge L. W. Chamberlain, which lasted fourteen years, and business was carried on in the Mills Building until 1890, when the partnership was dissolved. Mr. Hamilton then became a member of the firm of Hamilton & Kraft, which continued until February 8, 1899, when Mr. Kraft died. Mr. Hamilton has since continued in practice alone, and now has his office in the St. Clair Building, on Putnam street. He has been attorney for the German Savings Bank, and Building and Loan Association, for the past twelve years, and is one of the best-known lawyers in Marietta. He is an earnest and fluent speaker, and is possessed of a logical mind and a thorough knowledge of his profession.

Mr. Hamilton was united in marriage with Mary M. Martin, of Pittsburg, and they have two children, namely: Mrs. Charles A. Foehl, of Pittsburg; and John F., who is with the "Leader" Publishing Company. In politics, Mr. Hamilton is a Republican, and he has served one term as member of the Board of Education. He was formerly a member of the G. A. R. lodge. Mrs. Hamilton is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

W. RICHARDS, a well-known lawyer of Marietta, who is now serving his third consecutive term as city solicitor, was born in Washington County, Ohio, May 11, 1856. He is a son of George W. and Elizabeth C. (Hill) Richards, and a grandson of Luman Richards. Luman Richards, who was born in New York State, came to Washington County as a young man, and farmed in Barlow township.

George W. Richards was born in Washington County, September 28, 1831, and was a carpenter by trade. He was serving his third consecutive term as infirmary director at the time of his death, December 1, 1899. He is well remembered in Marietta as a true friend to many, and a strong church man. He came to Marietta in 1849, and lived here until his death. On October 21, 1852, he married Elizabeth C. Hill, by whom he had three sons, namely: C. W., the subject of this biography; Oren B., who was in the hardware business at Cherryvale, Kansas; and Frank H., a life-insurance agent, of St. Louis, Missouri. The mother of these children died February 26, 1870, aged about forty years. Mr. Richards then formed a second union, wedding Anna H. Barker, August 31, 1871. He was a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for more than forty years. C. W. Richards is the sole survivor of this family. His brother, Frank H., left St. Louis on the night of July 14, 1900, to make a visit in Marietta. Learning of the illness of Oren B. Richards, he left for Kansas on August 14, arriving at Cherryvale on August 16, the day on which his brother died. He remained at Cherryvale to complete arrangements, and then returned to St. Louis. On October 8, of the same year, he was taken down with typhoid fever, and wrote to C. W. Richards telling him of his illness. The latter started for St. Louis and remained with him until death occurred, on October 16th, just two months after the death of his brother, and less than a year after the death of their father.

C. W. Richards was reared in Marietta, and attended the city schools; his education, however, has been mainly self-acquired. He was admitted to the bar in 1877 and has since practiced at Marietta with success. During the past thirteen years, his office has been at No. 116 Putnam street. He is a Republican, in politics, and was mayor of the city from 1882 to 1884; he also served in other municipal offices, and was justice of the peace. He was city solicitor from 1888 to 1890, and has served in that capacity since 1896. He is a lawyer of ability, and has ably discharged the duties of his office.

Mr. Richards was united in marriage, January 28, 1884, to Kate Maxon, and they have one son, Alex. The family residence is at No. 532 Fifth street.

S. BATTIN, a rising young real estate dealer of Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, whose office is located at No. 305 Second street, was born in Monroe County, Ohio, in 1871, and as a young man took a course in practical farming under W. W. Fenn, at Tallmadge, but never followed that occupation.

During 1890, 1891 and 1892, he traveled from Parkersburg as a piano salesman for Hopkins & Amos, after which he went to Athens County, where he engaged in the piano business for himself until 1896. He removed to Marietta, where he conducted a carriage business on Second street for one year. This he gave up, to enter the real estate business, and now handles property in the city and county, as well as in Lancaster, and other counties. C. E. Mason was at one time interested in the business for a short period. As an illustration of Mr. Battin's enterprising spirit, he is erecting the first two houses in the East Norwood Addition to Marietta, having sold one-fourth of the lots, or 77, the record next to this being 48 lots, which were sold by another real estate dealer, of Marietta.

Mr. Battin wedded Emma Raybould, daughter of Samuel Raybould, deceased, who was a resident and coal dealer of the Hocking Valley for a number of years. This union has been blessed with three sons, namely: Glenn R., deceased; Samuel R.; and Clyde R.

Politically, Mr. Battin is a Republican. He is a member of the Masonic order, Lodge No. 390; and the B. P. O. E. His wife is a member of the Methodist Church. Mr. Battin is possessed of untiring zeal and energy, is progressive and modern in his ideas, and deals fairly and squarely with all men. He gives his support liberally to any public enterprise, and is ranked among the leading men of Marietta.

BENJAMIN F. ARNOLD. The birth of this representative citizen who is so well and favorably known throughout Washington County occurred in Wesley township, March 27, 1825, when the great agricultural development of this part of the state was in its infancy. His parents were Levi B. and Sarah R. (Ingraham) Arnold. The former was born in 1801, in Wood County (West) Virginia and died in 1868, in Missouri, and the latter was born, in 1803, in Greenbrier County, (West) Virginia, and died in Missouri, about 1870, at the age of 67 years. Mr. Arnold served as township trustee for many years, and was township clerk and a justice of the peace. By occupation he was a farmer.

Benjamin F. Arnold was the second member of a family of 11 children, the others being as follows: Richard; Adeline, who married Thomas Hodgkin; Thomas J.; Levina D.; Joanna; George; Joseph; Eliza J.; Alcinda; and Elizabeth. Many of these are located in Washington County, and are numbered among its representative people.

In his youth Benjamin F. Arnold learned the tanning business and followed that line of industry near Plymouth, Ohio, for 25 years prior to the Civil War. In 1864, he enlisted in the 148th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf. (Ohio National Guard), and served from May until September of that year, in Company D. Mr. Arnold and his son, Frank, jointly own a fine farm of 156 acres, which is situated within three and a half miles of Bartlett, and there they carry on general farming, both residing on the farm.

In 1847, Mr. Arnold was married to Ann M. Palmer, who was born in March, 1827, in Palmer township, and a family of 12 children was born to their union, namely: Laura O.; Dana J.; Isaac F.; George F.; Lucy J.; Levi S.; Mary R.; Alfaretta and Anzonetta, twins; Hattie; Alpha; and Frank.

Actively promoting all enterprises of a public-spirited nature, Mr. Arnold has at various times consented to hold official positions in the township, at one time as trustee, and for a long period, as justice of the peace. He is identified with the Republican party, in which he is held in high esteem, as also in his neighborhood.

SA. PALMER, who has charge of the sales agency for the brick-manufacturing institutions of Marietta, was born in Washington County, Ohio, and is a son of Thomas and Ellen (McAfee) Palmer. Thomas Palmer is deceased, and his widow is now residing on the home farm at Stanleyville. The surviving members of his parents' family are as follows: G. A., who conducts the Pazi laundry, at Marietta; J. P., who is the well-known harness manufacturer on Second street, Marietta; Jewett, a carpenter by trade, who resides on Sixth street, in Marietta; William, who is a farmer, located near Reno, Washington County; Mrs. Ellen Chapman, who resides at No. 306 Front street, Marietta; Mrs. R. T.

Miller, who lives at Reno, Ohio; Mrs. Asil McGruder, who lives near Yankeebug; and Alzora, who lives on the farm with the mother.

Mr. Palmer passed much of his early life on the farm, and for three years previous to his present engagement, was connected with the affairs of the City Transfer Company, of which A. O. C. Ahrend is manager. Since February, 1901, Mr. Palmer has handled the business in this city of the following leading brick-manufacturing establishments: The Acme Brick Company; and the Thos. Ciser & Sons Company and the Sterling Brick Company. Mr. Palmer's ability is shown in the prosperous conditions prevailing in all these companies. The office of Mr. Palmer, in the St. Clair building, in Marietta, is often the scene of large transactions. He has shown himself perfectly capable, and possesses the tact and judgment which retain custom after gaining it.

Mr. Palmer married a daughter of C. W. Athey, of Marietta and has a pleasant home and a wide circle of friends. His fraternal connection is with the Knights of Pythias. Although not a member, he attends the Congregational Church, and contributes liberally to the support of its many benevolent enterprises.

JAMES FLETCHER REED, who is actively engaged in stock raising and general farming at his home in the vicinity of Brown's Mill, Washington County, Ohio, was born August 16, 1860, at Crooked Tree, Noble County, of the same state. He is a son of Wesley W. and Sarah Ann (Henderson) Reed and grandson of John Reed, of Belmont County, Ohio. The Reeds were small in stature, but were courageous. They came from the East and the father of John Reed was a Revolutionary soldier, and fought for our country's freedom. John Reed, the grandfather, was born in New Jersey in 1781, and died in 1852. His wife, Mary Reed, was born in Virginia in 1788, and died in Ohio, in 1857. They reared a family consisting of twelve children, viz:

John; James; Thomas; Moses; Amos; William; Wesley W.; Jane; Mary; Jemima; Elizabeth; and one whose name is unknown.

The Hendersons were of large size, and originally came from Virginia. William Henderson, the maternal grandfather of Mr. Reed, was born August 17, 1797, and passed to his final rest in 1880, having spent the greater part of his life at McConnelsville, Ohio. His wife was born in 1793, and her death took place in 1859. They also reared twelve children, namely: James; Nathaniel; John; Thomas; William; David; Mary Jane; Lydia; Emeline; Lorena; Sarah Ann; and Rebecca.

Wesley W. Reed was born November 9, 1824. In 1850, he was united in marriage with Sarah Ann Henderson, a daughter of William Henderson, of Morgan County, Ohio, where her birth took place, May 31, 1830. Though advanced in years, both parents are still living, and make their home at Beckett, in Morgan County. The following children were born to this estimable couple: William Findley; Mary; Ellis M.; Jane; James Fletcher; a pair of twins who died in infancy; Lorena; Sarah; Lydia; and Wilbur.

William Findley Reed was born January 8, 1854, and was joined in marriage with Alice Cotton, a daughter of Rufus Cotton, of McConnelsville. They have two children: Bernard and Charles. Mary Reed was born December 4, 1854. She is unmarried, and for many years, served as a missionary at Partabgarh, India. Ellis M. Reed was born August 15, 1857, and in February, 1878, he married Maggie Ogan. They reside at Cloud, Morgan County, Ohio, and have seven children.

Jane Reed was born April 15, 1859, and has been twice married. Her first union was contracted in 1879, with Jerod Smith, who died in 1884. This union resulted in the birth of two children,—Lelia and Findley. Some time after the death of Mr. Smith, his widow was united in marriage with Lafayette Carroll. They have three children,—Harold, Wesley, and Harley. Lorena Reed was born August 31, 1863, and in 1897, was united in marriage with Thomas E. Ferguson, of Brown's Mill. Sarah Reed was born August 18, 1866, is unmarried, and resides with her aged parents at Beckett, Ohio. Lydia Reed was born in May, 1868, and her brief young life terminated in death, August 1, 1870, when she was but little more than two years old. Wilbur, the youngest child, was born January 10, 1870. His marriage with Annie Ackerson was solemnized in October, 1900, and they have one son, Russell.

James Fletcher Reed, the subject of this narrative, was joined in matrimony with Lucy Bell Breckenridge, November 14, 1889. They have two children,—Howard, who was born September 2, 1892, and Dudley Breckenridge, who was born April 16, 1900. Mrs. Reed is a daughter of Robert and Mary P. (Murdock) Breckenridge, and was born November 16, 1868. Her father, Robert Breckenridge, was of Scotch parentage, and was born June 7, 1828, at Watertown, Washington County, Ohio. His death took place October 22, 1887. October 25, 1849, he was united in marriage with Mary P. Murdock, who still survives him. She is a daughter of Elias and Malinda Murdock, and granddaughter of Malinda Pewthers, whose father, James Pewthers, was a distinguished Virginian. Mrs. Breckenridge is one of eight children, as follows: Elizabeth; James Monroe; Mary P.; George W.; Virginia A.; Jesse G.; Sarah Catherine; and Charles G.

Mrs. Reed is one of a family of seven children, viz: James Monroe; Nancy M.; John H.; Robert S.; Joseph B.; Lucy Bell; and Dudley S. James Monroe Breckenridge was born July 31, 1850, and died September 29, 1860. Nancy M. Breckenridge was born July 8, 1857, and died from diphtheria, on October 18, 1850. John H. Breckenridge was born September 26, 1861, and when grown to manhood, married Agnes Cheedle.

Robert S. Breckenridge was born December 21, 1863. On September 10, 1885, he was united in marriage with Rosa Dearth, a daughter of James W. and Susannah (James) Dearth, of Macksburg, Ohio. This union resulted in three children, as follows: Lucile born at Beverly, Ohio, September 21, 1889; Robert Harold, born at Marietta, Ohio, September 25, 1891; and James P., born in Huntington, West Virginia, April 20, 1899. In 1899, the family moved to Butler, Pennsylvania, where they still reside. Joseph B. Breckenridge was born August 5, 1866. On November 18, 1896, he was joined in marriage with Lizzie Dipple, a daughter of Henry Dipple, of Waterford. Two children blessed this union,—Leroy and Chester. The former was born January 24, 1898, and died September 20, of the same year. The latter was born January 25, 1900. Dudley S. Breckenridge was born September 26, 1871, and on July 31, 1892, he was joined in marriage with Maggie Burris. They have no children.

Mr. Reed's farm consists of 130 acres, and it is known as the old Breckenridge homestead, Mrs. Robert Breckenridge, Mr. Reed's mother-in-law, having lived upon the place for fifty-three years. Her children were all born there. Although the farm is well adapted to stock raising and general farming, it is not inferior to neighboring farms in the production of oil. Three wells are successfully operated on it; they are good producers, and yield Mr. Reed a fair income. In politics, Mr. Reed voices the sentiments and principles of the Republican party, but does not aspire to office. He is a good and worthy citizen of his community. The family unite in worshipping at the Methodist Episcopal Church.

F. FOLGER, a well known farmer of New Matamoras, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Monroe County, Ohio, April 30, 1849, and is a son of Henry T. Folger.

Henry T. Folger was born in Ohio, in 1824, and followed farming throughout his entire life. He was a Democrat, in politics. In religious attachment, he was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He married Margaret McKnight, who was born in Virginia, and was one of a family of ten children, of whom three are now living, namely: J. Amanda, who married William Dye, now of West Virginia, by whom she has a son, William H.; B. F. Folger; and Otto M., who married Berta Hall.

B. F. Folger attended the public schools of Monroe county, and also the Monroe county normal school. He then taught school in District No. 7, Monroe County, for sixteen years, and also in West Virginia, and in Washington County, Ohio, for a number of years. He engaged in the oil business in Monroe County in 1890. He has nine oil wells on his farm in Monroe County, which are all productive. He has eighty-three acres of good farm land in Washington County, Ohio, just out of New Matamoras, on which he located October 11, 1899. He is one of the progressive men of the community, in which he has a large circle of acquaintances and friends.

Mr. Folger was married, in 1873, to Mary J. Stetson, who was born in Monroe County, August 18, 1851, and is a daughter of George H. and Sarah (Sims) Stetson. They have five children as follows: Araminta Inez; Clara Winifred; Everett F.; Henry H.; and Mary F. Religiously our subject and his family are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In politics he is a strong Democrat.

CLERMONT L. HEDDLESON, a prominent lumber dealer of New Matamoras, Washington County, Ohio, was born in that place, September 26, 1863, and is a son of David and Sarah (Meeks) Heddleson.

David Heddleson was born in Matamoras, February 11, 1819, and is a farmer by occupation. Both he and his wife are still living in Washington County. They had the following children: Josiah; Maria; Mary; Vach, deceased; John; and Theodore, twins; Minerva, deceased; Robert; David; and Clermont L. David Heddleson is a Democrat in politics. He and his wife are members of the Methodist Church.

Clermont L. Heddleson has been engaged as a carpenter and in the lumber business all of his life, living mostly in New Matamoras. He established his planing mill in New Matamoras in 1893, and has since conducted a very successful business at that place. He is well and favorably known in the community where he is highly esteemed for his good business qualities and upright principles.

Mr. Heddleson was united in marriage with Mary I. Hubbard, who was born July 18, 1870, and is a daughter of Richard and Ann (Hancock) Hubbard. The former was a native of New Matamoras, and was born in 1826, and his wife was a native of Cincinnati, where she was born in 1834. Richard Hubbard died in 1892, and his wife died one year later. Mr. Hubbard and his wife reared four children, namely: Clarence, deceased; Mary I., the wife of Mr. Heddleson; and Anna and Rosa, deceased. The subject of this sketch and his wife have reared three children.—Everett C., born May 26, 1893; Mary C., born November 6, 1895; and Richard D., born January 1, 1898.

Mr. Heddleson is a member of the Knights of Pythias. He belongs to the Methodist Episcopal Church, while his wife is a Presbyterian.

L. W. SKIPTON, the efficient postmaster of Waterford, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Watertown township, in 1839. His mother, Martha Skipton, was a daughter of George and Margaret Skipton, and was born in Watertown township. She is living in Kansas aged seventy-nine years.

In 1857 Mr. Skipton married Elizabeth Jennings, a daughter of Lemuel Jennings. She was born in Pennsylvania in 1838, and they have six children, namely: Alonzo B., a manufacturer of Marietta; Henry L., who lives on his farm in Waterford; Walter B., a merchant of Wyoming; Mary, who married Delpha Beebe, a farmer of Oregon; Emma, who married Osmer Leget, a farmer of Watertown; and Lemuel E., who was proprietor of the Diamond Pants Company, of Marietta, but now lives in Zanesville, Ohio.

Mr. Skipton was appointed postmaster of Waterford in June, 1897, and is still serving in that office to the entire satisfaction of all

W. D. Gaiter

He is one of the most prominent citizens of Waterford, and is always willing to assist in any enterprise which is undertaken for the good of the community. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and belongs to Beverly Lodge, No. 37, F. & A. M.

WILLIAM B. GAITREE, special agent in charge of the rural free delivery service, with headquarters at Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, is a young man of keen, discerning faculties, who has never been idle in his short life, and whose aspirations are of the highest type. He was born in Marietta, in 1864, and is a son of J. F. and Nancy (Reckard) Gaitree, honored and respected citizens of Marietta for many years.

J. F. Gaitree is now retired from active life, and has reached the age of 76 years. He is a native of Louisiana, and has been a resident of Marietta since 1832. During his long busy career, 30 years were spent on the Ohio River as steamboat captain, and he was one of the oldest men engaged in that occupation. After he left the river, he conducted a hotel very successfully at Marietta, and was active in business until quite recently. He has been married three times, his second wife, Nancy Reckard, being William B. Gaitree's mother.

The subject of this sketch has two brothers and one sister, namely: Frank F., a clothing salesman, employed by S. R. Van Metre & Company, of Marietta; Louie F., a prosperous druggist, located in Zanesville, Ohio; and Mary W., employed in the census bureau at Washington, D. C.

William B. Gaitree attended the public schools of Marietta for some time, and left them to enter the drug business, being at first associated with C. B. McCaskey. Later, he was engaged at Cincinnati, Springfield, etc., as a pharmacist, for 12 years. In 1892, he served as assistant secretary to Governor McKinley, and retained that important position until 1896, when he was made chief clerk of the department of railroads and telegraphs, at Columbus, Ohio. Soon after Mr. McKinley was inaugurated, Mr. Gaitree received the appointment of confidential clerk to Mr. Sherman, Secretary of State. June 18, 1897, he received another appointment of note, being made chief of the rural free delivery service. He was the first man appointed in that service as it is now maintained. About 10,000 men have been employed in the service up to July 1, 1902.

Immediately after the declaration of war with Spain, Mr. Gaitree was sent to Tampa, Florida, by the post office department, to take charge of the military mail service. This position he filled with wonderful success, and remained in Florida until open communication was established with Cuba. He has also acted as secretary, as well as in various other confidential relations, to Senator Hanna.

June 12, 1890, Lucy N. Small, a daughter of Frank R. and Mary C. Small, and a native of Baltimore, Maryland, was united in marriage with Mr. Gaitree. She is an active member of the Episcopal Church, and is greatly esteemed for her many excellent qualities.

Mr. Gaitree has been very active in the B. P. O. E., and is now leading knight. Few young men of more spirit and zeal can be found in Washington County than he. He is mounting the ladder of success with rapid strides, and will soon reach the highest round.

WILLIAM ARTELLA GATES, prominent as a successful truck farmer of Muskingum township, Washington County, Ohio, is painstaking and diligent in the performance of all his duties, and is highly esteemed as a citizen and a useful friend to many of the people of Washington County.

Mr. Gates is a son of Benjamin Austin and Sarah A. (Pixley) Gates, and a grandson of Rasselas and Mary Maria (Derry) Gates. Rasselas Gates was born March 1, 1804, in Marietta, Ohio, and there he also received his mental training and spent the greater part of his life. His wife was a native of Windsor, Vermont, and was born June 25, 1810.

Benjamin A. Gates was also a native of Marietta, Ohio, and was born in 1831. He lived a long and useful life, and was much respected by his people. William Artella Gates was united in matrimony with Clara Devol, a daughter of Josiah and Catherine (West) Devol, of Muskingum township. Their union was blessed with three children, namely: Austin Devol, Raymond and Katherine,—aged sixteen, fourteen and seven years, respectively. Devol and Raymond are attending school at the present time.

Mr. Gates has a fertile farm of twenty acres, located about two and a half miles from Marietta, on the west side of the Muskingum road. He and his family have many of the modern conveniences and enjoy a beautiful home with pleasant surroundings. A Republican of decided opinions, the subject of this sketch is ever ready to defend his chosen party. He and his family are regular attendants of the Congregational Church.

JACOB MACHETANZ, one of the old and prominent residents of New Matamoras, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Saxony, Germany, October 12, 1837, and is a son of Gottfried and Maria (Jacob) Machetanz.

Gottfried Machetanz was born in Germany in 1808, and in 1858 came to the United States, locating at New Matamoras. In 1863 he purchased a tannery and residence of Samuel Hutchinson, and conducted the tanning business under the firm name of Machetanz & Son until he retired from active life. Politically he was a Democrat. He died in 1895. His union with Maria Jacob, who was born in Germany in 1814, resulted in the birth of ten children, of whom seven are now living, as follows: Sophia; Jacob; Elizabeth; Maria; Louisa; Amelia; and Edward.

Jacob Machetanz received his schooling in Germany, and in 1858 came with his parents to the United States, locating in New Matamoras. As above mentioned, he was junior partner with his father in the tannery business until the latter retired in 1880, after which he conducted it in partnership with his brother, Edward, until the tannery was closed in 1897. They were good business men, and were very successful.

Edward Machetanz was born in Germany, December 15, 1854, and was schooled in Washington County, Ohio. In 1879 he married Ida M. Algeo, who was born in Monroe County, Ohio, November 15, 1857, and is a daughter of George S. Algeo, a native of Ireland. They have four children, as follows: Minnie A., born July 2, 1880; Harriet, born February 10, 1884; George S., born November 16, 1886; and John Jacob, born August 14, 1890. Edward Machetanz is a Democrat in politics, and served in the city council two terms, and also as a member of the school board.

In 1868 Jacob Machetanz married Elizabeth Lentz, who was born in Ohio, July 14, 1835, and is a daughter of Israel and Caroline (Ehman) Lentz, both natives of Germany. They came to the United States with the Rapp Society, and located in Pennsylvania, whence they came to Ohio. Mr. Lentz was a tanner by trade. He and his wife reared five children, namely: Jonathan; McLedy; Elizabeth; David; and Lucinda. The subject of this sketch and his wife have no children. In politics Mr. Machetanz is a Democrat, and served as township treasurer twenty-four years, as councilman a number of terms, and as mayor of New Matamoras three years. Fraternally he is an Odd Fellow. He is a devout member of the Presbyterian Church.

JAMES G. BARKER, a representative farmer of Muskingum township, Washington County, Ohio, was born December 19, 1834, and is a son of George W. and Emeline (Devol) Barker.

The Barker family has been established in America for nearly three centuries. The first to come was James Barker, who was born in England, and in 1638 sailed for America. He settled in Rowley, Massachusetts, in 1639, and lived there until his death in 1678. His eldest son was Brazilla Barker, who died November 16, 1694, leaving ten children. Noah Barker, the next in line of descent, was born at Rowley, Massachusetts, in 1689, and died in 1749, leaving ten children. The seventh in this line was Ephraim, who was born at Exeter, New Hampshire, in 1734, and died October 9, 1800. He had nine children, of whom the eldest was Colonel Joseph, grandfather of the subject of this sketch.

Col. Joseph Barker was born September 9 1765, and came to Marietta, Ohio, November 13, 1789, with his wife, being one of the earliest settlers in this section. In April, 1795, they left the garrison at Marietta, and made the first opening on his wilderness farm seven miles above Marietta, along the Muskingum River, that section then being known as Wiseman's Bottom. The Colonel remained on this farm until his death in 1843, at the age of seventy-eight years. A fine painting of Colonel Barker is in the possession of James G. Barker and is highly prized. He married Elizabeth Dana, a daughter of Capt. William Dana, of Amherst, New Hampshire, and she died in 1835. They reared four sons and six daughters, as follows: Joseph; Elizabeth; Luther; William, who died in infancy; Sophia; George W.; Mary A.; Catherine; Frances Dana; and Charlotte C.

George W. Barker was born November 2, 1801, and made his home with his father. He was a man of prominence and influence, served a term as sheriff of Washington County, and was a member of both branches of the state legislature. On May 3, 1831, he married Emeline Devol, who was born in November, 1809, and was a daughter of Wing Devol. They reared six sons, as follows: John D.; James G.; Arthur W.; J. H.; Luther D.; and George H. John D., of Girard, Crawford County, Kansas, enlisted in the Union Army, September 16, 1861, and was captain of Company L, 1st Reg., Ohio Vol. Cav., serving on the staff of General Thomas. He married Mary L. Anderson, of Marietta, Ohio, who was born March 24, 1832, and died May 27, 1896. James G. is the subject of this biography. Arthur W., born October 19, 1837, lives in Girard, Kansas. He enlisted in Company A, 36th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., and was severely wounded at the battle of Antietam. He married Josephine Maxwell, December 6, 1872. She died in 1880, and he formed a second union, with Chloe Holmes. J. H., born November 9, 1840, enlisted in 1861 in Company A, 36th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., and died June 13, 1900. He married Mattie Trent, who died January 26, 1895. Luther D., born December 7, 1845, enlisted in the 148th Ohio Regiment, in the 100-days service. He married Hester McQuillin, and died at Girard, Kansas. George H., born August 8, 1848, married Sallie Bailey, and resides in Girard, Kansas.

James G. Barker enlisted July 29, 1861, and on July 31 was commissioned first lieutenant in the 36th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf. He was promoted to be captain on September 7, 1862, and continued as such until honorably discharged on account of disability caused by wounds, and the expiration of his term of enlistment, November 4, 1864. He was with his regiment in all of its marches, battles and hardships until mustered out, participating in the battle of Lewisburg, Virginia, May 23, 1862; Second Bull Run, August 30, 1862; Frederick, Maryland, September 12, 1862; South Mountain, September 14, 1862; Antietam, September 17, 1862; Hoover's Gap, June 24, 1863; Chickamauga, September 19 and 20, 1863; Brown's Ferry, Tennessee, October 27, 1863; Missionary Ridge, November 25, 1863; Cloyd's Mountain, Virginia, May 9 and 10, 1864; Lynchburg, June 17, 1864; Cable Town, July 15, 1864; Charleston, West Virginia, July 19, 1864; Kernstown, July 23, 1864; and Martinsburg, July 25, 1864. He was wounded at Berryville, September 3, 1864; and was severely wounded at the battle of Opequon, September 19, 1864.

Mr. Barker has always engaged in agricultural pursuits, and is now located three miles from Marietta, on the west side of the Muskingum River. He is one of the substantial men of his township, and is held in the highest esteem by all who know him. He married Frances H. Devol, April 13, 1869. She was born August 26, 1843, and is a daughter of Theodore Devol. Two children have blessed their union, namely: Arthur D., born September 29, 1870; and Fanny J., born January 11, 1873. Politically, Mr. Barker is a Republican. He is a member of Buell Post, G. A. R., and the Loyal Legion.

RICHARD GREENE LAWTON, a prominent and highly esteemed farmer, of Barlow township, Washington County, Ohio, who has retired from active labors, was born in the same township, on the old family farm, on May 27, 1824. He is a son of Jesse and Maria (Haskell) Lawton.

Both the Lawton and Haskell families were of New England ancestry. The Lawton family was founded in Washington County by James and Susanna (Gould) Lawton, natives of Rhode Island, Quakers in religion, who married in their native state and made the trip to what was then considered the frontier. They were the first of the family to locate in Barlow township, the second being the family of Nathan Proctor, Jr., who had come to Marietta from Danbury, Massachusetts. Both James Lawton and his wife died on the farm near Barlow village, which is still in the possession of the family. They had the following children: Rebecca, who was born in Rhode Island and married Richard Greene, of Newport, Ohio; Jesse, who was the father of the subject hereof, and was born in Rhode Island in 1789; James, Jr., who was born in Marietta, and became a prominent citizen; and Sarah, who was born in Barlow, married Isaiah Branson, and died in 1901, at the age of 99 years. The second son, James Lawton, Jr., served one term in the Ohio legislature at the time of the formation of the Republican party. He was a thorough and practical farmer and his unusual success drew the remark from him that,—"the great secret of successful farming is in being prepared to take advantage of every snow and every wind and every rain and all the sunshine,"—which was considered worthy of publication in the New York Tribune as embodying the science of farming.

Jesse Lawton was a man of scientific learning, who became known as a chemist, geologist and botanist, far beyond the confines of his locality. A deep student, it was his study and patient investigation which added much to the scientific knowledge of Washington County. In the course of his explorations he discovered on his own farm near Barlow village fossil shells which gave positive evidence that at one time an area about four miles in length and a mile or more in width was covered with the waters of an inland lake. Many interesting discoveries concerning this lake are in the possession of the family. Mr. Lawton was a man of excellent citizenship, and filled many of the local offices. He died on his farm on July 5, 1870, when almost 80 years of age.

The mother of the subject hereof was reared in Belpre, opposite Blennerhasset Island, and was a daughter of Jonathan and Phebe (Greene) Haskell. The former was a native of Rochester, Massachusetts, and died at Belpre, Ohio, in 1816, aged 62 years. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War and was in Wayne's expedition. He was appointed major by General Washington. His wife was a native of Rhode Island, and died in Belpre, Ohio, in 1809. Mrs. Lawton died in Barlow, Ohio, June 21, 1878, aged 80 years. She was the devoted and beloved mother of six children, namely: John; Richard Greene; Arthur; Isaac and Phebe, twins; and Isaiah B. John was born August 27, 1822, and died September 23, 1864. Arthur was born July 3, 1826, and died at Kansas City, Missouri, October 31, 1890. Phebe and Isaac were born August 9, 1828. Phebe never married and died at Bentonville, Arkansas, on August 28, 1893. Isaac has resided at Paris, Illinois, for the past forty years. Isaiah was born August 24, 1838, resides at Bentonville, Arkansas, and is retired from business activity.

Richard Greene Lawton was reared in a refined and intellectual home and was given the best advantages afforded by the neighborhood schools. At the age of 16 years his father, contrary to custom, gave the youth permission to follow a career of his own choosing and allowed him the use of his earnings. Accordingly he became a skilled carpenter and worked at that trade more or less during the succeeding 40 years, combining it with extensive and successful farming operations. After his marriage he moved to his present home farm, which is advantageously located just one mile east of Barlow village, and now comprises 100 acres. Mr. Lawton has carried on general farming, but has devoted the greater part of his time to sheep raising, having been for many years one of the large sheep growers of this locality.

On June 19, 1862, Mr. Lawton was united in marriage with Persis Putnam Walker, who was born January 15, 1828, and is a daughter of William and Abigail (Howe) Walker, and a great-great-granddaughter of Gen. Rufus Putnam. The Walker family came from Vermont to Athens County, Ohio, and there Mrs. Lawton's parents died, in 1855 and 1835, respectively. Henry M. Walker, a half-brother of Mrs. Lawton, and the youngest in the family, is a minister of the Presbyterian Church. Edward Walker, a brother, graduated at Marietta College, studied theology at Andover and was later elected a professor in the college; he died on Christmas Day, 1861. Still another brother, Douglas W. Walker, died in Athens County. Julia H., a sister, died March 25, 1893, in Kansas. Her first husband was Rev. William S. Beard who at one time served the church at Parkersburg, West Virginia. Mr. and Mrs. Lawton had one child, who died in infancy.

During the Civil War Mr. Lawton enlisted in the Home Guards and was in the 100-day service, his knowledge of chemistry making him available as a hospital steward. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lawton are esteemed members of the Methodist Church in Barlow. They are well known and their pleasing personal characteristics have drawn to them a large circle of friends.

AN SMITH engaged in agricultural pursuits about four miles northwest of Beverly, Washington County, Ohio, has been on the farm since 1900, before which time, he was an expert blacksmith.

Mr. Smith is a son of William R. and Julia D. (Ryland) Smith, the former a native of Morgan County, Ohio, where he was born in 1823, and the latter claiming Pennsylvania as her native State. William R. Smith was for many years employed in the railroad shops. He settled in Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, in 1857, and remained there until 1873, when he moved to Waterford township, became a tiller of the soil, and lived there until his death, in 1900. He took great interest in township affairs, and at one time served well as township trustee. He favored the doctrine of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The mother of Van Smith was Julia D. Ryland, a daughter of Hugh Ryland, and was born in 1825. She and her husband had two children, namely: Van, the subject of this writing; and Flora V., who is now the wife of Taylor K. Hunsaker, and resides at Milford, Ohio.

Van Smith is a native of Morgan County, Ohio, and was born in the year 1846. In 1867, he led to the hymeneal altar, Martha Murray, a daughter of George Murray. This worthy lady was also born in Morgan County, Ohio, her birth having occurred in 1844. She and her husband have but one child, Howard H., born in 1870, in Washington County, Ohio. He is now a competent engineer on the Ohio & Little Kanawha Railroad.

For many years Van Smith was a blacksmith by vocation, and did most skillful work in that line, being employed in the blacksmithing department of a number of railroads. At one time he worked in the shops of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, after which he was similarly employed, for five years, in the shops of the L. C. & S. W. Railroad. Some time later, he had charge of the machinery department of the Zanesville & Ohio River Railway shops, at Zanesville, Ohio. This position was his for twelve years, during which time he worked at intervals on a farm. In 1900, he settled down to farming permanently, and now owns 69 acres, the home farm containing 110 acres in all.

In politics, the subject of this sketch is a Republican, and is ever zealous in his efforts to promote the interests of his party. He has seen many years of good service during his life, and is highly regarded in his township and community.

WILLIAM H. LANGENBERG, who in connection with his brother, John, is proprietor of a flour-mill at Beverly, Ohio, was born in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, December 25, 1852.

Henry Langenberg, his father, was born in Saxony, Germany, February 15, 1815, and came to the United States in 1847. He located in New York and first worked on the Erie Canal. He was a tanner by trade, and followed it for a time in New York state, and afterward in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. He subsequently went to Pittsburg about 1851, and worked at his trade until 1855, when he came to Beverly, Ohio. He was then employed in the tannery of W. F. Robertson, and continued thus after the plant was sold to Patterson O. Dodge. In connection with Capt. John Henderson he rented the tannery, which he conducted a couple of years, and at the beginning of the Civil War he bought it of Mr. Dodge. He continued in the business throughout his active career and was then succeeded by his two sons, William H. and John. Religiously he belonged to the German Lutheran Church, as does his wife. He was a member of the I. O. O. F. In politics he was a Democrat and served as a member of the town council. He died October 23, 1896, leaving a considerable estate. He married Caroline Schlayer, who was born in Baden, Germany, November 18, 1827, and came to the United States with her parents in 1832, locating in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. They were married in Harrisburg March 25, 1852.

Five children were born to them, as follows: William H.; Charles; John; Mary, who was drowned in a cistern when a child; and Emma, who was born October 31, 1868, and lives at home.

Charles Langenberg was born October 31, 1854, and after a preliminary mental training took a course in Duff's Business College, at Pittsburg. He was then identified with a leather concern of that city for a number of years. In 1882 he came to Beverly and engaged in the grocery business, his store being at present in the Odd Fellows Block. He is a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Fraternally he is an Odd Fellow and belongs to the Encampment. He is a Democrat in politics, is township treasurer, and has served in the council. April 25, 1882, he married Edith Palmer, a daughter of Joseph T. Palmer, and they have three children;—Edgar P., Henry and Charles F.

John Langenberg, the third son of Henry Langenberg, was born September 23, 1859. He was married in September, 1893, to Blanche Hoge, a daughter of Solomon G. and Lucy M. Hoge. She was born in Beverly, in November, 1863, and her marriage resulted in two children,—Kent H., who was born in November, 1894; and Mary E., who was born in February, 1902. Fraternally John Langenberg is a member of Beverly Lodge, No. 84, I. O. O. F.; Shiloh Encampment, No. 158, and the Court of Honor. He is a Democrat in politics, and has served as a member of the town council.

William H. Langenberg obtained his mental training in the public schools of Beverly, after which he and his brother John succeeded their father in the tannery. They conducted the business successfully until 1900, when they closed out. They purchased the Hardin & Raney flouring mill in January, 1900, and have since operated it. They have a capacity of 50 barrels per day, their leading brand being "Legal Tender," which has a large sale. They also have a large custom trade in grinding meal and feed.

Mr. Langenberg was married in October,

1874, to Jennie C. Leget, who was born in Waterford, Washington County, Ohio, in 1854, and is a daughter of Samuel and Rebecca Leget. They have one child,—Bernice, who was born January 11, 1880, and was married July 17, 1902, to Ele B. Hall, of Beverly, Ohio. Religiously they are members of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Fraternally Mr. Langenberg is a member of Beverly Lodge, No. 84, I. O. O. F.; Shiloh Encampment, No. 158; and the Court of Honor. He is a Democrat in politics, served on the school board two terms, in the town council two terms and was postmaster of Beverly under Cleveland's first administration.

JAMES R. SHELDON, who is engaged in farming in Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Noble County, Ohio, in 1840. He is a son of William and Amanda (Wells) Sheldon.

His grandfather, Belteshazar Sheldon, was probably a native of Germany, and lived near Cumberland, Maryland. William Sheldon was born in Cumberland, Maryland, in 1808, and was a farmer by occupation. He was a Whig in early days and later a Republican. He died in 1892, and lies buried in the Haynes Meeting-House burying grounds, in Jackson township, Noble County. He married Amanda Wells, who was born in Waterford township, on the Tucker farm, in 1803, and is a daughter of David and Mary (Cory) Wells. She died in Noble County, in 1871, leaving three children, namely: Mary Elizabeth, who married Edward Blakely, of Noble County, who became a widow soon after the Civil War, and is now the wife of Samuel Boone, a farmer; Martha Jane, who married George Nickilsen; and James R., the subject of this sketch.

James R. Sheldon was married in 1861 to Mary Haynes, a daughter of Jesse and Phoebe Haynes. She was born in Belmont County, Ohio, in 1840, and died in 1869.

They reared three children, namely: Amanda, who married Henry McNeal, and is living on a farm adjoining that of Mr. Sheldon; James E., who lives in Waterford township; and Jesse W., who died in infancy.

Mr. Sheldon was married, secondly, in 1872, to the widow of Rev. Lindley Yarnall. Her maiden name was Elizabeth Way; she was born in Noble County, Ohio, in 1845, and is a daughter of Edward and Ann Way, also of that county. Her parents came to Noble County from England, when children. She had three children by her first marriage, namely: Edward Lincoln, a mail carrier on the Waterford route, who owns a farm in Morgan County; Della A., the wife of John Malster, of Waterford township; and Mary A., who married Elmer Taylor, and is living in Noble County. Mr. Sheldon and his wife have three children, namely: Caroline, a school teacher, living at home; William, an attorney-at-law, in Marietta; and Horace, a minister of the Methodist Church, having a charge in Morgan County, Ohio. Both Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon are members of the Presbyterian Church. The former is a Republican in politics.

Mr. Sheldon enlisted in 1864 at Columbus, Ohio, in the 161st Reg., Ohio Vol. Infantry. He went to Cumberland, Maryland, was on duty near Harper's Ferry some time, and was then mustered out at Camp Chase, Columbus, Ohio. Since that time he has been living in Washington County, and is one of the most highly esteemed and influential men of that section.

WILLIAM H. CUNNINGHAM, who has been an undertaker and cabinet-maker at Barlow, and also clerk of Barlow township since 1884, was born in Harrison County, Virginia, in 1842, and is a son of Benjamin F. and Sabra (Harvey) Cunningham, who came to Washington County, Ohio, in 1852.

Benjamin F. Cunningham followed agricultural pursuits through life and made his Washington County farm one of the best in Barlow township. Its nearness to the village enhances its value. His death occurred on October 28, 1898, at the age of 78 years. His widow, who has reached the age of 76 years, still resides on the farm. They had a family of 12 children, as follows: William Harrison; Francis Marion, who died while serving in the Union army during the Rebellion; Louisa L., who died in infancy; Melissa Jane, who resides on the home place; Leonidas Golden, who died in 1874; Loring Melville, who resides at Fishtown, Ohio; John Wesley, who resides at Belpre, Ohio; Orlando Worilla, a farmer and stone-mason, who resides on his farm near Vincent; Ister Carr, who is engaged in business at Petroleum, West Virginia, and has his home in Vincent; Mary Elizabeth, who married Jason H. Madden and resides at Lumberport, West Virginia; Robert Franklin, who resides on the homestead near Barlow; and Sarah Rebecca, who is the wife of George McLaughlin, of Fairfield township.

William H. Cunningham was reared and schooled in Barlow. In 1868 he embarked in the business of cabinet-making and undertaking, and has associated his son, Charles H., with him. This firm is one of the most honorable in the city, both members being regarded with universal esteem. Both are members of Bartlett Blue Lodge, No. 293, A. F. & A. M., and also of Barlow Lodge, No. 423, Knights of Pythias.

The first marriage of William H. Cunningham was to Artemus Caroline Childers, a daughter of Basil Childers, of West Virginia. She died in 1876, leaving three children, viz.: Charles H.; Sabra Ellen, the wife of William Malone, of Pleasants County, West Virginia; and Ida L., who died at the age of two years. The second marriage of Mr. Cunningham was to Artesia Childers, a sister of his first wife, and five children have been born to this union, namely: Edward Allison, who resides with his maternal grandparents; Kittie Florence; Amanda Bertha; Benjamin Harrison; and Harvey Basil. The family resides in the village of Barlow, where they attend the Methodist Church, and take part in the social life of the community.

During the Civil War Mr. Cunningham served in the pioneer corps, under A. C. Burroughs, and has been adjutant of Barlow Post, No. 434, G. A. R., ever since its organization, in 1886. In politics he has been a lifelong Republican, differing from his father, who supported the Democratic party. Mr. Cunningham has always been interested in educational legislation, and has served on the Board of Education for many years. Since 1888, when he succeeded David H. Merrill, of Marietta, he has been the efficient clerk of Barlow township. He is respected in business and in private life, and is a thoroughly good and desirable citizen.

JOHAN MALSTER, a prominent farmer of Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, is living on his farm of 225 acres in that township.

He was born in Waterford township, in 1866, and is a son of Moses and Emily J. (Dunsmore) Malster.

Moses Malster was born in Palmer township, Washington, May 20, 1826, and was a farmer by occupation. He served as county commissioner in 1876, and was justice of the peace. He died March 10, 1900. He was a member of Mt. Moriah Lodge, No. 37, F. & A. M., and Waterford Grange, No. 231. He married, first, Martha White, and they had four children, namely: Charles Winfield, of Waterford township; Arnold O., who lives near the Maple Grove Church, in Waterford township; Mary A., who married Ed. W. Watkins, and lives in Michigan; and Fremont W., of Waterford township. He married, secondly, Emily J. Dunsmore, who was born in Fairfield township in 1839, and they had two children, namely: Emily E., who married Arthur T. Baldwin, a druggist of Washington Court House, Ohio; and John, whose name opens this sketch.

THOMAS OVID SCOTT.

John Malster owns 225 acres of fine farming land in Waterford township, and this he keeps under a fine state of cultivation. He has a thorough knowledge of farming matters and is much interested in the progress and advancement made in that line of work. He stands very high in the community, where he is admired for his good principles and his willingness to assist in enterprises which are undertaken for the good of the people who live in that section.

He was married April 9, 1890, to Della A. Yarnall, who was born in Noble County, Ohio, in 1867, and is a daughter of Linsey and Elizabeth (Way) Yarnall. They had two children, namely: Laura, who was born October 9, 1893, and died September 22, 1895; and Lucy E., who was born July 1, 1897.

Mr. Malster and his wife attend the Methodist Church. He is a Democrat in politics and is a member of Waterford Grange, No. 231.

THOMAS OVID SCOTT, whose farm is located three miles from Marietta, is engaged in truck farming and in producing oil from the wells on his farm. He was born in Rochester, Pennsylvania, in 1852, and is a son of James and Sarah (Day) Scott.

James Scott was a gardener, and settled in Marietta, in 1856, where he bought the farm on which Thomas Ovid Scott now lives. He was a Republican in politics, and, in a religious connection, a member of the Congregational Church. His wife, Sarah Day, died in 1872. She was a daughter of Jacob Day, who lived in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, and was a ship-carpenter. He came to Marietta, Ohio, in 1854.

Thomas Ovid Scott has a farm of 96 acres, on which are located 15 oil wells, which produce 30 barrels per day. He is also engaged in truck farming, although not to any great extent, as he pays the greatest attention to his oil wells. Mr. Scott is a thorough and conscientious workman and is possessed of much energy and thriftiness.

In 1883 Mr. Scott married Alice, daughter of William Thorniley, of Marietta township. By a former marriage Mrs. Scott had three children, as follows: Annie is the wife of James Dilley, of Marietta, and has one daughter, Effie. William J. married Eliza Allen, of Columbus, Ohio, and lives in Syracuse, Ohio, where he is a physician; he has one son, Ovid. Thomas K. married Tallie Polton, of Marietta, and they have two children,—Olive and Henson. Mrs. Scott is a sister of N. N. Thorniley, of Washington County. The subject of this sketch has one sister,—Catherine,—who married Herman Fuller, and is living near Belle Plaine, Iowa. Mr. Scott is a Republican in politics.

CHARLES B. PADGITT, who is a bridgetender at Waterford, Washington County, Ohio, is a native of Waterford township, and was born February 7, 1850. He is a son of George M. and Mary (Brookover) Padgitt.

George M. Padgitt was born in Perry County, Ohio, in 1824, and died in 1899. He was a shoemaker and settled in Waterford township in 1848, where he worked at his trade until his death. He married Mary Brookover, who was born in Maryland, and is living in Marietta, in her eighty-fifth year. She is a member of the Methodist Church. They had six children, namely: William, a plasterer and contractor, of Marietta; Charles B., the subject of this sketch; John Henry, who died when a boy; Eliza, who married John Cowel, of Marietta; George R., a molder, living in Marietta; and Susan, who married George Rock, foreman in a laundry in Marietta.

Charles B. Padgitt learned his father's trade, that of a shoemaker. He was appointed bridgetender at Waterford in 1894, a position which he still retains. He also buys and sells butter, eggs and poultry, having been engaged in that line of business for the past five years.

Mr. Padgett was married in 1873, to Rosetta Morey, a daughter of Cyrus and Rebecca Morey. She was born in Waterford township, in July, 1850. They have three children, namely: Bertha, who was born in 1878, and is teaching in Waterford township; Myrtle M., born in 1880, who married David H. Stowe, an oil driller of California; and Frank, who died in September, 1895, at the age of twelve years.

Mr. and Mrs. Padgett are members of the Methodist Church. He is a member of Beverly Lodge, No. 84, I. O. O. F., and the Court of Honor, and for years has been a member of the Board of Education of Waterford. Politically he is a Democrat. He is well known in Waterford and the vicinity and is worthy of the confidence reposed in him.

VAPT. JAMES HADDOW, a well-known farmer and a veteran of the Civil War, who now resides about one mile east of Barlow, in Barlow township, was born in Lanarkshire, Scotland, December 19, 1827, and is a son of Robert and Janet (Ormiston) Haddow, both of whom were natives of Scotland. In 1834, they came to Ohio, lived two years at Zanesville, and then located in Washington County.

Captain Haddow has been a resident of Washington County almost continuously for 67 years. Prior to the location of his parents here he was sent to some relatives in Barlow township and cared for by them. He learned the carpenter trade and has done excellent and satisfactory work in that line throughout the township. For the past 20 years, however, he has been devoted exclusively to farming. In his earlier years he spent some months in Louisiana, and also in the pineries of Minnesota. When the call was made for soldiers to come to the defense of the old flag, one of the first loyal responses was made by Captain Haddow, then a young man, at the beginning of his career, with a wife and family. He enlisted on August 1, 1861, as a private, in Company F, 36th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf. He served in the ranks for 13 months, but afterward won rapid promotion and was captain of Company E for one year before returning to his home in 1865.

In 1853 Captain Haddow was married to Lucy Dustin, who was born December 19, 1834, her birthday having occurred exactly seven years later than that of her husband. She was a daughter of William and Eunice (Walker) Dustin, the youngest of a family of 11 children, of which she is the only survivor. Her father served as captain in the war of 1812. With his family he came to Marietta, Ohio, from Massachusetts and in 1830 settled in Barlow township. Nine children were born to Captain and Mrs. Haddow, viz.: Robert W., who is a farmer and stockman, of Texas is married and has four sons; John Fremont, who resides in California and has five children; Elvie (Richards), who lives in Iowa, and has four children; Lucy (Lynch), who resides in Barlow township, and has three children; Louella May, who died at the age of 15 months; Myrtie, who is the wife of Charles Canfield, lives in Barlow township, and has five children; Clara, who is the wife of B. S. Ball, of Barlow township, and has three children; James M., who is unmarried and resides at home; and Electa (Bartlett), who has three children and resides near Waterford, Ohio. It will be seen that a number of the children are settled in Barlow township and thus Captain and Mrs. Haddow can enjoy the companionship and attentions of their grandchildren. They have resided upon their present farm of 118 acres ever since their marriage. Many changes have been inaugurated, the old log house has given way to a substantial and attractive frame dwelling, while the surroundings have been likewise improved, and the farm has been intelligently and carefully cultivated.

In political sentiment Mr. Haddow is an ardent Republican and has acceptably filled a number of local offices, having been assessor several times. His fraternal interest is centered in Barlow Post, No. 434, G. A. R., of which he was the first commander, and in which he has filled other chairs. Mrs. Had-dow attends the Methodist Church but the Captain is something of an agnostic.

BM. PAYNE, joint city passenger and ticket agent at Marietta for the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railway Company and the M. C. & C. Railway, has been a resident of Marietta since 1885. He was born August 22, 1858, in Athens County, Ohio, near Coolville, or Tupper's Plains, and was a son of J. D. Payne, a well-known practitioner at the bar in Athens and Washington counties. His home was at Cambridge City, Indiana, but for the last 10 years of his life he conducted his business in Marietta, and attained a high position in the legal profession. His death occurred in 1901; his widow resides in Marietta.

The youth and school days of G. M. Payne were passed at New Straitsville, Ohio, and later he was engaged as a clerk in the Martin Ewing company stores at that place. Mr. Payne then went to Iowa, where he remained two years. Upon his return he engaged in mercantile pursuits for himself, at Bartlett, Washington County, Ohio. His affairs were in a prosperous condition, but after five years of business life he suffered from fire to such an extent that he retired in 1884. This was a discouraging occurrence, but Mr. Payne not only displayed his courage in his next step but also entered upon a career in which he has become highly valued by his employers. During his residence in Bartlett he studied telegraphy, and after losing his property he went to Marietta and entered the freight department of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railroad Company. There he made use of his telegraphic knowledge for one year, and then for the three succeeding years, up to 1889, was the agent for the United States Express Company. In the next year he returned to the railroad, removing to the present union depot, and accepting the position of joint agent for three companies, including the O. & L. K., now the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern.

Mr. Payne was married to Lydia Glendenning, of Bartlett, and they have one daughter, Pearl, who is now the accomplished stenographer and typewriter for Dr. A. H. Swinburne. The very attractive, pleasant and comfortable family home is located at No. 717 Second street. Formerly Mrs. Payne had been one of the popular teachers in Washington County, and is a lady of much culture and refinement. Both she and her daughter belong to the Methodist Church, and take an active part in its charitable and social affairs. Fraternally Mr. Payne is an active Mason and is secretary of Harmar Blue Lodge, No. 390. For the past two years he has been treasurer of the Knights Templar Commandery, of Marietta, No. 50. He is a member of American Union Chapter, and of the Mystic Shrine at Cincinnati. Mrs. Payne also takes an interest in the order, and both belong to the Eastern Star, Mrs. Payne being the secretary of the Marietta lodge. In politics Mr. Payne is identified with the Republican party.

ROBERT F. ALEXANDER, postmaster of Cutler, Ohio, is one of the leading citizens of that place. He has been identified with the interests of Washington County since his youth, having been brought here by his parents when he was six years old.

The birth of Mr. Alexander occurred in 1833, in Perry County, Ohio, and he is a son of Robert and Elizabeth (Horner) Alexander. Robert Alexander came to America at an early date, and was a soldier in the War of 1812. He was born in Ireland and his wife in New Jersey. They located first in Washington County, and purchased a farm on Wolf Creek, in Barlow township, which was the family home for a number of years. Mr. Alexander moved, however, to Paulding County, Ohio, and there died at the age of 66 years. The family subsequently returned to Washington County, and the mother died at the age of 82 years, at Fishtown. The ten children born to Robert and Elizabeth Alexander were as follows: Mary Ann, Jane and Martha, deceased; Nancy, who is a resident of Kansas; Elias, who died at Pittsburg Landing while serving his country as a soldier; John, deceased; Henry, who is living in Morgan County, Ohio; James, who lives in Kansas; Robert F.; and Elizabeth, who lives in Kansas.

At the time of his father's death Mr. Alexander was about 23 years old, and he took charge of his mother and resided in Barlow township seven or eight years. He and his brother Henry enlisted in Company I, 148th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., for the 100-day service. Robert F. went in as a second lieutenant, and was discharged as such. He returned to Washington County and resumed farming. He also operated a sawmill, and cut the timber from Fairview Heights, Marietta. After farming in the eastern part of Fairfield township until 1889, he lived for several years in Marietta. In 1891 he located in Cutler, embarked in mercantile pursuits, and for the past five years has been the popular postmaster of the place. His prominence in the Republican party has caused his selection for many of the local offices, the duties of which have been performed to the satisfaction of all concerned. He has been assessor, and in 1880 was made appraiser of real estate, both of which offices he filled with great efficiency.

In 1863 Mr. Alexander was married to Sarah Plumly, who was born in Belmont County and came to Washington County when 12 years of age. Three children were born to this union, namely: Flora, Frank L. and Leota. Flora died young. Frank L. is the auditor of the M. C. and C. Railroad Company. Leota is the wife of F. G. France, who conducts the largest general store at Cutler, and also operates a hardware store on the opposite side of the street from his other establishment. Mr. and Mrs. France have three children, namely:

Carlin, born December 20, 1896; and Robert and Sarah, twins, born May 12, 1899.

In fraternal life Mr. Alexander has been interested in Masonry since 1864, and belonged first to the American Union. He is now a member of Bartlett Lodge, and the American Union Chapter, No. 1. In Cutler Post, No. 502, G. A. R., he has filled all of the chairs and is a valued comrade. Mr. Alexander is a consistent member of the Christian Church, and is a liberal supporter of all worthy enterprises which come to his notice. He is an honorable, trustworthy man, and has among his fellow-citizens a great many warm, personal friends.

RUBEN E. HULL, who for a number of years conducted the leading hardware store in Cutler, Ohio, but is now retired from business, and who is one of the honored survivors of the Civil War, was born in Perry County, Ohio, on February 2, 1840.

The parents of Mr. Hull were Theodore and Elizabeth (Ellis) Hull, both of whom were natives of Perry County, whence they came to Washington County in 1844. They located on a farm about two miles northeast of Cutler, and there the father died in 1888, aged 83 years; and the mother died in 1888, aged 78 years. Their lives were spent on this farm, in the quiet pursuits of agriculture, and they reared a family which has reflected honor upon them and their native state. Three of the sons offered their services to their country in her day of peril, and but one survived to enjoy the blessings of peace. Four children were born to Theodore Hull and his wife, namely: Daniel, who was a soldier in Company G, 148th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., and died at Marietta, leaving a wife and two children; Matilda Ann, who married David Dunbar; Samuel, who died in 1863 while a member of Company G, 92nd Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf.; and Reuben E., who is the subject of this sketch. The two children of Daniel Hull are John T., a resident of Washington County, Ohio, and Mrs. Matilda

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES SCHIMMEL.

Jane Basin, who resides mainly at Charleston, West Virginia.

The subject of this sketch was reared on the farm and attended the public schools. The stirring events of 1861 aroused the loyalty of the youth of the land, and he was not slow in following the patriotic example set by his two older brothers. In September, 1861, his name was enrolled in Company H, 2nd Reg., West Virginia Vol. Cav., and he was a faithful, brave and gallant soldier until he was mustered out of the service on July 4, 1865. Re-enlisting after his first term expired, he served as a veteran, and although he participated in many of the most perilous movements of the war, he was not seriously wounded. During the first three years his regiment was detached, in the Big Kanawha Valley, and was engaged in fighting and skirmishing during the greater part of the time. At the battle of Winchester his regiment was under the command of General Crook, and in the Shenandoah Valley it was under General Custer. In the first battle Mr. Hull was in, at Winchester, his regiment was in the 8th Army Corps, under General Crook and General Averill. The second was September 19, General Sheridan commanding. Mr. Hull was still in Averill's brigade there and at the battle of Fisher's Hill. Afterward his regiment was put into Custer's division, and went with him to Five Forks and to Appomattox, never missing a fight. After his discharge, on July 4, 1865, at Wheeling, the subject of this sketch returned to the home farm and continued to operate it for a number of years. Later he moved into the village of Cutler, and was there engaged in an extensive hardware business for some years. Since September, 1900, he has been retired from business care.

On October 17, 1866, Mr. Hull was united in marriage with Ellen E. Griffith, who was born on April 12, 1845, in Perry County, Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Hull have had three children, viz.: Jessie L., Mary E. and Emma A. The eldest was born on October 7, 1868, and died on May 14, 1884. Mary E. was born on September 7, 1870, and married Frank Goddard, of Fairfield township. They are farming people, and have three children,—Harry H., Don T., and Nellie. Emma A. was born on April 29, 1876, and married G. W. Graham. They reside on Mr. Hull's former farm, and their only child is named Jessie. Politically, Mr. Hull has long been an active Republican, and cast his first vote for Abraham Lincoln. He now fills the position of infirmary director, having been elected to this responsible office in the fall of 1901, for a term of three years. His reputation as a man of broad, humane principles makes this selection a most appropriate one. The subject of this sketch is a man of social instincts, and is connected with Cutler Lodge, No. 784, I. O. O. F.; and Cutler Post, No. 502, G. A. R.; and in the latter organization he has filled several of the official positions. With his family he belongs to the Centenary Methodist Church, of Cutler, and liberally contributes to its work. As an honorable and upright citizen Mr. Hull enjoys the esteem of his fellow-citizens.

CHARLES SCHIMMEL, a progressive agriculturist and an oil producer, of Aurelius township, was born in Fearing township, Washington County, September 24, 1842, and is a son of Christian and Catherine (Peters) Schimmel, both natives of Germany.

Christian Schimmel was a farmer by occupation, and went to Fearing township in 1830, purchased a farm there, cleared it, improved it in numerous ways, and spent the remainder of his days there until his removal to Marietta, shortly before his death, in 1867, when he was 55 years old. He was united in marriage with Catherine Peters, and their family consisted of five children, as follows: Elizabeth, the wife of Adam Reider; Kate, deceased wife of Peter Lauer; Emma, the wife of David Lauer; Charles; and Jacob.

Charles Schimmel was reared in Fearing township and received what education was possible from the schools of the county. In 1867, he purchased a farm of 107 acres in Aurelius township, cleared a part of it and made some improvements in the way of buildings. Little by little, he subsequently added more to his possessions, until his farm now comprises 325 acres of the best kind of land, 200 acres of which is under high cultivation.

In 1896, Mr. Schimmel's attention was first attracted to the oil wells in Washington County. Since that time, he has been engaged in oil producing quite extensively, and at present has six producing wells.

In November, 1867, Mr. Schimmel was united in matrimony with Margaret, daughter of George and Margaret (Snyder) Stamm, of Lawrence township, who came to this country from Germany. The subject of this sketch and his wife have three children, namely: William; Jacob; and Elizabeth, who is the wife of Henry Wepler.

In politics Mr. Schimmel is an ardent Democrat, and has served his party as trustee of Aurelius township for six years. He is thorough and straightforward in all he undertakes, and has the esteem and confidence of all citizens of the county.

ISAAC B. COULTER, a well-known and much respected citizen of Cutler, Fairfield township, Washington County, Ohio, is a native of Ohio, where he has passed his whole life. He began at the foot of the ladder, and through energy and good management has accumulated property and reared a family which ranks among the leading ones of the county.

Mr. Coulter was born in Coshocton County, Ohio, on June 27, 1834, and is a son of Thomas and Margaret (Kincaid) Coulter. Thomas Coulter came to Ohio when a young man, either from Virginia or Pennsylvania, married in Belmont County, and resided in Guernsey and Coshocton counties. His wife died in Washington County in 1877. In the fall of 1837 the family moved from Coshocton County to Washington County, and located near Bartlett, in Wesley township, where Thomas Coulter rented a farm for about two years, and was a resident of Cutler for the two years following. Finally he bought a farm near Fishtown, and lived there until his death, in 1848. The children born to Thomas and Margaret Coulter were seven in number, as follows: Joseph C., who resides in Vernonia, Columbia County, Oregon; William F., who resides in Crowley, Oregon; Mariah Jane, who married A. W. Goddard, and died on January 30, 1902; Harriet, who married George Cunningham, and resides in Noble County, Ohio; Sarah E., who married J. H. Gage, and resides in Fairfield township; Isaac B.; and David A., who was born December 6, 1837, and died April 15, 1838.

When Isaac B. Coulter started out in life his capital was represented by muscle and energy, but he was not discouraged. Securing work on the neighboring farms, he was careful and prudent, and by the time he was 26 years of age was able to purchase a farm of 80 acres, located near Cutler. To this tract he has added until his farm comprises 136 acres. Besides the farm he owns 20 town lots in Cutler, which are continuously increasing in value. In 1880 he engaged in business in the village, in which he continued successfully until March, 1901. At that time the concern was removed to Byesville, in Guernsey County, where it is still carried on by W. C. Gage, a member of the family, retaining the name and honorable methods of its founder. Since 1884 Mr. Coulter and his estimable wife have also kept a hotel. Until December 17, 1873, the family remained in the old house. Then they moved to Cutler, where they have resided ever since.

On November 29, 1865, Mr. Coulter married Esther C. Goddard, daughter of Edward H. and Jane (Hildebrand) Goddard, who were pioneer residents of the county. Both grandfathers of Mrs. Coulter lived to their 82nd year, and died respected by the community. Mrs. Coulter was born December 27, 1834, in Fairfield township. Two years later the family moved to Milton township, in Jackson County, and resided there until the death of the father in 1853. The mother died on November 18, 1901, in her 91st year. Mrs. Coulter was one of a family of nine children, as follows: Esther C., who became Mrs. Coulter; Mary E., who is the wife of Austin B. Miller, of Belpre township; David, who lives near Garden City, Kansas; George Rodney, who resides near Jackson, in Jackson County, Ohio; Ruth, who married James Saunders, and died in Illinois; Julia Rebecca, who married Adam Dempsey, of Berlin, Ohio; Charles Howard, who was accidentally killed in Kansas, where he lived, and whose family reside at Wellston, Ohio; Nancy A., who was drowned on July 15, 1875, in Little Hocking Creek, in Dunham township, at the age of 27 years; and James E., who is a substantial farmer at Wellston, Ohio.

Isaac B. Coulter and wife have had the following children: Clement Edward, of Cutler; Leora J., a resident of Hartford, Connecticut; Cyrilda Margaret, the wife of W. C. Gage; Nancy A., who lives with her parents; and Esther C., who is in Connecticut with her sister. Although not a politician, the subject of this sketch has always voted the Democratic ticket and upheld the principles of that party. Mrs. Coulter is a valued member of the Universalist Church, while her husband is liberal-minded in his religious views, leaning, perhaps, to the Presbyterian faith, in which he was reared. The family is held in very high esteem in Cutler.

DR. WILLIAM R. DABNEY, a specialist in diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat, came to Marietta in 1896. He has built up a fine practice, being recognized as the leading practitioner in that line in the city. He was born at Guyandotte, West Virginia, and is a son of Dr. D. W. Dabney, who is still engaged in practice at Huntington, in that State. He comes of an old Virginia family, of English extraction, the name having originally been spelled, De Orbney.

Dr. William R. Dabney received his educational training in the local school of Huntington, and the Huntington State Normal school. He attended the Ohio Medical College from 1889 to 1892, and the New York Post-Graduate College during 1893 and 1894. He also took courses in the different post-graduate schools of New York in 1902. He was then engaged in practice at Huntington until 1896, when he removed to Marietta, and at first, located on lower Front street. He now has a neat suite of rooms at No. 282 Front street, and resides at No. 211 Scammel street.

Dr. Dabney married Kate V. Murphy, of Guyandotte, West Virginia. He is a prominent member of the Marietta and Washington County medical societies. He is a man of the highest character, and enjoys the esteem and friendship of every one with whom he is acquainted.

MANNING M. ROSE, who has efficiently served as postmaster of Marietta, Ohio, since 1898, was born in Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, June 30, 1856, and is a son of James H. and Mary (Schafer) Rose.

James H. Rose was born in Virginia, in 1810, and came to Washington County, Ohio, about 1842, locating in Adams township, just across the line from Waterford township. For many years before, during and after the Civil War, he operated the Cliff Coal Mines. His wife, Mary Schafer, was born in 1812 and died in 1875. He died in 1881.

Manning M. Rose attended the common schools of the county, and was afterward engaged in mercantile pursuits from 1878 to 1884. He was chief deputy sheriff of Washington County from 1885 to 1889, and during that period was also chairman of the Republican Executive Committee of the county. In February, 1890, he was appointed clerk of surveys in the general land office, and in October, 1891, was made chief clerk of the bureau. In November, 1892, he became assistant land commissioner, and had full charge of the land office exhibit at the World's Columbian Exposition. He returned to Ohio soon after Cleveland's inauguration and was engaged in the shoe business with C. W. James, for three years, when he sold out. He was appointed a member of the state board of pardons by Governor McKinley, who was his personal friend, and was chairman of that board for two years. In May, 1898, he was appointed postmaster of Marietta, and has since continued in that capacity. He is a man of recognized ability, and has the good will and hearty support of his fellow citizens.

Manning M. Rose was united in marriage with Louisa M. Beish, of Beverly, Ohio, and they have two children,—C. Beish, who is serving as day-mail clerk in the post office; and Nellie M., who is at home. Mr. Rose is president of the New Century Historical Society, and a member of the official board of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to which he belongs.

J. BANKSON, who has been a torpedo manufacturer for over 25 years, is vice-president of the Marietta Torpedo Company. This company, which operates extensively in Ohio and West Virginia, was incorporated in 1902, with the following officers: N. Francis, of Titusville, Pennsylvania, president; A. J. Bankson, vice-president; William H. Earnst, secretary; and A. Oppenheim, of Blockton, Indiana, treasurer. Branch stores are maintained in Salem, Parkersburg, Sistersville, and St. Marys, West Virginia; and Wolf Hill, Malta, Corning, Woodsfield, Chester Hill, Macksburg and Graysville, Ohio. The company also receives orders by mail.

A. J. Bankson was born in Pennsylvania, and has for many years been engaged extensively in the oil business in Pennsylvania and Ohio, although at the present time, his producing interests are all in Ohio. He has a wife, son and daughter and resides at the corner of Fourth and Washington streets, Marietta. Fraternally, he is a member of the I. O. O. F. and K. of P.

WILLIAM A. CLARK, a well known citizen of Marietta, Ohio, has for some years been associated with his father, E. Clark, Jr., in extensive oil operations in Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and in many important enterprises in Marietta.

E. Clark, Jr., is a native of Crawford County, Pennsylvania, and has been successfully engaged in oil operations for 25 years. He came to Macksburg, Washington County, Ohio, in 1884, at the opening up of the oil fields there, and subsequently made his headquarters at Marietta. He has since been active in the oil business, and particularly so in Washington County. He has run, however, several strings of tools in Belmont, Harrison, Monroe, Morgan, Vinton, Allen and Guernsey counties, in Ohio. He has operated throughout the Cairo fields in West Virginia, in Ritchie, Pleasants, Wood and Tyler counties, and in Allegheny, Washington and McKean counties, in Pennsylvania. The father and son are among the largest operators at Marietta, and have offices on the second floor of the Pioneer City Building & Loan Association block, formerly the Electric Building. In 1900 they purchased the old National Hotel, later known as the Yale Hotel, and changed its name to the Norwood Hotel. They have equipped it in modern style, furnished it anew, and provided steam heat, electric light and telephones in the rooms. The regular rates are from $2 to $3 per day. It is conducted on a most enterprising scale and in such a manner as to have won a liberal patronage from the traveling public. The subject of this sketch and his father have also other valuable business interests in the city, among them being the Acme Brick Company, in which they are the leading spirit.

E. Clark, Jr., has five children, as follows: William A.; Mrs. Wilson Donaldson, of Warren County, Pennsylvania; Ralph, who is in business in West Virginia; Charles, who works at the Norwood Hotel; and Irene, aged 12 years. The father of this family is a member of Spartan Lodge, F. & A. M., of Spartans-burg, Pennsylvania; the Commandery; Chapter, of Correy, Pennsylvania; and Aladdin Temple Shriners, Columbus, Ohio. William A. Clark married, in May, 1900, Lucia M. Petrick, of Cairo, West Virginia, and they have one child, H. T. The subject of this sketch is a member of American Union, No. 1, F. & A. M.; the Commandery; Chapter; Aladdin Temple, of Columbus, Ohio; the Council; Order of Elks; and Knights of the Maccabees.

HARLES M. GRUBB, who has been engaged in carpentering and bridge building for a number of years, is a well-known resident of Beverly, Washington County, Ohio. He was born in Morgan County, Ohio, March 11, 1829, and is a son of Albert G. and Elizabeth (McCarty) Grubb.

Albert G. Grubb was born in Delaware, and in 1843 removed with his family to Washington County, Ohio, where he followed the trade of a carpenter and was engaged in farming until 1877, when he died at the age of 75 years. He married Elizabeth McCarty, who was born in Loudoun County, Virginia, and died in 1858. They were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Eleven children resulted from their union, as follows: Mary J., deceased; Elizabeth, widow of J. W. Fouts; Charles M.; Louis L., who lives in Beverly; Albert G., Lucelia and Goodsil B., deceased; James, who lives in Missouri; and Sarah, Louisa and Josephine, deceased.

Charles M. Grubb enlisted in 1861, as a private in Company F, 18th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., and served three years and three months. Shortly after entering the service he was made orderly of the company, then rose to be second lieutenant, and finally to be first lieutenant. He was for a time detailed as aide-de-camp on the staff of the commander of the brigade. He saw hard service and participated in the following engagements: Stone River, Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain, and Missionary Ridge. He was mustered out at Columbus, Ohio, November 9, 1864, and returned home and engaged in carpentering and bridge building, which he has since continued. He resides in Beverly, and is held in high esteem by all who know him. He is a Republican in politics, and served for a time as county commissioner. One of his last acts in that capacity was in assisting to locate the site of the new and handsome $200,000 Court House, a structure he was instrumental in securing for the county.

Mr. Grubb was married December 9, 1852, to Susan F. Dutton, who was born in Aurelius township, Washington County, in August, 1829, and was a daughter of Hanson and Elizabeth Dutton. They had five children, namely: Albert H., of Beverly; Charles W., of Havana, Illinois; Clara E., deceased; Frank F., a carpenter of Marietta; and Ernest C., a carpenter of Lincoln, Illinois. Mrs. Grubb died July 20, 1894. Fraternally, Mr. Grubb is a member of Mount Moriah Lodge, No. 37, F. & A. M.; and the Chapter. He belongs to the Grand Army of the Republic, and has served as commander of the local post a number of times.

AMES STOW DEVOL, who conducts a large dairy two miles from Marietta, in Muskingum township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in 1867, and is a son of Israel and Dyanthea (Stow) Devol, and grandson of William Devol. Dyanthea (Stow) Devol, a daughter of James S. Stow, was born in Union township, Washington County, Ohio, September 20, 1837.

Israel Devol was born October 28, 1836, in Union township, Washington County, which is now known as Muskingum township. He and his wife are living with their son, the subject hereof, and at present are building on a part of the homestead farm.

James Stow Devol has a large dairy, which he conducts most successfully, being well known throughout that vicinity. He is a man of excellent business ability, is conscientious and painstaking, and ranks among the leading farmers and dairymen of Washington County.

ALONZO DUNSMOOR, a prominent agriculturist of Barlow township, owns one of the best improved farms in that section of Washington County, Ohio, on which he has lived since 1859. He was born in Barlow township, in 1849, and is a son of Daniel N. and Isabella (Fleming) Dunsmoor.

About 1827, the paternal grandfather, Phineas Dunsmoor, located in Palmer township, Washington County, where he secured a section of land, and spent the remainder of his life. The homestead farm formerly owned by him is known at the present time as the Isaac Haynes farm. Phineas Dunsmoor and his wife reared six children, as follows: Hiel; Abner; Lucius; Mary, wife of Ephraim Palmer; Attaline, wife of Hiram Gard; and Daniel N.

Daniel N. was a native of New Hampshire, and lived to attain the age of 77 years. He died in August, 1896. He accompanied his parents to Washington County, and his early manhood was spent in Palmer township. He subsequently moved to Barlow township, where his marriage took place, and located on what is now known as the S. W. Harvey farm. After several years of residence there, he purchased a farm in the same township, and by subsequent additions to the original purchase, became the owner of 400 acres of land. About half of this tract is now owned by the subject of this sketch. Daniel N. Dunsmoor was a prominent man in that section of the county. In politics he was first a Whig, and later a Republican. He served as township trustee and assessor, and was a justice of the peace for a number of years. His wife was born in Scotland, and was brought to this country when but five years old. She was a daughter of John Fleming, who located in the early days on a farm in Barlow township, the same now occupied by J. C. Schweikert. Mrs. Dunsmoor died in 1894, aged 79 years. She bore her husband three sons,—Perley, Harvey and D. Alonzo. The eldest son is a respected resident of West Virginia. Harvey was a soldier in the United States regular army at the time of his death. During the Civil War, he served with the 100-day men, and afterward enlisted in the 36th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf. He died in 1868, at Devil's Lake, Dakota, where his regiment was on duty.

D. Alonzo Dunsmoor was joined in marriage with Annie E. Milligan, a daughter of John and Maria Milligan, both of whom died several years ago. Mrs. Dunsmoor was reared in the northwestern part of Barlow township. Her only brother, John, died in 1899. She has three sisters, living,—Susan; Maria E.; and Nellie. Mr. and Mrs. Dunsmoor have reared three children—Jennie S., Maria I., and Charles B. Jennie S. married C. S. Benedict and resides in West Marietta, where her husband is a member of the city council. The others still brighten the home fireside, the son having just reached his majority. Politically, the subject of this sketch is a faithful adherent of the Republican party. Both he and his wife are active members of the Barlow Methodist Church.

C. CISLER, a prominent and influential farmer residing in Ludlow township, Washington County, Ohio, was born near Caldwell, Noble County, Ohio, December 31, 1853, and is a son of John and Jane (Harris) Cisler.

John Cisler was born about 1826, and was engaged in general farming throughout his entire career. He was a Democrat, in politics, and in religious views, held to the Protestant faith. Fraternally, he was a member of Olive Lodge, No. 259 I. O. O. F., of Caldwell. He married Jane Harris, who was born in Noble County, Ohio, in 1826, and was a daughter of Stephen Harris. Eleven children blessed this union, namely: Rebecca, wife of D. S. Shepherd; N. C., the subject of this sketch; Henry, deceased, who married Millie Clark; William, deceased; Isabella, wife of William Seibold, who lives in Oklahoma Territory; Elza, who lives in Colorado; Daniel, who is married, and lives in Denver, Colorado; Mary, who is the wife of C. A. Pryor, and lives in Iowa; Stephen, who is in the mail service between New York and Germany; E. L., who lives at home; and John, deceased.

N. C. Cisler was reared and educated in Noble County, and in 1874 removed to Washington County, Ohio. Here he was engaged in sawmill work for a period of 18 years, and during the past 10 years, has been successfully engaged in general farming on his present place in Ludlow township. He is a man of superior business ability, and well merits the success with which he is meeting.

Mr. Cisler was united in marriage with Sarah Edwards, who was born in Washington County, Ohio, January 1, 1853, and is the daughter of E. C. Edwards. They reared nine children, as follows: Precia; Clarence C.; Ora; Archie; Edward; Roxy; John; Scotia; and Elsie. The subject of this sketch had one brother, who served in the American Army during the Spanish-American War. Fraternally, Mr. Cisler is a member of the I. O. O. F.; and the J. O. U. A. M. Council No. 59. He is a Democrat in politics. In religious views, Methodist Protestant.

RICHARD BREWSTER one of the oldest inhabitants of Belpre township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Old Watertown, Ohio, November 27, 1820, and is a son of Levi and Lydia (Waterman) Brewster. Levi Brewster was also a native of Old Watertown, and a grandson of Seabury Brewster.

Levi Brewster was born in Norwich, Connecticut, and later removed to Smyrna, New York. He and his wife had two children,—Richard and Sherman. Mr. Brewster learned the trade of a tanner, and went to Ohio in the early part of the history of Washington County. He never followed that trade, however, but devoted his time to buying and selling land, and was amply satisfied with the results. He and his family attended the Presbyterian Church. In politics, he was an old line Whig.

At the advanced age of eighty-six years, he laid aside the burden of life, and his companion passed away at the age of seventy-four years.

Richard Brewster attended the schools of Smyrna, Chenango County, New York, where his parents had located after leaving Ohio. When he was fourteen years old, the family returned to Ohio, and he has remained there ever since, a resident of Washington County. The youthful days of Mr. Brewster were spent in buying cattle and selling at Baltimore, Maryland, and he has since been engaged in farming quite extensively. His land is fertile and his fields are many, fifteen hundred acres being the sum-total of his possessions. This property is one-third timber land, and the rest mostly devoted to grazing purposes.

Mr. Brewster was united in marriage, first, with Anna Bachelor, and they had one child, Eugene, by name, who is now at home. His second matrimonial alliance took place in 1864, when he was united with Sarah Knowls, of Athens County, Ohio, and they had three children, namely: Anna J., Lena M. and James H. In religious opinions, Mr. Brewster inclines toward the Presbyterian faith, but is a member of no church. In political belief, he is a member of the Republican party, and takes a great interest in party affairs. The citizens of his township honor and revere him, and hope he may remain many more years among them.

FREEMAN S. BEEBE, for many years a prominent resident of Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, is now manager of the mines at Coal Run. He is a native of this township, the date of his birth having been April 22, 1851, and is a son of George W. and Sarah J. (Webster) Beebe.

George W. Beebe was born in Watertown township, Washington County, Ohio, and died December 2, 1901, in the 79th year of his age. In early days, he was engaged in teaching school, and then followed farming the rest of his active career. He was a member of the M. E. Church all his life, and was a class leader for many years. He was a member of Beverly Lodge, I. O. O. F., and in political belief, was a Republican. He was drafted into the service of the Union Army, in 1863, but owing to sickness hired a substitute shortly after going to the front. He returned home and later, enlisted in the 148th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., serving until the close of the war, when he was mustered out with the rank of corporal. Mr. Beebe was joined in marriage with Sarah J. Webster, who was born in Watertown township, Washington County, Ohio, December 7, 1825, and was a daughter of John L. and Mary (Burris) Webster. Her father's death resulted from an accidental gunshot wound. Nine children were born to bless this union, namely: John W., who lives in Baltimore, Maryland; Ruth P., wife of James Fish, of Oregon; Emeline, wife of Miles M. Humiston, of Watford; Freeman S.; George A., who is prospecting in Mexico; Lucius C., who is on a part of the home farm; Adelpha W., who is located in Oregon; Watson Dorsey, who is also near Salem, Oregon; and Mary O., wife of George W. Blake, who is a bridge contractor of Atkinson, Nebraska.

Freeman S. Beebe engaged in agricultural pursuits for many years, after which he followed the trade of a cooper. For a time he was engineer on the Ohio River and also in sawmills, but for the past two years, he has been manager of the mines at Coal Run. He is possessed of no little ability, is enterprising and industrious, and his success in the field of business is merited.

Mr. Beebe was married in 1872 to Rachel A. Sampson, who died in July, 1885, leaving one child, George F., who is in Mexico. His second union, occurring in 1889, resulted in the birth of three children, namely: Charles R.; Mary O.; and Orrin D. March 30, 1901, Mr. Beebe was married to Sarah A. Phelps, who was born in Noble County, Ohio, in 1860, and is a daughter of J. E. and Rebecca (Chamberlin) Phelps. The subject of this sketch is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Fraternally, he belongs to Beverly Lodge, I. O. O. F. He is a Republican, in politics, and efficiently served as marshal of Beverly for 12 years.

ILLIAM W. PERDEW, a progressive tiller of the soil in Washington County, Ohio, is a native of Warren township, and was born August 9, 1827, on one of the farms near his present possessions, which he sold to his son some time ago. He is a son of William and Susanna (Harris) Perdeu, natives of old Fort Cumberland, Pennsylvania, and New York State, respectively. They settled on the Big Stillwater, Ohio, on arriving in this State, in 1806. William Perdeu also came to Washington County, in 1806, and settled in Warren township. In 1815, he was married to Susanna Harris, who was born in 1795. They had 12 children, as follows: Susan; Charles; Rebecca; Luther; Mary Ann; William W.; Henry; Moses; Diantha; and three who died young.

William W. Perdeu lived on his native place some years, and proved by his industry and toil that he was fully capable of managing farm work with credit to himself. He enlisted in 1861, as a member of the 36th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., but on account of sickness, was never sworn into the service. He hired a substitute in his place, however, at the next call.

The lady whom our subject chose as his life companion was Sarah Seffens, a daughter of William and Ann (Shackelton) Seffens, the ceremony taking place in 1853. She was born in England December 20, 1827, and was but 13 years of age when her father and mother came to this country, in 1830. Her father settled in Dunham township, where he purchased some time later, 160 acres of land, and henceforth occupied his time with farming. His wife died at the age of 45 years.

The nine children that have blessed the union of the subject of this sketch and his wife are as follows: Annie L., deceased; Abbie

WILLIAM SKIPTON.

MRS. SARAH B. SKIPTON.

Amanda; John; Mary; Elizabeth; Hannah; Joseph; Benjamin; and Clara. Abbie Amanda, the oldest living child, married John Dean, and they now make their home at Fort Scott, Kansas, and have three children,—Harry, William and Frank. John married Sarah Duke, a daughter of Joseph Duke, of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and they have four children, namely: Jennie, Alice, May and Marion. Mary is now the wife of Charles Duke, of Pittsburg, and has three children,—Joseph, Blanche and Kenneth. Elizabeth lived to maturity and married William France, of Athens County, Ohio, but is now deceased. She left the following children—Ethel, Ursula and Clealand. Hannah became the wife of Henry Blume, of Marietta, and reared one child, Geraldine. Joseph is a farmer in Warren township and chose for his wife Lucy Tretchel; they have three children,—Dean, Twila and Bernice. Benjamin and Clara are still living on the home place, with their parents. The family worship at the Methodist Church. In politics, one may always find Mr. Perdew supporting the Republican party. He has seen a lifetime of good, steady service, and in that lifetime the principles of duty and honor have always been his guide.

ILLIAM SKIPTON, who has been engaged in general farming and stock raising for many years, has followed various other occupations during his career, among which are those of a carpenter, stone-mason and brick manufacturer. His birth took place August 6, 1831, in a little log cabin with a punch-eon floor, in Watertown township, Washington County, and his parents were George and Margaret (Roth) Skipton.

The Skipton family originally resided near Skipton, England, but before the Revolutionary War they came to this country, and all but two were killed by the Indians. One of these two, George Skipton, was our William Skipton's father.

George Skipton was a native of the state of Pennsylvania, and was born June 28, 1784. He chose for his wife a German girl named Margaret Roth. They had 10 children, as follows: Susan; Catherine; Mary; John; Elizabeth; Christiana; an infant who died unnamed; Sarah; George H.; and William. Susan Skipton was born June 12, 1807, married Archibald Newbanks, and they had six children. Catherine Skipton was born April 27, 1809, was also married and is the mother of ten children. Mary Skipton first saw the light of day in April, 1811. John was born August 1, 1813, and died in 1896. Elizabeth's birth took place on March 12, 1816, and she lived to the age of thirty years. Christiana Skipton was born September 26, 1818, and is also deceased. Sarah, who was born March 25, 1821, now resides in Kansas, and George H., born March 19, 1829, died on June 15, 1862. The mother of these children was born June 9, 1787, and died January 10, 1873, at the advanced age of 86 years.

William Skipton chose for his wife Sarah F. Brown, a daughter of Silas and Zilpha (Rice) Brown, natives of Massachusetts and Vermont, respectively. The father was born on November 12, 1784, and the mother on December 28, 1799. Their children were as follows: Jemima; Nancy J.; Zilpha Armantha; Wallace Rodolpha; Fred Arthur; and Lelia May. Jemima, whose birth took place November 4, 1852, married John Corner, and now resides in Watertown township. Nancy J., born August 24, 1859, also lives in Watertown township, and is the wife of George Arnold. Zilpha Armantha, born December 24, 1857, became the wife of Edward M. Humphrey. Wallace Rodolpha, whose birth occurred July 2, 1865, was united in marriage with Zilpha A. Cheedle. Fred Arthur, born March 4, 1869, was twice married, the first union being with Nellie Stebver, who died December 7, 1896; on September 27, 1899, he married Daisy H. Leget, of Palmer township, by whom he had one child, Marie Irene, born May 24, 1901. Lelia May, who was born January 13, 1871, married Elmer Pugh.

During the Civil War Mr. Skipton served with the 100-day men, from May 2 until September 14, 1864, and now draws a small pension. His farm consists of 200 acres of ground, which he is greatly interested in cultivating, and he makes a specialty of breeding sheep and other stock. He has always been ambitious and industrious, and in this way has gained a position of importance and influence in township and county affairs. Although his beginning was small, his own efforts have advanced him thus and he is properly called a self-made man.

In religious belief, Mr. Skipton is liberal. In fraternal circles he affiliates with the G. A. R. post of Beverly, and with the Sons of Temperance. He also is a member of the Patrons of Husbandry Grange at Waterford.

 AMES T. DUNBAR, who for many years conducted a first-class store in Watertown, Washington County, Ohio, is now located in the same business at Vincent, where he commenced in 1901.

Mr. Dunbar is a son of Daniel and Mary (Lake) Dunbar, and was born in 1840, in Fairfield township, Washington County, Ohio. Daniel Dunbar was a native of Fairfax County, Virginia, and was born in 1800. He was a son of William Dunbar, whose death occurred in 1852, at the extreme old age of 112 years and seven months, and of whom it is said that he never missed a meal on account of sickness. Daniel arrived in Fairfield township in 1812, and throughout his life followed farming, successfully. He took an active interest in the affairs of the Universalist Church, of which he was a member, and in politics voted the Democratic ticket.

Daniel Dunbar married Mary Lake, a native of Watertown, and a daughter of Thomas Lake. Her father was born in Washington County, and her grandfather was a native of New Castle, England, who came to the United States, and settled in Washington County in the early days of its history. The first Sunday school in the State of Ohio was established at Harmar, and it is said that Mrs. Dunbar's mother taught this Sunday school.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Dunbar had the following children: Augustus and Edward, deceased; Jane Ann, the widow of Jacob Heuston; Judy B., the widow of E. P. Duffur; James T.; and Alpha O., who now lives in Rifle, Colorado, and is the wife of C. M. Wible. Mrs. Dunbar's death occurred in 1844, when James T. was but four years of age. She was always known as a good, virtuous woman, whose chief interest was in her home circle.

James T. Dunbar was united in marriage with Flora Gage, a daughter of Joseph H. and Mary A. (Cook) Gage, in 1868. She was born in 1850, in Fairfield township, and her union with Mr. Dunbar resulted in two children,—Dayton G., born in 1870, and now a prosperous merchant at Vincent; and Sylvie E., born in 1882, and still at home.

Mr. Dunbar is a Democrat, in politics, and has served his township for twenty-three years as treasurer. Fraternally, he has been a member of the Masonic lodge at Beverly, for twenty-five years. In all respects he may be counted a citizen of the best type, and one who will do his utmost in promoting the prosperity of his city and county. He has ample experience in mercantile affairs, having carried on business in Watertown from 1867 to 1899. He now has a flourishing and lucrative trade in Vincent and is connected with many other business interests in that city.

F. DANA is a prominent farmer in Newport township, Washington County, where he owns 432 acres of farming land in section 29, township I, range 6. Mr. Dana gives special attention to both stock and fruit raising and his farm is well stocked and planted with many choice varieties of fruit.

Mr. Dana was born November 30, 1843, upon the same farm and in the same house where he now lives, and which was also the birthplace of his father. He is a son of Steven A. and Jane U. (Little) Dana, grandson of Steven Dana, who was born in Amherst, Massachusetts, November 24, 1779, and great-grandson of Capt. William and Mary (Bancroft) Dana. Steven A. Dana was born August 27, 1819. He was united in marriage with Jane U. Little, who was born in Newport township, August 27, 1819, and they had three children. Pamela, the eldest, of these was born July 25, 1842, and is now the widow of A. W. D. Krakt. F. F. Dana is the second child born to his parents. Prescott, the third, was born September 26, 1845, and died June 30, 1846. Their father was a believer in the Baptist faith.

F. F. Dana was united in marriage with Mary Ellen West, November 19, 1872. Mrs. Dana is a native of Moundville, West Virginia, and was born April 10, 1848. She is a daughter of Rev. John B. West.

Mr. and Mrs. Dana have reared four children, namely: Steven A., Mary Grace, Edward D., and William Dwight. They were born, respectively, February 15, 1874; September 3, 1877; December 3, 1882, and October 11, 1887. Steven A., the eldest son, married Hattie Green Knight, who was born October 1, 1871. They reside on their father's farm.

In September, 1862, Mr. Dana enlisted in Company H, 7th Reg., Ohio Vol. Cav., and served until the close of the war. He is a valued member of the G. A. R., and a firm supporter of the Republican party.

WILLIAM WARREN. Among the early settlers of Marietta, was William Warren, who, in his home in Middlesex County, Massachusetts, had listened to the tales of the fertile country, the beautiful rivers and the opportunities for agricultural advancement, to be found in Ohio. Although but a lad of 14 years, he made the trip thither, with his parents, being obliged to walk the greater part of the distance. This sturdy perseverance and courage were emphasized in later life, as he was one of the hardy, enterprising and bold pioneers, whose feats of strength and endurance are still recalled.

William Warren was born on September 24, 1800, at Shirley, Middlesex County, Massachusetts, and was a son of William and Hannah (Dickinson) Warren, the father of the latter, James Dickinson, having been a Revolutionary soldier, who survived until 1836. These parents also came to Washington County at the same early date, the father following the trade of cooper. William Warren had very meager educational advantages in his youth, which made more remarkable his intellectual strength and wide and intelligent knowledge of men and events, during his later life. His tastes for reading introduced him to the best literature of the world, and his chirography was compared to copper plate. In this connection, may be mentioned a unique volume of great value, which is carefully preserved by his devoted daughter, being an immense scrap-book which was a compendium of almost seventy years of the history of this country, so wonderful in its growth and expansion.

Mr. Warren located on a farm in the northern part of Washington County, about 25 miles from Marietta, which was his nearest depot of supplies. As an example of his family devotion, as well as his most remarkable ability as a pedestrian, it is related that upon a certain occasion, he walked the whole distance to and from Marietta, 50 miles, in one day, in order to procure medicine for a sick son. Until slavery became a party issue, Mr. Warren affiliated with the Democratic party, casting his first vote for the country's hero, Gen. Andrew Jackson, but later, his attitude changed, and he embraced the principles of the Republican party and was among the last survivors of the Silver Grays, to offer his services to the government at the outbreak of the Rebellion.

Mr. Warren was a striking and familiar figure on the streets of Marietta, and few there were who did not honor this aged pioneer. With his beautiful long, white hair, and strong, intellectual countenance, he might well have stepped from some canvas of immortal fame, as an exponent of the beauty and dignity of a blameless life. His liberal and indulgent views on religious subjects, made him a Unitarian, but his charity was with all moral enterprises under any name.

The only surviving child of William Warren is Sarah Rebecca, who for many years prior to his death, cared for her aged parent with a beautiful, filial devotion. Mr. Warren passed away at his home on Second street, between Washington and Sacra Via streets, on April 2, 1892, and was laid to rest in Mound Cemetery. Universal sympathy was extended to Miss Warren, his only representative. Her home at No. 618 Second street, is comfortable, and upon her 90 feet of ground, she has erected two other residences.

In front of her home stands a weeping willow tree which is one of the old landmarks, having been planted by no less a person than Governor Meigs.

HIEL CHAPMAN, who has been successfully pursuing the occupation of farming, near Vincent, Ohio, for more than half a century, was born in Watertown township, Washington County, May 10, 1829. At the age of four years, he was brought by his parents to his present farm in Barlow township.

Mr. Chapman is a son of Samuel and Catherine (Clark) Chapman. His paternal grandfather, Heman Chapman, was born in Connecticut, in 1764, and located in Marietta, Ohio, in 1806. He had previously lived in New York, and later, at Wilkesbarre, Pennsylvania. His death occurred in 1881, in Barlow township. He was joined in wedlock with Mary Potter, whose birth took place in 1767, and who passed to her final rest in 1834.

Samuel Chapman, a farmer, was born in New York in 1793. He located in Waterford township, Ohio, in 1816. He passed his last days upon the farm which is now the home of his son, Hiel, who was the sole offspring of the union with Catherine Clark; she was born in 1797.

During the Civil War, Hiel Chapman enlisted in Company F, 148th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., and served for a term of 100 days, as corporal. He was wounded in the knee, and draws a pension from the government. At the close of the war he returned to the farm, and completed the substantial frame house which was commenced in 1857. The barn, which is still used, has been built over 60 years, and formerly stood where the railroad now crosses the farm; about 50 years ago it was moved to its present location.

Mr. Chapman carries on general farming on 80 acres of very fertile land. His mind is stored with reminiscences of the early days. When he first came to this vicinity, a log cabin was his home, the door of which was hung with wooden hinges. A little later, heavy sleepers were put under the house, the frail floor of which was replaced by a substantial one, the boards for which were obtained from Lyman & Harley Laflin, who operated the first sawmill in that neighborhood. In 1857, Mr. Chapman married Abigail Hutchins, who, was born March 22, 1830. Mrs. Chapman is a daughter of Shubel and Rhoda (Davis) Hutchins, who were married near Macksburg. Her father was a native of Massachusetts, and departed this life in 1840, leaving three children, — Sarah Ann, who married John Black and died in 1902; Betsey, who died in Kansas, in 1885; and Abigail, the wife of Mr. Chapman. Mrs. Chapman's mother contracted a matrimonial alliance with George Morris, an Englishman. He died about 1872 near Macksburg. His widow survived him many years and spent her closing years in Barlow with her son, a half brother of Mrs. Chapman. Her demise took place in 1884. The paternal grandfather of Mrs. Chapman, John Hutchins, was born in 1770, and married Joanna Weeks. They were the fourth or fifth family to settle at Macksburg, and reared four children, namely: Mollie, John, Rosanna and Shubel.

CHARLES W. DOWLING.

In political opinions, Mr. Chapman was Democratic, prior to the Civil war. Subsequently he voted the Republican ticket for many years, but of late years he has been a Prohibitionist of the most pronounced type. He has served as justice of the peace and has filled other offices. He helped to build the first M. E. church at Vincent, and has been a leader and Sunday-school superintendent ever since the organization of the church. He is serving as one of the trustees. He is active in all church affairs, and distinctly remembers the first minister in Vincent, who was John Redmond, through whose efforts the present church edifice was built.

 HARLES W. DOWLING, the leading general contractor of Marietta, Ohio, who has his office in the St. Clair Building, was born at Caywood Station, Washington County, Ohio, in 1866. He is a son of John W. Dowling, and a grandson of Louis Dowling, who came to this country from Scotland and took the farm upon which his son, John W., now resides. Mrs. Louis Dowling, who died May 4, 1902, had attained the age of 90 years, and enjoyed the best of health up to the time of her death.

Charles W. Dowling was reared on the farm, and attended the schools of the township. He served an apprenticeship with his father, who was a carpenter, at Fort Madison, Iowa, whither he went at an early age. He returned to Marietta in 1890, and has since engaged in contracting there. He does a general contracting business, and has more than a hundred men in his employ at all times. He does his own drafting and architectural work, and has erected many fine buildings in Marietta, among them being the Marion street school building, the St. Clair Building and the new high-school building. He has built many residences and business blocks at Parkersburg, West Virginia, and in other towns near-by, and is at the present time erecting the new penitentiary at Moundsville, West Virginia.

Mr. Dowling was united in marriage with Ida Thorniley, who was born in Washington County, and is a daughter of R. R. Thorniley, and they have one son, Guy. The family residence is at Williamstown, although Mr. Dowling contemplates removing to Marietta, where he owns considerable property. He is a Republican in politics, and in religious belief he favors the Methodist Church. Fraternally he is a member of Lodge No. 477, B. P. O. E.

 VERETT P. CORNER, a careful, conscientious citizen of Watertown, Washington County, Ohio, carries on a business as a photographer in that village, and also has a gallery in Beverly, Ohio. He is a son of William and Sarah R. (Sharp) Corner, and was born July 17, 1876, in Waterford township, which was also his father's native place.

William Corner, who was born in 1849, still resides in his native township, and carries on farming. He is a firm Republican, in politics, and is a member of the M. E. Church. He married Sarah R. Sharp, a native of Warren township, who was born in 1850 and is a daughter of William and Martha Sharp. William and Sarah R. (Sharp) Corner had three children,—William, Carl and Everett P. William was born in 1870, Carl, in 1874, and both reside in Washington County, the former, in Waterford township, and the latter, in Watertown township.

Everett P. Corner obtained his mental training from the public schools of Wheeling, and the schools of Waterford and Beverly. Afterward, he took a course in the commercial school at Marietta, and subsequently, when his school days were over, he kept books for various firms in Wheeling and Marietta until he decided to become a photographer, and fitted himself for this calling. He does excellent work, and accordingly has the patronage which he deserves.

Mr. Corner was united in marriage with Ina Viora Davis, a daughter of William Manley and Ruth Davis, born in Morgan County in 1783. William Manley Davis enlisted in Company C, 97th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., at Zanesville, Ohio, and fought for his country six months, taking part in a number of battles. While in the line of duty was wounded, and this caused his discharge from further service.

Mr. and Mrs. Corner are active members of the M. E. Church of Watertown. Mr. Corner is a Republican, in politics, and bears his responsibilities as a citizen in a public-spirited manner.

BRADLEY BURGESS STONE, a prominent business man of Marietta, former auditor of Washington County, was born at Belpre, Ohio, December 31, 1841, and is a son of John and Charlotte Putnam (Loring) Stone. The father died in 1884, and the mother in 1887. They reared the following children: Samuel; Melissa (Northrup), of Chicago, Illinois; Boliver; Lydia L. (Moore), of Pomeroy, Ohio; John; Augustus; Frank, of Belpre, Ohio; and Bradley B.

Bradley B. Stone is the grandson of Capt. Jonathan Stone, who was one of the founders of Belpre, Ohio. Capt. Jonathan Stone was born at Braintree, Massachusetts, in 1751. His father, who had been a soldier in the King's service, died in 1759, leaving him a child with limited opportunities for obtaining an education. He acquired a knowledge of surveying, which proved in later years of much value to him. His first work was as an apprentice in his father's tannery, and then he joined a whaling expedition. Upon his return, he entered the Revolutionary army, as an orderly-sergeant, and served with credit in the Northern army, under Gen. Rufus Putnam and General Gates. In 1781 he was commissioned captain, and continued as such until the close of the war. He was afterward employed by General Putnam in the survey of lands on the coast of Maine, and assisted in the suppression of Shays' Rebellion, in 1786.

On the formation of the Ohio Company, Captain Stone purchased two shares, and in the fall of 1788 he visited Marietta, to prepare for the coming of his family. He located his farm in the upper Belpre, in the fine bottom land a short distance below the mouth of the Little Kanawha. He returned to Massachusetts and in the summer of 1789, left Brookfield, his former home, with his family, and finally reached Belpre in December, of that year. Two ox-teams, with a large wagon, cows for family use, and a horse for each of the ladies, composed the outfit. After crossing the mountains, he procured a flatboat, and in this they came down the river. The boards of which this boat was composed, were utilized for doors and floors of the first house which Captain Stone built in Belpre.

When the Indian war broke out, Captain Stone removed his family to Farmers' Castle, but, after what was known as Stone's fort was constructed, they moved into it and remained there until the ending of the war. Captain Stone was a fearless man and one of the most successful defenders of the Belpre garrison. After the close of the war, he was engaged, with Jeffrey Mathewson, to complete the survey of the Ohio Company's lands, and in 1799 was appointed, with Gen. Rufus Putnam, and B. I. Gilman, to lay out the university lands, at Athens. In 1792, he served as treasurer of Washington County. Captain Stone died on March 24, 1801, before his last great work was completed. In politics he was a Federalist.

Captain Stone's wife, Susanna Matthews, was a niece of Gen. Rufus Putnam. She died November 3, 1833. Their children were as follows: Samuel, who died in Licking County, Ohio; Grace, the wife of Luther Dana of Newport, Ohio; Benjamin F., of Belpre; Rufus Putnam, of Morgan County; John, of Belpre; and Melissa, the wife of Joseph Barker, of Newport, Ohio.

Col. John Stone, of Belpre, was born June 23, 1795, and has always lived on the old homestead. In 1826, he was made colonel of militia, and was always known by that title. During the days of slavery, he was an Abolitionist, and took an active part in some of the stormy events along the Belpre shore of the Ohio River. He was the friend of the colored man, and watched with impatient interest the trial at Parkersburg, which involved the boundary-line controversy. On one occasion he ironically told Caleb Emerson, as the ferry was pushing to Virginia, to ask General Jackson what objection there would be to him watering his horse in Virginia's river. Four of Colonel Stone's sons served in the Civil War. Bradley B. volunteered in the 92nd Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., and when discharged, bore a captain's commission. Simeon B., Augustus D. and Jonathan F. were out over 100 days at City Point and Bermuda Hundred, where Boliver died from contracting malarial fever.

Bradley B. Stone was reared on the home farm, and attended the country schools and also Pomeroy Academy. After teaching school through one winter, in Washington County, he entered the Union army, enlisting, as before stated, in August, 1862, in the 92nd Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., and won rapid promotion for gallantry, rising from the rank of orderly-sergeant to the captaincy of Company D. He was mustered out in June, 1865, having participated, without injury, in all the engagements of his regiment with the enemy.

Soon after his return from the war, Captain Stone was married to Lottie, daughter of Charles Ames, of Belpre, and was engaged in mercantile pursuits in that city, until 1878. In 1881, he was elected county auditor, and served in that position for two terms and 10 months over,—an aggregate of almost seven years. For about three years, Captain Stone was interested in the organization of the Washington County Loan & Business Association, in which most successful concern he is still a stockholder. During the past six years, he has been in the oil business, in the Sand Hill district, in Washington County, with satisfactory results. He is a charter member of Buell Post, No. 178, G. A. R., and was the first officer of the day, at its organization. In politics, he is an ardent Republican.

The hospitable home of Captain and Mrs. Stone is at No. 515 Third street, Marietta. They have two children,—Laura, born at Belpre, in 1873; and Chester, born at Marietta, in July, 1883. Although not an actual member, Captain Stone favors the religious creed of the Unitarian Church.

GEORGE E. ROBINSON, who is engaged in farming in Marietta township, Washington County, Ohio, is a son of George H. Robinson, and grandson of Ebenezer Robinson.

Ebenezer Robinson came from Rhode Island, in 1819, to Fearing township, Washington County, Ohio, where he ran a sawmill and grist mill. His death occurred at the age of ninety years. He left one brother and one sister, namely: Leonard, deceased; and Esther, who married Dr. Cleveland, of Pawtucket, Rhode Island. She died in 1893, leaving an estate valued at $152,000,—George E. Robinson, being one of the heirs.

George H. Robinson, the father of the subject of this biographical mention, was born in 1818, and was but one year old when his father removed to Washington County, Ohio. In 1857, he erected a grist-mill, on the Little Muskingum River, which he conducted up to the time of his death, in 1866.

George E. Robinson married Jane Dornan, who was born on his present farm, and is a daughter of Robert Dornan, who came to this country from Belfast, Ireland. They have eight children, namely: Wallace, a rig builder living in Marietta township; Hattie, who married D. F. Dufer, of Parkersburg, West Virginia; R. R., living in Sistersville, West Virginia, who married a daughter of Amos Wright; Arthur, who works in a chair factory in Marietta; Ida, living at home; Walter and Janie, who attend school; and Marjorie.

Mr. Robinson is a thrifty farmer, owning 40 acres of land in Marietta township. This is kept well improved, and on it he carries on general farming and stock raising. He is well known in the community, and is a man of honor and integrity. He is a member of the Republican party. Religiously, the family are Methodists.

DAVID BRECKENRIDGE, a retired farmer, residing near Vincent, Ohio, is a Scotchman by birth, and hails from Argyleshire, Scotland. He was born June 13, 1822, and crossed the ocean in company with his parents in 1832, celebrating his tenth birthday on the voyage. He is a son of David and Charlotte (McMullen) Breckenridge, and is one of a large family of children. The father located in Barlow township, Washington County, Ohio, where he purchased a 120-acre farm from Samuel B. Pond. He died in 1843 at the age of seventy years. His widow survived him until 1875, when she, too, passed away, having attained the great age of ninety-one years.

Mr. Breckenridge has one brother, Thomas, now living in the village of Barlow. He was born in 1811, and at one time owned a farm adjacent to that belonging to the subject of this sketch, which is one mile southwest of Vincent. Two older sisters were married and remained in Scotland, when the remainder of the family came to this country. Isabelle, another sister, who is deceased, married Mr. McTabish, and lived for a number of years in Chatham, Canada. Other members of the family are Elizabeth, wife of William Andrews; Charlotte (Dunlap), who died in Indiana; Andrew, who died at Cincinnati, aged twenty-three years; Neil, whose death occurred in the same city when he was about twenty-eight years old; Margaret, wife of James McKay; Duncan, who was born in 1825, and resides on a farm in Iowa; and Charles, a noted contractor and builder at Logansport, Indiana.

When a boy, Mr. Breckenridge attended the schools of Barlow township, his first teacher being Sarah A. Clough, who subsequently married Smith Green, of Barlow. Upon attaining his majority, Mr. Breckenridge started out to make his own way in the world. For twenty years he followed various occupations, in different parts of the South and West, doing teaming a part of the time in Ohio and Indiana.

In the spring of 1861, Mr. Breckenridge returned to the home of his boyhood, and with the fruits of his toil, purchased the interests of the other heirs of the homestead farm, which is the same upon which he still lives. During all the years intervening between that period and the present time, he has tilled the soil until quite recently, when he retired from active labors. He sold a portion of his farm, which originally contained 120 acres, and now makes his home with Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Tracey.

Mr. Breckenridge has been twice married. He lost his first wife and one son, in Indiana, many years ago. His second marriage was contracted with Mrs. Harriet (Moffat) Turner, who had one daughter, Mary Ann, by her previous marriage. This lady, who is Mr. Breckenridge's step-daughter, married Charles F. Tracey, and it is their pleasure to comfort the declining years of the subject of this sketch. They have five children, namely: Bertha E.; Leslie T.; Minnie M.; Harlow Lyle; and Carl Selvin.

Mr. Breckenridge was reared in the Presbyterian Church of which he may be called a lifelong member. He commands the respect and esteem of a large circle of friends and acquaintances, and has filled with credit many of the township offices, having been trustee, school director, etc.

ALGERNON STEPHENSON, a prosperous farmer of Marietta township, is living two miles from Marietta, in Washington County, Ohio. He was born in Marietta, in 1843, and is a son of John Stephenson, a sketch of whom appears elsewhere in this volume. John Stephenson and his wife had eight children.

Algernon Stephenson, the subject of this sketch, married Frances Pape, of Fearing township, Washington County. She is a daughter of Diedrich and Mary Pape, both of whom were natives of Germany. They came to this country, and located in Cincinnati, where they remained for awhile, and afterward settled in Fearing township, where they purchased a farm. Diedrich Pape is still living, but his wife died in 1885. Algernon Stephenson and his wife have two children, namely: Annie B., who is teaching in the public schools in Marietta; and Algernon C., aged twenty-two years, who is a graduate of Marietta College, and is now a reporter on "The Register."

MR. AND MRS. LOUIS C. BRADFIELD.

Mr. Stephenson has a fine farm, which is located about two miles from Marietta. He raises stock and general produce, and is one of the most prosperous and influential farmers in the community. He is active in all public works, and readily lends his assistance to any worthy enterprise.

Mr. Stephenson is a Democrat, in politics. The family attend the Congregational Church.

LOUIS C. BRADFIELD, a prominent merchant, farmer and oil prospector, of New Matamoras, Ohio, is one of the most extensive real estate owners in Grandview township. He owns 113½ acres in one tract and 15 acres in another tract. The latter is adjacent to New Matamoras, and upon it Mr. Bradfield has a fine grocery store, where he carries on quite a prosperous business. In addition to these, he owns quite a number of houses in New Matamoras, and as oil has recently been discovered on his place, the land is very valuable.

Mr. Bradfield was born in Monroe County, Ohio, March 20, 1852, and is a son of James and Lucinda (Touel) Bradfield. James Bradfield was born in Virginia September 15, 1814, and his father was a farmer. When 13 years of age he moved to Ohio with his parents. He was twice married, his first union being with the mother of Louis C. This marriage resulted in nine children, several of whom are deceased. Those living, besides Louis C., are Jacob; Mary S., wife of John Murvey; and Corbin. They are residents of Monroe County, Ohio. The mother of these children died, and some time after her death the father married Mary S. Rowles. Three sons blessed this union, namely: James, George and David. James Bradfield is now living in retirement in New Matamoras, having reached the advanced age of 89 years. He is a staunch Democrat.

Louis C. Bradfield was reared and schooled in Monroe County, Ohio, and has followed agricultural pursuits during the most of his life. In 1895 he located in New Matamoras, where his home has been ever since. Like his father, he has been twice married. His first wife was Elizabeth Timmons, whose demise took place in 1883. She left four children to the care of her husband, namely: Roxy, wife of W. Lippincott; Hugh; Lucy; and Charles. In 1884 Mr. Bradfield was united with Isabelle Rowles, who was born in Monroe County, Ohio, September 30, 1860. The following children resulted from their union: Edward; Barney; Ellen; Nellie; Eliza, deceased; and Nettie. The family attend the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which Mrs. Bradfield is a devout member. Like his father, the subject of this sketch is a Democrat, and exerts all his influence in behalf of that party. He is a prominent member of his community and is popular among his associates.

LEWIS C. HAYES, one of the most influential citizens and successful merchants of Vincent, Ohio, needs no introduction to the readers of this book as he is well known throughout Washington County. Mr. Hayes is a native of Barlow township, where he was born in 1848. He attended the public schools, and remained on his father's farm until he had attained the age of nineteen years. He then engaged in the lumber business and operated a portable sawmill for more than twenty years, mainly in Washington County, and his success was phenomenal.

In 1880, the firm of Hayes Brothers was formed, including Lewis C. and his brothers

Robert and William, the first named being the head of the concern. This firm is engaged principally in the hardware business, but it also buys and sells wheat, and deals largely in wool. The present large and commodious two-story building, 50 by 100 feet in dimensions, was erected by the brothers, and is stocked with the most complete line of hardware in Vincent. In the rear, a building 20 by 30 feet, in size, is used for lime, cement, and as a storeroom for heavy hardware. The firm enjoys a large patronage, and its success is attributed largely to the efforts of Lewis C. Hayes.

Mr. Hayes is also prominently identified with many of the most important enterprises of Washington County. In the spring of 1900 he, in company with S. W. Harvey, formed a telephone company, which has been operated with much success,—the company style being Hayes & Harvey. About twenty-one miles of line was constructed, connecting Marietta with Bartlett, Vincent and other towns of the county. This line has not only proved a great benefit to the general public, but has yielded a fair income on the investment.

Mr. Hayes is also interested in the oil and gas industries in his vicinity, and owns several good producing wells near Vincent. In 1895, he put down one large gas well, piped the town and has furnished both light and fuel to Vincent ever since. In addition to these enterprises, Mr. Hayes purchased the Vincent homestead, which he platted and laid out into town lots, and it is now known as the Hayes addition to Vincent. Upon his fine farm, about one mile west of Vincent, he built a splendid residence, convenient and modern in design. Upon this farm is located also a fine grindstone quarry, which is leased by the Cleveland Stone Company, and has a capacity of 150 to 200 tons per month. It is rightly considered one of the large industries of the town, and furnishes employment to about thirty men.

Mr. Hayes was united in marriage with Miss Seely, a daughter of Joseph Seely, of Barlow. Seven children were born of this union, E. E. Hayes, the eldest of these, is filling a clerical position in Hayes Brothers' store. Carrie married C. C. Hopkins. Harry and Frank, aged respectively, fourteen and ten years, are attending school. The others, Annie, Harriet and Shirley are at home.

In his political opinions, Mr. Hayes is a decided Republican, but is not an aspirant to office as his time is fully occupied by his various business interests. He is a public-spirited citizen however, who has done his part in furthering and developing the natural resources of his section, and, from a business standpoint, is looked upon as one of the most successful men of the county.

GEORGE JOHNSTON, a well-to-do farmer living three and a half miles from Marietta, in Washington County, Ohio, was born in Marietta, in 1852, and is a son of Andrew and Agnes (Heslop) Johnston.

Andrew Johnston was born in Scotland, October 17, 1819, and died February 12, 1897. His wife, who was born in West Newton, England, March 21, 1825, died December 24, 1899, aged seventy-four years, nine months and three days. They came to this country on the same ship, in 1844, and were afterward married in Lawrence township, Washington County, in 1851. George Heslop, father of Andrew Johnston's wife, was a farmer of Lawrence township. Andrew Johnston and his wife had eight children, namely: George, the subject of this sketch; Elizabeth, deceased, who married George Cuthbert, a farmer of Lawrence township, deceased; Nellie C., John Walter and Margaret, deceased; Emma J., who lives with her brother, George, and two who died in infancy.

George Johnston has 89 acres of land, and makes a specialty of raising grain. In this he has been very successful, and in fact, he has good cause to be proud of his entire farming career, as he is one of the most prosperous and influential farmers in that section. He is a member of the Congregational Church. In politics, he is in accord with the Republican party.

A. HOLLSTEIN, a promising young gentleman of Washington County, Ohio, is successfully engaged in teaching school, together with farming, at his home in Independence township.

Mr. Hollstein was born January 20, 1880, and is a son of Adam A. Hollstein, and like his father, was born in Independence township. The days of his boyhood and early youth were spent in acquiring an education at Patterson's Hall, and on completing the course given in the public schools, he attended college at Ada, Ohio, taking one year of the teacher's course in that college. He has taught school for four terms, meeting with the best of success, and is untiring in his efforts to advance the interests of his township in this direction. He also takes care of his farm and home, and is as yet enjoying a life of single blessedness.

The subject of this sketch is a believer in the doctrines of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the divine services of which he attends. In politics he is an ardent Democrat and does the best he can for the success of that party. Fraternally he is a member of the Court of Honor, at New Matamoras, Ohio.

GEORGE DINSMORE, who is numbered among the intelligent, progressive citizens of Decatur township, Washington County, Ohio, has followed the profession of teaching school during the greater part of his life. He is now, however, established on a farm of 140 acres, where he raises fine stock and does the work that generally falls to the lot of a tiller of the soil. He has always taken a decided interest in township affairs, and is never better pleased than when he can promote the welfare of the community.

George Dinsmore was born July 22, 1839, in Carroll County, Ohio, and is a son of William and Margaret (Irvine) Dinsmore, the family being of Irish descent. His father and mother were born in County Donegal, Ireland, spent the early years of their lives in the same neighborhood, and were married in 1828. Mrs. Dinsmore was a daughter of Richard Irvine, and bore her husband six children, as follows: Catherine; Richard John; Robert; Letitia; Mary Weir; and George. The first three of this family died in New York City. Letitia was born in Ireland in 1831 and died in September, 1894. She was the wife of Dr. S. R. Elliott, who resides in New York City. They had no children. Mary Weir was born in Carroll County, Ohio, September 7, 1841, the same year in which the father of the family died. After the death of Mr. Dinsmore Mrs. Dinsmore was married to Hugh Weir, by whom she had the following children: Jennie E., born August 17, 1845; Catherine, born July 2, 1847; and John, who was born October 31, 1849. The mother died September 4, 1887, aged 79 years and six months. Mr. Weir died February 12, 1896, aged 84 years and 10 days. Jennie E. was married June 3, 1869, to M. E. Ellenwood; Catherine married O. N. Ellenwood; and John married Lizzie Godfrey.

George Dinsmore strove to acquire his education with energy and perseverance; he attended the common schools for a time, and later became a student in some of the select schools of Barlow and Glendale. His efforts were not in vain, for he succeeded in mastering all difficulties, and started in life for himself as a teacher in the public schools in 1860. For 33 consecutive years he followed his profession, gaining the good will of all, and establishing a reputation for justice, kindness and thoroughness in school work, as well as in all things. In politics he is a member of the Democratic party, but is also liberal in local matters. For five years he served well in the office of township treasurer, and also served one term as trustee. Besides these his services as school director were given freely for many years. He has made a success of farming and his home place, with its well-kept buildings, etc., is indeed attractive and pleasant to see. He is a member of the Grange in Decaturville.

Mr. Dinsmore was united in marriage with Mary A. Ballard, a daughter of P. E. Ballard, living in Decatur township. The ceremony was performed March 30, 1870, and they have since been blessed with three children,—William Everett, born March 17, 1871; Cora May, born March 26, 1873; and Clarence George, born May 13, 1878. These children have attended the common schools and are still unmarried and reside on the home place. The family are very liberal in religious views and attend the Presbyterian Church, which is nearest to their home.

HENRY H. HOLLAND, a prominent attorney-at-law, of Ludlow township, Washington County, Ohio, was born near Bloomfield, in Ludlow township, November 25, 1851. He is a son of Harvey Holland, and grandson of Simon C. Holland, who was born in County Tyrone, Ireland.

Harvey Holland was born in Oswego County, New York, June 19, 1815, and at an early day moved to Woodfield, Ohio. A part of the trip he made by boat, landing at Clarington, Ohio, in 1820. He was educated at Woodfield and read law and was admitted to the bar at Columbus. He located in Ludlow township, Washington County, in 1832, and there practiced law. He was the owner of 150 acres of land and was one of the most prominent citizens of the community. His first marriage was with Mary Black, by whom he had three children,—Hulda J., who was born in July, 1834, and died November 30, 1881; Harriet E., born August 1, 1837, who married Bishop McVey, and lives at East Liverpool, Ohio; and James E., born December 24, 1839, who married Rebecca M. Henry. Harvey Holland formed a second union, wedding Mary Mossor, who was born February 10, 1825. They reared the following children: Harvey, deceased, who was born July 6, 1845, and on May 16, 1861, married Cynthia Dickson, deceased; Arrious N., born January 19, 1847, who married Louise Smith, and lives in Ludlow township;

William A., born May 2, 1849, who married Rebecca Thomas, of Ludlow township; Henry H., the subject of this biography; Simon C., born February 11, 1854, who married Jane Simmons; Charles W., born January 29, 1856, who died October 15, 1856; Sylvester M., born August 25, 1857, who married Hannah Cline, and lives in Ludlow township; Mary B., born December 2, 1859; Stephen A., born April 18, 1862, who married Nancy E. Jones; and Clement L., born June 14, 1865, who married Mary Mowder. The father died November 26, 1893, and the mother August 23, 1889. Mr. Holland was a Protestant in religious belief. In politics he was a Democrat.

Henry H. Holland was engaged in teaching school for seventeen years. He is now engaged in the general practice of law, and has been justice of the peace of his township for the past nine years. In politics he is a Democrat.

CHARLES T. REED, a progressive farmer of Marietta township, is living about 3½ miles from Marietta, in Washington County, Ohio. He was born in Newport township, July 3, 1868, and is a son of Samuel D. and Mary G. Reed.

His paternal great-grandfather, Anthony Reed, was a farmer, of Columbiana County, Ohio. His grandfather, Ezekiel Reed, died in 1843. Samuel D. Reed, his father, was married in 1864, to Mary G. Hill, and his death occurred September 14, 1873.

Charles T. Reed's maternal grandparents were William and Martha (Amlin) Hill. They lived in Pittsburg, and reared the following children: John Thomas, born in 1823, who was a justice of the peace for a number of years, and is now living on his farm in Newport township; Jonathan, born in 1824, who is also living in Newport township; Rhoda Ann, deceased; Elizabeth, who died in 1901, at the age of seventy-three; William Hill, Jr., living in Newport township; Sarah, who married William Caywood, a farmer of Lawrence township; Charles Hill, deceased in 1893; Amy S.,

SAMUEL W. HARVEY.

deceased; Harriet N., who married Roswell LaRue, a farmer, of Marietta township; Henry J., born in 1839, who is a carpenter, of Lawrence township; Mary, the mother of Charles T. Reed; and Maria B., who married Benjamin Triggs, a farmer and carpenter, of Newport township.

Charles T. Reed moved with his parents to Marietta township in 1872, and they are now living on the farm upon which they located at that time. It contains about 43 acres of land. Mr. Reed is a prosperous farmer, and is much interested in his vocation. He is well posted on agricultural affairs and takes great pride in the care and management of his farm.

On July 20, 1892, Mr. Reed was married to Laura Belle Brown, a daughter of Enoch and Rachael Brown, both deceased. They have two children, namely: John O., born June 8, 1895; and Austin Irwin, born October 23, 1897. Mr. Reed is a Congregationalist in religious belief. Politically, he is a Democrat.

AMUEL W. HARVEY, who has been engaged in various enterprises, is now manager of the Bartlett and Marietta telephone line, and is identified with other interests. He is located on the old home farm in Barlow township, on which he was born June 17, 1840, being the only son of Samuel and Isabella (Fleming) Harvey.

Samuel Harvey was born in Argyleshire, Scotland, and as a young man came to this country and located on the farm in Barlow township. In 1838 he built the residence which still stands in an excellent state of preservation, although it has been remodeled once, and the shingles, which he himself manufactured, lasted more than 50 years before being replaced. He died in 1841. His widow married D. N. Dunsmoor, and several children blessed their union.

Samuel W. Harvey at an early age engaged in the sawmill business, and also spent four years in a store at Marietta. Then for a period of 23 years he occupied a position as traveling salesman for the Cleveland Dryer Company, which he represented in six different States, but mainly in Ohio. He decided to live a more settled life, and located on the home farm in Barlow township. This consists of 240 acres of well improved land, equipped with substantial buildings, and is devoted to general farming. He was the prime mover in the establishment of a rural telephone line, which is operated by himself and L. C. Hays, as the Bartlett and Marietta line. It is equipped with heavy cedar poles, is first class in every respect, and receives a liberal patronage from the residents located along the 21 miles of line. The line, which was established in 1898, is actively managed by Mr. Harvey. He is also interested in the Stockport and Marietta telephone line, and the firm of Hays & Harvey owns about 13 miles of line north of the tunnel, connecting with the long-distance "phone" at Athens. In 1861 Mr. Harvey enlisted in the Union Army and served four years as a member of the 36th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., participating in all the engagements of the regiment. He entered as a private, served in every company of the regiment, and was mustered out as captain of Company G.

Mr. Harvey was united in marriage with Amanda Wolcott, who was reared in Watertown township and is a daughter of Alanson Wolcott, an early resident of that township. To them was born one daughter, Mrs. C. H. Taylor, of Fairview Heights, Marietta, whose husband is one of the proprietors of the Marietta Steam Laundry. In politics the subject of this sketch is a Republican. For many years he has been a member of the Loyal Legion, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

ILLIAM HUGHES, well-known as a farmer in Newport township, Washington County, Ohio, is a son of D. M. and Elizabeth (Evans) Hughes, both natives of Wales. D. M. Hughes was born December 31, 1812, and emigrated from his native country at the early age of twenty-four years. With his father and brother, John D., he came to the United States and landed in New York, where he remained for some time. He was subsequently engaged in the manufacture of white lead in Pittsburg and there met Elizabeth Evans, who became his wife. In 1848 they removed to Newport township, Washington County, Ohio. Elizabeth Evans was born January 1, 1811, in Wales. She became the mother of a number of children, among whom were the following: Margaret A., who died at the early age of six years; Benjamin F., who died in infancy; David D., who was united in marriage with Estella F. Rea, and resides in Allegheny, Pennsylvania; Evan D., who married Anna Williamson and now resides in Wellsville, Ohio; and William.

William Hughes was born September 17, 1853, and is a native of Newport township. When grown to manhood he was united in marriage with Louisa Snyder, who was born December 25, 1852, and is a daughter of James and Margaret Snyder, of Grandview township. Mr. Hughes and his worthy wife have had seven children, of whom all but one grew to manhood and womanhood. Their names are as follows: James W.; Margaret A.; Mary, deceased; Jennie L.; Harry D.; Edward D.; and Estella Grace. The family attend the M. E. Church.

From 1884 until 1890 Mr. Hughes was engaged in the manufacture of apple barrels, but is now cultivating his land to the best of his ability. He has two farms of 36 and 20 acres, respectively. In politics he promotes the interests of the Republican party, and is a zealous worker in its behalf. As a citizen he is regarded as a man of influence, ever ready to uphold the cause he thinks is right.

JAMES PATTERSON HOON, a successful blacksmith and farmer, of Palmer township, who also owns and operates a blacksmith's shop at Wolf Creek, is a representative of an old and honored pioneer family of Washington County.

The birth of Mr. Hoon occurred May 20, 1830, at Sharpsburg, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, and he is a son of John and Jane (Patterson) Hoon. John Hoon was born in 1803, and died in October, 1876. Mr. Hoon is of Dutch and Welsh ancestry. His great-grandfather Hoon was a native of Holland, who came to the United States and was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, while his grandmother was of Welsh descent,—her uncle, William Williams, was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Mr. Hoon is the eldest of a family of 11 children, the others being as follows: Philip; Priscilla Jane; Jefferson C.; Elizabeth Ananda; John Madison; Samuel A.; Lewis Clawson; Clarissa; Armelda; and George. Mr. Hoon was a member of the State Guards for several years, and in the Civil War enlisted in Company I, 148th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., under Colonel Moore and Capt. D. J. Richards, serving under the 100-day call.

The subject of this sketch was married in 1853 to Susan Foutch, and the following children were born to their union: Jane Priscilla; James M.; Sylvester; Orson E.; Thomas Jefferson; Cassius M.; Ulysses Grant; and Jesse G. In politics he is identified with the Republican party. Mr. Hoon operates a farm of 74 acres in Palmer township and also follows his trade of blacksmith at Wolf Creek. Besides his farming and work at the smithy Mr. Hoon is interested in the oil business, owning 26 producing wells, on which he receives royalties.

WILLIAM E. SMITHSON, conspicuous among the citizens of Macksburg, Washington County, Ohio, has been in the employ of the Cleveland & Marietta Railroad Company for 34 years. He is a son of John and Jane (Campbell) Smithson, natives of England and Ireland, respectively, and was born in Aurelius township, Washington County, July 23, 1837.

The paternal grandfather of William E. Smithson was Thomas Smithson, who came from England to America during the early part of the 19th century, and was admitted to citizenship in the town of Butternuts, Otsego County, New York, February 9, 1814. In 1816 he removed from New York to Ohio, and settled immediately after his arrival in the latter State, in Aurelius township, Washington County, where he lived until his death. He was united in marriage with Rebecca Bennington and they reared a number of children.

The maternal grandparents of William E. Smithson were Richard and Martha (Reed) Campbell, both of whom were natives of Ireland. They came to the United States, however, and made their home in Salem township in 1816. A more extended record of their ancestry is given in the biography of R. C. Smithson, also in this volume.

William E. Smithson enlisted in the 77th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf. on November 14, 1861, soon after the call for volunteers in the early part of the Civil War. He rose to the rank of 2nd lieutenant, and after three years and two months of hard and courageous service, received an honorable discharge at Little Rock, Arkansas.

On January 7, 1864, Mr. Smithson was united in matrimony with Louisa C. Clark, a daughter of Andrew Clark, of Lowell, Washington County. Their union resulted in two children,—H. Jennie, the wife of J. T. Bennett; and John C. Mr. Smithson is a believer in the principles of the Republican party, and has served as mayor of Macksburg for four years, giving satisfaction to all and reflecting credit upon his executive ability and strength of character. Socially he is a member of the Masonic order, affiliating with Aurelius Lodge No. 108, F. & A. M., and American Union Chapter No. 1, R. A. M., of Marietta.

M. BROWNRIGG, who is one of the substantial citizens and leading farmers of Palmer township, Washington County, Ohio, was born at Olive Green, Noble County, Ohio. He is a son of William and Nancy (Norris) Brownrigg, and grandson of John W. and Matilda (Caldwell) Brownrigg, natives of Pennsylvania. Nancy (Norris) Brownrigg was a daughter of Samuel and Jane Norris, natives of Morgan and Jefferson counties, respectively.

Mr. Brownrigg is of English ancestry, his grandfather, John W. Brownrigg, having come from Northumberland, England in 1819, reaching America after a passage of 10 weeks and five days on the water. He came with his parents to Marietta, Ohio, and the family located in Morgan County (Noble County not being formed until 1852), on the headwaters of Olive Green Creek. The father of Lewis M. succeeded to the old homestead of 560 acres, and there his life closed. He was a man of substance and one who was universally respected. Unto him and his wife were born the following children: Emma; L. M.; Mary; Noble; Lillie; John W.; and May.

L. M. Brownrigg was afforded excellent educational advantages in his youth. He attended the Indiana Normal School at Valparaiso and later Professor Smith's private college at Beverly, Ohio. He is a man of scholarly tastes, and has enjoyed much travel, his pleasurable wanderings having taken him through 15 different States. He has taken part in many of the sports in vogue in the different localities visited. In Montana he has hunted buffalo, and in 1882 he saw there quantities of wild game and many Indians. His fine farm which is widely known as "Dunsmore" farm, consists of beautiful, rolling land, well-watered and perfectly adapted to the breeding of registered Hereford cattle. Mr. Brownrigg is engaged in general farming on this property of 230 acres, and is also interested in wool buying. He is especially interested in the breeding of fine cattle, and among his herd which are registered, are Grove, a Hereford bull, registered as number 70,379; Frith's Pride, also a registered bull; also cows which are full blooded Herefords, as follows: Empress; Cherry; Beachwood Lass; Actress; and several others. Upon these cattle have been bestowed some of the best premiums ever awarded in the State of Ohio.

On September 24, 1884, Mr. Brownrigg was united in marriage with Rilla Jennings, a daughter of George N. Jennings, of Noble County, Ohio. They have two daughters,—Mary Bernice, born May 24, 1888; and Lura M., born August 13, 1892. In religious faith Mr. Brownrigg is a Methodist. In politics the family have been Democratic for generations. In Masonry Mr. Brownrigg has attained high degrees and is well known in the order wherever he has visited.

DR. CHARLES B. BALLARD, a physician of Marietta, Ohio, was born in the western part of Washington County, Ohio, in 1861. He is a son of Z. B. and Mary Ann (Cole) Ballard.

Andrew Ballard, grandfather of the Doctor, was a farmer and died about 1868. He was an early settler of Belpre and resided on Major Rice's farm and cared for the major until that worthy gentleman's death. Later he moved to a farm in Decatur township, Washington County, where he resided until his death.

Z. B. Ballard was born in Vermont in 1811 and came to Ohio with his parents. His early boyhood was spent in Belpre, Ohio. After obtaining a common school education he clerked for a time for Dr. Gilbert in a general store. Subsequently he removed to Decatur township, where he taught school for several years. He then engaged in farming and merchandising, half a mile from Fillmore, Ohio, where he died May 16, 1878. In 1840 he married Mary Ann Cole, a native of Washington County, Ohio, and the following children were born to them, namely: George M., an attorney of Anderson, Indiana; Philip A., who lost his health in the Civil War, and subsequently died from the effects of his service in the army; Mary C. (Tebey), who died in 1897; W. W., who died in Washington County in 1872; Diantha L., wife of A. O. Frame, of Coolville, Ohio; and Charles B., the subject of this sketch.

Charles B. Ballard received his primary education in the country schools of his native county, after which he attended Purdue University and then taught school for some years before taking up the study of medicine. In March, 1889, he graduated from the Miami Medical College in Cincinnati, Ohio, receiving the degree of M. D. For the next 10 years he practiced in Belpre and in January, 1899, removed to Marietta, where he has since continued to reside, attending to a general practice.

The subject of this sketch was united in marriage October 6, 1891, with Bertha Glazier, a daughter of A. W. Glazier, a prominent and substantial citizen of Belpre, who represented this district in the State Senate in 1883-1884. Dr. Ballard and his wife live at No. 205 Scammel street. In politics the Doctor is a Republican. He is a member of the American Medical Association, the Ohio State Medical Society, the Washington County Medical Society, and the Marietta Medical Society. Religiously he is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

W. STURGISS, a prominent real estate and insurance man of Marietta, Ohio, with office at No. 115 Front street, was born at Ravenna, Ohio, May 29, 1840, and is a son of Rev. A. G. and Sabra L. (Miner) Sturgiss.

Rev. A. G. Sturgiss was born in Pennsylvania and at an early age located in Ashtabula County, Ohio, which was then but sparsely settled. He spent the most of his life as a Methodist minister, and was for years secretary of the Pittsburg Conference. The subject of this sketch is one of three sons, his two younger brothers being George C. and Alfred G. The former is a prominent lawyer of Morgantown, West Virginia, and is regent of the college there. He has the distinction of being one of the first superintendents of free schools in the State. Alfred G. is a druggist in Oakland, Maryland.

J. W. Sturgiss resided in Pennsylvania until 1861, when he enlisted as a private in Company G, 8th Reg. Pennsylvania Veteran Reserve Corps, one of the first organizations to enter the United States service after the first battle of Bull Run. He was in the Army of the Potomac, and served altogether four years and three months. During the first three months he was a private, and then was made a lieutenant. In the latter part of 1862 he was detailed in charge of a recruiting station at Little Washington, Pennsylvania, and was in command of his company in various engagements, including those of Antietam and South Mountain. In the latter part of 1862 he re-enlisted in Company G, 191st Reg. Pa. Veteran Volunteers, and was mustered out in the spring of 1865 at Harrisburg.

Mr. Sturgiss came to Marietta in December, 1865, and became identified with the firm of Bell, Morrison & Company, which afterward became J. C. Jamison & Company, and was engaged in the business of selling oil well supplies. The establishment was located on Greene street, opposite the National House, and continued until 1868 when it was closed. Mr. Sturgiss then embarked in the insurance business and later in the real estate business, and is now one of the firm of Roeser & Sturgiss. He represents various life, fire, accident, steam boiler and plate glass insurance companies, and has a well established business.

Mr. Sturgiss first married Mattie A. Beach, a daughter of Jesse Beach. She died in the early "seventies," leaving four children, namely: Charles E., who is in the insurance business; Dr. Fred G., of Lower Salem; Sarah A., wife of Charles E. Sayre, a druggist of Sharon, Pennsylvania; and Mattie B., wife of J. Leroy Cohagan, an insurance man of Marietta. During the war the subject of this sketch became acquainted with Louisa Gilmore, of Clifton Heights, Delaware County, Pennsylvania, who later became his second wife. They have a son, George, who is a clerk in the shoe store of W. A. Grimes. In politics J. W. Sturgiss is a Republican and has been re-elected clerk of Marietta township, an office which he has filled for about fifteen years. He is also clerk of the Board of Education of the township. For many years he has been secretary of American Union Lodge, No. 1, F. & A. M. He has been a member of the I. O. O. F. since 1861 and belongs to the K. of P. Religiously he is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in which he has been an official for 20 years. His residence is at No. 534 Fifth street.

JAMES COONEY, for many years a prominent and influential citizen of Washington County, Ohio, was the owner of the boat "Hubble," which plied between Marietta and Beverly and intermediate points. He was born in County Donegal, Ireland, in 1818, and was a son of Mark Cooney, who was a freeholder.

James Cooney assisted at farming and attended school until he was eighteen years of age. He showed a great aptitude for mathematics, which branch he studied at the neighboring coast town of Ballyshannon,—his intention being to become a surveyor. He was offered a position in the service of his father's landlord, Colonel Conly, M. P., but decided to come to America, being influenced in his decision by his brother, John, whom he joined in Canada, in 1837. He remained with him until 1840, and then came to Beverly, where he accepted a position on the Muskingum public works, which he held four years. He again went to Canada and taught school three years. Returning to Beverly in 1847, he was employed on public works until 1859. Until 1873 he clerked in stores and in the woolen factory, and owned a small clothing store. In that year, a company consisting of Thomas Clark, George Preston, George Worstell, and himself, built a boat for the trade between Marietta and Beverly and intermediate points. The boat was named "Hubble," in honor of J. H. Hubble, a gentleman who operated a sawmill on his farm, and had been particularly accommodating to them. In acknowledgement of the compliment, Mr. Hubble presented them with a $20 flag for the boat. Mr. Cooney acted as clerk on the boat until 1878, when he became its entire owner. It made convenient trips from one town to another, and was a great accommodation to the residents of the places where it stopped. Mr. Cooney continued as master of this boat many years, and had a very successful career. He enlisted as a private in the 18th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., under Capt. John Henderson, with which he continued until the expiration of his term of enlistment.

James Cooney was joined in marriage with

Ann Anderson April 8, 1848. She was born June 13, 1826, and was a daughter of James and Catherine (Hoglin) Anderson. Her father was Beverly's first mayor, defeating Col. Enoch McIntosh. He was a carpenter by trade, and built a number of the first houses erected in Beverly, some of which are still standing. Mr. and Mrs. Cooney became the parents of two children,—Mary Jane; and Belle Ann, who died October 11, 1900. James Cooney died September 2, 1894, and was buried at Beverly. He was a member of the Beverly Lodge of Odd Fellows. Politically, he was a Democrat.

Mary Jane Cooney, a daughter of James Cooney, was born in Beverly, April 4, 1850, and after completing her schooling was engaged as a teacher for five years, in and around Beverly, and at McConnelsville. She and her mother conducted a millinery and notion store in Beverly for two years, and in 1883, moved to the farm, where her mother died April 1, 1893, and was buried in Beverly. Miss Cooney has a farm of 78 acres in Waterford township, three miles north of Beverly, which was purchased by her grandfather, James Anderson. She is a member of the Christian Church.

DAVID S. MILNE, treasurer and manager of the Marietta Consolidated Gas Company, of Marietta, Ohio, is a rising young business man, who is capable of obtaining the best results possible in his present position, and possesses the confidence of the company in no small degree. The Marietta Gas Company, of which D. S. Milne was treasurer and manager, was consolidated in May, 1902, with the Marietta Fuel Gas Company, the resulting corporation being known as the Marietta Consolidated Gas Company. Natural gas is furnished for fuel and light. The president of this company is H. A. Jamieson, of Warren, Pennsylvania, and W. J. Cram, of Marietta, Ohio, is vice-president.

Mr. Milne was born in the State of New Jersey, and later moved to Hornellsville, New York. It was there that he first became identified with the gas business, to which he has given so much attention in his after life. For a time during his residence in New York he was associated with the Jamestown Gas plant and later was employed as superintendent in the building of several gas plants in that State, Pennsylvania and Ohio. He has made his home in Marietta since March, 1891, when he became interested in the gas plant there and for the past 12 years he has lived at the Bellevue Hotel.

In social circles Mr. Milne is a charter member of Lodge No. 477, B. P. O. E., of Marietta. He affiliates with the K. O. T. M., of New York State, and is a Mason of high degree, being a Knight Templar, a member of the commandery at Hornellsville, New York, and of the Syrian Shrine, of Cincinnati, Ohio. He is popular among his friends, and in business life and is rapidly mounting the ladder of success.

DON. DAVID ROBERT ROOD. Although Judge David R. Rood, of Marietta, is a native of McConnelsville, Morgan County, Ohio, where he was born February 23, 1847, this city claims him as one of her products, as his rearing and education were accomplished here. Here, also, he has made an enviable record both in professional and business life.

The Rood family is one held in honor and esteem in the New England States, and the name is frequently found among the prominent citizens of Massachusetts and Connecticut.

In the early summer of 1817 Judge Rood's great-grandfather, Elijah Rood, his wife, Martha (Stephens) Rood, a daughter, Thankful, two sons, Elijah and David, the latter's wife, Cyrena (Halstead) Rood, James, her oldest son, and Jadhah Scott, the husband of Thankful, came from the vicinity of Hornellsville, New York, and settled in Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio. Elijah and Martha (Stephens) Rood, their son, Elijah, Jadhah Scott, David and Cyrena (Halstead) Rood, and Richard H. Rood, died in Washington County. After her husband's death Thankful Scott moved to Dresden, Ohio, where she died at an advanced age. At one time David Rood and his family moved into Meigs County, where the grandfather operated a farm, and during this time and afterward took occasional trips to New Orleans. Later he returned to Washington County and died about 1835 on his farm on the Little Muskingum River, five miles from Marietta.

Richard H. Rood, the father of David R., was born November 2, 1817, probably prior to the removal of the family from Hornellsville, New York, to Washington County, Ohio. Richard adopted the trade of cabinet-maker, which he followed in McCommsville and later at Marietta. For a long period before his death, in April, 1873, he was one of this city's prominent carpenters and builders. At first he was a Whig, but in 1854 he became identified with the new Republican party. He married Mary A. Williams, a daughter of Robert Williams, who came to Washington County early in the 19th century and settled on Duck Creek, near Marietta. He engaged in farming and reared his family there. Mrs. Rood was born in February, 1820, and resides at Norwood, a suburb of Marietta. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Rood were as follows: David R.; John W.; Mary; Lydia C.; Martin M.; Hattie; and Dudley H. John W. resides in Illinois. Mary died in 1879 at Marietta. Lydia C. resides at Norwood (Marietta) with her mother. Martin M. died at Rushsylvania, Ohio, in January, 1894. He was educated at Marietta, graduated in medicine at Miami Medical College, and practiced successfully at Xenia, Kenton, Mount Cory and Rushsylvania, Ohio. His widow and seven children are residents of Chicago, Illinois. Hattie died in 1879, aged 19 years. Dudley H. lives in Chicago.

From his boyhood the city of Marietta has been the home of David R. Rood, and here he attended school until 1864, when, at the age of 16 years, he enlisted in Company L, 1st Reg., Ohio Vol. Cav. This company was made the escort of Gen. George H. Thomas, and Mr. Rood, despite his youth, was made an orderly and rode with many of the commanders of the armies of the Tennessee, Cumberland and Ohio. He was mustered out of service on September 26, 1865, having served nearly two years. Upon his return from this loyal service to his country, on October 5, 1865, Mr. Rood very sensibly resumed his studies and prepared himself for teaching. For thirteen years he followed this profession in Washington County. In the meantime he studied law and was admitted to the bar at Athens, Ohio, in May, 1877, beginning practice one year later at Belpre and Marietta. For the 15 years succeeding Judge Rood was occupied almost exclusively with a very successful practice, which he relinquished in 1893 when he was elected judge of the Probate Court, succeeding William H. Leeper. He continued in this office until February, 1900. During these years Judge Rood has given considerable attention to real estate, and at present is interested in manufacturing enterprises. He is a director, and also vice-president, of the Becker Lumber & Manufacturing Company, and is also interested in oil production in Washington County. He is at present identified with some of the leading industries of this city, and has been an important factor in their development.

In 1884 Judge Rood was married to Pissilla Hadley, a daughter of William Hadley, who was an early settler and leading farmer of Marietta township, where he died in 1889. A family of five children resulted from this union, viz.: Edna M., who is attending high school; Elmer H., who is taking an academic course; Ethel C. and Melville H., who are students; and Rowena C., who is still at home. In his fraternal associations Judge Rood is prominent and popular. Since 1868 he has been connected with the I. O. O. F., at Belpre and Marietta, and is now a member of Lodge No. 69, of Marietta. He first joined Lodge No. 319, of Belpre, where he filled all the chairs. He has filled all the chairs in Blennerhassett Lodge, No. 64, K. of P., of Belpre, and represented that lodge in the Grand Lodge of Ohio for two terms. He belongs to Buell Post, No. 178, G. A. R. In politics Judge Rood has always been an active Republican and an energetic political worker. He has been a delegate to many judicial, congressional and county conventions, and was elected alternate from this district in 1888 at the time of the nomination of the late President Harrison. He has taken a prominent part on his party's executive committees in this district. Judge Rood is now president of the Blennerhassett Building Company. For the past eight years he has been president of the Washington County Savings, Loan & Buildings Association, and together with its able Board of Directors has so managed its affairs that it is now one of the strongest and safest institutions of its kind in the country. It has never lost a cent for its members except from $200 to $300 in the recent cyclone. The association has recently purchased an elegant property in the heart of the city and will henceforth do business on its own premises. In religious belief, Judge Rood is a Baptist. He is well known and universally respected, his business and professional career having met with the commendation of his fellow citizens.

JOHAN A. LOVELL, one of the prominent oil producers of Washington County, Ohio, was born in Morgan County, Ohio, and is a son of John Lovell, of Massachusetts ancestry.

John Lovell, at the age of 76 years, is still an extensive farmer and prominent stockman in Morgan County. In politics he, with his son and grandsons, supports the Republican party.

For about twenty years John A. Lovell has been interested in oil as manager, superintendent, operator and owner. Earlier in his career he operated in the shallow oil fields in Morgan County, but since 1898 he has been engaged mainly in Wesley township, Washington County. He is associated with the Cumberland Oil Company and largely interested in the Southwestern Petroleum Company, of which he has been superintendent for several years. The president of this company is G. A. Foreman, of Buffalo, New York. Mr. Lovell has 41 wells on the Emma Bowman farm in Wesley township. His two sons are contractors for the same company, and attend to the drilling and other necessary contracting work. His long experience has made Mr. Lovell a very safe advisor in oil matters.

Mr. Lovell was married to a daughter of S. M. Hobson, cashier of the 1st National Bank, at Athens, Ohio. She was born in Wesley township, but was educated at Beverly, Ohio. Six children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Lovell, namely: Jessie; Annie; Paul and Earl, twins; Alice and Helen. Mr. and Mrs. Lovell belong to the Methodist Church. The pleasant family residence is at No. 607 Third street, Marietta.

CHARLES JONES, a Civil War veteran, and also proprietor of the flourishing dry goods establishment at No. 172 Front street, has been a resident of Marietta for 70 years, and is now living at No. 321 Fourth street. He was born in Montgomeryshire, North Wales, October 6, 1823, and is a son of Joseph and Jane (Evans) Jones.

Joseph Jones was born October 6, 1800. He came to America in 1832, bringing with him his wife and three children, and they settled at Cincinnati. Early in 1833, soon after the flood, they came to Marietta on the steamer "Grenadier," and here they afterward made their home. Mr. Jones died July 20, 1878, in his 78th year. On January 30, 1823, he married Jane Evans, who died in 1883, in her 84th year. By this marriage there were five children, of whom Charles was the eldest. Jane, now a resident of Toronto, Canada, married a Mr. Fisher, who is deceased. Thomas, who was born in North Wales February 13, 1827, and became a bricklayer and contractor, died at Helena, Arkansas, October 9, 1851. John M. died at Cleveland May 29, 1899, at the age of 66 years. Letetia, born July 21, 1836, married George H. Eells, a pension examiner, and they reside on Fourth street in Marietta.

Charles Jones received his early education in Wales and later attended school at Marietta for some time. At the early age of 12 years, on account of some financial reverses of his father, he was obliged to leave school and take up the trade of a bricklayer, which he afterward followed, often filling large contracts, until 1852. In that year he opened a dry goods and notion store on the site now occupied by Fred Wehr's grocery store, and here he continued business for many years. During this period he also conducted an auction room and was a licensed auctioneer for 25 years.

At the opening of the Civil War he enlisted for three years as 1st lieutenant, and first served with the 18th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf. He was afterward quartermaster in the 2nd Reg. W. Va. Cav. He remained as quartermaster in the regiment about one year. Mr. Jones was sworn into the service in this regiment as 1st lieutenant and quartermaster October 25, 1861, his commission being signed by F. H. Pierpont, Governor. In 1863, while stationed at Newbern, North Carolina, he procured a furlough. Soon after returning home, however, he received orders to act as quartermaster of the expedition sent to meet Morgan at Buffington's Island, the order being as follows:

Special Order No. 1.

HEADQUARTERS, CAMP MARIETTA.

The following companies now at camp are hereby detached under command of Capt. D. L. Wood, 18th U. S. Inf., and will put themselves in readiness to march: Marietta Artillery Co.—Lieut. Nye, commanding.

Vol. Mounted Company—Capt. Bloomfield, commanding.

Co. A, 128th O. V. I.—Capt. Steadman, commanding
Capt. J. P. Putnam's Company, Capt. Putnam, commanding.

Post Quartermaster Croxton will provide transportation and forage for five days with fifty horses. Post commissary R. B. Treat will turn over to Charles Jones (who will act as quartermaster of the detachment) 1,250 rations.

Surgeon S. D. Hart will be acting surgeon.

By order of

WM. R. PUTNAM,
Colonel Commanding.

In response to the above order Mr. Jones took the steamer, Starlight, from Blennerhassett's Island, and transported provisions to the forces sent against Morgan. On the return trip the Morgan prisoners were conveyed to Cincinnati. Upon the expiration of his furlough Mr. Jones returned to headquarters at Newbern, North Carolina, and shortly afterward was mustered out of service. Having made a splendid record he was soon offered a liberal salary (which he accepted) to assist Captain Noble, at Crab Orchard, Kentucky, in straightening out accounts, and turning over government supplies to Camp Nelson. After finishing this work he returned to Marietta and engaged as bookkeeper for J. S. Connelly, proprietor of the Phoenix Mills. In 1867 he returned to Marietta and purchased of Col. John C. Paxton, the dry goods store near the St. Cloud Hotel; where he continued business for some time. Later he moved to a large, two-story brick store at No. 172 Front street, where he has conducted business until the present time.

Mr. Jones married Amy Harris, who was born in Washington County and was a daughter of Russell Harris. After her death, which occurred in 1865, he married Josephine Thompson, of Wilmington, Delaware. By the first marriage there were five children, namely: Frank; Bertha; Thomas W.; an infant, deceased; and Mattie, who married a Mr. Dye, and resides in West Marietta.

Mr. Jones has long occupied a high social position in Marietta. For about 30 years he has belonged to the I. O. O. F.; and for about the same period to the American Union Lodge, No. 1, F. & A. M. Although his parents were Congregationalists, and both his wives Episcopalians, he is liberal in religious sentiment. Politically he votes with the Republicans.

EORGE B. EYSSEN. As traveling representative of the National Supply Company, and as a large investor in numerous other corporations, Mr. Eysen is exceedingly well known in and about Marietta. His success in conducting his various lines of business seems quite phenomenal, and the qualities which command it are undoubtedly inherited. Mr. Eysen was born on a farm in Noble County, Ohio, in 1861, and is a son of Charles and Nancy (Worstell) Eysen.

Charles Eyssen is a native of Germany. In early manhood, about 1858, he left his family and his country and set out alone for America. In Monroe County, near Stafford, Ohio, he married Nancy Worstell, and they had four children, namely: George B.; William P.; Lewis; and a daughter, who now resides at Caldwell, Ohio. Mr. Eyssen is the only one of his family who came to the United States. He has, however, a nephew who is in business in Guatemala, Central America, who has visited this country.

George B. Eyssen was reared on a farm in Noble County, Ohio. At the age of 18 years he began teaching school and followed this occupation for about 10 years. During the last four years of this period he taught at Macksburg. While here he became interested in the oil industry in the employ of Clark & McCormick, and later was with M. C. Geider, in Eureka, West Virginia. He continued in this line until 1895. At that time he entered the employ of the National Supply Company at Marietta, and soon afterward became their traveling representative. With shrewd business insight, he has never failed to invest his money where it would pay the largest dividends, and he now owns stock in the Delta Oil Company, the Alta Oil Company, the Leader Publishing Company, the Crystal Ice Company and the Acme Brick Company. He is also a director of the First National Bank, of Chester Hill, Ohio.

In 1900 Mr. Eyssen erected a handsome residence on Fairview Heights, one of the pleasantest sites in the city, and here he and his family reside. His wife was formerly Maria L. Williams, of Lebanon, Ohio. His children are Raymond C., Hirshell W., Timothy S. and an infant son.

Besides attending to his varied business interests Mr. Eyssen always finds time for public and social duties. Since 1897 he has served on the Board of Education, and is now filling his second term. As a Republican he exerts a large influence in local politics. Fraternally he belongs to American Union Lodge, No. 1, F. & A. M.; Lodge No. 366, K. of P., of Macksburg; Lodge No. 477, B. P. O. E., of Marietta; Marietta Council, No. 32, United Commercial Travelers; and Olive Lodge, No. 259, I. O. O. F., of Caldwell, Ohio. He is one of the most substantial members of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Marietta.

WILMER A. PATTERSON, secretary and treasurer of the Diamond Pants Company, of Marietta, and for several years auditor of Washington County, was born in Monroe County, Ohio, in 1859, and is a son of James and Sophia (Gray) Patterson. The mother has resided with her son since the death of her husband in 1893.

James Patterson, the father of Wilmer A., was born in Washington County, Pennsylvania, where his father had located on coming from Ireland. James was one of the younger members of the family, and was but a lad when it removed to Ohio. His business life began as a tanner at Woodsfield. During a part of the Civil War he was engaged as a coal operator in Washington County, Ohio, and also worked on steamboats plying on the rivers. In the coal business he was associated with W. F. Robertson, and with another partner at Coal Run. Later in life he engaged in mercantile pursuits at Coal Run and was located there at the time of his decease, in 1893, at the age of 60 years. Wilmer A. Patterson had a half-brother, J. D. Patterson, who is a resident of Lucas, Iowa.

Wilmer A. Patterson came with his parents to Washington County in 1862 and acquired his mental training here. Until he was 25 years of age he assisted his father in the management of his business. In 1885 he entered the county office as deputy to Auditor B. B. Stone, and served as such until 1894. In 1893 he was elected auditor and served most acceptably until 1900. On March 1, 1901, Mr. Patterson became identified with the Diamond Pants Company, and since then the business has very materially increased. This company was incorporated in 1900 with quarters at No. 209 Second street, Marietta, where two floors are occupied, in addition to the third floor at No. 207. The present officers of the company are: C. W. Otto, president; W. L. Neubeck, vice-president; W. A. Patterson, secretary and treasurer; and L. A. Pease, manager. The firm name was changed in 1902 to the Diamond Pants Company. This is an important Marietta business house. It requires 50 machines and from 50 to 60 employes, besides traveling salesmen, and the trade covers Eastern Ohio and a part of West Virginia.

Mr. Patterson may be called a wide-awake business man, one who is fully aware of the demands of the times and prepared to meet them. He is well and favorably known in Marietta and is a liberal supporter of the Methodist Church.

B. REGNIER, senior member of the jewelry firm of Regnier & Wittlig, at Marietta, bears a name which is indelibly associated with the early settlement of Washington County. He was born at Marietta and is a son of A. B. and Eunice (Anderson) Regnier, a grandson of Dr. Felix Regnier, and a great-grandson of Dr. Jean Baptiste Regnier, who was the founder of the family at Marietta.

As the name indicates, France was the original home of the Regnier family and in Paris, France, occurred the birth of Jean Baptiste Regnier, where his father followed the profession of "notaire," or writer for the law courts, while his thrifty mother conducted a small notion store, and possessed the grace and beauty of a typical French woman. She became the mother of seven sons and two daughters. Jean Baptiste bore the name of his father, whose ambition it was to make of his son an architect, and for this purpose affording him excellent opportunities for study. However, the young man's inclinations were in the direction of medicine, and he had attended preliminary lectures at the time when the struggles of the French Revolution began. The elder Regnier with his older sons adhered to the Loyalist cause, and trouble came when, in 1790, the young men were called upon to enroll themselves with the revolutionists. The father, in this dilemma, quickly collected all his means and arranged to send them as exiles out of their own country. Jean Baptiste, with his little brother, Modeste, the former but 20 years of age and the latter 14 years old, joined a company of emigrants who had purchased lands of Joel Barlow, and embarked for the United States, parting at the port of Havre, from their brothers, Francis and Benjamin, aged, respectively, 18 and 16 years, who sailed at the same time for the island of St. Domingo.

Early in 1790 the two brothers first named landed in the new country at Alexandria and on October 16, of the same year reached the lately founded city of Marietta, Ohio. A few days later they set out for their new possessions. They were provided with a year's provisions by the agent, Mr. Duer, in New York, and in their boats they proceeded to the assigned lands on the right bank of the Ohio at a point a little below the mouth of the Little Kanawha River, which was supposed to be the upper end of their purchase. Here the French refugees founded the city of Gallipolis, and here Jean Baptiste built for himself and brother during that first winter the only frame house in the place, the other dwellings all being made of logs. The strangers soon found that they could obtain no clear titles to this land, and the conditions were such that want began to stare the colony in the face. Young Jean decided to go with his brother to New York and in the last of February, 1792, they embarked in their pirogue, finally reached Pittsburg on the way, and in the course of time after many vicissitudes, appeared in New York. Finding here neither friends nor employment the two young men embarked on a vessel for Newfoundland, where they joined a French settlement.

In 1794, giving up all hope of returning to his beloved land, Jean Baptiste returned to New York and settled on the military tract on the Conesewata Creek, having been commissioned an agent to explore the land, then a wilderness, and to induce settlement and to sell to actual settlers only. Dr. Regnier at that time was the only white man within 40 miles of the territory who had any skill in medical science, and in attending to the sick and supplying the necessities of life at a general store, he found employment for his superabundant energy.

After his marriage in 1796 to Content Chamberlain, of Unadilla, New York, he studied medicine for a year with his friend, Dr. La Moine, who had located at Washington, Pennsylvania, and there spent the greater part of the year 1802. Returning then to Unadilla, where his wife and children remained, he decided to return to Ohio, and carried out this intention in 1803, landing at Marietta in that year. He settled on land on Duck Creek, which is now included in Fearing township, and entered upon the practice of his profession, making his visits on foot. In February, 1809, he felt justified in moving into Marietta, and there entered into a partnership with his brother Francis, who had reached there a short time before from St. Domingo. When his brother later removed to St. Genevieve, the Doctor purchased a drug store and added the sale of medicine to his other business. About 1814 he bought a square of city property which he gradually improved and sold it in 1819 purchasing 320 acres of government land on Duck Creek. In the next year he erected fine farm buildings and a large flouring mill. In 1818, Dr. Regnier was elected county commissioner and assisted in drafting the plans for the court house, which was erected after his death in 1882. Dr. Regnier was an original member of the first incorporated medical society in the State of Ohio, in 1812. This remarkable man, public-spirited citizen and noted physician, died from an attack of bilious fever in the winter of 1821.

Dr. Felix Regnier adopted his father's profession. He married Libbie Barber, a great-granddaughter of Colonel David Barber, who was the first Congressman to represent the Northwest Territory. His son, A. B. Regnier became the father of the second A. B., who is so well known in the jewelry trade in this city. A. B. Regnier, Sr., was a graduate of Marietta College and the time may be indicated by the fact that he was the first passenger to cross the railroad bridge erected between Harmar and Marietta. Later Mr. Regnier graduated from the Cincinnati Law School and practiced in that city for two years. Failing health induced him in 1864 to go to Illinois and finding the climate agreeable he remained there until 1882, when he removed to Lincoln, Nebraska, and remained there until his death, October 4, 1885. He married Eunice E., daughter of David B. Anderson, Sr., who in 1817 established the jewelry business at Marietta. His death occurred many years ago, the business being continued by his son, D. B. Anderson which, since his retirement in April, 1899, has been successfully carried on by his nephew, A. B. Regnier.

In 1879 A. B. Regnier began to learn the trade of jeweler and silversmith at Marietta, and has followed it in many States, including Illinois, Nebraska, Kansas, Texas, Pennsylvania and Ohio. In April, 1901, he formed a business partnership with H. T. Wittlig, and the business is in a prosperous condition. It is the oldest continuous business house in Marietta, and it is still conducted on the same honest lines and with the same upright methods which were introduced at its establishment. The junior partner has charge of the optical department, in which eyes are satisfactorily fitted with glasses. A finely-equipped repair shop has been added, while the jeweler stock includes gems of great value.

Mr. Regnier was married in Kansas to S. Theresa Vance, who was born in Wilton, Iowa, and the family home is in a pleasant part of Marietta. Regnier's religious views accord with the doctrine of the Episcopal Church. In fraternal association he belongs to the various Masonic bodies, the Elks and the A. O. U. W. As a business man Mr. Regnier is reliable and progressive and both he and his wife are prominent in social circles.

BEEBE L. VAN WINKLE, M. D., who has attained a high degree of success as a practitioner of medicine in Belpre, Ohio, is one of a family of eight children born to Louis G. and Elizabeth (Barrere) Van Winkle.

HIRAM HARDY LONGFELLOW.

Louis G. Van Winkle was born in Highland County, Ohio, where he followed the life of a prosperous farmer. He died in April, 1890, leaving his widow to survive him.

Dr. B. L. Van Winkle was born in Iowa, December 7, 1862, and was two years of age when his parents moved from there to Highland County, Ohio. He attended the public schools and later the high school, after which he pursued a course of study in the State Normal School, of Lebanon, Ohio. In the meantime, in 1885, he read medicine under his brother, who was a very prominent physician. He entered Miami Medical College, of Cincinnati, and was graduated from that institution in 1889, with the degree of M. D. He immediately thereafter began practice at Blanchester, Ohio, and in January, 1899, established himself in practice at Belpre. He has given his attention strictly to his practice, which is a large and remunerative one, and by the kind and careful treatment he accords every patient has won their lasting confidence and friendship.

December 18, 1895, Dr. Van Winkle was united in marriage with Dora Riley, a daughter of Charles B. Riley, of Blanchester. Religiously she is a member of the Universalist Church. The subject of this sketch is a strong supporter of the Republican party. He is a Mason and a Knight of Pythias. He belongs to the State Medical Society, the National Medical Association, and the Miami Valley Medical Association. His residence is on Main street, where he also maintains an office. He is a stockholder in the Belpre Building and Loan Association, of which he is also president, having been elected to that office in February, 1901.

HIRAM HARDY LONGFELLOW, a prominent farmer and oil producer, was born in Aurelius township, Washington County, Ohio, September 19, 1850. He is a son of Samuel and Catherine (Davidson) Longfellow, and grandson of Samuel and Lydia (Huntcon) Longfellow.

Samuel Longfellow, the grandfather of Hiram Hardy, was a native of Maine and followed the trade of a carpenter. He was one of the pioneers of Aurelius township, where he also followed farming in addition to his trade. Samuel Longfellow, his son, was born in 1833, and followed the trade of a cooper in connection with farming, until the Civil War. In 1864, he enlisted in the 77th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., and died of fever, at Little Rock, Arkansas, in 1865. He was married in 1852 to Catherine Davidson, a daughter of William Davidson. The latter was a native of County Durham, England, and in early life was a sailor. He gave up that life, and in 1853, settled in Aurelius township, Washington County, Ohio, taking up land from the government, in section 30. He was first married to Jane Richardson, and later to Harriet Coles. Samuel Longfellow and his wife had the following children: Agnes, wife of Gottlieb Augenstein; Clara, widow of Ephraim Wilson; Thomas; Hiram H.; and William H.

Hiram H. Longfellow was reared in Aurelius township and attended the common schools. Since attaining his majority, he has been engaged in the oil business as a driller, contractor and producer, and has attained a high degree of success. He is also engaged in farming in his native county.

In 1897, Mr. Longfellow married Harriet R. Woods, a daughter of Moses and Catherine (Wolfe) Woods, of Salem township, and they have one son, Forrest H. The subject of this sketch is a member of Palmer Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Lower Salem; and Macksburg Lodge, K. of P. In politics, he is a Republican.

RRANK T. MURPHY, mayor of Belpre, and a prominent real estate dealer of that city, was born March 7, 1848, in Ritchie County, West Virginia, and is a son of Purviance and Rachel (Butcher) Murphy.

Purviance Murphy, a son of William Murphy, was born and reared in West Virginia. He followed farming until his death, which occurred in 1865. He married Rachel Butcher, a daughter of Benjamin Butcher, and she died in 1898. To this union seven children were born, of whom three survive.

Frank T. Murphy received his educational training in the common schools, and was then engaged in agricultural pursuits for a number of years. He also has a thorough understanding of all the details of merchandising, having clerked five years in a general store. He was elected a justice of the peace in April, 1890, and has since continued in that capacity. When the town of Belpre was incorporated he was appointed mayor in January, 1902, and at the election which followed in April, 1902, he was elected to that office. He has taken a deep interest in all that pertains to the development of the town, and enjoys the confidence and esteem of its citizens. In connection with his official duties he conducts a general real estate business in a most successful manner.

Mr. Murphy was united in marriage with Maggie McLaughlin, a daughter of Isaac McLaughlin, of Fairfield township, November 4, 1878. They have no children. The subject of this sketch is a member of the Republican party, and he and his wife belong to the M. E. Church. Fraternally he is a member of the Senior Order of United American Mechanics.

MAGGIE GREENLEES, living on her fine farm in Palmer township, Washington County, Ohio, is a person of noble characteristics and a refined and highly cultivated woman. With the valued assistance of her nephew, Walter Greenlees, a son of Robert Greenlees, she is engaged in general farming and raises stock quite extensively.

Miss Greenlees is a daughter of Hugh and Ann Greenlees, and was born on the farm on which she now makes her home. Her parents came to the United States from Argyleshire, Scotland, in 1834, and located in Roxbury, now Palmer township. They made their home on what is still the old homestead, and the small house in which they lived is still standing and is put to good use. Hugh and Ann Greenlees were united in marriage by Rev. Archie Dunlap. The marriage was proclaimed March 21, 1817, by the Established Church of Scotland in Campbelltown, Scotland, and the ceremony was performed March 24, 1817, at her father's residence. Mrs. Greenlees united with this church at the early age of sixteen years. She was born January 1, 1800, and upon coming to the United States united with the Presbyterian Church. Later, until her death, she was devoted in her membership with the United Presbyterians. Although living in a free country, surrounded by many loved and dear friends, she always longed for her native Scotland. Mr. and Mrs. Greenlees were the parents of eleven children, namely: John, whose death took place May 13, 1847; Robert, who died March 3, 1901; Hugh, a resident of Barlow, Ohio; James, who died September 20, 1879; Jeannette, who lives in Belpre, Ohio; Ann, who died February 1, 1899; Katherine, the wife of Duncan Drain; Mary, who resides with her sister, Maggie; Nancy, now Mrs. Edward Breckenridge, of Waterford township; and Martha, who died June 19, 1870. The father of these children died March 9, 1863.

Maggie Greenlees taught school for twenty-five terms, eight of which were spent in one school house. She was accounted very successful in this work, and is able to continue it to-day if she desired to do so. Her farm consists of 210 acres of very profitable land, with good buildings, etc., and she oversees all the work connected with it. Quite a number of heirlooms and relics have come into the possession of Miss Greenlees, especially furniture, etc., belonging to Governor Meigs. A chair which is now in her possession was given by Gov. Meigs to Daphne Squires, in whose family she was a servant. At the time of her death she bequeathed it to Mrs. Ann McCuig, a lady who cared for her and who, in turn, willed it to her nephew, Walter Greenlees, thus bringing it into the home of Maggie Greenlees. A bureau and an office chair also belonging to the governor were given to Arthur Agin, who also left them with Miss Greenlees, and besides these she possesses the fire dogs, or andirons, and an enlarged picture of Gov. Jonathan Meigs. Other relics of the governor are now in the possession of Mrs. Arthur Pugh. In religious belief Miss Greenlees is of the Presbyterian faith, having united with the United Presbyterian Church in 1863. She is a woman of fine ability and enjoys the respect of all who know her.

M. HUTCHINSON, sole owner and proprietor of the large mercantile establishment formerly owned by S. Hutchinson & Son, has one of the largest stores in New Matamoras, Washington County, Ohio, and is himself one of the most enterprising and progressive citizens of that place. This business was inherited from his father, together with keen business sagacity. The foundation of the present establishment was laid by the elder Hutchinson as early as 1851. The business was prosperous, patronage increased, and when M. M. Hutchinson was of suitable age and had finished his education, he was admitted as a partner. Some years later the father retired and left the business to his son.

Mr. Hutchinson was born in Fairview, Guernsey County, Ohio, January 7, 1847, and is a son of Samuel and Jane (Morton) Hutchinson. Samuel Hutchinson was a man of prominence in his day. He was born in Harrison County, Ohio, September 14, 1820, and died in 1894. In 1851 he located in New Matamoras, where he engaged in the general merchandise business, above mentioned. He was a very successful merchant and catered to the needs of the general public with alacrity. In politics he was a Republican and served in 1856 as representative of his county in the State Legislature. He possessed the confidence of the people in his community to a large degree and served as mayor and as justice of the peace. His wife was a Pennsylvanian by birth. They reared seven children, namely: A. W.; M. M.; William; Elizabeth; E. B.; J. W. and Mary.

M. M. Hutchinson attended the public schools of New Matamoras, after which he took a complete business course in Duff's Business College at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and subsequently embarked in the business which has engaged his attention ever since. He makes practical application of the most approved and progressive of the present-day methods, and his success is even greater than he anticipated. He carries a complete line of general merchandise. His marriage with Harriet Graham, a popular young lady of the "Keystone State," took place in November, 1891. Like his father he is a staunch Republican, but does not allow politics to interfere with business.

F. TURNER, a popular young agriculturist of Barlow township, is a native of Washington County, Ohio, and was born in the village of Barlow in 1863. He is a son of Daniel and Catherine (McVicar) Turner, both of whom, like so many of the early settlers of that section, were natives of Scotland. Daniel Turner, the father, located at Barlow in 1851, where for many years he followed the trade of blacksmith and machinist. He still resides in Barlow, and is seventy-five years old. Argyleshire, Scotland, was his native place.

D. F. Turner's mother passed to the life beyond the grave in 1875, at the age of thirty-nine years. She left but two children—D. F.; and Mollie, now Mrs. Lasure, of Belpre.

Mr. Turner was reared and schooled in his native place, where he remained until 1888. At that time he was joined in marriage with Ella Flenning, a daughter of Thomas Fleming, also of Barlow township. Two sons bless this union—Arthur F., who was born in October, 1890; and Wilbur D., who was born in February, 1900.

Soon after marriage Mr. Turner moved to his present farm, which contains 133 acres, and was known in the early history of the country as the Nathan Henry farm, Mr. Henry having been an early resident of the township. This farm is highly cultivated and well improved and has a comfortable residence with plenty of good outbuildings, barns, etc.

Mr. Turner makes a specialty of mixed farming and his efforts have been crowned with success. In politics, like many of his neighbors, he is a Republican. In their religious inclinations the family favor the Presbyterian Church.

WILLIAM W. FINCH, a prominent farmer residing in Barlow township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Warren township in the same county, January 1, 1830 and is a son of Calvin and Sarah (Harris) Finch.

Calvin Finch was born in New York State October 6, 1806, and is a son of Ezekiel and Sarah (Tom) Finch, who came to Washington County in 1806, their son Calvin being born on the way. They came by flatboat from Pittsburgh to Marietta, and spent the winter of 1806-1807 on Bailey's Island, near Gravel Bank. They then located in Warren township, where they lived the remainder of their lives. Ezekiel Finch died November 25, 1848, at the age of seventy-nine years, and was buried at Gravel Bank. His wife, who was born November 28, 1773, died March 3, 1864, at the age of ninety-one years. They reared ten children, as follows: Morris, who served in the war of 1812; Lewis; Harris H.; Reuben; Samantha; Calvin; Darius; Sarah; Charles; and Alfred William. The Sword of Morris is still in the possession of his family.

During early life Calvin Finch was engaged in traveling and after his marriage located near Moore's Junction on a farm, where he owned and operated an extensive grindstone quarry. For over forty years he did business with the firm of Bosworth, Wells & Company. He was a Whig and Republican in politics and at different times was called upon to fill many minor offices. He married Sarah Harris, who died July 27, 1893, at the age of eighty-three years. He died on July 23, 1882. To them were born the following children: William W.; Lewis J.; Myra; Reuben L.; Sarah E.; and Daniel W. Lewis

J., a farmer of Warren township, married Lucy Skipton, by whom he has the following children, Carrie (Dotson), Annie (Devol), and Bernice. Reuben L. died in infancy. Sarah E., deceased, was the wife of J. C. DuVal. Henry C., a farmer of Ojata, North Dakota, married Sarah Thompson, and has four children, namely: Harry B., Clifford E., Winifred E. and Gerald T. Daniel W., who resides at Wayne, West Virginia, first married Mrs. Dr. Berry, nee Lummie Core, and they have had two children, Edith and Tillie. His wife and children died and he formed a union with a Mrs Bell.

Myra Finch, above mentioned, married Amos Dunham Hollister, who was born in Belpre township, Washington County, and is a son of Alfred G. and Julia (Delano) Hollister, the latter being a native of Washington County. Alfred G. Hollister was born in Sharon, Connecticut, in 1804, and came to Washington County in 1816, with his father, Ashel Hollister. He was a carpenter by trade, taught school, and was a justice of the peace in Dunham township for many years. He died in 1881. Amos Dunham Hollister was named for Amos Dunham, the first settler of Dunham township. He enlisted June 20, 1861, in the 22d Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., and on July 31, of the same year, re-enlisted for a term of three years, in Company K, 39th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf. On January 1, 1864, he re-enlisted for a second term of three years and was discharged August 9, 1865, at Louisville. He served in the 15th, 16th and 17th army corps, and participated in twenty-eight skirmishes and battles. Upon one occasion he was quite seriously wounded and was in the general hospital at Parkersburg for six months. After the war he taught school to some extent, and located in Illinois for one year, was in Kansas in 1868, and then returned to Washington County, Ohio, where he now lives.

William W. Finch spent his early years in Warren township, but for many years has farmed in Barlow township. He is a man of good business ability, and has been very successful in his pursuits. He is public spirited and evinces a deep interest in all matters pertaining to the welfare of the community. He married Eliza Jones, who was born in Barlow township, and is a daughter of John Jones. They have five children, as follows: William E.; Charles E.; John C.; Alonzo Pardon; and Edward E. William E., of Marietta, married Hattie Sutton, by whom he has two children, Lida M. and Hattie M. Charles E., who conducts a store in Fleming, Ohio, married Mary Shaw, and they have seven children, namely: Hazel; John Carlisle; Harley; Janet; Charles Curtis; Gladys; and Fergus. John C. is deceased. Alonzo Pardon, of Fairview Heights, Marietta, married Sarah Hanna, and has had three children—Freddie, deceased, Clarence and Mildred. Edward E., who is general passenger agent of the M. C. & C. Railway, married Charlotte Trachel, and resides at Marietta.

GEORGE H. LORD, for many years a genial conductor on the Marietta & Cincinnati Railroad, and one of the substantial citizens of Marietta, was born in New York State, and moved with his parents to Vermont when about four years of age.

Mr. Lord lived in Vermont until he attained the age of 20 years, and at that time began his railroad career, working first on the old Boston & Portland Railroad as brakeman. His service in this position was so satisfactory that he was promoted to the position of conductor in 1848. He ran a train on that road for eight years, and then left the employ of that company and engaged with the Ohio & Sandusky Railroad Company, running a train there for a year, when he went to Marietta, and served as conductor on the C. & M. Railroad. He also ran a passenger engine on that road until 1891, and then retired. In a period of 46 years' service he never had an accident in which a man was killed, and he, during that time, never received a permanent injury. By his judicious investment and business sagacity Mr. Lord has accumulated considerable property. He now resides at his comfortable home at No. 232 Fifth street, where he has lived since 1884. He has been numbered among the citizens of Marietta since 1857.

Mr. Lord has been twice married. His first union was with Caroline Hobbs, of Wells, Maine, whose death he was called upon to mourn in 1861. She left two sons, namely: William and Thomas. William lives in Marietta; he graduated from Marietta College, and is now a conductor in the passenger service of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railroad Company. He has recently erected a fine house at No. 423 Fifth street. Thomas died while living in the West. He was in the employ of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway Company, and always performed his duties to the satisfaction of all concerned.

The subject of this sketch chose for his second wife Mary F. Newton, a sister of Stephen Newton, who is well known in Marietta. They have one daughter, Mrs. Blanche N. Misener, of Niagara Falls, Ontario. The family are consistent members of the Congregational Church.

Politically Mr. Lord is a Republican, and is active in his partisanship. In fraternal circles he was formerly the owner of a policy of insurance in the O. R. C.

MRS. WILLIAM C. SMITH, a highly respected lady residing in Decatur township, Washington County, Ohio, in the vicinity of Cutler, is almost an octogenarian, having been born January 15, 1825. Mrs. Smith, whose maiden name was Phoebe Lee, is a native of Belmont County, Ohio, a daughter of Jonathan and Ruth (Wade) Lee, and granddaughter of Daniel Lee, a sturdy Pennsylvanian. Her father was a native of Bucks County, Pennsylvania, and her mother was born in North Carolina. On May 15, 1851, the subject of this sketch was united in the holy bonds of matrimony with William C. Smith, also a Pennsylvanian by birth. He was born September 17, 1825, and after a useful life died November 11, 1896. Soon after his marriage he moved to Washington County, Ohio, where the remainder of his life was spent.

Mrs. Smith is one of a large family of children. Her twin sister, Margaret, died in infancy. The other members of the family are: Abdon; Sarah W.; Samuel; Ellis; Edwin; Ethan; Jonathan; Wesley; and Lydia. Abdon Lee was born June 27, 1821, and was twice married. His first union was contracted with Margaret G. Adams. After a brief married life she died, December 28, 1849. She was preceded to the grave by a little daughter, Mary Ann, who passed to her rest December 20, 1849, when only a few days old. In 1853 Mr. Lee married again, being united this time with Frances T. Morland, who bore him five children, as follows: Abi Ann; Jonathan H. E.; Martha Roxana; Lydia E.; and Theodore G. Abi Ann was born September 11, 1854, and on January 6, 1871, she married Lee Chambers. Mrs. Chambers died March 11, 1893, leaving five children, two of whom died, and three live in South Dakota. Jonathan H. E. was born December 8, 1856, and died unmarried February 9, 1882. Martha Roxana was born July 28, 1861, and on March 27, 1892, she wedded Benjamin F. Gill, who died May 3, 1893. Lydia E. was born August 23, 1862, and on December 24, 1891, she was united in marriage with Marion G. Woodruff. Their union resulted in four children, namely: Sylvia, born December 5, 1892; Ivy, born November 5, 1895; Silas Rodney, born November 1, 1897, and Andrew Smith, born February 11, 1899. Theodore G. is mentioned at the close of this sketch.

Sarah W. Lee, the eldest sister of Mrs. Smith, was born July 25, 1822. In October, 1841, she was joined in marriage with Isaac C. Kille, who was born March 8, 1808, and is now in his ninety-fourth year. Mr. and Mrs. Kille reside in Athens County, Ohio, and are the parents of thirteen children, as follows: William; Thomas; Jonathan Lee; Mary; Ruth; Hannah; John Clayton; Elizabeth; Phoebe; Rachel; Charles; Edward and James W. William was born July 7, 1842, and died in 1866; Thomas, who was born in October, 1843, died in 1898. He married Ora Johnson and they have four children. Jonathan Lee, who was born in 1845, married and has a family of three children. Mary was born February 25, 1847, and resides in Athens County, still unmarried; Ruth, who was born in 1849, married J. C. Pettit; Hannah, who was born March 15, 1851, married Leander Parker, and with their three children, reside in Denver, Colorado; John Clayton was born in 1853, and is still a bachelor; Elizabeth, who was born in 1855, is now Mrs. John Weir; Phoebe, who was born in 1857, is married and has two children; Rachel, who was born in 1859, married Reuben White, of Athens County, Ohio, and has five children; Charles, who was born in 1861, married Alpha Arnold, who died October 1, 1900, leaving four children: Edward was born in 1863 and is united in marriage with Mary Funk, of Athens County; and James W., who was born in 1868.

Samuel Lee, Mrs. Smith's second oldest brother, was born June 17, 1829. In 1854 he was united in marriage with Nancy Miller, who was born in 1831 and they reared a family of nine children, as follows: Jefferson; Viola; Vesta Ann; Charles E.; Alfred A.; Bertha I.; Ira O.; Mary E.; and Ruth. Jefferson is deceased; Viola was twice married. Her first union was with Joseph Selby, by whom she had three children. Her second marriage was contracted with Emmanuel Russell, by whom she had one child, Carroll Russell. Vesta Ann was born in 1876. Charles E. Ruth was born November 29, 1875, and on November 22, 1896, she was united in matrimony with Waldo D. Root, who was born August 11, 1869. Two children blessed their union.—Ralph Emerson, born March 27, 1807, and Ernest Lee, born January 16, 1899. Mr. and Mrs. Root own a small farm and carry on general farming.

Ellis Lee, another brother of Mrs. Smith, was born in April, 1831. He wedded Catherine McQuade and they have had five children, namely: Charles; Viola; William; Joseph; and one that died in infancy. The remaining brothers of Mrs. Smith, Edwin, Ethan, Jonathan and Wesley, were born respectively, in 1832, 1834, 1836 and 1838. Edwin married Roxy Gearhart in 1866. Lydia E. Lee, the youngest sister of Mrs. Smith, was born in 1812. Mrs. Smith has no children of her own, but has one adopted child, before mentioned.

THEODORE G. LEE, the adopted son of Mrs. William Smith, also bears the relation of nephew to that lady. Mr. Lee was born June 8, 1867, and is the youngest child in a family of five children born to Abdon and Frances T. (Morland) Lee, a brief sketch of whose lives is given above. Mr. Lee is unmarried and resides with his adopted mother, whose wishes are law to him, and whom he delights to honor. He superintends the farm and everything on the place shows the effect of his care and thoughtfulness. He is well-known throughout the community and has hosts of friends, who wish him continued success and prosperity.

THOMAS FLEMING, a prosperous farmer of Barlow township, Washington County, Ohio, was born March 15, 1836, on his present farm near the town of Fleming, and is a son of James and Margaret (Breckenridge) Fleming.

James Fleming was born near Glasgow, Scotland, and was a son of John Fleming. His brothers and sisters were as follows: John C.; William; Robert H.; David F.; Isabel; Agnes; and Margaret. John Fleming moved with his family to Washington County, Ohio, in 1821, and resided at Constitution. They intended moving to Cincinnati, but instead, in the spring of 1822, went to Barlow township and located near Fleming Postoffice, on a farm now owned by William Fleming, a son of David F. Fleming, above named. The grandparents of Thomas Fleming, with other deceased members of the family, lie buried in the private cemetery on this farm. David F. Fleming was born September 20, 1811, and died in 1808. He married Sophia Bell in 1833, and she died in 1880, at the age of seventy-three years. Eight children were born to them, as follows: Jane and Margaret, deceased; John F., of McConnellsville, Ohio; David H., who died at Chicago, in April, 1901; James, of Cincinnati, Ohio; Hannah S. (Greenlees); William, who married Anna M. McKay, and has one child, Leila M., born in 1895; and Emma J. (Hollingsworth), of Bartlett, Ohio.

James Fleming, father of Thomas Fleming, died in 1847, at the age of fifty-nine years. He married Margaret Breckenridge, who died in 1889, at the age of eighty years. To them were born seven children, as follows: John C.; Thomas; Sarah J.; J. H.; R. H.; Jane; and Margaret. John C. resides at Chicago and for more than forty years was an engineer on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago Railroad. Sarah J. lives in Van Wert County, Ohio. J. H. was killed in the battle of Shiloh. R. H. served in the Union army and was wounded at the battle of Shiloh. Later he was taken prisoner and for thirteen months was incarcerated in Tyler, Texas. At the close of the war he located in Ludlow, Kenton County, Kentucky, of which city he is mayor. He is also a state senator, being the first Republican ever elected to represent that county, in which he received a majority of 1,600 votes. Jane, who is deceased, was married at Des Moines, Iowa, to Robert Cavet, who is also deceased. Margaret resides at Van Wert, Ohio, with her sister. The three sisters, Jane, Margaret and Sarah J., were engaged in the millinery and dress making business at Des Moines for several years, and the two surviving are comfortably located in Van Wert at the present time.

Thomas Fleming has spent his entire life on his present farm. He has 230 acres of well improved land, and is engaged extensively in stock raising. On this property he erected a store building, which he rents to Mr. E. Starr, who is now postmaster, an office which Mr. Fleming held for many years. Mr. Fleming has also served four and a half years as county commissioner, his last term having expired in January, 1891. He has been a member of the Barlow Fair Board for several years and was one of the organizers of that exhibit. He served on the Marietta County Fair Board in the same capacity.

On April 8, 1858, when twenty-two years of age, Mr. Fleming was married to Margaret Breckenridge, who was born in Fairfield township, and was a daughter of John Breckenridge. She died May 2, 1902, having given birth to seven children, namely: Ella Jane, wife of Daniel F. Turner, a record of whose life appears elsewhere in this work; James H.; who married Miss Beach, and resides on a part of his father's farm, which he recently purchased; E. A., an extensive railroad contractor and superintendent of steam-shovel work, who travels extensively for a company which operates a number of steam shovels; Charles E., who is in the lumber business at Petroleum, West Virginia; Hattie; Margaret (Smith), of Dunham township; and Dora. The subject of this sketch is a Republican in politics. His wife was a Presbyterian in religious belief.

MARTHA RILEY. This lady is an esteemed resident of Marietta township, and is living on the old Riley homestead, which is owned by herself and brothers, John and Warren Riley, and Mrs. Adeline Gasline.

Her father, William Riley, was born in 1811, and died in 1888. He was born and reared on the farm on which Martha Riley now lives, near the mouth of the Muskingum River. He married Julia Ann Moats, of Virginia, who died in 1889. Their living children are as follows: Martha; John; Warren, a physician, who lives in the State of Washington; and Mrs. Adeline Gasline, who is a widow, with her daughter, lives on the old homestead. Emma died April 1, 1880, aged 26 years.

The Riley farm consists of 62 acres of land, on which are five oil wells, which produce 60 barrels of oil per month. These wells are kept in constant operation, and are of considerable profit to the owners. Miss Riley is well known in the township, and is a woman of many good qualities. A kind and sympathetic neighbor, she is highly spoken of, and her friends are many.

RICHARD J. ALCOCK, a successful farmer living in Marietta township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in 1834, on the farm where he now lives. He is a son of Thomas Alcock, and grandson of William Alcock.

William Alcock died about one year after coming to this country. He was a native of England, as was also Thomas Alcock. Thomas Alcock was born in Chester, England, February 26, 1782, and came to this country with his father in 1797. Thomas Alcock settled at the mouth of the Little Muskingum River, and at the time of his death, which occurred May 11, 1860, he owned 240 acres of land, on which he had first settled. This property was then divided among his six children, who were as follows: Thomas; Robert; Mary Ann; Sallie; Richard J.; and Nancy. Thomas, Robert and Mary Ann are deceased. Mary Ann left three children—Thomas, Horatio and Benjamin. Sallie married Dr. Frank Hart, of Marietta. Nancy married Dwight Hollister, and is living in California.

Richard J. Alcock, whose name heads this biography, married Cynthia Middlewest, a daughter of Jonathan Middlewest, of Washington County, Ohio, who was a farmer. They have had three children—Nettie E., Robert and Guy. Nettie E. married Samuel McCary, a farmer of Marietta township, and has two children—Granville, aged eighteen years, and Kennet, aged fourteen years. Robert, a workman in the Ohio oil fields, married Mary Rowland, daughter of George Rowland, and has one child—Annie V.—fourteen years old. Guy, who is living at home with his father, married Carrie Ladd, a daughter of S. Ladd, who is living on a nearby farm. Mrs. Alcock died in December, 1884.

Mr. Alcock carries on general farming and is highly successful. He is thoroughly posted on farming matters and his advice is often sought on important subjects in that line. He is well known in the community in which he resides.

JOHAN L. JORDAN is the present efficient superintendent of the Washington County Children's Home. He is a native of Noble County, Ohio, where he was born February 21, 1850.

His early life was spent on a farm and his experiences were such as came to most country boys of his neighborhood. His parents, John A. and Nancy (Gorby) Jordan, were people of sterling qualities, although in humble circumstances. They reared a family of three sons and four daughters.

Mr. Jordan's early opportunities for education were meagre. He attended the district schools in winter and afterward supplemented this by a few terms at the Normal school at Lebanon, Ohio.

When twenty years of age, he began teaching, and continued in that work with marked success for almost twenty-three years. He holds a life certificate to teach in Ohio. He served as school examiner for Washington County for three terms, and in this capacity made many friends, and showed rare ability and judgment. While engaged in teaching, he was always active in local and county institute work for the general betterment of teachers. In the winter of 1903-1904, his health failed while he was serving as principal of the Harmar schools. He took a leave of absence to recuperate, but in the meantime was tendered and accepted the superintendence of the Children's Home and did not return again to the schoolroom.

Mr. Jordan was married in 1871 to Hannah F. Foreman, a daughter of the late Jacob Foreman, of Noble County. They have one daughter, who is the wife of William M. Sprague, of Marietta.

Mr. Jordan is a prominent and popular Mason, being a past master of Lowell Lodge, and past high priest of American Union Chapter, Royal Arch Masons. He is a Knight Templar, being a sir knight of Marietta Commandery. He is also an Odd Fellow, being a past grand of Harmar lodge. In religion, he is a Congregationalist, and in politics, a Democrat. Mr. Jordan and his wife are well qualified for their present position, and the Children's Home is always found in excellent condition under their management. Mr. Jordan recently built a handsome residence in Marietta at No. 603 Third street, which is occupied by his daughter and her husband.

DUDLEY T. HARTSON, a substantial farmer, is a highly respected citizen of Barlow township, Washington County, Ohio. He was born in 1838 in Waterford township, in the same county which is still his home, and is a son of Darius and Elizabeth R. (Bowers) Hartson.

Darius Hartson was a native of Chittenden County, Vermont, and in 1814 located in Marietta, which was his home until 1832. His Vermont home was about eight miles from Lake Champlain, and previous to removing to Ohio he was a soldier in the war of 1812. He was a tanner and shoemaker by trade and conducted a shop at Marietta until 1832, when he removed to Waterford township. He afterward moved to Barlow township, but was dissatisfied and a little later returned to Waterford township, where he lived for the three following years, during which period Dudley T. Hartson was born.

The elder Hartson again returned to Barlow township, where he purchased a farm, the larger portion of which is now owned by the subject of this biography. Upon this farm the father was actively engaged in tilling the soil until the time of his death, January 10, 1864, at the age of eighty-two years. He was survived about ten years by his widow, who died in December, 1874. Eleven children were born to them, all of whom are deceased except Dudley T. and Mary M., who resides in Vincent, Ohio.

Dudley T. Hartson was practically reared and schooled in Barlow township, which has been his home since boyhood. He was joined in marriage with Julia Wyatt, who was born April 10, 1845, and is a daughter of George Wyatt, an honored resident of Athens County, Ohio. Mr. Hartson has a valuable farm containing 93 acres, which is highly productive and well stocked, and upon which he has made many improvements. Some time ago a cave of considerable size was discovered upon his place, which from appearances was used by a prehistoric race. It contained ashes, numerous specimens of stone, arrow heads and many other interesting relics.

Politically Mr. Hartson is a Republican, having cast his first vote for Abraham Lincoln. Many years ago he united with the Good Templars and Grangers. On the subject of religion he entertains broad, liberal ideas, and although a member of no church, he is a good, Christian gentleman, and contributes generously towards the support of all denominations. Mr. Hartson served five years as a member of the Ohio National Guard, and at the expiration of his term he was honorably discharged.

 H A R L E S S. H O L L I S T E R, a prosperous farmer of Marietta township, Washington County, Ohio, was born on his present farm, June 4, 1829, and is a son of Sereno and Mary A. (Ryan) Hollister, a grandson of Roger and Hannah (Stratton) Hollister, and a great-grandson of Elisha Hollister.

Elisha Hollister was born in Glastonbury, Connecticut, in 1722, and was a farmer and innkeeper. He was a captain in the militia, and a representative of his town in the legislature of 1764. His wife, Penelope, was one of the most remarkable women of her time. She was very intellectual and it is said to have been considered by the people that she was better qualified to represent Glastonbury than any two men in town. She entertained General Washington and many officers of the Revolutionary War, and during that memorable struggle, opened her home as an asylum to the wounded soldiers. She was a woman of benevolent and charitable disposition, and was greatly beloved.

Sereno Hollister was born in East Glastonbury, Connecticut, August 10, 1797, and left there in 1819, to settle in Marietta, Ohio, where he lived until his death, September 2, 1880. February 22, 1823, he married Mary A. Ryan, who was born in Cork, Ireland, June 27, 1799, and died June 30, 1837. They had the following children: Dwight, who was born September 27, 1824, and on December 8, 1857, married Nannie H. Alcock; Charles S., the subject of this biography; Almira, who married C. P. Wilson, a Methodist minister, who is permanently located at Pomona, California, and have a daughter, Mira Wilson, who married a Dr. Robinson, of Flagstaff, Arizona; James, who died in infancy; and George, deceased. Mr. Hollister formed a second union, November 4, 1838, with Cynthia A. Brooks, who was born in Athens County, Ohio, September 22, 1811, and died December 23, 1848. To this union were born three children, namely: Mary, Elizabeth R. and Harriet. Mary, who was born at Marietta, Ohio, August 17, 1839, married Albert Dorman on June 16, 1860. He died in 1863, and she went to California where she married a Mr. Spencer, now deceased. By her first marriage she had two children,—Charles and Eliza. Eliza married Clayton Scribner, and lives at Bakersfield, California. Elizabeth R. was born in Marietta, Ohio, November 28, 1842, married Hamilton Middleswart, who was a captain of the 92nd Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf. during the Civil War, and had two children,—Eleanor and Charles. Harriet, born in Marietta, Ohio, April 26, 1846, married David Smith, a soldier in the 148th Reg. Ohio National Guard, and had three children,—May, Blanche and Roena.

Charles S. Hollister lives seven miles above Marietta on the banks of the Ohio River. He has always followed agricultural pursuits, and has attained a high degree of success. He was a sergeant major in the 148th Reg., Ohio National Guard, in 1864, and was with Grant, before Petersburg.

Mr. Hollister married Lorilla Stacy, November 7, 1867. She was born February 16, 1846, and is a daughter of Aurelius and Sarah M. Stacy. This union resulted in the following issue: Mary E., born October 16, 1868; Nannie, born November 12, 1870; Dwight, born February 4, 1873; and Herbert A., born June 24, 1882. The subject of this sketch is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and is a Republican in politics. Religiously Mrs. Hollister is a member of the Baptist Church.

ROBERT BENTON ALCOCK. This gentleman is a well-known farmer, of Marietta township, Washington County, Ohio. He was born at Reno, on the Alcock homestead, December 3, 1861, and is a son of R. J. and Cynthia Alcock.

He attended the primary schools of Marietta township, and grew up on his father's farm. He was married March 11, 1886, to Mary C. Rowland, a daughter of George W. and Salina Rowland.

Mrs. Alcock's grandfather, William Rowland, was born at Hagerstown, Maryland, January 21, 1790, and when he was very young, his parents moved to Pittsburg. There he married Ann E. Clark, of Putnam County, West Virginia, and they settled in Newport township, on the Ohio River, where they farmed. They reared eight children, namely: Eliza J.; William; Thomas; Charles; Lewis; Virginia; George W.; and Rufus. Eliza J. married William Thorniley, in March, 1834, and they reared four children,—Minerva, Reynolds, Alice, and N. N. William was born in 1821, and died in 1865. Thomas was born in 1823 and is a farmer living on the old homestead. Charles was born in 1827. Lewis was born June 29, 1829, and died in October, 1890. Virginia born January 18, 1833, married J. B. Hovey on October 9, 1849. Rufus was born April 12, 1842.

George W. Rowland was born September

25, 1836, and reared in Newport township. He married Salina A. Corner, a daughter of Henry W. and Lucinda Corner, who was born February 27, 1838, in Morgan County, Ohio. They reared four children, namely: Mary C., the wife of Mr. Alcock; Alvin C., born December 18, 1869; Harry Clayton, born June 13, 1872; and Perley Clark, born February 18, 1876.

Mr. and Mrs. Alcock have one child,—Anna Virginia,—who was born April 4, 1887, and is attending the Marietta township high school. Mr. Alcock's farm, which consists of 27½ acres, is located near Sand Hill, in Marietta township. On this farm are two oil wells, which produce about ten barrels of oil per day. Mr. Alcock is much interested in oil production, and is fortunate in having such wells on his farm.

Politically, the subject of this sketch is a Democrat. The family attend the Methodist Church. Mr. Alcock is a prominent worker in township affairs, and is widely known in this section as a man of much enterprise and ability.

WILLIAM F. LEIBRAND, a progressive young farmer of Barlow township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Watertown township, of the same county. He is a son of F. G. and Elizabeth (Wagner) Leibrand, both of whom are still living and are highly respected residents of Vincent, Ohio, having moved to Barlow township eight years ago.

F. G. Leibrand was born in Wurtemberg, Germany, in 1841, and was brought to this country by his parents when he was but six years old. His father, Godfrey Leibrand, settled in Watertown township on a farm. The ancestral homestead is still in the possession of the family, being now owned by Henry Leibrand, uncle of William F. Godfrey Leibrand lived to an advanced age and left several children. Among them are F. G.; Henry; Christian; and three daughters, all of whom are residents of Washington County.

William F. Leibrand is one of five children. The others are Henry; Lewis A.; Amelia, who married Charles Hoffee and Lizzie, who is still at home. Mr. Leibrand attended the East Watertown schools, and remained at home with his parents until 1887, when he entered the employ of S. W. Harvey, of Barlow township. In 1890 he wedded Lucy L. Dunsmoor, a daughter of Perley and Susan (Milligan) Dunsmoor. Mrs. Leibrand's grandparents were natives of Scotland, and she was born on the same farm now occupied by the subject of this sketch, upon which the young people settled soon after their marriage. They have one son, Chester A., born in 1892.

The farm upon which Mr. and Mrs. Leibrand live is one of the best improved and best stocked in the vicinity. Through diligent attention to business and good management Mr. Leibrand has been most successful, and is now in good circumstances. In politics he is a Republican and is serving as supervisor of Barlow township. He carries insurance in the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company.

JOSEPH ALBERT DUTTON, a prominent oil producer of Macksburg, Washington County, Ohio, was born on the old Dutton homestead in Aurelius township, of that county, September 1, 1853, and is a son of William R. and Mary Ann (Gevrez) Dutton. He is a grandson of James and Barbara (Raley) Dutton, and great-grandson of Joseph and Amy (Childreth) Dutton.

Joseph Dutton came with his family from Loudoun County, Virginia, to Aurelius township, Washington County, in 1806, being accompanied by his father, James Dutton, who died here. His marriage with Amy Childreth resulted in the following offspring: Polly, wife of Daniel Davis; Susan, wife of William Pennwell; Jane, wife of William True; Betsey, wife of William Garrett; and James.

James Dutton was born in Loudoun County, Virginia, in 1800, and came to Aurelius township with his parents in 1806, where he followed the vocation of a farmer. On his farm he bored the first oil well struck in Washington County, in 1861. It had a capacity of 130 barrels per day, and was operated with a hand pump. He married Barbara Raley, who was born in New York State, and was a daughter of William and Sarah (Chamberlin) Raley, of Aurelius township, and they had the following children: William R.; Rasselas; and Adeline, who married John Smithson, Jr.

William R. Dutton was born on the old homestead, November 10, 1830, where he has always resided and has been engaged in farming and oil producing. On June 25, 1849, he married Mary A. Gevrez, who is of French ancestry, and is a daughter of Thomas and Felecity Gevrez. She bore him fourteen children, nine of whom grew to maturity, namely: James; Joseph A.; Rasselas; Frederick, deceased; William; Charles G.; Hanson; Julius; and Felicity, widow of Peter Pekar.

Joseph A. Dutton was reared in Aurelius township, and received a limited education in the common schools. In 1870, at the age of seventeen years, he was employed by his grandfather in taking timber from the woods to the mill, and from the mill to the railroad, for use in the construction of six miles of the C., M. & P. Railroad. In 1872, he entered the oil fields as a pumper on his father's farm. In 1874, he went to the Bradford oil field in Pennsylvania, where he was employed by the day as driller, for two years. In 1876, he returned to the Macksburg oil field, where he was employed one year as driller for George Rice. He was next a contractor for the Macksburg Oil Company for three years, and then a contractor and driller on his own account for three years. From 1882 to 1883, he was in the employ of the Union Oil Company, in Washington (Pennsylvania) oil field. In 1883, he was engaged in contracting in Guernsey County; and in 1884 became a stockholder in the Cambridge Light & Fuel Company. He continued in the employ of that company seven years when the plant was sold. In 1892 he embarked in business for himself in the Macksburg oil field, in which he has since operated successfully, and now owns fifteen producing wells.

October 2, 1873, Mr. Dutton was united in marriage with Sarah A. Ogle, a daughter of William and Maria (Hale) Ogle, of Aurelius township. They have five children, namely: Esther A., wife of Charles Percy; Charles R., Emma B., wife of Jason McCleary; Benjamin R. and Harry G. The subject of this sketch is a member of Macksburg Lodge, No. 308, A. F. & A. M.; and Cambridge Lodge, No. 448, B. P. O. E. In politics he is a Republican.

ALLEN NICKERSON, a prosperous farmer residing in Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Noble County, Ohio, in 1840, and is a son of Joseph and Mary (Jordan) Nickerson.

Joseph Nickerson was born at Cape Cod, Massachusetts, in 1816, and in 1818, accompanied his parents to Hoskinsville, Noble County, Ohio, a town on which a raid was made during the Civil War. His trade was that of a shoemaker, but he is now living in retirement on a farm in Center township, Morgan County, Ohio. He is a Republican, in politics, and was the second assessor of Noble County. He married Mary Jordan, who was born in Noble County, in 1813, and was a daughter of Adam and Annie (Maple) Jordan. She died in 1852, having given birth to the following children: Annie, who married Thomas P. Clogston, of Marion, Iowa; Allen; and Eliza, Amanda, Cyrus, and Hugh, deceased.

At an early age, Allen Nickerson engaged in shoemaking, a trade which he had learned from his father. In 1862, he enlisted at Beverly, in Company H, 92nd Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., and participated in numerous engagements. In 1863, he was transferred to the Veteran Reserve Corps, which was first stationed in Syracuse, New York, later in Buffalo, and then, in Chicago. He was mustered out at Springfield, Illinois, in July, 1865. He is now a member of Dick Cheatham Post, G. A. R., of Beverly. After the war, he was engaged in merchandizing at Luke Chute, for 17 years, and then moved to his present farm, where he has since resided.

January 24, 1861, Mr. Nickerson was joined in matrimony with Dorinda Swift, who was born on the place where she now resides, in 1840, and is a daughter of Charles Swift, Jr., born in Washington County, Ohio, in 1807. Charles Swift, father of Charles Swift, Jr., was born in Vermont, came to Washington County in 1799, and died in 1855. Charles Swift, Jr., died in 1873, having followed farming all his life. He was a Republican, in politics, and served as justice of the peace for more than 25 years. His wife was Amy Andrews, a daughter of Philander and Annie Andrews. She was born in New York State, in 1811, and died in Washington County, Ohio, in January, 1895. Mrs. Swift had a twin sister, Mrs. Pedee Evans, who died the same day. Mr. and Mrs. Swift had six children, namely: Susannah, who died in 1897, and was the wife of L. J. Coburn; William, deceased; Dorinda, wife of Mr. Nickerson; Lydia, wife of John D. Palmer, of California; Samuel, who lives at Swifts, Ohio; and James, who died in January, 1862.

Mr. and Mrs. Nickerson reside on the old Swift homestead, purchased by her grandfather, Charles Swift, of the Ohio Company. They are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The subject of this sketch is a member of Beverly Lodge, and of Beverly Encampment, I. O. O. F.

MARTIN V. SUTER is a successful business man of New Matamoras, Washington County, Ohio, where he owns a fine store most completely stocked with general merchandise. He has carried on business there but a few years, but has a well established patronage among the most prominent and well-to-do citizens of the place.

Mr. Suter was born April 29, 1863, and is a son of Jacob and Martha (Monroe) Suter. His maternal ancestors were among the pioneer settlers of Monroe County, Ohio, where he and his parents were born. His mother was a daughter of Miller Monroe. She was born in 1834, and passed to her final rest July 20, 1901.

Jacob Suter, who followed agricultural pursuits during his active life was born during the same year as was his wife and died in 1876. He was a Republican, in politics. He and his wife reared eight children, namely: John D.; Alonzo M.; Albert A.; Solomon B.; Martin V.; James M.; Allison B.; and Helen J.

Martin V. Suter attended the public schools of his native county, and after his school days, followed river life until 1892, in the capacity of a clerk, and otherwise. In 1898, he located in New Matamoras and opened a general merchandise store. On September 20, 1883, he was joined in wedlock with Lizzie Hall, who was born in Jefferson County, Ohio, May 3, 1861.

Mrs. Suter is a daughter of Ira and Prudence (Sanders) Hall. Ira Hall was born in Belmont County, Ohio, and his wife was born in Pennsylvania. They reared six children, viz.: Mary, now Mrs. White; Emma; Lizzie; James S.; Eva G.; and Lula.

Mr. and Mrs. Suter have a family of four children, namely: Wylie, born September 4, 1885; Otto G., born February 15, 1891; Ira, born April 3, 1892; and Martin, born December 21, 1894. The family attend divine worship at the Methodist Episcopal Church. Politically, Mr. Suter is a Prohibitionist. He is a valued member of Matamoras Lodge, No. 374, F. & A. M.; Fairview Lodge, Knights of Pythias; and American Union Chapter, No. 1, R. A. M., of Marietta, Ohio.

NICHOLAS BOHL, a wealthy, up-to-date agriculturist, of Watertown township, Washington County, Ohio, owns a fine farm of 114 acres of land, about three miles northeast of the city of Watertown. He is a native of Bavaria, Germany, where he was born May 14, 1816. His father and mother were Conrad and Margaret (Smith) Bohl, the former born in the year 1791, and the latter in 1789. Both are deceased, the father having departed this life in 1873, and the mother in 1861. They and their family of six children came from Germany to the United States in 1834 and settled in Salem township, Washington County, on their arrival in Ohio. The father was largely engaged in farming. He was a Democrat in politics, and both parents were members of the German Lutheran Church.

The names of the children were as follows: Elizabeth, wife of Oliver Nelson, both of whom are deceased; Nicholas, the subject of this sketch; Barbara, the widow of Henry Barnburg, who was a Methodist minister; Philip and Conrad, deceased; and John.

John Bohl is a prominent physician and surgeon, of Watertown, where he has been in practice for 50 years. He was well educated, and is a graduate of the College of Medicine and Surgery at Cincinnati, Ohio, in the class of 1859. He chose Watertown as his first field of practice, and has never left it. He has the entire confidence and respect of all its citizens, and is a skillful man in medical affairs.

He was united in marriage with Elizabeth Wehl, a daughter of Cliffus and Margaret Wehl and a native of Bavaria, born in 1817. She died in 1895, leaving her husband three children, namely: Elizabeth, who married Dr. J. A. Reynolds, and lives in Waterville, Minnesota; Jacob, a physician, of Marietta, Ohio; and John, also a physician, who died in 1900.

Nicholas Bohl came with his parents to the United States, in 1834, and located in Salem township. He has always been a farmer by vocation, and the farm on which he now makes his home is in the names of Katharine and Margaret, his daughters. Mr. Bohl was united in matrimony with Mary E. Gaddel, born in Germany in 1826. She was the mother of eight children, as follows: Philip; John, who died in infancy; Conrad; Mary; Katharine; Margaret; Nicholas; and Jacob, who died, aged 30 years, five months and six days. Margaret and Katharine reside on the home farm; Nicholas and Philip are both living in the State of Nebraska; and Mary, the fourth child, became the wife of Jared I. Budd, and now lives at Beckett's station. The mother died March 8, 1897.

The parents were always members of the German Lutheran Church. Politically the subject of this sketch is a Democrat, and votes a straight ticket. Throughout his long career as farmer and citizen, Mr. Bohl has proved himself fully capable in either capacity, and he enjoys the respect and confidence of all.

DR. CHARLES M. HUMSTON, deceased, late physician and surgeon of Beverly, Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, ranked high in the esteem of his fellow citizens, and was a son of Charles Humston, also an expert and skillful physician and surgeon.

Charles M. Humston had very good educational advantages, and after pursuing a course in medicine, graduated from Louisville Medical College, making a specialty of surgery. He located in Waterford township in 1876, making Beverly his home and practicing there until his death. He was always thorough in the performance of his duties, and was highly esteemed by all who knew him. He was a member of the State Medical Society, the Washington County Medical Society, and the Medical Society of the United States.

Charles M. Humston was a native of Port Royal Kentucky, where his birth took place August 21, 1848. Like his father, choosing the profession of medicine, he applied himself diligently to study, and became a physician and surgeon. He was educated at Cecelian College, at Elizabethtown, Kentucky, and studied medicine in 1870 and 1871, with Dr. Joseph Foreman, at Port Royal. He entered the University of Louisville in 1871, graduated in 1874, and was for six months assistant to Prof. Yannel, of that college. His first practice was at Morocco, Indiana, from 1873 to 1876. May 31, 1876, he was united in marriage with Jessie Fearing McIntosh, a native of Beverly, and a daughter of William and Eliza M. (Fearing) McIntosh.

This union was blessed with two children, namely: Shepard McIntosh, whose birth took place in Beverly, June 28, 1879, where he now lives, and is widely known and honored as an industrious and upright citizen; and William F., born November 15, 1881, in Beverly, where he also resides. On June 18, 1902, Shepard McIntosh Humston was united in marriage to Sue Page, a native of Guyandotte, West Virginia, and a daughter of J. H. Page, of Beverly, Ohio.

The subject of this sketch departed this life November 6, 1887. His wife survived him until May 5, 1895, when she too, left her earthly home. Dr. Humston was mourned by all as a good, conscientious citizen, and a kind friend and neighbor. Politically, he was a Republican of decided opinions and did all in his power to advance the interests of his party. Religiously, he was a Baptist.

THE DANA FAMILY. The Danas, of Waterford township, Washington County, Ohio, are descended from Richard Dana, a French Protestant, who, on the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes, fled to England. In 1640 he came to America, and settled at Cambridge, Massachusetts, where he and his sons and grandsons possessed goodly properties and held various offices in the government of the town. He was born in 1612, and died April 2, 1690.

A great-grandson of Richard Dana, John Winchester Dana, married Hannah Pope, daughter of Gen. Israel Putnam, October 26, 1764, and after living in Connecticut, finally settled at Pomfret, Vermont. His son, Benjamin, was born in 1770, and died July 22, 1838. Together with a cousin, Israel Putnam, Benjamin Dana made the journey from Brooklyn, Connecticut, to Marietta, Ohio, by horse and boat, in 1794. After several months spent in Belpre, Mr. Dana obtained a grant of 100 acres in Waterford, on January 19, 1795. He bought many other tracts of land, until his farm comprised between 2,000 and 3,000 acres, and in 1818, he completed his dwelling-house. April 17, 1795, he married Sarah Shaw, of Waterford, who was born June 20, 1779, and died August 22, 1844. Their children were as follows: Mary, born May 22, 1799, who married Benjamin Putnam, August 14, 1821, and died December 14, 1822; Eliza, born January 31, 1802, who married Henry Fearing, February 12, 1824, and died January 13, 1842; Eunice, born August 9, 1804, who died, unmarried, May 4, 1839; Hannah Putnam, born May 4, 1806, who married Joseph Chambers, December 15, 1825, and died July 11, 1827; Charlotte, born November 23, 1807, who married John Allen, M. D., April 15, 1835, and died November 4, 1839; Caroline, born September 26, 1813, who married Edward Dawes, M. D., June 22, 1837, and died February 22, 1897; and John Winchester, the youngest but one of this family, who was born January 13, 1811, and died August 20, 1849. John Winchester Dana inherited his father's landed property. On December 22, 1836, he married Sally McFarland Devol, of Hockingport, Ohio, who was born in 1812, and died May 9, 1862. She had four daughters, two of whom died in infancy. The third, Sarah Mariette, born September 16, 1841, married John H. Hubbell, of Boston, Massachusetts, June 10, 1867, and died September 22, 1894, leaving a son and daughter. Caroline Winchester Dana, born October 13, 1843, the last of the children of Benjamin and Sarah (Shaw) Dana, spends a part of each year at the old home.

AMUEL J. BOGARD, one of the leading citizens of Washington County, Ohio, was born in Newport township, in 1866, and is a son of Isaiah and Mary (Kiggins) Bogard.

Isaiah Bogard, the father of Samuel J., was born in Pennsylvania, in 1822. He came to Washington County in 1861, and settled in Newport township, where he engaged in farming. He became a valued and useful citizen, and was elected trustee of the township, and, in 1898, at the age of 67 years, passed from this life. In politics, he was identified with the Democratic party. He liberally contributed to the Methodist Church, of which he was a leading member. His wife was born in Wheeling, West Virginia, and died in 1892, at the age of 56 years. She was a consistent member of the Methodist Church. These parents reared a family of 10 children, as follows: Lydia, who resides at Bill's Run; Mary, who married Theodore Richtmeier, and resides in Marietta, Ohio; Callie, who married Hamilton Poole, and lives at Sistersville, West Virginia; John, who is a resident of Yankee-burg, Ohio; William, who makes his home in Lowell, Ohio; Samuel J., who is the subject of this sketch; James, who lives at Yankee-burg; Albert, who resides at Newell Run; Hannah, who married Harry Locke, and lives at Newell Run; and Dennis, who lives at the same place.

Mr. Bogard was reared and schooled in Newport township. For the past 14 years his home has been in Lowell, and he also owns a fine farm of 110 acres just north of the village. For about 12 years Mr. Bogard has been interested in oil operating, and is an oil contractor in the Cat's Creek district. He is a man of business ability, and a stockholder in the First National Bank of Lowell.

In 1888 Mr. Bogard was married to Armenia V. Wood, a daughter of Jay and Martha (Campbell) Wood. Mrs. Bogard was born in Adams township, Washington County, in 1870. Four children have been born to this union, viz.: Clyde; Earl; Blanche and Hattie. Fraternally Mr. Bogard is a member of the Lowell Lodge of Knights of Pythias. In political connection, he is a Democrat. Mr. Bogard is an active and progressive business man, who is awake to the demands of the time, and is always interested in movements looking to the improvement of his locality. For the past eight years he has served on the school board, and his judgment is considered of great value in this connection. He is well known and highly esteemed.

SAMUEL J. McELHOSE, an efficient blacksmith of the town of Beverly, Washington County, Ohio is a practical horseshoer and an expert in his line of work. He claims Windsor township, Morgan County, as his native place, and his birth dates back to 1863. His parents are Archibald and Matilda (Wallace) McElhose, the former of Pennsylvania, and the latter of Windsor township. The father is over sixty years of age and resides at Roxbury, Morgan County, Ohio. All his life he has been a carpenter, and he is an able workman. He is a member of the Christian Church, and socially affiliates with Stockport Lodge, K. of P. In political opinions he is a member of the Republican party.

Mr. McElhose married Matilda Wallace, a daughter of James and Samantha Wallace, born in 1844, in Morgan County, Ohio. They had the following children, namely: Samantha, who became the wife of Bell Scott, and lives in Stockport, Ohio; Nannie, the widow of James Anderson, of Silver City, Iowa; Samuel J., the subject of this biography; Elizabeth, who lives with her husband, Edward Adran, in Morgan County; Charles, living in West Virginia; Bertha, who married George Savage, of Stockport, Ohio; Roxana, the wife of Peter Brannen, of Stockport; Ella (Phelps), who lives in Iowa; and George, of Beverly, Ohio. During the Civil war the father of these children enlisted and saw hard service, for two years and three months, in the 63rd Reg., Ohio Vol. Infantry.

The subject of this sketch chose Linnie Travis, a daughter of Asa and Mary Travis, for his wife, and they were married in 1884. She was born in Washington County, in 1870, they have had five children, namely: Jennison, born in 1886; Charles, born in 1888; Kay, born in 1896; Jeannette, born in 1899; and Francis L., born in 1902. The beloved wife joined the M. E. Church several years ago, and the family unite in worshipping with her.

In politics Mr. McElhose is a Democrat, of value to his party. He owns about eighty acres of fine land east of Beverly, and sees that it is cultivated to the best of his ability. He is prospering in his business, and is one of the foremost citizens of Waterford.

JOHN PLUMLY, a farmer and stock dealer, near Little Hocking, Belpre township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in January, 1840, and is a son of Jonathan S. and Rebecca (Nicholson) Plumly, natives of Pennsylvania, and a grandson of William Plumly, who was also born in Pennsylvania. The last named gentleman was a farmer by vocation; he went to Ohio, where he settled comfortably in Belmont County, and there lived until his demise.

Jonathan S. Plumly went from Belmont County, when a young man, and located in, or near, Little Hocking. On his land purchased there all his active days were spent in agricultural pursuits. His death took place at the age of 84 years. He chose for his wife Rebecca Nicholson, and they reared eight children, as follows: Jacob N.; William; Clarkson; Peasley; Jane; John; Osborn; and Hannah. The mother of these children has been dead for a number of years. In their religious faith the family are Friends.

John Plumly obtained all the education that could be gained from the common schools of Washington County, Ohio, by diligence and perseverance on his part, and afterward took a course in the high school at Guysville, Ohio. He subsequently purchased the farm which he now owns and has been mainly engaged in the raising of live stock, grain and wool. Since reaching manhood's estate he has carried on this business quite successfully. His farm contains about 400 acres of the best kind of land. The sheep which he raises for their wool are of the best varieties.

In 1878 Mr. Plumly was united in matrimony with Imogene Clifton, a daughter of James Clifton, and a native of Wheeling, West Virginia. They have no children. Mr. Plumley is a Quaker, but as there is no church of that denomination in his vicinity he attends divine worship at the Universalist Church.

In political opinions Mr. Plumley is a Republican, and is a valued member of his party. He has held the offices of assessor and trustee, in which he served with credit to himself.

WILLIAM BIEDEL, a model farmer, living five miles south of Beverly, on his productive and highly cultivated acres, was born October 12, 1858, in Watertown township, and is a son of Jacob and Catherine (Grasley) Biedel.

Jacob Biedel, who was born July 23, 1833, enlisted in Company B, 77th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., in 1861. He was taken sick and died September 5, 1863, at Pine Bluff, Arkansas. He lies buried near where he died. Catherine (Grasley) Biedel was born February 14, 1839. At the time of her husband's death she had three children, namely: William, the subject of this sketch; Jacob, born September 17, 1860; and John, born March 14, 1862. She married Philip Bohl July 30, 1864. From this union there were three children, namely: Henry, Philip and Lizzie. Philip Bohl died April 7, 1872, leaving her a widow, a second time, at the age of 33 years. She never married again, and is still living on the farm owned by her last husband.

William Biedel, after completing a common school education, taught for several terms, and then graduated from the Zanesville Business College, in 1881. From 1882 to 1884, he spent his time as salesman, bookkeeper, etc., but, tiring of the routine duties of office work he returned to his old home. From 1884 to 1888, he was principal of the Watertown schools. After marrying in 1888, he settled on a farm, but spent several succeeding winters in teaching in his own district. In 1897 he dropped teaching to give closer attention to the many problems that modern agriculture and stock breeding and feeding present to the live, up-to-date farmer. Mr. Biedel looks upon his farm as a manufactory, of several departments, producing, in direct ratio to the intensity of the work bestowed, beef, pork, mutton, wool, eggs, etc., and the many other things that must receive attention in mixed farming.

The subject of this sketch chose for his wife, Lillian M. Deming, daughter of William H. and Mary Blair (Park) Deming, granddaughter of David Deming, and great-granddaughter of Col. Simeon Deming, of note in Revolutionary history.

Col. Simeon Deming was born in Sandisfield, Berkshire County, Massachusetts, and with his son, David, left his native State in the fall of 1796, and traveled to the Northwest Territory. In company with two others, he opened the first wagon road west from Marietta. He was a Revolutionary soldier in a company of Massachusetts volunteers, and at one time was led into an ambuscade of Tories and Indians, where Colonel Brown and others met their death. He was commissioned by Governor Hancock, of Massachusetts, and Governor Sargent, of the Northwest Territory, and was the oldest settler at that time in the Territory. He was a talented musician, and took delight in the display of this accomplishment.

William H. Deming, the grandson of Colonel Deming, and the father of Mrs. Biedel, was born in Watertown township, July 15, 1819 and departed this life December 12, 1882. He married Mary Blair Park, a daughter of Robert Blair and Catherine Peck (Ford) Park. She was born in 1826, on the farm now occupied by William Biedel. She is now 76 years old, and is living on the old Deming farm. She and her husband had two children,—David M. of Watertown township; and Lillian M. Mr. Biedel's wife. William H. Deming was three times married. By the first union he had one child, William W., who resides near Norristown, Illinois. By the second union, he had one child, Hiram Burch, who died in infancy.

Lillian M. (Deming) Biedel was born December 27, 1863, and was united in marriage with William Biedel, April 19, 1888. They have three children, namely: Clara F., born April 15, 1889; Grace M., born July 14, 1891; and Herbert W., born August 17, 1895. Mrs. Biedel is a devoted member of the Presbyterian Church, while her husband is a member of the German Lutheran Church. In politics Mr. Biedel is a Democrat, faithful to the interests of his party and township, and at one time served as assessor. At present he fills the position of secretary of the Watertown Farmers' Mutual Insurance Company. His farm consists of 132 acres of land, and he enjoys the work it brings him, to the fullest extent.

WILLARD H. DAVIS, the subject of this sketch, is a son of Willard and Caroline (Shepard) Davis, and grandson of Capt. William Davis.

The family trace their ancestry to William Davis, of Roxbury, Massachusetts, who lived there in 1642. Capt. Daniel Davis, the great-grandfather, was one of the 48 who came to Marietta in April, 1788. He went back to Connecticut for his family, and returned in 1789, to Washington County, Ohio.

Capt. William Davis, grandfather of Willard H., was a native of Killingly, Connecticut, and traveled westward, with his parents, to Washington County, Ohio, in November, 1789, making his home, at first, in Watertown township. There Capt. Daniel Davis and his eldest sons participated in the perils of Indian warfare and frontier life, until 1794, after Wayne's great victory in the Northwest Territory. After these dangers and hardships were over, he settled down to a somewhat retired and quiet life, and aided much in establishing civil institutions in Ohio. On the close of the Indian War, in 1795, Capt. William Davis settled in Adams township. His first wife was Drucilla Olney, whom he married November 18, 1794. She was born April 20, 1771, in Nova Scotia, and died, August 21, 1824. On December 2, 1824, he married Mrs. Sarah Ransom, whose maiden name was Wright. She was born March 8, 1789, in England, and died May 29, 1878, in Lowell, Ohio. Captain Davis died March 18, 1843.

Willard H. Davis was born March 5, 1806, on the farm in Adams township, first occupied by his father. He was a farmer by vocation, and was also very fond of hunting and many a deer fell before his sure aim. In 1830, he purchased 100 acres of land near the homestead farm, and soon had the reputation of being prosperous in his undertakings. At the death of his father, he purchased the old homestead farm. On May 24, 1827, he married Caroline E. Shepard, a daughter of Jacob and Sarah Shepard. Caroline E. (Shepard) Davis was born November 27, 1811, and was a native of Tompkins County, New York. She came to Ohio in 1813, and died September 11, 1894. Her husband's death took place August 8, 1866. He was a Republican in politics, and served his township as trustee, and member of the School Board, for many years, with credit to himself and satisfaction to all. He and his wife had five children, as follows: Elizabeth, the wife of George Snyder, who was born October 12, 1829, and lives on the old homestead, in Adams township; Walter, born August 8, 1832, deceased in 1891; Luman, born May 24, 1837, deceased August 6, 1841; Willard H., born August 7, 1843; and Mary C., born November 23, 1847, deceased December 11, 1876. Mary C. married Dr. George W. Reed, who served with valor in the Civil War, in the 4th Reg., West Virginia Vol. Cav., and also in the 148th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf. (Ohio National Guard). He spent one year in the drug business, in Lowell, Ohio, and was afterward, in company with Willard H. Davis, in the same business, at Harmar, for about two years. He graduated from the Miami Medical College, of Cincinnati, Ohio, March, 1873, and began his practice as a physician, in Lowell. He died in 1894, at Columbus, Ohio.

The subject of this sketch was born August 7, 1843, in Adams township, and has followed various pursuits during the years that followed. In the autumn of 1869, he was, for a short time, engaged in the drug business in partnership with his brother-in-law, at Har-mar, Ohio. In 1871 he located in Lowell, intending to pursue the occupation of a photographer. This project was also abandoned after some time, but he has been busy nevertheless, in various other occupations. He is the owner of 100 acres of valuable land in Adams township, as well as desirable property in Lowell. He has aesthetic tastes, and has many interesting relics, especially those pertaining to the Mound-Builders, and has also been very much interested in genealogical research.

Mr. Davis has never married. He is a Republican in politics, and has served as township treasurer. In Lowell, where he lives, he has served on the school board, and has also been village clerk. He has been a notary public more than 20 years.

JOSEPH COX, a courteous and estimable citizen of Lowell, Washington County, Ohio, is well-known throughout Adams township, and accounted among its first-class citizens. He was born in 1820, and is a native of Marshall County, West Virginia. His parents were George N. and Martha Cox.

George N. Cox was a native of Pennsylvania, and was born May 15, 1787. During the year 1816 he removed from his native State to Virginia, where he resided until 1838, the date of his removal to Ohio and his settlement in Washington County. For some years he lived in Aurelius township, but afterward made his home in Salem township for a short time. Still later, he went to Adams township, where he remained until 1879, the year of his death. He and his beloved wife reared eleven children, as follows: Jane A.; James F.; Sam N.; William F.; Ben M., and Joseph, twins; George W.; John F.; Charles; Margaret, and Edwin R. Jane, George and Charles are deceased.

Joseph Cox learned the trade of a tinner, and at the age of 24 years, went to Adams township, Washington County, and followed his trade for ten years. At the end of that time he made his home in Lowell, and while still a resident of that city embarked in mercantile pursuits. In which he continued for twenty-three years. In 1887, however, he sold his business to Sprague & Wolfram, and has since lived in retirement.

The subject of this sketch was united in marriage with Harriet Porter, of Salem township, in 1849. She was born in 1826, daughter of Thomas and Rhoda (Sutton) Porter, and the only survivor of the four children born of that union. Her father was later married to Polly Stille. Thomas Porter died in 1891, aged 90 years. The Porter family trace their ancestry directly back to one John Porter, who was born in England in 1596. It is not known at what date he arrived in the Massachusetts Colony, but he was there as early as 1635. He first settled in Hingham, but subsequently removed to Salem. At the time of his death, in 1676, he was the most extensive land owner in that colony.

This John Porter and his wife, Mary, had a family, among whom was Joseph, who married Ann Hawthorne, and they reared a son called Joseph. He and his wife, Mary, reared a son whom they also called Joseph, and thus the given name of the father was perpetuated through several generations. This last-mentioned Joseph and his wife, Mary, reared a son, Amos, grandfather of Mrs. Cox, and the first of the family concerning whom any authentic facts are obtainable.

Amos Porter was born in Danvers, Massachusetts, in 1742, and in 1764, married Annie Bradstreet, a direct descendant from Governor Simon Bradstreet. In 1788 Amos went west, landing at Marietta, Ohio, in April, of that year, and some time later his marriage with Sabra Tolman was chronicled. His children were as follows: Amos, William, Samuel, Thomas (the father of Mrs. Cox), Rufus, Hiram, Lydia, Jerusha, and Almer.

A few facts concerning Governor Bradstreet will not be inappropriate in this place. Simon Bradstreet was born at Hurling, England, in 1603. When grown to manhood he attended Cambridge College, England, and in 1630, in company with the Winthrops, Dudleys, and other distinguished personages he crossed the stormy sea in the "Arabella," and assisted in founding a colony in Massachusetts. Before leaving England he was vested with the office of assistant judge in the colony of Salem, to which he was annually re-elected for a period of fifty years. He was afterward deputy governor of the same colony, and in 1679 was appointed governor, and served as such until the charter was revoked. History says he was restored to office in 1680, and remained in power until the new charter arrived in 1692, when he was made first councilor.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox have one child, Flora M., who became the wife of A. W. Tompkins. The father and mother are living a quiet, retired life at their beautiful home on the Muskingum River, just on the outskirts of the city of Lowell. In their day they have been prominent and serviceable citizens, and their lives are now closing with the rest they well deserve.

DAVID N. MINDLING, one of the most prominent farmers of Watertown township, Washington County, Ohio, is a son of Henry and Mary Ann (Henry) Mindling, and was born in 1865, in that township.

Henry Mindling first saw the light of day in Germany, in 1839. He left his native country in 1848, and coming to the United States located in Washington County. He has followed agricultural pursuits for many years, and is well acquainted with all the details involved in that calling.

Mr. Mindling was united in matrimony with Mary Ann Henry, a daughter of Robert and Hannah Henry, her father being also active in farming. Mrs. Mindling was born, reared and died on the farm where her husband still resides, the first event occurring in 1847, and the last in 1891. She was a member of the German Lutheran Church, which her husband still attends. They were blessed with six children, as follows: Mary, who married Jacob Wehl, resides in Warren township; David N., the subject of this biography; Philip who is deceased; Christina, the wife of William Morris, of Williamstown, West Virginia; Hiram J., deceased, and Frederick, living in Watertown township. Mr. Mindling is a firm Democrat in politics.

David N. Mindling was united in marriage, in 1891, with Clancie Morey, daughter of Daniel and Jane Morey. She is a native of Warren township, and was born in 1871. They have two children: Dayton N., born in 1892; and Chester H., born in December, 1898. The German Lutheran Church is the preference of the family and they give that church their support and assistance.

Mr. Mindling is a valued member of the Democratic party, and is now serving his second term as township trustee. The farm which he now owns, and on which the family are so comfortably situated, is about three miles east of Watertown, and consists of one hundred and thirty-eight acres. Mr. Mindling enjoys the esteem and confidence of all who know them.

JACOB BIEDEL, a valued citizen of Watertown township, where he was born, carries on farming successfully on his home place of 84 acres, about three and a half miles from Beverly, Washington County, Ohio. The date of his birth was September 17, 1860, and his parents were Jacob and Catherine (Grasley) Biedel, both natives of Germany, who, with their parents, came to America, arriving at Marietta June 24, 1850.

Jacob Biedel, born July 23, 1833, enlisted in Company B, 77th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., in the Civil war, and served faithfully until he became sick and was taken to the hospital at Pine Bluff, Arkansas, in 1863. Although he was given immediate treatment, he did not recover, and the citizens of Marietta, where he enlisted, never saw him again. He died on September 15, of that year, and lies buried where he died. His widow was married, on July 30, 1864, to Philip Bohl, who died April 7, 1872, and she still resides in Watertown township, at the age of 63 years. By her first marriage she was the mother of three children,—William, a sketch of whom also appears in this book, and who lives in Watertown township; Jacob, the subject of this sketch; and John, who lives in Barlow township. There were also three children by her second union, namely: Henry, Philip and Lizzie Bohl. Lizzie is the wife of Alphonso Pottmyer, of Watertown township.

Jacob Biedel was united in marriage, in 1886, with Mary Wagner, a daughter of Adam and Mary Wagner, of Watertown township, who was born August 3, 1864. Their family consisted of the following children: Blanche, born July 29, 1887; Alice, born November 20, 1889; and Lawrence, born November 12, 1897. Alice died December 2, 1894. The family attend divine worship at the German Lutheran Church. In politics Mr. Biedel is a Democrat, and always votes a straight ticket. He served with credit as trustee of his township, for six years, and has also been land appraiser for one term, which shows his interest in public affairs, and in the advancement of his community.

AURELIUS J. LONGFELLOW, a prominent and influential business man and oil producer of Macksburg, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Aurelius township, in this county, December 19, 1857, and is a son of Aurelius and Elizabeth B. (Davidson) Longfellow. His paternal grandfather, Samuel Longfellow, a native of Maine, and a carpenter by trade, was among the pioneers of Aurelius township. Besides working at his trade, he was also engaged in farming. He was a cousin of Henry W. Longfellow, the illustrious poet, and came of a distinguished New England family. The maternal grandfather of the subject hereof was William Davidson, of County Durham, England, who in early life, followed the vocation of a sailor on the high seas. He settled in Aurelius township about 1838, and was engaged in farming there until his death.

Aurelius Longfellow, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Aurelius township, August 16, 1819, and was named for the town of his birth. He always followed farming as a vocation, and died September 6, 1897. His wife, Elizabeth B. Davidson, who was born in County Durham, England, died September 18, 1895. They had thirteen children, of whom nine grew to maturity, namely: Joseph W.; William M.; Albert W.; Aurelius J.; Samuel B.; James B.; Jane, wife of James A. Hall; Margaret, wife of Cassius M. Dilley; and Annie D., deceased wife of H. H. Mathews.

Aurelius J. Longfellow was reared in Aurelius township, where he attended the common schools. At the age of seventeen years, he began work in the oil fields, and familiarized himself with all the details of the business. Since 1890, he has been associated with his brother, Samuel B. Longfellow, in the oil-producing business, and although they encountered many obstacles, they have made a substantial success. They have also been interested in gold mining in Idaho, since 1901, and conduct a fine farm of 407 acres in Aurelius township. In the spring of 1902, they began the construction of an elegant hotel in Macksburg, consisting of five stories, including the basement. It contains forty-eight rooms which will be fitted up in matchless style, with all the equipments of modern hotels, including steam heat, electric lights, baths and hot and cold water. In fact, it is to be a hostelry which a city many times larger would be proud of. Mr. Longfellow is a public-spirited citizen, and has been identified with many other local enterprises of a quasi-public character.

Aurelius J. Longfellow was married, September 20, 1877, to Florence M. Dyer, a daughter of George and Lois (Fowler) Dyer, of Noble County, Ohio, and they have three children,—James F.; Herman H. and Harry L., who are twins. The subject of this sketch is a prominent fraternity man, being a member of Aurelius

Lodge, No. 308, F. A. & A. M.; American Union Chapter, No. 1, R. A. M., of Marietta; Marietta Commandery, Knights Templar, Scottish Rite, 32d degree, of Cincinnati; Macksburg Lodge, Knights of Pythias; and a life member of Marietta Lodge, No. 477, B. P. O. E. He has served as trustee of Aurelius township three terms, and was a member of the Macksburg school board for a period of fourteen years. Politically, he is a Republican.

PARLEY RUMMER, for many years a resident of Washington County, Ohio, is now a retired merchant in Lowell, Adams township, and enjoys the consideration and respect of his fellow citizens as a just reward for many years of service he has given to his township and county. Mr. Rummer is a native of New York State, where he was born in 1826, and is a son of Parley and Sarah (Tillotson) Rummer, likewise natives of New York.

Parley Rummer, Sr., was born in 1798 and died in 1865. He became a resident of Washington County in 1839, cultivated his farm, although the greater part of his time was given to working at his trade, which was that of a carpenter. He was united in marriage with Sarah Tillotson, a daughter of Aaron and Sarah Tillotson, born in 1800. They reared eleven children, as follows: Lyssander; Walter P.; Adelia; Aaron; Parley; Darius; William J.; Richard; Melissa; and Sophronia and Salona, twins. The twins, Melissa, Darius, Aaron, Walter P., and Lysander are deceased. The parents of these children were members of the Christian Church, in which they were faithful workers. Mr. Rummer was quite prominent in political affairs, being a member of the Republican party, and was for some time trustee of his township.

Parley Rummer, Jr., was a merchant most of his life. He clerked for a number of years previous to forming a partnership with I. D. Spooner and Henry Wolf, in 1866. This firm continued business for two years, when Mr. Rummer sold out. He purchased the business of Tilton & Spooner, which he conducted for seventeen consecutive years and then sold out to Franz Wilkins (2nd). Since then he has lived away from business cares and trials in the seclusion of his home life.

In 1857 Mr. Rummer was united in marriage with Clarinda M. Roach, a daughter of Daniel and Amy Roach, born in 1836, in what was then Morgan County, but has since been known as Noble County. Their union was blessed with four children, namely: Ira P., employed in Pennsylvania as a locomotive engineer; Flora C., who married Jacob Merritt, a prosperous farmer of Noble County, Ohio; Curtis, who died in infancy; and Effie M., the wife of Edmund B. Geddes who was married August 10, 1886, and has one child, Cecil R., born July 30, 1887. Mrs. Rummer is a devoted member of the Christian Church, of Lowell.

Mr. Rummer's residence in Washington County dates back from 1839, when he lived in Aurelius township, from which he moved in 1848 to Adams township and located at Lowell. He belongs to the Republican party, and served as a member of the Lowell Common Council; he has also held the position of clerk of the village. Socially he is a member of the I. O. O. F., affiliating with the local lodge, and has been in continuous connection with the order since 1851.

ROBERT HADLEY BIRNIE, the popular druggist of Macksburg, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Marietta, Ohio, June 24, 1875, and is a son of Robert and Eleanor (Hadley) Birnie.

The father is a native of Paisley, Scotland, and came to America in the early "sixties." Soon afterward, he located in Marietta, and has since followed his vocation, that of a machinist, having been, for upwards of ten years, in the employ of the Marietta Chair Company. He is the father of eight children, namely: Mary, the wife of A. G. Shires; Charles T.; Robert H.; Helen; James A.; Frank W.; Florence; and Earl.

Robert H. Birnie was reared in Marietta, and educated in the public schools of that city. Subsequently he served five years' apprenticeship at the drug business, with the firm of J. W. Dysle & Co., of Marietta. He graduated with honors, from the pharmacy department of the Ohio Normal University at Ada, Ohio, in 1898, and later, was employed as a prescription clerk in various cities of Ohio until February, 1901, when he embarked in business for himself at Macksburg. This he has since successfully continued, and carries as fine a stock of goods in his line as could be found anywhere in Washington County. Mr. Birnie is progressive and enterprising, thoroughly up-to-date in his business, and is popular with all classes. He is a prominent member of Marietta Lodge, No. 477, B. P. O. E.

JOHAN A. BROWN, an influential up-to-date farmer of Belpre township, is a resident of Little Hocking, Washington County, Ohio. He is a native of Scotland, where he was born, in 1835, in Argyleshire, and is a son of John and Ellen (Loynachan) Brown, who came to the United States in 1840, and landed in New York about six weeks after starting.

John Brown and his family then traveled west, and when they arrived at Barlow township, Washington County, Ohio, they settled there. Later, however, they removed to Belpre township, and made their home in that part which was afterward set off to Dunham township. There they lived and farmed the remainder of their lives. The mother died in her prime, in 1863, and the death of the father took place in 1887, at the advanced age of eighty-three years. They were members of the Presbyterian Church.

John A. Brown attended the common schools of Dunham township, and when he reached his majority he supplemented his primary studies by a term of school in Marietta, previous to applying himself to farming. His present property was purchased in 1861, and consists of 120 acres of good, valuable land, well adapted to general farming. This he cultivated in summer, and taught school during the winter months, for many years. At the present time he makes a specialty of raising fine stock.

Mr. Brown was one of the 100-day men, and enlisted, in Washington County, in Company H, 148th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., serving under Colonel Moore and Captain Mitchell. In 1863 he was united in marriage with Isabella Shaw, a native of Washington County, and a daughter of Duncan and Isabella (Colville) Shaw, natives of Scotland. This union was blessed with two children,—Edwy Rolfe and Mary Eleanor. Edwy Rolfe is a graduate of Marietta College, and is now actively employed in the oil business. Mary E. is a teacher in the Willard building at Marietta, and has met with good success.

Fraternally Mr. Brown affiliates with the A. R. In religious opinions he is in accord with the doctrines of the Presbyterian Church. His long life has been full of useful and kindly deeds to many, and he is a straightforward, upright man whom it is a pleasure to call friend.

LEWIS M. BATTIN, a prosperous farmer of Belpre township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Morgan County, Ohio, February 20, 1830, and is a son of Lewis and Hannah Jane (Aikens) Battin, who had seven children.

Mr. Battin received his mental training in the common schools of Morgan County, until he attained the age of eight years, when he attended school in Washington County, Ohio. As a boy he found plenty of work on the farm, and upon reaching his majority he worked in a sawmill and followed that occupation nearly all his active life.

When the Civil War engrossed the attention of all patriotic citizens, Mr. Battin enlisted in the 100-day service, as a member of Company H, 148th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., and served bravely under Col. Moore. This was in 1864, when he was thirty-four years of age, and after seeing hard service for the time of his enlistment, he returned home and resumed his former duties.

In 1859 Virginia Smith, a native of Washington County, and a daughter of Royal S. and Jane (Dilley) Smith, became the wife of Mr. Battin and they had three children, as follows: Leota, who married Rollin Bartlett, of Little Hocking; William A.; and Nellie, who was united in marriage with William L. Chambers, of Athens County, Ohio. In religious matters Mr. Battin entertains liberal views, but is a member of the Universalist Church. His services are valued as a member of the G. A. R. For the past sixty-four years he has been a resident of the school district, and the people of his acquaintance are many.

When Lewis Battin first went to Washington County there were no fences to be seen, and deer and wild turkey were abundant. The farmers had to go to Big Hocking to mill. Wild hogs were very numerous in that section of the country, and only occasionally could be seen a little log-hut.

DR. GEORGE A. PHILLIPS, an influential and industrious citizen of Lowell, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Belmont County, Ohio, in 1856, and is a son of Lureston W. and Isabelle (Adair) Phillips, both being of Scotch-Irish descent.

Lureston W. Phillips lives upon his native place, the farm he now owns, two miles northwest of Barnesville, Belmont County, Ohio. He married Isabelle Adair, daughter of George Adair, born near Antrim, Guernsey County, Ohio, in 1832. She and her husband are members of the Christian Church, in which they are faithful workers. They have had four children, namely: Allie, the widow of Dr. Charles Webb, living at Barnesville; Edward E., living at the homestead farm; May Belle, also at home; and George A. Mr. Phillips has now reached the age of seventy-two years. He has always been a farmer, and in political opinions takes sides with the Republican party.

The subject of this sketch chose for his wife Lizzie J. Shanton, a daughter of Jackson and Martha Shanton. She was born near Yellow Bud, Ross County, Ohio, in 1867, and was married to Mr. Phillips in 1890. To this union one child, Iva Narelle, was born in March, 1893.

The early mental training of Dr. Phillips was obtained in the common schools, and at the Barnesville high school. He then determined to fit himself to be a physician, and entered the Columbus Medical College in 1888; from this he graduated in 1890. He was one of a class of forty, and took second honors, the prize being $40. The year of his graduation he started his practice in Lowell, and so marked and satisfactory has been his success there, that he has remained until the present day. His skill and knowledge are recognized by all and he has some of the best citizens of the town among his patients. He is a grave, courteous gentleman worthy of the trust and friendship of those about him.

Dr. Phillips belongs to the Republican party, and has served on the school board, and as a member of the town council with attentive interest. In fraternal circles he affiliates with K. of P. Lodge, No. 395, and is also a member of Barnesville Lodge, No. 185, I. O. O. F.

JOHAN C. SANER, one of the busiest men of Lowell, Washington County, Ohio, is cashier and manager of the First National Bank of Lowell, and is also an extensive dealer in real estate and fire insurance to a great extent. He has helped to organize a number of banks in other cities, and for his age his record is one of the best. He has displayed the pluck and determination which he possesses in climbing from the lowest round of the ladder of success, so rapidly and surely, toward the top.

Mr. Saner is the son of Conrad and Caroline (Burdung) Saner, and was born in Marietta, Ohio, in 1874. Conrad Saner was born in Germany, in 1837 and came to America in 1852, finding a suitable location in the vicinity of Pottsville, Pennsylvania. He located there with his parents, Henry and Elizabeth Saner, and learned the trade of a carpenter and contractor. During the Civil War, he enlisted, in 1862, as a member of Company H, 7th Reg. Ohio Vol. Cavalry. He was living at this time in Marietta, where he moved in 1853, purchased a fine farm of 100 acres on the bank of the Muskingum River, and spent his time in cultivating the land until 1862. He served in the war until 1865, took part in the Battle of Shiloh and many other important engagements, and was honorably discharged. He was united in marriage with Caroline Burd-sung, who was born in 1844, and they reared the following children: Jacob; William; John C.; Elizabeth and Frank, who are at home; Edith, who graduated from the Marietta high school with the class of 1902; Mary; Matilda; and Beulah. The two last mentioned are also living on the home place in Marietta, with their parents. Mary, William and Jacob are deceased.

In fraternal circles Conrad Saner is a member of the Knights of Pythias and of Buell Post, G. A. R. Until 1896 he was always a Democrat. But since that time he has voted the Republican ticket. He and his wife are members of the German Lutheran Church at Marietta.

John C. Saner attended the public schools of Marietta, and upon the completion of his studies, spent some time at work in the planing mill connected with the Marietta Chair Company. In April, 1891, he obtained a position as messenger boy in the bank established by the Dime Saving Society, and after a year of good and satisfactory service in this capacity he was advanced to the position of bookkeeper and teller. This he retained until 1899, when he helped to organize the German National Bank of Marietta. This institution was a marked success and he was given a place in it as paying teller, which he held until May 14, 1900. At this date the German National Bank of Marietta organized the First National Bank of Lowell, Ohio, and he was given a position there as cashier and manager. It was one of the first institutions to be organized under the new law which provided for the establishing of banks on a capital of $25,000. It is now two years old, has a surplus and undivided profits of $5,000, a capital of $25,000, and is paying regular semi-annual dividends. The corporation owns the building in which it conducts its business, which is very nicely built, and is furnished throughout with all modern conveniences. The stockholders of the German National Bank also organized two other banks,—the First National Bank, at Chester Hill, and the First National Bank, at Woodsfield, Ohio, representing a capital stock of $200,000.

Mr. Saner's duties as cashier and manager of the bank are such that one must possess the very best qualities to discharge them with the promptness and correctness that characterize the work of Mr. Saner. He has the confidence of everyone around him, and uses his judgment to good advantage. He has other enterprises which occupy much of his attention, such as his transactions in real estate and fire insurance. He does quite a brisk business in the latter, and in the former he has laid out an addition to Lowell, as well as one to the town of Williamstown, West Virginia, and platted the Norwood Addition to Marietta.

Mr. Saner chose for his wife Marie Wehl, a daughter of Frederick and Mary (Deming) Wehl. The ceremony was performed June 22, 1898. Mrs. Wehl was a daughter of Harley Deming, and was born in Watertown township, Washington County, where she spent all her life. Her husband, Mrs. Saner's father, followed the occupation of a merchant at Watertown for many years, and died in 1881. He was a member of Mount Moriah Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Beverly, Ohio. Mrs. Saner taught school in Waterford township before her marriage, and was also bookkeeper in the Marietta Dime Savings Bank, for a year. She and her husband are members of the First M. E. Church of Marietta.

In fraternal circles Mr. Saner affiliates with Buell Lodge, No. 395, Knights of Pythias, of Lowell; the Royal Arcanum; and the Elks, of Marietta. He is also a prominent member of Harmar Lodge, No. 390, A. F. & A. M.; American Union Chapter, No. 1; and the Marietta Council. In politics he is a member of the Republican party.

RICHARD CAMPBELL SMITHSON, senior member of the firm of R. C. Smithson & Son, who conduct an extensive general merchandise business in Macksburg, Ohio, has served as township treasurer of Aurelius township, of which he is a native, for a period of twenty years. He is regarded as one of the most successful business men and one of the most enterprising citizens of Washington County. Mr. Smithson was born October 17, 1840, and is a son of John and Jane (Campbell) Smithson, natives of England and Ireland, respectively.

The paternal grandfather of the subject hereof was Thomas Smithson, a native of England, who, in the early part of the nineteenth century, settled in New York, and February 9, 1814, was admitted to citizenship in the town of Butternuts, Otsego County, New York. About 1816, he settled in Aurelius township, Washington County, Ohio, locating on section 17, where he lived until his death. He chose for his wife Rebecca Bennington, and their family consisted of four children, namely: John; Mary A., who married John T. Jewell; Jane, who was united in marriage with Theodore Gevrez; and Thomas.

Richard C. Smithson's maternal grandparents were Richard and Martha (Reed) Campbell, formerly of Ireland, who came to the United States and, in 1816, settled in Salem township, Washington County, where they became very prominent.

John Smithson, father of the subject of this sketch, and eldest child of his parents, became an extensive landowner, possessing land in sections 16, 17, and 20, in Aurelius township, besides large tracts in Noble County. He was united in marriage with Jane Campbell and they had eleven children, namely: John; Mary A., wife of A. T. Warren; Robert; Sallie, wife of I. H. Delong; Martha J., the wife of W. H. Morris; Thomas; William; Richard C.; Rebecca, wife of J. S. Snyder; Horatio M.; and Lizzie, wife of J. B. Markey. Horatio M. was a member of the 77th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf. in the Civil War, and died during that conflict of disease contracted in the service.

Richard C. Smithson was reared in Aurelius township, Washington County, and attended the schools of Macksburg. Prior to the Civil War, he clerked in his father's store at Macksburg. On August 2, 1862, he enlisted in Company H, 92nd Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., as a private, and participated in the battles of Missionary Ridge and Chickamauga, and in minor engagements. In May, 1864, he was promoted to be orderly sergeant, and was honorably discharged from service June 10, 1865, at Washington, D. C.

Returning from the war, Mr. Smithson embarked in general merchandizing with his father, at Macksburg, under the firm name of J. Smithson & Son, and continued thus until 1870. He then formed a partnership with Mr. Snyder, and was senior member of the firm of Smithson & Snyder for the following six years. In 1876, Mr. Smithson sold out and erected his present commodious store building and conducted a very profitable business alone, until 1898. He then formed a partnership with his son, Harry N., under the firm name of R. C. Smithson & Son, which is still in existence. They are prospering as is only possible for a firm which gives complete satisfaction to all its patrons. Mr. Smithson has had wide experience in mercantile life, and naturally makes a success of all he undertakes in that line.

Mr. Smithson was united in marriage with Emma Atkinson, October 14, 1868. She is a daughter of Isaac and Hannah (Lippincott) Atkinson, of Marietta township, and has borne her husband three children, namely: Harry N., Nellie and Dollie.

In politics, the subject of this sketch is a Republican, and has ever served his party faithfully. He was elected Justice of the Peace of Aurelius township in 1868, and served until 1871. He was re-elected in 1897, and served with credit. Fraternally, he is a member of Aurelius Lodge, No. 308, F. & A. M.

JOHN D. HOLLINGER, a prominent and useful citizen of Lowell, Ohio, is a member of the well-known firm of Hollinger Bros., of that city, who do blacksmithing, make harness, and are extensive dealers in buggies and carriages. He was born March 13, 1873, in Lowell, and is a son of Jacob and Katherine (Wagner) Hollinger.

Jacob Hollinger was born in Bavaria, Germany, on May 1, 1840, and his demise occurred October 13, 1901. He came to this country in 1868, and made his home in Lowell directly after coming to this country. Up to the time of his death, he followed his trade, that of a blacksmith, most industriously, and was considered an expert workman in that line. He and his beloved wife were united with the German Lutheran Church. In social circles, he affiliated with the A. F. & A. M. and I. O. O. F. In politics, he was always a Democrat, and his public spirit was manifested in the service he rendered on the school board, and in the village council, of which latter office he was an incumbent for twenty years.

Jacob Hollinger was united in marriage with Katherine Wagner, a daughter of Adam and Katherine Wagner, born in Erie County, Pennsylvania, December 1, 1850. She is still living, and makes her home with her father. She was the mother of five children, namely: Jacob F., a member of the firm of Hollinger Bros.; John D.; Ettie M., of Lowell, who married Christian G. Schneider; Katherine, who also lives in Lowell, as does her sister, Annie C., the fifth child.

John D. Hollinger was married on March 31, 1898, to Melissa C. Augenstein, a daughter of John and Emma Augenstein. She was born August 6, 1874, near Lowell. They have been blessed with one child, Hester, who was born in Lowell, December 19, 1899.

Mr. Hollinger is a member of the local lodge of the Knights of Pythias. He represented his lodge at the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge at Cincinnati, Ohio, in May, 1902, and had a most enjoyable time. In political belief, he is a Democrat, and in 1896, he received the nomination for clerk of the courts of Washington County. He is now serving his fourth term as corporation clerk, and his second term in the office of township clerk. In his work as a harness maker, he has prospered, and the firm, consisting of his brother, Jacob, and himself, does a flourishing business at all times. The brothers are known throughout the county for their skill and fine workmanship, and the concern is one of the principal business houses in Lowell.

CHARLES SCHIMMEL, widely known in Washington County as a substantial farmer, of Adams township, lives on his fine farm of 180 acres, on the West side of the Muskingum River, about three miles from Lowell. He was born September 28, 1851, in Fearing township, and has lived in Adams township since 1889. His parents were Jacob and Caroline (Becker) Schimmel, natives of Bavaria, Germany, where the former was born in 1823, and the latter, in 1831.

Jacob Schimmel came to the United States at the early age of sixteen years and went directly to Fearing township, Washington County, Ohio, where he became a tiller of the soil, and lived until taken away by death in 1896. In political affairs, he was always a Democrat. He and his family were devoted members of the German Lutheran Church. He was united in matrimony with Caroline Becker, who still resides on the home farm in Fearing township. She became the mother of seven children, namely: William, who died in infancy; Charles; Wilhelmina, widow of Nicholas Reiter, of Marietta; Carrie, who lives in Marietta, and is the widow of Adam Young; Lizzie, who is still at home; Louis, whose death occurred in 1901; and Katie, who became the wife of Jacob Spindler, of Fearing township.

Charles Schimmel was united in marriage with Carrie Marsch, March 5, 1874. She is a daughter of Daniel and Katherine Marsch, and was born in 1855, in Fearing township. Their family consists of the following children: Jacob, who married Carrie Landsittle; William; Gilbert; Lena; Nettie; Albert; Harley; Karl; and Mildred. Two others of their children are deceased. The family are members of the German Lutheran Church.

Mr. Schimmel is a Democrat, in his politics, and while still a resident of Fearing township, served in various township offices, and was township clerk for eight consecutive years. Socially, he affiliates with the Knights of Pythias, being a member of the lodge at Lowell. The subject of this sketch is straightforward in all of his business and political dealings, and has the respect and esteem of his neighbors and acquaintances.

ANTHONY BROWN, one of the most reliable brick-masons and contractors in Marietta, and a citizen who enjoys the esteem and respect of the community, was born in 1833, in Bavaria, Germany, and is a son of Philip B. and Mary Ann (Welsh) Brown.

Philip Brown was born in Germany and with his family, came to America in 1839. In his native country he followed the weaving trade, but after coming here he was a farmer until his death, in 1881, at the age of 78 years. He supported the Democratic party. His religious connection was with the Catholic Church. The mother of Mr. Brown was also born in Germany. She was a devoted member of the Catholic Church. Her death occurred in 1890, at the age of 79 years. Five children were born to these parents, as follows: Anthony, of Marietta; John, a resident of Monroe County; Mary, deceased; Barbara, a resident of Monroe County; and Mark, who was a member of Company B, 26th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf. He enlisted at Woodsfield, in 1862, and gave up his life for his country.

Anthony Brown was six years of age when he accompanied the family from Germany to the United States. His first home was in Allegheny City, Pennsylvania, but one year later his father moved to a farm in Monroe County, Ohio, and there Anthony remained until 1863, in the spring of which year he located in Marietta. For the past 25 years, Mr. Brown has been one of the leading contractors of this city, his reliability and thorough comprehension of the business having enabled him to build up a very large and successful trade.

In 1856, Mr. Brown was united in marriage with Amanda Carrick, daughter of Morris and Eliza Carrick, who was born in Monroe County, Ohio, in 1840. A family of nine children were born to them, namely: Mary Virginia, who married Alden Pierce, and lives at Marietta; John, who lives in Wood County, West Virginia; Charles, who lives in Marietta; Mark, who is now deceased; Jacob, Frank and Ellen, who are at home; William, who resides at Massillon; and an infant, deceased.

Mr. Brown is identified with the Democratic party, and actively upholds its principles. He is a member, and a generous supporter, of the Catholic Church.

JOSEPH W. ALLISON, following the double occupation of farmer and carpenter, lives on his farm about three miles north of Lowell, and is a sturdy, progressive man. He is native to the farm on which he now lives, where he was born in 1853, and is a son of Leicester G. and Sarah A. (Davis) Allison.

Leicester G. Allison was also born in Adams township, in 1823. He was a son of Stephen Allison, and grandson of Robert Allison, the last named having come from Pennsylvania with the early settlers of Ohio. Robert Allison was in the garrison during the wars carried on against the Indians, and about this time the birth of Stephen Allison occurred. He was born in the Marietta garrison in 1794, and died in 1876. After the Indian wars were over, he moved from Marietta to a farm near Lowell, and ever afterward was a resident of Adams township. At one time, he owned several hundred acres of land there.

Leicester G. Allison first became an occupant of the farm on which Joseph W. now lives, in 1847. Besides busying himself with the carpenter's trade and his occupation as a farmer, he drilled oil wells, and for several years ran a sawmill in Lowell. He was active in all township affairs, was a Republican, in politics, and performed the duties of various offices in a creditable manner. He and his family were members of the Christian Church. He was united in marriage with Sarah A. Davis, a daughter of Frederick and Polly (Allison) Davis, who was born in 1825, in Adams township. They reared five children, whose names are as follows: Adelia, who married Adam Cramer, and lives in Adams township; Adelpia, deceased; Joseph W.; Charles F., who lives at Ventura, California; and Mary A., the wife of Martin Reed, of Waterford township.

The subject of this sketch was united in matrimony with Ida Buchanan, in 1882. She is the daughter of George W. and Laura (Woodford) Buchanan. The former was killed on the steamer, Harry Dean, while at Gallipolis, January 4, 1868. He chose for his wife Laura Woodford, a daughter of Grove Woodford. They had a family of five children, as follows: Edward F., of Watertown, Ohio; Ellsworth, deceased; Ida, born in 1857, at Rensselaer, Indiana; James L., of Watertown; and Dora E., deceased.

The subject of this sketch and his wife have four children, namely: Zora M. born in 1883; Ewell V., born in 1885; Dudley L., born in 1889; and Laura A., born in 1894. The family are members of the Christian Church, of Lowell. Mr. Allison is a Republican, in politics, and always stands by his party. During his busy life, he has made a success in his vocation, for thirteen years. Previous to taking up work on the farm, he taught school in Waterford, Aurelius, Muskingum and Adams townships, and at Watertown. He is the possessor of about 80 acres of land three miles north of Lowell, and is a respected representative of his county.

ISAAAC REED, widely known throughout Adams township, Washington County, Ohio, owns about sixty acres of first-rate land in that vicinity, and lives four and a half miles north of Lowell. He is a citizen of prominence in his community, and is greatly esteemed for his many good qualities, and his services to the township. His parents were Benjamin and Sarah (Dickerson) Reed, and he was born on Christmas Day, 1825, near Cambridge, Guernsey County.

Benjamin Reed, a native of Washington County, Pennsylvania, was born in 1787, and died in 1872. He was living in Guernsey County, Ohio, when Isaac was born, where he followed farming to a great extent. His death, which occurred at the home of a son living in Lowell, was mourned as the loss of a good citizen. He lived for a time in Noble County, and served as Democratic trustee of Jackson township in that county. Sarah Dickerson, who became his wife, was a daughter of Gideon Dickerson, and was born in Washington County, Pennsylvania, in 1792. She was the mother of eleven children, as follows: Evaline, Bonam and Joseph, deceased; Sally Ann, who lives in Macomb, Illinois, and is the widow of Joseph Merritt; Richard S., deceased; Isaac; Margaret E., who lives at Des Moines, Iowa, and is the widow of Davis Hughes; John A., deceased; William, who lives in Washington County, Ohio; Mary J., deceased; and Benjamin, who was killed while fighting in the Battle of Chickamauga, during the Civil War. The mother died in 1858.

Isaac Reed was united in marriage, in 1851, with Catherine Bowhan, a daughter of Howard and Susan Bowhan, who lived in Maryland, near Frederick, but removed in 1837, to Ohio. Mrs. Reed was born in 1825, and went to Ohio when twelve years of age, locating, with her parents, in Washington County. Her death took place in 1894. She and her husband had nine children, namely: Isaac N. and Howard, deceased; Joseph B., who lives near Watertown; Edward P., deceased; Martin T. and Benjamin, of Waterford township; Mary, who became the wife of William Way, and lives in Jackson township, Noble County; Charles A., who also lives in Noble County; and George F., who resides near Watertown.

After the death of his first wife, Isaac Reed married again, choosing Addie Owen, a daughter of Vincent and Mary (Waller) Owen, who was born in Adams township, December 25, 1854. She is a member of the Christian Church, which her husband also attends.

In politics, the subject of this sketch belongs to the Democratic party, and has served very creditably as trustee, assessor, and justice of the peace, of his township, at various times. In his service in these offices he was always prompt and energetic in performing his duties, and enjoyed the confidence and esteem of his fellow men. He has always been a farmer, and from a lifelong experience in this vocation, is fully acquainted with the best methods of tilling the soil in order to insure success.

DANIEL OWEN, a descendant of one of the early settlers of Washington County, Ohio, is accounted one of the county's best citizens.

Daniel Owen was born in 1831, on the place where he now lives, a short distance from the city of Lowell. He is a son of Daniel and Deborah (Sprague) Owen, and a grandson of James and Mary Owen. Mary Owen was the first white woman who came to the Northwest Territory, and on account of that circumstance, received a deed of 100 acres of land in the Rainbow District, from the Ohio Company, through its representative, John Gobel. The original conveyance had as one of its witnesses, Gen. Rufus Putnam, and is now in the possession of the subject of this sketch. Mrs. Mary Owen now lies buried in the Rainbow Cemetery. She and her husband were among the party of settlers which located at Marietta in June, 1788, another party having settled there in April, of the same year. They battled with the many hardships and dangers of a life in the wilderness, fought through the Indian Wars, and the father finally died while still a resident of Adams township.

Daniel Owen, Sr., was born in Providence, Rhode Island, and died in 1855, at the age of seventy-three years. He left his native state to come to Washington County, Ohio, when but six years old, and in company with General Varnum and others, located at Marietta, and was among the first settlers in that city. He applied himself to farming, and spent his entire life on the farm now in the possession of his son, Daniel, taking a very important part in the affairs of the township and county. He was first a Whig, and later, a member of the Republican party, and served at different times as trustee, clerk, etc., of Adams township.

Daniel Owen, Sr., chose for his wife Deborah Sprague, a daughter of Wilbur Sprague, also a pioneer of Washington County, who, while standing in his barnyard, was shot in the back by a lurking Indian. The bullet struck a brass button and drove it into the flesh. After his brother, Jonathan Sprague, had extracted the ball, however, he recovered completely. Mrs. Owen was born in Waterford in 1801, and departed this life in 1880. She and her husband were faithful members of the Baptist Church. They reared a family of three children, namely: Hannah, who married Jesse Nicholson, and is now deceased; Daniel; and Henry S., deceased. By a previous marriage, with Hannah H. Allison, Mr. Owen had the following seven children: Sally; Polly; James; Azubah; Vincent; Leander; and Allison. After her death, and previous to his union with Deborah Sprague, he married Betsey Green, and had one child, Oliver G., who is deceased.

The subject of this sketch was united in marriage with Mercy Chapman, on May 9, 1852. She is a daughter of Davis and Sallie (Davis) Chapman, and was born in Adams township, in 1830. They were blessed with four children, as follows: Florence, deceased; Alice, who became the wife of J. W.

Kelly, at Marietta; an infant, who died; and Linnie, residing at home with her parents. Mr. Owen lives on his fine farm about one mile from Lowell, and owns over 600 acres of land, all in Adams township. He is prominent in business circles, is a stockholder in the First National Bank, of Lowell, and also in the Citizens' Bank, of Marietta. In politics, he is a Republican, and in social circles, he affiliates with the I. O. O. F., being a member of the Lowell lodge.

DANIEL MARSCH, one of the enterprising and useful citizens of Adams township, is now serving with great satisfaction to all, both as trustee of his township, and as justice of the peace. He is a son of Jacob and Margaret (Groschlose) Marsch, and was born in Germany in 1834, which was also the native place of his parents.

Jacob Marsch was born in 1809, lived a useful life, and died in 1881. He learned the trade of a shoemaker when young, and followed it for some years, previous to becoming a farmer for the remainder of his days. He married Margaret Groschlose, who was born in 1809, and lived until 1883. Their union was blessed with two children, namely: Daniel; and Katherine, who is deceased. The parents attended the German Lutheran Church, of which they were active members. Mr. March was a member of the Democratic party.

The subject of this sketch came with his parents from his native country, when but six years of age, and settled first in Wheeling, but afterward made Fearing township his place of residence until 1885, when he moved to Adams township. Since leaving Wheeling, he has lived in Washington County all this time. He was united in matrimony with Katherine Pfaff, in 1855, and they had eleven children, seven of whom were reared to maturity, and are good citizens. Mrs. Marsch is a daughter of Jacob and Caroline Pfaff, and was born in Germany, in 1835. Their children are as follows: Caroline, who is the wife of Charles Schimmel, and lives in Adams township; Jacob P., a resident of Marietta; William, a citizen of Fearing township, Washington County; Andrew J. of Painesville, Ohio; Lizzie, who married Charles Baesel, of Adams township; Ernest L. and Herman, who still live at the home place, three and a half miles from Lowell. Ernest L. married Anna L. Becker, a native of Lowell, Ohio, and has one child, Bernice.

Mr. Marsch has been a citizen of Adams township since 1885, when he went to that place and purchased the David Rumble farm, north of Lowell, on the Muskingum River. At the present writing, he owns about 270 acres of land there, and with the help of his two sons, before mentioned, keeps everything in the best of order. The family are members of the German Lutheran Church. In politics, Mr. Marsch is a Democrat, and has served in various offices of his township. When he lived in Fearing township, he served very commendably as treasurer, trustee and clerk of the township, besides being land appraiser and justice of the peace. As a citizen, Mr. Marsch is greatly interested in all the affairs of his township and county, and commands the respect and confidence of all who know him.

WILLIAM E. STEPHENS, a successful tiller of the soil, has one of the attractive farms in Barlow township, where he has 150 acres under fine cultivation, and devotes his attention to mixed farming. His residence is surrounded by fruit and shade trees, and well-kept lawns, good, substantial barns and various farm buildings dot the place here and there, giving to the place an air of general prosperity.

Mr. Stephens is a native of Monroe County, Ohio, where he was born in January, 1856. He is a son of Joseph and Rachael (Mason) Stephens, who are highly respected citizens of Noble County, Ohio, the family home being but one mile from the Washington County line. The father is also a native of Monroe County, and his father was a Pennsylvanian by birth. The mother of William E. was born in Belmont County, Ohio.

William E. Stephens is the eldest of a family of eight children. The others are as follows: Rufus P., of Salem township; John B., of Aurelius township; Joseph E., of Noble County, Ohio; Henry A., of Salem township; Frank, of Noble County; Amanda, wife of Mr. Pollard; Howler, of Elba, Aurelius township; and Emma, wife of Morrill Holden, an oil prospector of Graysville, Monroe County, Ohio. It will be observed that five of the above are residents of Washington County. Frank resides with his parents, on the home farm.

Mr. Stephens remained at home until about the time of his majority. In December, 1876, he was united in marriage with Jane Morris, of Noble County. Two children were born to them—Joseph O. and Cora M. In 1883 their mother succumbed to a fatal disease. Mr. Stephens was subsequently joined in wedlock with his present wife, who was, before marriage, Hattie Ball, a daughter of Daniel Ball, of Noble County. This union resulted in four children,—Lawrence, Edith, Harry and Loring, aged respectively, twelve years, ten years, eight years, and one year.

Mr. Stephens located in Washington County in 1881, and was a resident of Salem township until 1888. In the spring of that year, he purchased the James Fleming farm in Barlow township, which is his present home. Most of the improvements have been added by him. In politics, he is a Democrat, and has served several successive years as president of the Board of Education. The family join in worshipping at the M. E. Church, of Barlow, of which Mrs. Stephens is an active member.

R. C. T. RILEY, who is successfully engaged in the practice of medicine in New Matamoras, Washington County, Ohio, enjoys the confidence of the public to an unlimited degree, and has a large and lucrative patronage. The Doctor was born in Washington County March 21, 1848, and is a son of Rev. J. D. and Elizabeth (Leachman) Riley, Virginians by birth.

Rev. J. D. Riley was a minister of the Baptist faith for more than half a century. He was born in the State of Virginia (now West Virginia), in 1810, and passed to his final rest in 1892. During his early manhood he followed teaching, previous to studying for the ministry. His widow, a most worthy lady, survived him until the spring of 1902, when she died. They reared a large family, many of whom are deceased. Those living besides the Doctor are as follows: Carrie R., now Mrs. J. B. Beach; John N.; Theodore D.; Maggie, wife of Rev. Mr. Dana; and George J.

Dr. C. T. Riley attended public school during his youth and afterward took a more complete course in Marietta Academy. He subsequently followed teaching as a profession for a period of ten years, three of which were spent as instructor in the New Matamoras High School. In 1872 he commenced to read medicine with a view of making a physician of himself. Some time later he entered the Pulte Homeopathic Medical College, of Cincinnati, and graduated in the class of 1881. Returning to Washington County he began the practice of his profession at New Matamoras, which is still his home. From the start his success was pronounced, and his practice is now second to none in his locality.

October 12, 1871, Dr. Riley wedded Maria Dana, who was born in Newport, Ohio, and is a daughter of Charles Dana, a prosperous merchant of that place. Mrs. Riley was educated at Denison University, at Granville, Ohio, and is a lady of high social attainments, and a writer of no little note. Her mother's maiden name was Churchill, and she was a native of Massachusetts. She and her husband reared four children, of whom Mrs. Riley is the third. The others are: Watson, a minister; Fanny, wife of Dr. McElhinny; and Dr. Williams, deceased.

Eight children have been born to Dr. and Mrs. Riley, as follows: George W.; Archie; Dana; Frank; Thomas C.; Bessie C.; John C.; and Carrie. The first four mentioned are deceased. George W., the oldest, was drowned in the Ohio River when 11 years old. Thomas C. is a graduate of Denison University, of Granville, Ohio, and is now a member of the class of 1904 in the Rochester (New York) Theological Seminary. Bessie C. is the wife of W. P. Galbraith, living at Woodsfield, Ohio. John C. served in the war with Spain in the 7th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf. Carrie is a senior in the Matamoras High School.

Dr. Riley is a pronounced advocate of the temperance cause and votes the Prohibition ticket. He and his wife are regular attendants of the Baptist Church, of which the Doctor is a deacon, and in which both are active workers. The Doctor is also superintendent of the Sunday-school. Socially he is a valued member of the Court of Honor.

ISAAAC A. ORMISTON, one of the leading agriculturists of Barlow township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in that township on September 1, 1837.

A record of his ancestry is to be found in the sketch of his brother, Alexander Ormiston, which appears elsewhere in this work.

Isaac A. Ormiston remained at home until his marriage, when he was twenty-eight years of age. May 2, 1864, he entered the 100-day service in the Union army. He purchased his present farm from his father, and has since lived upon it. He sold a portion of the property to his son, Robert, retaining 127½ acres, which he leases for oil purposes. He has for years been a breeder of Devon cattle, Poland-China hogs and sheep. He is a man of considerable influence in the community and stands high in the esteem of his fellow citizens.

November 19, 1863, Mr. Ormiston was united in marriage with Isabella Breckenridge, who was born in Fairfield township April 7, 1846, and is a daughter of John and Margaret Breckenridge, early residents of Washington County, who came originally from the vicinity of Glasgow, Scotland. Her father died in 1867, and her mother on August 15, 1872. Mr. and Mrs. Breckenridge had the following children; Janett; Jane; Andrew; Elizabeth (Dinsmore), of Iowa; Hugh; Margaret, deceased, who was the wife of Thomas Fleming; and Isabella, wife of Mr. Ormiston.

Mr. and Mrs. Ormiston became the parents of the following children: Margaret Janett, born November 6, 1867, who married Frank Allebaugh, and lives in Perry County, Ohio; Robert Milton, born September 10, 1870, who was married in August, 1901, to Mary Cook, of Virginia; John Breckenridge, born April 13, 1875, who has traveled considerably, spending two years in Oklahoma, and is now located in Perry County, Ohio; Laura Jane, born July 29, 1879, who lives at home; Charles Everett, born August 12, 1883, who is at home; Hattie Mabel, born July 11, 1887; and Albert Wilmarth, born August 15, 1873, who died October 28, 1873. Two of the children, twins, died in infancy. Robert and Laura Ormiston were born mutes and for ten years pursued a course of study in Ohio State Deaf and Dumb Institute. Both are well educated and Laura has done some fine crayon art work and painting. Robert is successfully conducting the farm he purchased of his father. His wife is a mute and was educated in a Virginian institution.

Isaac A. Ormiston is a Republican in politics and served several terms on the School Board and County Fair Board. He is a member of Barlow Post, No. 434, G. A. R., in which he is junior vice. In September, 1864, he and his wife joined the Barlow Presbyterian Church, of which he has served as trustee for more than twenty years. Mr. and Mrs. Ormiston are both active church workers, the latter being president of the Ladies' Aid Society.

ADAM J. GLAUB, who since 1856 has been a resident of Washington County, and is now one of the substantial and useful citizens of Adams township, was born in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, June 20, 1849.

Adam Glaub, his father, was born in Bavaria, Germany, and came to the United States when 25 years of age. He located first in the State of Pennsylvania, near Pittsburg, but a few years later moved to Washington County and settled on the farm in Adams township, which is now the property of his son, Adam J. His political leaning was toward the Democratic party. His religious connection was with the Catholic Church. The mother of Adam J. Glaub was Katherine Lang, a daughter of Emanuel Lang. She was born in Bavaria, Germany. She was a consistent member of the Catholic Church, a kind neighbor and a devoted mother. Her death occurred on August 12, 1892, at the age of 74 years. Seven children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Glaub, as follows: Margaret, deceased; Adam J.; Emanuel, who lives in Zanesville, Ohio; Anna, who married Joseph Kern and lives in Watertown township; Mary, who married Landolin Offenburger and lives in Marietta; Jonathan, who married Joseph Vondereau and is deceased; and Louis, the youngest, who is a resident of Zanesville.

Adam J. Glaub is well known in Adams township, where the principal part of his life has been spent. On account of his ability as a carpenter, he has been called to various sections of this township, where his work may be seen. He owns a fine, well-cultivated farm, consisting of 103 acres, three miles southwest of Lowell. He is a man of enterprise and industry and enjoys the respect of all who know him.

On April 27, 1876, Mr. Glaub was married to Mary A. Vondereau, a daughter of Amandus and Franziska (Schaffer) Vondereau, who was born in Pennsylvania November 7, 1856. They have had eight children, as follows: Adam E., born September 19, 1877; Joseph B., born March 23, 1880; Clara, born August 3, 1882; Leo, born March 19, 1885; Anna, born February 23, 1888; Romanus, born August 23, 1890; Mary, born February 17, 1893; and Oliva, born August 27, 1895. The children have all been reared in the Catholic Church. In politics Mr. Glaub supports the Democratic party. He stands high in his neighborhood as a man of reliability and honesty, and counts many friends in Adams township.

C CLINTON CROOKS, a well-known citizen of Beverly township, Washington County, Ohio, is engaged in the life insurance business. He was born in Beverly in 1877. His parents are A. Judson and Maria (Blackburn) Crooks. The former was born in Olive, Olive township, Noble County, Ohio, in 1850 and died in August, 1893. He was a son of James and Patience Crooks, and followed the carpenter trade during the greater part of his active life. He was a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, and was fraternally connected with the Beverly lodge of Odd Fellows. In political action he was a Democrat.

The mother of the subject hereof was a daughter of Thomas and Katherine Blackburn and was born in Morgan, Center township, in 1853, and still resides near Beverly. She is a consistent member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church and is one of the most highly esteemed residents of her locality. Five children were born to Mr. and Mrs. A. Judson Crooks, namely: Flora, deceased; Nellie, the wife of Frank Cochman, of Iowa; J. Clinton; Edwin, of North Dakota; and Harry, who is at home.

The early life of J. Clinton Crooks was passed in the vicinity of Beverly and he obtained his mental training in the local schools, graduating with honors from the Waterford township high school in 1898. After leaving school he was engaged in teaching for three years in Waterford township, and for one year in Adams township. In 1900 he embarked in the life insurance business and his energy and ability have enabled him to make it very successful. He handles some of the best risks in this neighborhood. Mr. Crooks is one of the active members of the Methodist Church at Coal Run and in that connection is well known. Fraternally he is connected with the order of Odd Fellows, affiliating with the lodge at Beverly. His political sympathies are with the Democratic party. Mr. Crooks is a young man of sterling integrity, who has shown a marked aptness for business and has won the esteem of a wide circle of friends.

THOMAS S. HADLEY, one of the proprietors of the Porterfield Milling Company, was born in Marietta, Washington County, Ohio, in 1856, and is a member of a family of four children born to John and Margaret (Scott) Hadley.

John Hadley was born in Scotland April 22, 1831. His parents had seven children, a number of whom came to this country and located in the vicinity of Marietta. John was reared in his native country and at an early age learned the trade of a miller. He worked at it in Scotland until about 1854, when he set sail for America, and landed in New York City. He then came to Marietta and operated the old Phoenix Mills there for several years. He was subsequently engaged in the milling business in Belpre and Newport, with marked success, until 1901. After spending nearly 53 years in the same line of business he disposed of his interests and is now living a retired life. He was married in the spring of 1853 to Margaret Scott, who was also born in Scotland, and is descended from Sir Walter Scott; John Hadley is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, having served in the 148th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., during the Civil War. Politically he is a Republican.

Thomas S. Hadley was quite a young lad when his parents moved to Belpre, where he received his mental training in the common schools. When he grew up he accompanied his parents to Newport, where he remained a short time. Seeing a good opportunity in his present line of business at Belpre, he returned and has since made his home here. He became head miller at the new Peerless Mill at Parkersburg, West Virginia, and when it was incorporated in 1902 as the New Peerless Mill Company he was made its vice-president. He is president and part owner of the Porterfield Milling Company, whose plant is located in Porterfield, Ohio. It has a capacity of 50 barrels daily and is equipped with all modern improvements, including the Case machinery. The plant has a Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railroad spur running to the mill. Mr. Hadley is a progressive business man and takes a deep interest in all that relates to the welfare of the community. He is also serving as treasurer of Belpre village, which was incorporated in 1902.

Mr. Hadley was united in marriage with Lillie L. Bosworth, and they have one daughter, Grace F. He is a Republican in politics, and fraternally is a member of Blennerhassett Lodge, No. 364, Knights of Pythias, of which he is past chancellor commander. He and his family have a pleasant home on Blennerhassett avenue, in Belpre.

JOHAN W. FRYE, who owns a fine farm of 100 acres, located half a mile west of Lowell, in Adams township, Washington County, Ohio, is one of the substantial citizens of his locality. The birth of Mr. Frye occurred in 1841 on the farm he now occupies, and his parents were Joseph and Lucy (Coburn) Frye.

Joseph Frye was born in Waterford, Waterford township, in 1811, and died in September, 1886. He was a son of Joseph Frye, who came to Washington County from Fryeburg, Maine, and was the first school teacher in Waterford township. The esteem in which he was held was shown by the naming of Fort Frye in his honor. Joseph Frye, Jr., followed an agricultural life, pursued the even tenor of his way, performed the duties of a good citizen and devoted husband and father, and passed away respected by all who knew him. In politics he was a Democrat. He long held membership in the Christian Church. His wife was a daughter of Asa and Rhoda Coburn. She was born on the farm now owned by her son, in 1809, and is a beloved member of his family. The Coburn family originated in Massachusetts. The grandfather of Mrs. Frye, Major Asa Coburn, came to Marietta from that State. The three children born to Joseph and Lucy (Coburn) Frye were: John W.; Sarah S., the wife of Oliver W. Kile, of Indianapolis; and Mary A., deceased.

On August 19, 1863, John W. Frye was married to Malinda Mason, who was a daughter ter of William and Nancy Mason, and was born in Adams township in 1840. They have had a family of four children, as follows: Henry C., who is deceased; Harley E., who resides at home, but is connected with the Little Kanawha Railroad, as civil engineer; Joseph W., who is a broker in Marietta, and married Nellie Sprague, a daughter of D. W. Sprague; and Nellie M., who lives with her parents. Mrs. Frye is a valued member of the Baptist Church. Mr. Frye is a member of Lowell Lodge, No. 436, A. F. & A. M., and the R. A. M., of Beverly. In politics he adheres to the Democratic party. As a farmer he is regarded as progressive and capable, and he is considered one of the useful and reliable citizens of Adams township.

ELMER L. BROWN, the efficient postmaster of Belpre and junior member of the firm of Brown Brothers, proprietors of a grocery and general store, is one of two children born to Charles A. and Martha J. (Breckenridge) Brown.

Charles A. Brown was born in the old jail at Marietta, his father at that time being sheriff of Washington County. He died in June, 1898, and his wife survives him. He married Martha J. Breckenridge and they had two children.—Elmer L.; and Leon H., who was born March 5, 1859.

Elmer L. Brown was born in September, 1866, and received his mental training in the schools of his native county, Washington, where he completed a high school course. He then went West and remained for 10 years, being for a time assistant postmaster of Garden City, Kansas. He was also occupied with railroad work in Topeka, Kansas, where he was in the employ of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company for five years. On his return to Washington County he embarked in his present business in partnership with his brother. They are progressive business men, conduct a first class store in every respect and enjoy a generous patronage from the citizens of Belpre and vicinity. The subject of this sketch was appointed postmaster of Belpre February 24, 1902, and in the discharge of his duties he has given universal satisfaction. He is possessed of excellent traits of character, and is held in high esteem by his fellow citizens, regardless of party affiliation. He is a strong and enthusiastic Republican and takes an active part in party affairs. He was treasurer of the Republican Central Committee in 1897 and except in the year 1899 has acted as chairman of the Republican County Central Committee. He is also one of the supervisors of elections and is now serving his second term as such. He is one of the most prominent Republicans of the county and has at all times taken a deep interest in anything pertaining to the success of his party.

Mr. Brown was united in marriage with Addie Cady, of West Virginia. She is a member of the Baptist Church, of Parkersburg, West Virginia. Fraternally Mr. Brown is a member of the Knights of Pythias. Leon H. Brown, a brother of the subject of this sketch, married Flora B. Bosworth, of Newport, Ohio. The subject of this sketch is a member of the K. of P. He belongs to the Methodist Episcopal Church. He has been a member of the School Board since 1897.

GEORGE FELTON, a prominent and influential farmer of Ludlow township, Washington County, Ohio, was born November 4, 1848, on his present home farm and is a son of George Felton.

George Felton, the father of our subject, was born in Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, in November, 1816. He came to this country and entered a tract of 80 acres of land. Forty acres of this he sold and then bought a farm of 58 acres in Grandview township, from Coleman brothers. He settled on the farm now owned by his son, George, and died in Matamoras in 1847. He married Margaret Nine, who was born in Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, and was a daughter of Jacob Nine. They reared the following children, namely: Conrad, who married E. Jane Koontz, deceased; afterward married Flora Grim, and is now living in Tyler County, West Virginia; Jane, who married Charles Miller, deceased, and is now living in New Matamoras, Ohio; and George, the subject of this sketch. In politics George Felton was a Democrat, and religiously he favored the Methodist Church.

The subject of this sketch was united in wedlock with Mary Semler, a daughter of Nicholas Semler, of Independence township, and they have reared eleven children, namely: Amelia, who was born October 22, 1871, and died in 1873; Mary Jane, born October 3, 1873; William F., born December 27, 1875; George, born October 18, 1878; John, born September 1, 1880; Wesley, born February 22, 1883; Nettie, born October 20, 1885; Charles, born August 20, 1888; Oscar, born January 21, 1891; Minnie, born January 30, 1893; and Edward, born May 5, 1895.

Mr. Felton is engaged in general farming, in which he is very successful, being possessed of much energy and good judgment. He is a Democrat in politics. The family are Methodists. Mr. Felton is an active citizen and is greatly interested in the progress of Washington County and cheerfully gives his support to any worthy enterprise.

HENRY WICKENS, an influential and successful farmer and oil producer of Washington County, Ohio, was born in Aurelius township, which is still his home, January 5, 1834. He is a son of George and Charlotte (Rowland) Wickens, both natives of the Isle of Wight, England.

The paternal grandfather of Henry Wickens was George Wickens, who was a native of the Isle of Wight and spent the whole of his useful life upon that island, following agricultural pursuits.

William Rowland, the maternal grandfather, was also a native of the same place, where he, too, carried on farming in his early manhood. He was also a shipbuilder. In 1820 he came to the United States, settled in Aurelius township, Washington County, Ohio, and became one of the pioneers of that township. His marriage with Nancy Beers resulted in the birth of six children, as follows: Harriet, who married William Way; Jane, who married John Hutchins; William; Charlotte, the mother of Henry Wickens; Mary A., who married Alfred Reigner; and Edward. These children settled in various parts of Washington and Noble counties and became useful citizens in their respective communities.

The parents of Henry Wickens came to America in 1832. They settled in Aurelius township, where they cleared, cultivated and improved land, which is now the pride of their descendants. Upon this land the closing years of their lives were spent. They reared a family of five children, namely: George; Betsey; William R.; John and Henry. All are now deceased except Henry and William R. The latter is also an extensive farmer and oil producer, whose sketch appears elsewhere in this volume. The only sister, Betsey, married Allen Pierce.

Henry Wickens was reared in Aurelius township and ranks high among the best known farmers in Washington County. He is a pioneer in the oil business in that section known as the "Macksburg Field," where he owns and operates quite a number of good, producing wells.

April 27, 1855, Mr. Wickens was united in marriage with Elizabeth Roff, a daughter of Oliver and Betsey (Stevington) Roff, who at that time were residents of Jackson township, Noble County, Ohio, and formerly lived in Leeds, England. Mr. and Mrs. Wickens have six children now living, namely: George O.; William H.; Miles; Ida, wife of James Darrah; Elmer; and Dolly, wife of George Reed. Although at no time an active politician Mr. Wickens is a Republican and has served his township as trustee for several terms. He is, however, deeply interested in the cause of education and has served as a member of the school board for a period of twenty years. He ranks among the representative citizens of his township and is valued as a neighbor and friend.

N. DENT, a prominent merchant of Wingett Run, Washington County, Ohio, was born December 22, 1869, and is a son of George E. Dent.

George E. Dent was born April 15, 1836, in Monroe County, Ohio, and with the exception of one year which he spent in Iowa, he was a farmer all of his active life. He married Rachael Hoskinson, who was born in Monroe County, Ohio, in 1838, and was a daughter of William Hoskinson, a farmer by occupation.

The subject of this sketch was united in marriage May 30, 1898, to Clara B. Day, a daughter of William A. Day, and they have one child,—Oris Glenn. August 31, 1900, Mr. Dent bought the store of Rinard & Company and since that time he has carried a full line of dry goods in Wingett Run. He has a large number of patrons who receive the most prompt and courteous attention. Mr. Dent has a complete stock of merchandise of a high order and he has met with marked success in his undertakings. He spent ten years in teaching school in Kansas previous to entering upon a business career.

The subject of this sketch is a member of Dunlap Lodge, F. & A. M., of Masterton, Ohio, the Knights of Pythias and the M. W. A., of Dunlap, Kansas. Religiously he is a member of the Methodist Church. In politics he adheres to the Republican party.

DAVID REED, a progressive tiller of the soil in Fairfield township, Washington County, Ohio, has carried on general farming all his life, his farm having been purchased by his father many years ago.

Mr. Reed was born in 1845 in Washington County, and is a son of David and Elizabeth (Breckenridge) Reed. His father was a native of Argyleshire, Scotland, born near Glasgow, and crossed the ocean to the United States when still a young man. He chose farming as an occupation and located on a piece of land purchased from Walter Kidwell. This land consisted of 100 acres at first, but he gradually purchased more and more until he owned 236 acres, all highly improved. Until he reached the age of seventy years he lived in comfort with his wife and family of four children, and at that period, in 1884, he laid down the burden of life. His widow survived him two years and went to her rest when sixty-two years old. The four children born to this couple were,—Hugh, who was a soldier in the Civil War, and is now living in Barlow; Nancy Jane, the widow of Daniel Ferguson, of Barlow; David; and Isabelle, who is single, and resides with her sister, Nancy, in Barlow.

David Reed, like his brothers and sisters, was reared on the farm and when he made his start in life chose general farming as his life occupation. He was united in marriage with Mary Starling, of Adams township, a daughter of Willard Starling, one of the oldest residents of the county. They have three children, namely: Ermin, aged seventeen years; Ethel, aged fifteen years; and Elbert, aged twelve years. The family adhere to the doctrines of the Presbyterian Church in their religious belief. In politics Mr. Reed is a firm Republican who is ready at all times to promote the interests of his party to the best of his ability.

WILLIAM R. HART, a prosperous farmer of Fairfield township, Washington County, Ohio, was born in Columbiana County, Ohio, October 2, 1839, and is a son of David and Amanda (Green) Hart.

David Hart was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, and died in March, 1899, at the age of eighty-two years. He resided for many years on a farm bordering on the west line of Fairfield township. He was a Democrat in politics. His wife was reared in Columbiana County, Ohio, and died there in 1891 at the age of sixty-seven years. Fourteen children were born to them, namely: William R., the subject of this sketch; Lucien, a merchant in Stark County, Ohio; Wilson S., of Oklahoma: Henry H., a farmer, residing in Indiana: Hiram H., a merchant of Stark County, Ohio; Homer H., a farmer of Fairfield township; Eliza Jane, Sarah Catherine and Esther Ann, deceased; Nora, wife of Frank of Noble County, Ohio; Caroline (Gordon), of Place, of Athens County, Ohio; Flora (Tilton), of Noble County, Ohio; Caroline (Gordon), of Barlow township; Laura (Pratt), of Nebraska; and Ida, wife of Benjamin Wiley, of Marietta.

William R. Hart was reared in Fairfield township and at the age of sixteen years went from home to earn his own way in the world. In 1861 he enlisted in Company F, 70th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., and served four years, three months and four days, in the 2d Division, 15th Army Corps, Army of the Tennessee. He was mustered out at Little Rock, Arkansas, October 14, 1865, never having been absent from his regiment a day during that time. He was with Sherman on his memorable march to the sea, and participated in the engagements at Vicksburg, Shiloh, Jackson, Corinth, Chattanooga, Missionary Ridge, the famous battle above the clouds, Resaca, Altoona Pass, Marietta (Georgia), Kennesaw Mountain, Lost Mountain, Chattahoochee River, Decatur (Georgia), Leggett's Hill, Jonesboro and New Hope Church. He was the first man to set foot on the top of Fort McAllister in January, 1865. Though oftentimes in the thickest of the fight and in a veritable hail of bullets, he was never seriously wounded. He returned in the fall of 1865 to his farm in Fairfield township, which was known as the Graham farm. Here he has since resided, having 175 acres of well improved land, which he cultivates.

In November, 1866, Mr. Hart was joined in marriage with Charlotte Moore, of Fairfield township, and they have two children,—Orlan and Mary Eunice. Orlan, born in 1871, is in the lumber and planing mill business at Vincent, Ohio. He married Miss McTaggart, of West Virginia, and they have one child, William M. Mary Eunice is the wife of J. M. Miller, of Marietta. The subject of this sketch is a Democrat in politics and has served several terms at township assessor, road supervisor and justice of the peace; he is serving in the last named capacity at the present time. He is a member of Barlow Post, No. 434, G. A. R., in which he is junior vice. Religiously he favors the Methodist Episcopal Church.

EWTON N. THORNILEY, a successful oil producer of Marietta township, Washington County, Ohio, is a native of that township, the date of his birth being May 19, 1852. He is a son of William T. and Eliza J. (Rowland) Thorniley, and grandson of Major John Thorniley.

Major John Thorniley was born July 17, 1780, and in 1795 moved from Cheshire, England, to America. He came down the river from Pittsburg in a boat to Marietta township. He was in the War of 1812 under General Harrison, serving in the Washington County Militia. He was one of the seven members who formed the first Baptist Church in Ohio. His wife was Mary Compton, who was born in 1788 and died in 1875. He died in August, 1844. They reared the following children: William; Mary Ann (Howe); Thomas E., who married Mary E. Rawlston; John, who married Jane Temple; Elizabeth (Wells); Caleb S., who first married Mary Record, his second wife being Betsey Sheldon; Adaline (West); and James.

William T. Thorniley was born May 5, 1811, and followed the trade of a tanner. He made two trips around Cape Horn to California, one in 1854 and one in 1858. He died in Marietta township in 1887. His wife, Eliza J. Rowland, was born on March 11, 1817, and was a daughter of William Rowland, of Newport township. She died February 9, 1883. They were the parents of the following offspring: Minerva (Gates), who resides at Ironton, Ohio; Rinaldo R., who married Mary Snyder, and now resides in the city of Marietta; Alice E. (Scott), who resides in Marietta township; and Newton N. William T. Thorniley was a Whig in politics and later became a Republican.

Newton N. Thorniley received his mental training in his native township and after his school days engaged in farming there. He has been interested in the oil business since 1896, and now has seven oil wells on his farm. He has one gas well on the farm and has enough gas to run an engine for lighting and heating his home. He is a Republican in politics, and has served on the township school board for twenty years. He was one of the promoters of the Marietta Township High School, located on Sand Hill, which was established in 1888.

In 1875 Newton N. Thorniley was united in matrimony with Clara L. Kidd, who was born in Marietta township and is a daughter of Joseph Kidd. They have five children, viz.: S. Lawrence, who was born December 28, 1876, married in 1901 Addie Hudkins, a daughter of Eli Hudkins, and resides in the city of Marietta; Oma M.; Lelia L.; Jennie W.; and Eleanor C.

ROBERT T. MILLER, a prosperous farmer and gardener of Marietta township, Washington County, Ohio, was born on the old family homestead in this township March 29, 1847, and is a son of Robert and Marietta Miller.

He received his educational training in his native town and after the war broke out enlisted in Company B, 148th Reg., Ohio Vol. Inf., and was mustered into service May 2, 1864. He served in the Army of the Cumberland until September, 1864, when he was mustered out, having enlisted as a hundred-day man. He then returned to his native township, where he has since been engaged in farming and gardening with marked success. He located in 1873 on his present farm, which is in section 16, two miles from the city of Marietta.

September 23, 1873, Mr. Miller married Mary Broughton, who died September 3, 1881. She was a daughter of John and Lucy Broughton and as a result of her union with Mr. Miller, left three children, namely: Frank E., of Marietta, who married Julia Riley, of Marietta township, and has a daughter, Irene; and Martha L. and Augustus C., who died, aged 16 years and 14 years, respectively. Mr. Miller formed a second union March 16, 1884, with Alveretta Palmer, a daughter of Thomas and Eleanor Palmer of Fearing township, and they have three children,—Jane T.; T. Lester; and Robert T., Jr. Mr. Miller is a member of the Masonic order, and of Buell Post, G. A. R. Politically he is a Republican and has served six years as director of the county infirmary. Religiously he is a member of the Baptist Church, of which he is a trustee. He has in his possession a watch which was owned by his grandfather as far back as 1805. It is an interesting family relic, and one which Mr. Miller treasures highly.

LOREN G. OLDS, who is a prominent citizen of Washington County, Ohio, is living on a farm about two miles from Marietta. He was born in Corry, Pennsylvania, in 1872, and is a son of William C. Olds and grandson of Ezekiel Olds.

Ezekiel Olds is now living a retired life, in Como, Illinois, having spent many years of activity as a stock raiser and farmer. William C. Olds was born in Conneaut, Ohio, and died at a sanitarium in Battle Creek, Michigan, in August, 1900, aged fifty-eight years. He served during the Civil War as lieutenant of Company H, 105th Reg., Ohio Vol. Infantry. His wife, Jessie (Gould) Olds, was born in Conneaut, Ohio, is a daughter of Loren Gould and is now living in Marietta. William C. Olds and his wife reared five children, namely: Clara, who married J. B. Rieg, of Akron, Ohio, who is connected with the Akron Printing Company; Loren G., the subject of this sketch; Mary, who married T. B. Thorniley, a truck farmer and gardener of Marietta; William C., a tool dresser in the oil fields, who married Ethel Brasington, a daughter of William Brasington, of Marietta, a manufacturer of roofing paint; and Robert E., who attends school.

Loren G. Olds, who carries on general farming, is widely known in Washington County and is a man of honor and integrity. He married Mahala Rebecca McAllister, a daughter of Madison McAllister, deceased.

William McAllister, the grandfather of Mr. Olds' wife, was born in the northern part of New Hampshire in 1768, and came to Marietta in 1815, purchasing a farm from the Ohio Company. Mrs. Loren G. Olds now has the original deed in her possession. It was signed by Martin Van Buren and bears the date of August 21, 1837. The subject of this sketch and his wife are now living on the original McAllister farm. William McAllister married Nancy Learned October 22, 1771. She died August 22, 1865. Their children were as follows: James, born February 2, 1790; Millie, born June 17, 1792, deceased October 8, 1878; Harvey, born May 20, 1794, deceased January 23, 1870; Polly, born April 27, 1796; Rebecca, born April 6, 1798, deceased January 7, 1892; Irene, born April 17, 1800, deceased May 3, 1892; Nancy, born January 11, 1803, deceased January 31, 1857; William, born February 10, 1805, deceased August 5, 1823; John, born March 18, 1807, deceased September 28, 1880; Francis, born March 1, 1809, deceased January 22, 1879; Madison, born July 2, 1812, deceased August 10, 1883; and Haines, born in March, 1815, deceased in March, 1834.

Mrs. Olds' mother was a daughter of Alexander Posey, who was born January 10, 1808, and died March 29, 1882. He married Mahala Morrison, who was born June 6, 1811, and died February 8, 1859, and their children were as follows: Mary, born November 30, 1832, deceased July 12, 1853; Thomas, born September 16, 1834, deceased January 11, 1853; Mahala, born September 16, 1836; Francis, born August 11, 1838, deceased in December, 1838; Jane, born September 6, 1839; Harriet, born April 6, 1842; Dudley, born September 25, 1844; Henry, born February 1, 1847; Nelson, born October 21, 1849, deceased July 7, 1851; Leonida, born June 4, 1854; and Minnesota, born May 14, 1857.

Mr. Olds is a Republican in politics. He and his wife attend the Congregational Church. They are good neighbors, kind and charitable and their friends are many.

CHARLES H. GODDARD, the oldest native resident of Fairfield township, Washington County, Ohio, has a valuable farm in the northwest corner of the township. He was born December 4, 1824, in what was then Wesley township, and on the farm which is now his home. He is a son of Hapgood and Rebecca (Wood) Goddard.

Hapgood Goddard was born April 12, 1783, in Swaney, Cheshire County, New Hampshire. He first came to Washington County, Ohio, in 1812, and in 1814 moved here with his wife and three children. They settled in Belpre at the home of Major Putnam, an uncle of Mrs. Goddard, and in 1815, resided on Blennerhasset Island. In 1817 they moved to White Oak settlement, then a heavily timbered tract of land, where Mr. Goddard now lives. There he died on January 31, 1865, and his widow, who was born in August, 1787, died on February 27, 1875. To them were born the following children: Francis Amanda, who died August 19, 1844, and was the wife of Alanson Smith, also deceased; Edward Hapgood, who died November 22, 1853, leaving a family of eight children; Eliza Alvira, wife of James Smith, who died in 1899 at the home of her son, Alonzo Smith; William Pitt, who resided in Wesley township, and died in 1890, leaving a family of six children; Abraham Wood, who died October 22, 1889, and left three sons and five daughters, of whom one son, William R., was formerly treasurer of Washington County, and now lives in Athens County; Julia Putnam, who married Alanson Smith, and now resides in Colorado; Sarah, who married John V. Faires and resides in Mexico, Missouri; Charles H., the subject of this sketch; George Rodney, who resides in Dunham township; and Lucy Eaton, wife of Joseph Coulter, who died in the State of Montana about 1890.

Charles H. Goddard was reared on the home farm and has lived there all his life, with the exception of six years,—from 1853 to 1859,—spent in Dunham township. He owned about 600 acres of land at one time, and still owns two hundred and eighty acres, which he has managed continuously since 1846. The land is located in sections 15, 16, 21 and 22, township 7, range 11. His home is one of the finest country residences in Washington County.

Mr. Goddard was married October 21, 1847, to Melissa Emeline Chamberlain, a daughter of John D. Chamberlain, and a sister of Judge L. W. Chamberlain, of Marietta. She was born at Watertown, Washington County, Ohio, in 1826. Mr. and Mrs. Goddard have eight children, as follows: Rowena, born September 28, 1848, who is unmarried and resides on her own farm near that of her father; Rodney Watson, born July 27, 1853, who lives in Jackson County, Ohio, married Callie B. Foster, of that county, and has three children.—Lulu, Carrie and Laman; Harley Charles, born October 26, 1856, is a farmer of Fairfield township, who first married Miss Dawson, by whom he had four sons, and whose present wife was Leora Stephens; Arnold Douglass, born June 1, 1862, who is an undertaker of Chesterfield, Morgan County, and also owns a farm in Fairfield township; Ason Alphonso, a farmer of Wesley township, who was born October 16, 1864, and married Henrietta Trotter, by whom he has three daughters,—Bertha, Emeline and Gertrude; Frank Ernest, who resides near his father, was born May 23, 1867, married Lizzie Hull, a daughter of R. E. Hull, and has three children,—Harry, Don and Ella; Bertha, born May 19, 1869, who married Chase King, of Wesley township, and has one child,—Helen; and Webster B., born April 12, 1874, who married Maggie Smith. The subject of this sketch is a Republican in politics, although he was a Democrat until the candidacy of James G. Blaine for the presidency. He is an active convention member. In religious faith he is a Universalist.

WILLIAM ADDIS, deceased. Among the many worthy settlers whose lives were closely interwoven with the early history of Washington County, Ohio, the name of the late William Addis deserves especial mention. Fayette County, Pennsylvania, was the place of his birth, and 1807, the year of that event. Mr. Addis inherited a rugged constitution, so essential in withstanding the hardships and early privations incident to the settlement of a new country. His father, John Addis, was born in England, but in early manhood, came to the United States, and spent some time in Pennsylvania. He subsequently moved to Washington County, Ohio, where the closing years of his life were passed.

William Addis left his native state at the early age of twelve years, about 1830, and went to Columbiana County, Ohio. In the fall of 1839, he purchased a farm in Fairfield township, Washington County, Ohio, which is now owned by his sons, John R. and Charles M. The original purchase contained 160 acres in section 8, township 7, range 11. Later, an additional purchase of 80 acres was made, and thus the farm was increased to 240 acres, which is its present size. Upon this farm, William Addis carried on general farming and stock raising, and was very successful.

William Addis married Martha B. Morlan, a native of Loudoun County, Virginia, whose parents removed to Columbiana County, Ohio, where Mrs. Addis was reared. Later, the family located on a farm in Washington County, and there the death of Mrs. Addis took place—November 28, 1874, in her sixty-eighth year. Seven children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Addis. The three eldest, Mary, Creighton, and B. F., were born in Columbiana County. Mary is still living, having married and settled in Crawford County, Indiana, which is still her home. The other children were born in Washington County. They are Jason S., who died in 1866; Marshall L., who died in February, 1867; John, who was born November 2, 1844, and resides on the homestead; and Charles M., who was born July 3, 1850, and is a partner of his brother, John, on the ancestral farm. William Addis, the father, passed away in 1887, in his seventieth year. After his death, as before mentioned, the sons John and Charles M., succeeded to the farm, and the intervening years have been spent in carrying on general farming on practical and well-paying lines. The brothers were reared in the same vicinity, and were the recipients, in their youth, of a common-school education. They are well-versed in everything pertaining to their work, and are well-read on the local and national questions of our day. Charles married Florence Campbell, a daughter of William Campbell. Mrs. Addis died May 20, 1900, leaving one daughter, Vida E., aged fifteen years, who keeps house for the brothers. Both brothers are Democrats, and Charles has served as township trustee, while John filled the same office for seven years, and also served three years as assessor. They have liberal views on the subject of religion. The brothers have recently completed an extensive addition to their residence, which is now large and comfortable.

MYRON WENTWORTH GAGE, one of Fairfield township's most progressive farmers and business men, was born August 23, 1857, on the farm where he now lives, and is a son of Joseph H. and Mary A. (Cook) Gage. His parents, now deceased, were for many years highly respected citizens of this township.

Myron W. Gage attended the public schools and took an academic course of study in Bartlett Academy. For four years in the early "eighties," he was most successfully engaged in the mercantile business with J. T. Dunbar, at Watertown; at the same time lived on the home farm, which he has since owned. It is a tract of three hundred and twenty acres of well improved land, which he devotes to general farming.

Mr. Gage was joined in marriage with

Emma S. Gage, who was born in Macon County, Illinois, on the 24th of February, 1868, and is a daughter of Wilson S. and Catherine H. (Sterigere) Gage. Her father died January 26, 1896, aged seventy-one years. Her maternal grandfather was Judge David Sterigere, of Missouri, a native of Pennsylvania. She was one of seven children, as follows: David Leslie, who resides at Blue Mound, Macon County, Illinois, married Mary Ware, and has four children; Willard E., of Chilhowee, Missouri, who married Dora Simons, and has four children; D. S. Page, Ph. D., D. D., of Fulton, Missouri, who is professor of the Greek languages and literature at Westminster College; Emma S., wife of Mr. Gage; Franklin; Marian H. (Royston), of St. Augustine, Florida; and Charles Edward, who died in infancy. Mrs. M. W. Gage was reared in Illinois, where she lived until after marriage. Mr. Gage and his wife have three children, namely: Beatrice Anita, born April 23, 1892; Daniel James, born January 20, 1894; and Frances Louise, born March 24, 1899. The subject of this sketch is a Democrat, in politics and has served as trustee of the township, and also as school director. Fraternally, he is a member of Blue Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Bartlett. Mrs. Gage is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

SAMUEL BENTON LONGFELLOW,* of Longfellow Brothers, oil producers, is one of the most progressive and successful business men of Macksburg, Washington County, Ohio. He was born in Aurelius township October 12, 1866, and is a son of Aurelius and Elizabeth B. (Davidson) Longfellow. His paternal grandfather was Samuel Longfellow, a native of Maine, and one of the pioneers of Aurelius township. His maternal grandparents were William and Jane (Richison) Davidson, natives of County Durham, England, who settled in Aurelius township, Washington County, in 1833.

Samuel B. Longfellow was reared in his native township, and attended the public schools of Macksburg. In 1883, he began his active career in the Macksburg oil field, as a driller and tool dresser, and in 1884 engaged in contracting, owning his own tools. In 1885, he became an oil producer. He was associated with H. H. Keeler until 1890, since which time he has been a member of the firm of Longfellow Brothers, operating in Washington, Noble and Monroe counties, Ohio, and Doddridge and Ritchie counties, West Virginia. They are also interested in farming in Aurelius township, and gold mining in Idaho, and are owners of the elegant new hotel at Macksburg, erected in 1902.

Mr. Longfellow was married, May 23, 1885, to Lizzie DeLong, a daughter of William and Mahala (Fowler) DeLong, of Aurelius township. To this union were born four children, namely: George E.; Samuel H.; Bessie F.; and Ferest, deceased. The subject of this sketch is a member of Aurelius Lodge, No. 308, A. F. & A. M. He has served as trustee of Aurelius township, and member of the Macksburg council, and in politics is a Republican.

LOUIS D. STRECKER* is a general farmer of Muskingum township, Washington County, Ohio, and is also extensively engaged in the manufacture of glue, fertilizers, and tallow rendering.

Mr. Strecker is a native of Marietta, Ohio, and was born on the homestead farm, in 1872. He is the son of John, Jr., and Ricka (Baumgartner) Strecker, and grandson of John Strecker, Sr., who came with his family from the province of Wurtemberg, Germany, to the United States, and settled at Marietta.

John Strecker, Jr., was born in 1832, in Germany, and became a farmer in Washington County, where he also manufactured glue on the homestead farm, until his death, December 30, 1890. He married Ricka Baumgartner, and they had seven children, namely: C. F.

Strecker, of the firm of Strecker Bros. & Co., engaged in the wholesale manufacture of leather and harness; John, a prosperous farmer of Muskingum township; B. F., also a member of the firm of Strecker Bros. & Co.; Caroline, employed as a teacher of German in the Marietta high school; E. W., a Methodist minister now residing in Crawfordsville, Indiana; Ellen M., who is still at home with her mother, and Louis D., the subject of this biography.

Louis D. Strecker was united in marriage with Florence Fischer, a daughter of P. C. Fischer, a shoe merchant in Marietta. They have no children. They are members of the German Methodist Church, of which they are regular attendants. Mr. Strecker is a Republican in politics. He is a dutiful citizen, and very efficient in his business management.

JOHAN W. GEDDES,* a well known citizen of Lowell, Washington County, and a prominent oil producer and contractor in the oil fields at that place, is a native of Stockport, Morgan County, Ohio, and was born in 1871. His parents were Henry and Elizabeth (Walker) Geddes. The former was a native of Bucks County, Pennsylvania, and the latter of Belmont County, Ohio.

Henry Geddes was born in 1844, and is living in Stockport, and following the occupation of a tiller of the soil. He was in the Morgan raid during the Civil War, and served his country with courage. Elizabeth Walker became the wife of Mr. Geddes. She died in 1896, when forty-eight years of age. She and her husband adhered to the doctrines of the Methodist Episcopal Church. They reared seven children, as follows: Emma, deceased; John W.; Marguerite, deceased; William, who is engaged in business as an oil gauger at Scott Town; Adelia, now Mrs. Dr. Peoples, of Ohio; Charles B., who is living in Lowell with his brother, John W.; and Bertha, who makes her home in Stockport. In politics, the father was a Democrat. He was a member of the Grangers' Association.

John W. Geddes obtained his mental training in the public schools of Stockport, and later became a telegraph operator and railroad agent. He worked as an operator one year then became assistant agent and operator at West Marietta, for one year, and was located at Lowell five years. In 1875, he became interested in the oil business in which he was a contractor for many years, and is now a producer. Besides his interest in the Lowell field, he is identified with oil interests in Churchtown, where he owns five good wells.

The subject of this sketch was united in marriage May 12, 1897, with Erna B. Becker, a daughter of Jacob and Mary Becker, born in 1879, in Lowell. They were blessed with one child,—Helen Marie,—born March 20, 1898. Mrs. Geddes is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In politics, he is a Democrat. Fraternally, he affiliates with Buell Lodge, No. 395, K. of P. Mr. Geddes is an upright gentleman, and enjoys the highest esteem of his neighbors and friends.

LD. SMITH,* a well known farmer and oil producer of Ludlow township, Washington County, Ohio, was born on his present farm, February 10, 1866, and is a son of Elijah Smith.

Elijah Smith was born July 4, 1832, in Sweitzer township, Monroe County, Ohio, and always followed farming. He was a Democrat in politics, and religiously was a member of the Christian Church. He married a daughter of Elisha Smith, of Washington township, Monroe County, Ohio, after which they moved to the farm now owned and occupied by L. D. Smith. Six children blessed their union, as follows: F. A., who married Mahala Mendenhall, and resides in Ludlow township; Melissa; Mary, wife of William Rinard, of Ludlow township; Eunice, wife of T. S. Thomas, of Bellefontaine, Ohio; Charlotte, deceased, who was the wife of A. M. Graham; and L. D.

L. D. Smith received his schooling at Bloomfield, Ohio, and has always been engaged in farming. He has a tract of 175 acres of valuable land, on which are nine oil wells. These wells produce 800 barrels of oil per month, and yielded as much as 250 barrels per day, when first operated. Politically, Mr. Smith is a strong supporter of Democratic principles. Religiously he is a faithful member of the Christian Church. A progressive man of sterling character, he occupies a high place in the esteem of his fellow citizens.

EDGAR ALLEN ROSS, M. D.,* one of the successful young physicians of Bartlett, Ohio, was born in Wesley township, Washington County, in 1870, and is a son of James and Martha Jane (Heald) Ross, both of whom were also born in Ohio.

James Ross, who is a resident of Bartlett and an honored survivor of the Civil War, was born near Chester Hill, in Morgan County, Ohio, and came in boyhood to Bartlett. After completing his education, he adopted the profession of teaching, and in the meantime made preparations for the practice of law but in 1861 his personal affairs became of secondary importance. He enlisted at Chillicothe in Company F, 73rd Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., was wounded at Resaca in 1864, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant, and was mustered out in 1865. With his regiment he participated in much hard service and took part in the march to the sea, under General Sherman, and the Battles of Gettysburg, the Second Bull Run, and Chickamauga. Immediately after his return from the army, Mr. Ross was admitted to the bar, at Marietta. Since then, he has acceptably filled the office of assessor and justice of the peace.

Mr. Ross was married to Martha Jane Heald, who was born in Columbiana County, and died in 1901, at the age of 64 years. Their children were as follows: Marion, a resident of Wesley township; William, who also resides in Wesley; Edgar Allen; Dr. Louis, of Iowa; Caleb, of Kentucky; Hattie, the wife of Ezra Walker, of Pittsburg; and Grace, who is at home.

Dr. Ross enjoyed many educational advantages in his youth. He attended Bartlett Academy, Lebanon College and Marietta College. When only 15 years of age, he taught his first term of school and continued in that profession for about eight years. Finally he entered the office of Dr. L. W. Peeble and Dr. E. H. Trickle, to prepare for medical lectures. In 1894, he entered the Kentucky School of Medicine, at Louisville, and graduated in 1896. Dr. Ross gave particular attention to obstetrics and the diseases of children, and in these branches has been very successful, although his practice covers every field. His first three years were spent at Little Hocking, but in 1899 he returned to Bartlett, and here, among his old neighbors and friends, he has been warmly welcomed.

Dr. Ross was married to Anna Barlow, who was born in Barlow township, in 1868, and is a daughter of Joseph and Mary Barlow. Five children resulted from this union, namely: Lester, born in 1892; Luther, born in 1894; Milan, born in 1898; and Ruth, born in 1900; and Mary, who is deceased. Dr. Ross and his wife are members of the Methodist Church and the former is a popular comrade in Cutler Lodge of Odd Fellows.

DR. S. A. CUNNINGHAM,* who is one of the best surgeons of Marietta, Washington County, is a native of Somerset, Perry County, Ohio, and was born in 1867. He is a son of S. C. and Margaret (Reaney) Cunningham. His mother is a sister of Dr. Thad A. Reaney, of Cincinnati, Ohio. He has one sister,—Mrs. W. Lake,—who lives in Zanesville, Ohio.

Dr. Cunningham was a pupil in Fulton Academy, after which he taught school for a number of years. He attended the Ohio Medical College, from which he was graduated with the degree of M. D., in 1890. He at once began the practice of his profession in Greene County, at Cedarville, the home of Whitelaw Reid. After taking a post-graduate course in surgery, in 1896, he settled in Marietta, where he has since resided. Dr. Cunningham makes a specialty of surgical work, although he also devotes much of his time to general practice. He has won an enviable reputation in the community, as a physician and surgeon of excellence, and his practice is very large. His offices, which are located at 258 Front street, are equipped with all facilities for surgical work. He is thoroughly modern and progressive in all his ideas, and keeps abreast of any advancement made in the science of medicine.

Dr. Cunningham married Miss Perine, of Zanesville, Ohio, and they have two children,—Louetta, who was born in Greene County, Ohio; and Robert, who was born in Marietta, Ohio. He is a member of the State and Washington County medical societies. Politically, he is a Republican.

BERNARD RODICK,* a prominent German-American citizen and successful business man, of Marietta, was born in Bremen, Germany, in 1839, and is a son of Henry and Margaret (Witte) Rodick, who were pioneers of Marietta and Washington County. They came here in 1850, having left Germany with the idea of settling in Texas, but on the way, joined others of their countrymen, who wished to locate in Marietta, and accompanied them. In his own country, Henry Rodick had carried on a brewing business. He became a useful and respected citizen of Marietta, where he died in 1867, aged 72 years. His wife survived him a few years, and died at the age of 70 years. They were leading members of the upper Lutheran Church of Marietta, and their remains lie in the cemetery at this place. Their three children were as follows: Annie (Van Bergen), who resides in Marietta; Henry, whose wife died in 1895, and who lives with his sister, Annie; and Bernard, the subject of this record.

Both Bernard and Henry Rodick have been prominent in business circles in this locality for a number of years. They are entirely self-taught in the English language, although they enjoyed many advantages in their native land. Bernard Rodick was connected for seven years with John M. Woodbridge, in the wholesale grocery and produce business, and for some time with D. B. Torpy. During the progress of the Civil War, Bernard followed steamboating on the Ohio and Muskingum Rivers. He was interested in several vessels, and held the position of captain. In 1867, Henry and Bernard Rodick embarked in the hardware business, in which they continued for about thirty years. Bernard Rodick erected the building now occupied by Saylor Bros. Their hardware business, which was carried on for fifteen years where the store of H. P. Theiss is located, was continued in the new building.

Since closing out the hardware business, the Rodick brothers have acquired large lumber interests. The Reader Lumber company, with sawmills at Reader, Wetzel County, West Virginia, are manufacturers of, and wholesale dealers in, export oak, poplar and other lumber. These mills have a daily capacity of 40,000 feet. They belong to the Rodick brothers. Bernard Rodick is also manager of the Broadwell Lumber Company, whose mills are located at Broadwell, Athens County, Ohio, and compose one of the most important industries of that section. Mr. Rodick is also the assignee of the Pioneer Mill Company.

Mr. Rodick was married to Mary Smith, of Lowell, Ohio, and their surviving children are two daughters, namely: Carrie (Shirs), a widow, who lives at home; and Laura (Bettis), who lives at Jeannette, Pennsylvania. Mr. Rodick built a handsome residence at No. 620 Front street, which is the scene of pleasant family life. In politics, Mr. Rodick is identified with the Republican party, and his reputation for integrity and reliability could not have been better attested than his retention as county treasurer for a period of ten years, during which time he handled about a quarter of a million dollars. Although, as mentioned before, Mr. Rodick taught himself the English language, his deep interest in the cause of education and his efforts to promote its best interests, made him one of the most valued and useful members the board of education ever had. For 11 years he retained his membership, and during that time effected many needed reforms and furthered many desirable plans. His early religious training was in the German Lutheran Church, but since 1882, he has been connected with the Congregational Church. Liberal public-spirited, and reliable in business, Mr. Rodick ranks as a truly representative citizen of this progressive city.

A. MEYER,* a prominent oil producer of Washington County, Ohio, has an office in the First National Bank Building in Marietta, and is doing a prosperous business. He is a native of Pennsylvania, and claims Philadelphia as his birthplace. When but a boy he removed from that city and became a resident of Rochester, New York, and there he was reared and schooled. His arrival in the oil country was his beginning in active life for he was still a young man, starting out to seek his fortune. He located first at Titusville, Pennsylvania, and was engaged for a number of years as a driller and toll-dresser. Some time later he began contracting, and for twelve years has operated wells in Washington County, Ohio. He is at present interested in the Spies Farm Oil Company and is also connected with other companies in the oil business. He is also a partner of William Reader, a very prominent oil operator, a sketch of whose life is also given in this book. They have fields of oil in the neighborhood of Lowell, Ohio, and have been very successful.

The subject of this sketch was united in matrimony with Miss Dye, a daughter of D. A. Dye, of Newport, Ohio, and descended from one of the pioneer settlers of the oil fields of Washington County. They have two little daughters, and enjoy a most comfortable home at 29 Fourth street.

Mr. Meyer affiliates with the Masonic fraternity, being a member of Harmar Blue Lodge, No. 390, and also of Marietta Commandery, No. 50. Mr. Meyer has good business ability and his judgment is of the best. In Marietta he occupies a place among the worthiest citizens.

JESSE D. CLINE,* who is the proprietor of a livery stable in New Matamoras, was born in Independence township, Washington County, Ohio, March 24, 1856, and is a son of Isaiah and Harriet (Ward) Cline.

Isaiah Cline was born in Ludlow township, Washington County, and was a farmer. He served in the 77th Reg. Ohio Vol. Inf., and died at Memphis, Kentucky, in 1863. His wife, Harriet E. Ward, was also a native of Washington County, and was born in 1838. She departed this life in 1869. Her father, Jesse M. Ward, was one of the early settlers of Washington County. Isaiah Cline and his wife reared four children, as follows: Jesse D., the subject of this sketch; Martin W., who teaches school in Oklahoma; Mary E., of Wheeling, West Virginia; and Andrew K., of Grand View.

Jesse D. Cline was very young when his father died, and he was reared by his grandfather Ward, and lived on his farm until he reached the age of twenty-one years. He then went west, spent two years and a half in Kansas, one year in Iowa, and returned to Washington County in the spring of 1861. He lived in Marietta until 1883, and during part of the time, he was employed railroading. He also spent two years in the meat business, while in Marietta. In 1898, he engaged in the livery business at Newport, and moved to New Matamoras in 1899, where he has since conducted a livery stable. His stable is well patronized, and he gives his patrons the best of attention. He has a contract for the Star Mail Route from New Matamoras to Marietta.

Mr. Cline was married in 1886, to Frances Deigmiller, who was born in Noble County, Ohio, in 1867, and was reared in Washington County. Her father, John Noble, was a farmer. The subject of this sketch and his wife have four children, namely: Bessie F.; Harriet E.; Winford; and John W.

Mr. Cline is a Republican in politics. He was elected town marshal in 1901. He is a member of the Methodist Church.
